"It is," replied the conductor brusquely. "Where is your ticket?"

The old man fumbled in the depths of an ancient shot bag.

"Ain't got no ticket, mister," he said slowly, "but here be 2 cents. I never rode on one of these pesky fliers, and I just want to feel the sensation. Put me off after I've rode one mile."—Chicago News.

The Main Thing.

"You told him to diet, didn't you?" asked the young doctor.

"Yes," replied the old one; "I told him to eat only the plainest food and as little as possible."

"But this case has been chronic so long do you think that will help him?"

"Well, it will help him to pay my bill."—St. Louis Republic.

CHINESE TIDBITS.

In China turnips, several varieties of cabbage and seaweed are often prepared for winter by giving them a coat of salt and drying in the sun. A vegetable resembling cabbage is sometimes dried in the sun without salt and put away in shallow baskets until ready for use. They have a way also of making a kind of sauerkraut very much as Americans do. The treatment of certain vegetables in this way is a common practice. The best native hams come from a region known as the Kinhua district, in Chekiang province. The hams when dressed and ready for curing are carefully placed in vats. A kind of pickle is then prepared of salt, water and a sauce from the soy bean, which is poured over the fresh hams. After the hams have been in the pickle a sufficient length of time they are taken out and hung up to dry and occasionally, but not often, smoked, when they are ready for the market. Sometimes a little nitrate of potash is also added to help preserve them, but this addition is the exception and not the rule. It is reported that in the south hams are cured by means of an alkaline earth and common salt, but so far as can be learned no earth of any kind is employed in the middle and northern provinces. The famous pickled eggs of China are preserved with a pickle made of common mud, salt, saltpeter and soy bean sauce, all mixed together. The eggs are coated with a plaster of this mixture and laid away until ripe, when they are ready for the table. Prepared in this way they will keep several months.

PAPER MAKING IN KOREA.

Hermit Kingdom Supplies Best to China and Japan.

It is not generally known that the best kinds of paper met with in China and Japan are the product of Korea. It is claimed by many that the Korean paper excels the very best that is made in China and Japan. It is produced entirely by manual labor and without the use of any machinery. The raw material used for the better kinds is obtained from the bark of the Broussonetia papyrifera, which is collected in the spring and beaten in water containing a large admixture of wood ashes until reduced to a thick pulp.

This is taken in large ladles and spread upon frames of bamboo so as to form thin sheets. Another kind of paper is made from old scraps trodden into pulp, much in the same way that grape juice is extracted in some countries, and, though this mode of pulping is slow, it has the advantage of not breaking the fiber so much as when machinery is used.

After the pulp has been made into paper the sheets are piled up to a height of six feet and then cut into pieces, to be again subjected to the stamping with the feet. At the same time the roots and seeds of a plant called tackpoul are added, the soluble parts of which are supposed to give tenacity and toughness to the paper.—Exchange.

Czar Blesses the Waters.

St. Petersburg, Jan. 20.—The annual ceremony of blessing the waters, during which, in 1905, the emperor narrowly escaped assassination by means of the saluting cannon, took place at Tsarsko Selo Sunday instead of at the waters of the Neva. The imperial blessing was bestowed on the waters of the lake in the palace park, amid the salute of guns. After the ceremony, the emperor, accompanied by his mother, reviewed the parading guard regiments.

THE KONGO FOREST.

Unfamiliar Animals That Haunt This Region of Mystery.

The mightiest forest of which the human race has any knowledge today is that of the Kongo. It is a region of impenetrable mystery concerning which accounts have been so strange that until the past few years they have been deemed incredible. But recent discovery has transformed scientific incredulity into a measure of belief. Thus on the basis of Sir Harry Johnston's explorations of Uganda a giant ape larger than the gorilla is a denizen of this tremendous forest region. There, too, are animals of a quite unfamiliar kind, notably the okapi. The forest seems to be the resort of the five horned giraffe, the tallest mammal in the world. The hugest elephants, bearing tremendous tusks, are there. The largest fish found in all Africa haunt the streams meandering through the recesses of this forest. Lions seem not to penetrate into the thick growth of the jungle thereabouts. The forest leopards are arboreal, catching monkeys for their food.

The curiosity of the mighty forest is unquestionably the okapi, a large and seemingly new mammal, discovered by Sir Harry Johnston. In his books of travel Stanley told of an animal of ass-like appearance existing in the dense forest which was caught in pits. The occurrence of anything like a quadruped of the equine sort in the thickness of an impenetrable forest seemed so anomalous that no scientist of standing would credit the possibility; hence the determination of Sir Harry Johnston to investigate.—Current Literature.

FORCE OF IMAGINATION!

A remarkable incident happened recently at a dental hospital. A young woman went there to have five teeth extracted. The anaesthetic decided upon by the dental surgeon was ethyl chloride, and this was administered by the usual form of apparatus. An India rubber cap is placed over the patient's mouth and nostrils, and connected with it is a bag into which a sealed capsule of ethyl chloride is introduced. By the turning of a screw from the outside the capsule is broken and the anaesthetic liberated. The screw was turned, the patient went off gradually into the usual condition of insensibility, five teeth were extracted, and the patient awakened without feeling any part of the operation.

The whole case appeared perfectly normal. Only when the young woman had left the room and the apparatus was being made ready for another patient was it discovered that the capsule of ethyl chloride had by some mischance not been broken at all. The whole condition of insensibility had been brought about by the self hypnotism of the patient. The idea that an anaesthetic was being administered was so strong in her mind that she had passed into insensibility entirely by hypnotic suggestion.—Boston Traveler.

Lived Sixty-Nine Years in Bed.

Allegan, Mich., Jan. 23.—Alfonso Fost, seventy-four years old, a wonderful freak, is dead in the Allegan county house. He fell on his head when five years old and his body did not develop from that time. He was entirely helpless, passed all his life in bed and his head grew to enormous size. His speech was limited, yet he committed to memory many verses from the bible.

In the Southern Michigan league pitching staff for 1908 many new faces will be seen. The Adrian Times Tuesday morning contained the following:

Battle Creek will probably lose Stelger and Deneau. The south paw was very good last season when Deneau was hovering near and Rube himself was not so shabby.

Bay City has seen the departure of Atkins, who looks like a comer and did gilt edge work and Pinance who had his ups and downs but was a good pitcher.

Kalamazoo will have to fill in a niche left by the departure of Maire and Mont Method may be lost to the Celerylites.

Tecumseh must say good bye to Railing than whom there was no better pitcher in the league and Teal that cool levelheaded, wise, old owl.

Saginaw must find some one to occupy the shoes of Chiesman and Gough, both star flingers of 1907.

Flint is lucky and will have her old pitchers if she wants them.

Lansing will have Pierce and Hughey to start with. Pierce will have better control next season you can bet on that. He will field better, he knows the game more and he ought to be a great pitcher.

Hughey is also improving. If Morrissey gets another pitcher he will not be so bad off.

Taking off Passenger Trains.

Pulling off passenger trains on the Vanderbilt railroads, as announced in the dispatches, looks like crude economy, unworthy of financiers who have the brain power to look ahead for business. Traffic may be light for a few weeks, but it will soon return, if the trains are there to carry the people. True economy would suggest smaller trains and more of them. Neither business nor passengers will wait all day for trains in this impatient age. Passengers will seek other expedients, or give up contemplated trips if too seriously annoyed. The published suggestion that train service is wantonly reduced for spite against the promoters of the two cent fare legislation is unworthy of consideration, it is so grossly improbable.—Adrian Times.

SUDDEN DEATH

Of one of Tecumseh's Business Men

JOHN L. ANDERSON

Of the well known dry goods Firm of Anderson & Rosacrans.

John L. Anderson, a member of the well known dry goods firm of Anderson & Rosacrans, died at his home on Union street Wednesday evening at nine o'clock after a week's illness of peritonitis. Although Mr. Anderson was known to be seriously ill a change was not looked for under two or three days and his death came as a great shock to his family and friends, who little realized the end was so near.

This makes the third prominent business man of this village who has passed away during a period of five weeks, George N. Stacy of the Tecumseh HERALD, Calvin Hiteshu of the firm of Harris & Hiteshu, and John L. Anderson of Anderson & Rosacrans. With these three deaths among our business men a gloom has been cast over the city and Tecumseh mourns as one great family.

The funeral will be held tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock at the Presbyterian church of which the deceased was a member, Rev. Dunning officiating. The burial will take place at Brookside.

DISAPPEARANCE

Still a Mystery.

MRS. JARRED VANVLEET

Not been seen or heard from since last Tuesday morning

Mrs. Jarred VanVleet, who resides east of town about two miles, suddenly disappeared last Tuesday morning and has not yet been seen or heard from since that time. She arose as usual and prepared the morning meal and was assisting her children to dress while waiting for Mr. VanVleet to come in from his work at the barn.

Mr. VanVleet went into the house and found the seven months old baby partly dressed, and the 7 year old boy, alone. Upon asking the son where his mamma had gone, he replied that she put on her hat and coat and left the house. She did not return and Mr. VanVleet becoming worried telephoned for help. Searching parties were formed and every conceivable place has been thoroughly searched, and still no clue. It is thought by a number that she has drowned herself and is under the ice in the river.

Mrs. VanVleet was formerly Miss Mary Welliver, daughter of Thomas Welliver. Since the birth of her baby in May neither Mrs. VanVleet nor the baby have been well and it is thought by the care and worry over the little one the mother's mind has become unbalanced and in a fit of temporary insanity has wandened away. A reward of $50 has been offered to anyone who will give any clue as to her whereabouts.

Mr. VanVleet and children are frantic over their loss and they have the sympathy of everyone in the community. Yesterday the authorities discovered that the water could not be let out of the pond on account of the ice which will render discovery hopeless until the ice thaws.

BEWARE OF PHYSIC.

Only aggravates stomach trouble and never cures.

The trouble with most people who have stomach trouble is that they do not like to take the time to get cured: they over eat and then take physic, which upsets the stomach.

While you can get relief from one or two doses of Mi-o-na stomach tablets, it cannot be expected that a trouble which has been coming on for years can be cured in a day. Chronic and long-standing cases of stomach trouble need at least three weeks' treatment before the sick headaches, dizzy spells, bloating, heartburn, constipation, nervousness and other symptoms that directly result from indigestion, are banished, never to return.

Mi-o-na is far different from the usual digestive which have been used in treating stomach troubles. It is taken before each meal, stimulating the secretion of the digestive juices and strengthening the whole system, so that the stomach itself does the work of taking care of the food which is eaten, without distress or suffering.

No discovery in medicine in recent years has been of greater value than the prescription of Mi-o-na stomach tablets. It is today the acknowledged specific for the treatment of stomach diseases, and is relied upon as a certainty in relieving the worst cases of indigestion and mal-assimilation, and making a complete cure.

The strongest proof that can be given in support of the claim that Mi-o-na will cure the worst form of stomach trouble (cancer excepted) and relieve the worst case of acute indigestion, is the guarantee C. A. Wright & Son give with every 50c box of Mi-o-na, to refund the money unless Mi-o-na cures.

ECZEMA

Cured in less than four weeks.

Those who have had experience with this stubborn disease can hardly believe at first that Wonderful Dream Salve can and does cure Eczema.

There is no doubt about the matter whatever. A great many letters are on file in our office from grateful patients, telling of the quick and easy way in which Wonderful Dream Salve has removed all traces of this torturing skin affliction.

Mr. John T. Kealey, a well-known business man, located in the Stevens Bldg., Detroit, Mich., was recently cured of a bad case of Eczema of fourteen years' standing. After treating with many doctors and taking many remedies without relief, Mr. Kealey was induced to try Wonderful Dream Salve, and in four weeks was entirely cured. He says:

"I certainly consider this a remarkable cure, inasmuch as I have spent hundreds of dollars in this fourteen years of suffering, with the troublesome itching skin affection. There since the cure of my case I have tried quite a few, some of them even more remarkable than mine, which go towards demonstrating the value of Wonderful Dream Salve as a great skin healer."

If you have Eczema, why not try a box of Wonderful Dream Salve. If it fails, your druggist will refund your money. Isn't that fair enough? Keep it in your home for Chilblains, Chapped hands, Piles, Cuts, Burns, Frost-bites, Boils and Sores of any kind. You will never use anything else. 25c a box at your druggist or mailed prepaid direct.

Women as Well as Men Are Made Miserable by Kidney and Bladder Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition; beauty, vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased.

Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine scalds the flesh, or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy. The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold by druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also a pamphlet telling all about Swamp-Root, including many of the thousands of testimonial letters received from sufferers cured. In writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure and mention this paper. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

TESTED AND PROVEN.

There is a heap of solace in being able to depend upon a well-earned reputation.

For months Tecumseh readers have seen the praise of Doan's Kidney Pills, and read about the good work they have done in this locality. Not another remedy ever produced such convincing proof of merit.

Wm. C. Witherell, of Chicago street, Tecumseh, says: "In 1901, I gave a statement for publication telling how Doan's Kidney Pills had helped me, and today, Dec. 12th, 1906, I still hold the same high opinion of them. When I first used Doan's Kidney Pills, I was troubled with pains across my back and hips. If I attempted to stoop, sharp pains would dart through me and I would have to lie down. One time, I was laid up in bed for several days, just from my kidneys being so bad. I think the trouble was caused years ago by always being in a constant bent over position when I used to shear sheep. I learned of Doan's Kidney Pills and bought a box. I received great benefit even from the first few doses so I continued using them when they had effected a cure. I am glad to say that the cure then made has proven permanent as I have not been troubled since. I have recommended Doan's kidney pills a number of times and will continue to do so."

It is very important and in fact it is absolutely necessary to health that we give relief to the stomach promptly at the first signs of trouble—which are belching of gas, nausea, sour stomach, headache, irritability and nervousness. These are warnings that the stomach has been mistreated; it is doing too much work and it is demanding help from you. Take something once in a while, especially after meals, something like Kodol for dyspepsia and indigestion. It will enable your stomach to do its work properly. Sold by B. J. Pulver.

ROOSEVELT CRITICISED.

Senators Did Not Like Making Public of Tariff Regulations With Germany.

Washington, Jan. 23.—President Roosevelt Wednesday transmitted to the senate and the house copies of the tariff regulations negotiated some time ago between the United States and Germany together with proposed amendment to the customs administrative act putting the same in force as a statute. In the senate, the message aroused lively discussion in executive session when it was taken up. The remarks were not addressed to the message so much as to the policy of considering it in executive session as well as the policy of the president in connection with the agreement.

His course, not only in negotiating that instrument, but in proclaiming it to the world, as he did last July, was sharply criticized. Stress was laid on the fact that the president had not only negotiated the treaty, but that he had given it out as a complete performance without referring it to the senate for action. This the senators seemed to consider as especially reprehensible and far beyond the authority of the chief executive.

Alleged Conspirators on Trial.

Havana, Jan. 23.—The trial of Generals Masso Parra, Juan Ducassi and Lara Niret, who were arrested last September charged with being the leaders of a conspiracy to start a revolutionary movement in Cuba, began today. Counsel for General Parra announces that he will base his defense on the contention that Governor Magoon is an American official and, therefore, the case comes under a provision of the United States constitution which does not make conspiracy against the government a crime unless there be an overt act of rebellion. At the time the alleged conspirators were arrested, Governor Magoon issued a statement that he had been advised some time previously of their actions and had waited for them to carry out their work to some definite end. He deemed it advisable in the end, however, to place them under arrest and to put an end to the disturbance they were creating.

Young Men Rescue Young Women.

Bethany, W. Va., Jan. 23.—Choking and coughing, the 100 students in the main girls' dormitory of Bethany college, here, awoke early in the day to find clouds of smoke filling the halls and stairways. The frightened girls gathered in rooms looking out on the men's dormitory, across the street, and their screams soon aroused the sleepers. Quickly dressing, 100 men formed a bucket brigade, while several of the more daring ones dashed into the burning building, groped their way to the rooms where the girls were huddled and guided them through the smoke to the street. Almost half of the three-story structure had to be torn down to check the flames. Aside from one girl, who is suffering from shock, all escaped injury.

Serious Charge Against Judge.

Charleston, W. Va., Jan. 23.—Charges have been filed here before Judge Burdett of the circuit court against Judge John S. McDonald, president of the Kanawha county court, accusing him of official misconduct, neglect of duty, habitual drunkenness and gross immorality. One specific charge is that he received $12,000 from a local liquor concern in return for which the liquor firm was to dictate the granting of licenses throughout the county. Judge Burdett has set the hearing for Jan. 29.

Banker Jesup Is Dead.

New York, Jan. 23.—Morris K. Jesup, retired banker, and long prominent in civic affairs, is dead at his home, 197 Madison avenue, from heart disease. He was seventy-three years old. In addition to his large business interests, Jesup was prominent in philanthropic and scientific associations. He was president of and one of the chief contributors to the American Museum of Natural History, was president of the Peary Arctic club and the Audubon society.

New Bids Wanted For Balloons.

Washington, Jan. 23.—New proposals are to be asked for by the signal office for the construction of a dirigible balloons for the use of the army, the bids received some days ago having been rejected. There will be a modification in the specification compared with those noted in the original advertisement, which, it is hoped, will prove more attractive to inventors and bring in propositions from some sources not represented in the former proposals.

Taking Federal Funds From Banks.

Washington, Jan. 23.—The secretary of the treasury has announced that owing to the great improvement in financial conditions throughout the country, he had begun the gradual withdrawal of deposits of public moneys, in moderate amounts, from the national banks. The first call has been made upon New York banks and amounts to approximately $10,000,000. This is in addition to about $10,000,000 returned by the New York banks since Dec. 26. The secretary also announced that a general call for a moderate amount will be made upon banks in other cities at an early date.

Kills Herself With Acid.

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 23.—Because her husband had filed a suit for divorce and had not spoken to her for a month, Lulu Beck, aged twenty-five wife of Henry R. Beck, 433 Bagg street, took carbolic acid and ended a tempestuous married life extending over eight years. She leaves beside her husband three small children.

Soo Officers Put On Lid.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Jan. 23.—During the night, local officers made a sweeping raid, visiting every house of ill repute in the city. The jail is full of women and patrons of joints. Many visitors to the resorts managed to escape, but it is said that every woman of the tenderloin was landed.

Goes To The Poorhouse.

Clio, Mich., Jan. 23.—Attorney John Donaldson, a one-time prominent lawyer of this place, has been sent to the poorhouse at the age of sixty-five years, broken in health and destitute. Graduating from the law department of Michigan, Donaldson had a reputation of being one of the most brilliant men in his class. He settled in Clio and soon worked up a good practice. Later he moved to Edmore and there met with the same success which he had had in this place. He again moved to Manistique and yet again to Marquette. Later he returned to Clio.

Robber Attacked Woman.

Kalkaska, Mich., Jan. 23.—A murderous assault was made, at Rugge on Mrs. J. W. Tanner and her daughter. Tanner is the proprietor of a general store, and, during his absence, the two attend to the business. The mother is suffering from flesh wounds and the girl has a fractured skull. Robbery was the motive. A stranger, who gave the name of James Oliver was captured and is in jail here.

To whom it may concern: Take notice that on December 16th, A. D. 1907, a writ of attachment was issued from the circuit court for the county of Lenawee, Michigan, wherein Fred Lewis is plaintiff and John C. Bailey is defendant, for the sum of one hundred thirty one dollars and thirty-nine cents and that said writ was made returnable January 6th A. D. 1908.

Dated January 15, 1908.

OARLAND B. GILLESPIE,
Attorney for Plaintiff.
Business address, Tecumseh, Mich.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee, ss. Probate court for the county of Lenawee.

At a session of the probate court for the county of Lenawee, holden at the probate office, in the city of Adrian, on the 9th day of January in the year one thousand nine hundred and eight.

Present, Harry L. Larwill, judge of probate.

On reading and filing the petition, duly verified, of Frances E. Clarkson, widow of said deceased, praying that administration of said estate may be granted to Winthrop Ty Phelps, or some other suitable person.

It is ordered, that Monday, the 10th day of February next, at nine o'clock in the forenoon be assigned for the hearing of said petition.

And it is further ordered that a copy of this order be published in the Tecumseh Herald, a newspaper printed and circulated in said county of Lenawee, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing.

Mortgage Sale.

Default having been made in the conditions of payment of a certain mortgage made and executed by Wolcott W. Hazen and Birdie Marsh, his wife, and delivered to the Tecumseh State Savings Bank, of Tecumseh, Michigan, which mortgage bears date the 8th day of October, 1904, and was recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for the county of Lenawee, state of Michigan, on the 8th day of October, 1904, in Liber 150 of mortgages, page 81, and there being claimed to be due at the date upon the indebtedness secured by said mortgage the sum of two hundred forty-four and sixty-four one hundredths dollars and no suit or proceeding at law or in equity having been instituted for the recovery of said indebtedness;

Notice is therefore hereby given that, for the purpose of realizing the amount of said indebtedness, together with the costs of this proceeding, including an attorney fee as allowed by law, by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, the undersigned will, on the 16th day of March A. D. 1908, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of said day, at the east front door of the Court House, in the City of Adrian, in said County of Lenawee, that being the place where the Circuit Court for said County of Lenawee is holden, sell at public vendue to the highest bidder, the following described property, viz: That parcel of land in the Village of Tecumseh, County of Lenawee and State of Michigan, described as follows: All that part of Block one of Hewitt's addition to said village bounded by beginning in the east line of Pearl street twelve rods north from the north line of Logan street and running thence east twelve rods to land formerly owned by Dove; thence south four rods to Bigbart's land; thence west twelve rods; thence south three rods; thence west six rods to east line of Pearl street; thence north in that line to beginning.

THE TECUMSEH STATE SAVINGS BANK,
Mortgagee.

Fred B. Wood, Attorney for Mortgagee.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, county of Lenawee, ss. Probate court for the county of Lenawee.

At a session of the probate court for the county of Lenawee, holden at the probate office, in the city of Adrian, on the 8th day of January, in the year one thousand, nine hundred and eight.

On reading and filing the petition, duly verified, of Wilber O. Dillingham, son of said deceased, praying that an instrument in writing purporting to be the last will and testament of said deceased, may be duly proved and admitted to probate, and that administration of said estate may be granted to petitioner, the executor named in said instrument, or to some other suitable person.

It is ordered, that Monday, the 3rd day of February next, at nine o'clock in the forenoon, be assigned for the hearing of said petition.

And it is further ordered, that a copy of this order be published in the TECUMSEH HERALD, a newspaper printed and circulated in said county of Lenawee, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing.

Sour Stomach

No appetite, loss of strength, nervousness, headache, constipation, bad breath, general debility, sour risings, and catarrh of the stomach are all due to indigestion. Kodol relieves indigestion. This new discovery represents the natural juices of digestion as they exist in a healthy stomach, combined with the greatest known tonic and reconstructive properties. Kodol for dyspepsia does not only relieve indigestion and dyspepsia, but this famous remedy helps all stomach troubles by cleansing, purifying, sweetening and strengthening the mucous membranes lining the stomach.

Mr. S. S. Bak, of Ripon, West Va., says: "I was troubled with sour stomach for years. Kodol cured me and we are now using it in our family for baby."

Kodol Digests What You Eat.

BRIEF DISPATCHES.

Three men were killed instantly and five others seriously injured by the premature explosion, from an unknown cause, of dynamite, in the Bergen Hill section of the Pennsylvania tunnel, at Homestead, N. J.

Fire in a cafe, adjoining the Grand Opera House in Des Moines, Ia. caused a small panic in the theater. A number of persons were injured in their hurry to reach the street. Several women fainted.

Eight dwellings, a store and the United Brethren church at Dunlo, near Johnstown, Pa., have been destroyed by a fire which was checked only by tearing down a house in the pathway of the flames. The loss is estimated at $50,000.

Senor Don Jose Domingo de Obaldia, minister of Panama to the United States, who, during the recent absence of President Amador in Europe, officiated as acting president, has announced his candidacy for the presidency of Panama and publishes what may be considered the platform on which he will run.

A Japanese launch has been fired upon and robbed by Chinese pirates, near Kia Hsing Fu, China. The pirates also attacked several Chinese launches en route to Shanghai, killing four Chinese and wounding nine. Troops have been despatched to the scene of the trouble. The Japanese consul has taken the matter up, having had an interview with the Taotai.

Mira Flores, about five miles from Panama, is at present the scene of great activity, hundreds of men, with steam shovels and drills, are now working where, only a short time ago, there was nothing but wilderness. At this place, the first locks of the canal will be located, and engineers are making a thorough examination of the land for the purpose of concentrating, as much as possible, the work at one point.

Rockefeller Aids Unemployed.

New York, Jan. 27.—To aid the large number of the unemployed of Tarrytown, who have appealed to him for help, John D. Rockefeller has sent word from the south to the superintendent of his estate, at Pocantico Hills, to lay off all foreigners and give employment to needy residents. In addition Mr. Rockefeller has given permission to those in want to go into his timber land and cut wood to warm their homes.

Haitian Rebel Leader Executed.

Port au Prince, Jan. 27.—The revolution has been suppressed. Jean Jemeau, the leader of the movement, was captured at Dessalines, a little hamlet close to Gonaives, and was at once shot to death by the government troops that made him a prisoner. Gonaives has been occupied by a government force Found Two More Bodies.

Fairmont, W. Va., Jan. 27.—Monongah mines No. 6 and 8 of the Fairmont Coal company, in which the explosion of Dec. 6, last, killed 360 men, resumed operations today. The officials of the company have received hundreds of applications for work from miners. As workmen were putting the finishing touches on the mine, they found the bodies of James Moon, a trapper boy, and an unknown Slav.

Wins in Race With Death.

Kalamazoo, Mich., Jan. 27.—City Assessor William A. Forbes is dead of endocarditis. His condition became so alarming a week ago that his children, Mrs. Carl Perkins of Mishawaka, Wis., and Waldo Forbes of Long Beach, Cal., were telegraphed for. The latter raced across the continent to reach the bedside before his father died and arrived here just before his father lapsed into unconsciousness.

Feared Ship and Lives Are Lost.

New York, Jan. 27.—Tales of shipwreck at sea and possible loss of life are the echoes of the recent severe storms that have been brought to port by belated and tempest tossed steamships. Fears that an unknown three-mated schooner, with her crew, have been lost in the storm off the Delaware capes are expressed by officers of the steamer Manna Hata, which limped into harbor from Baltimore. The schooner was seen struggling in the heavy sea, off the Delaware capes, and, when the Manna Hata, which had blown off her course, neared the locality where the schooner was last sighted riding out the storm, many pieces of wreckage were seen floating in the water.

"Ouida," The Novelist Is Dead.

Rome, Jan. 27.—"Ouida," the novelist whose real name is Louise de la Ramee, is dead in the house of her faithful maid, Isolina Cervelli, near Florence. Her death was due mainly to old age, although it was hastened by the privations which she had been compelled to undergo in recent years and which had brought on heart disease. Until the very end, she shared her food with her faithful maid.

Veteran Business Man Dies.

Marshall, Mich., Jan. 27.—Edwin Ruther Mills, the last "Grand Old Man" and oldest business man of Marshall, has passed away at his home on West State street. He was born at Farmersville, N. Y., Oct. 20, 1824. The early years of his life were spent at home with his parents, Rev. and Mrs. Lewis Mills. Mr. Mills came here in 1844, a few years later establishing a harness business. Last August, owing to his old age, he sold out and retired, having been engaged in the buiness for over sixty years.

Another Big Fire In Portland.

Portland, Me., Jan. 27.—The wholesale dry goods establishment of Milliken, Cousens & Co. has burned. After the fire was apparently under control, it broke out again in the roof of the A. F. Cox and Sons shoe establishment, next door. Before additional lines of hose could be run up, the entire roof was ablaze. Despite the work of the firemen, the flames ate their way down through the fourth and third floors of the Cox building, gutting them completely. The four story brick building of Parker, Thomas & Co., wholesale dry and fancy goods, next door below the Milliken-Deering block and separated by a thirty foot private alley, was seriously damaged by smoke and water. The loss will total $700,000.

Lightning and Thunder.

Pittsburg, Jan. 27.—A violent storm, with unusual features for the winter season, swept over the city last night. There were vivid flashes of lighning and heavy thunder, and for a short time rain fell in sheets, while wind of terrific velocity raged. The barometric pressure was exceptionally low, 29.12 inches, indicating the storm center in or near the city.

Rulers to Visit Italy.

Rome, Jan. 27.—It is announced here that the emperor of Germany will make a cruise in the Mediterranean in the latter part of March and that King Edward will make a similar cruise in April, both rulers visiting Sicily and Florence.

Confesses to Six Burglaries.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Jan. 27.—Stanley Johnson, nineteen years old, arrested Deputy Sheriff Johns, has confessed to six small burglaries since Oct. 1.

An insidious danger.

One of the worst features of kidney trouble is that it is an insidious disease and before the victim realizes his danger he may have a fatal malady. Take Foley's Kidney Cure at the first sign of troubles as it corrects irregularities and prevents Bright's disease and diabetes. Sold by all druggists in Tecumseh

Self made men are usually egotists, because they worship their creator.

Kodol for dyspepsia and indigestion is the result of a scientific combination of natural digestants with vegetable acids and contains the same juices found in a healthy stomach. It is the best remedy known today for dyspepsia, indigestion and all troubles arising from a disordered stomach. Take Kodol today. It is pleasant, prompt and thorough. Sold by B. J. Pulver.

Do you have backache occasionally or "stitches" in the side and sometimes do you feel all tired out, without ambition and without energy? If so, your kidneys are out of order. Take DeWitt's kidney and bladder pills. They promptly relieve backache, weak back, inflammation of the bladder and weak kidneys. Sold by B. J. Pulver.

It is easier to learn some things than it is to unlearn them.

If a cough once gets into your system it acts on every muscle and fibre of the body and makes you ache all over. It especially affects the intestines and makes you constipated, so in order to get rid of a cold thoroughly and without delay you should not take anything that will tend to constipate. Kennedy's laxative cough syrup acts upon the bowels and thereby drives the cold out of the system. It contains no opiates—it is pleasant to take and is highly recommended for children. Sold by B. J. Pulver.

How to avoid appendicitis.

Most victims of appendicitis are habitually constipated. Orino Laxative Fruit Syrup cures chronic constipation by stimulating the liver and bowels and restores the natural action of the bowels. Orino Laxative Fruit Syrup does not nauseate or gripe and is mild and pleasant to take. Refuse substitutes. For sale by all druggists in Tecumseh.

A swallow may not make a summer but a frog makes a spring.

Special announcement regarding the national pure food and drug law.

We are pleased to announce that Foley's honey and tar for coughs, colds and lung troubles is not affected by the National Pure Food and drug law as it contains no opiates or other harmful drugs and we recommend it as a safe remedy for children and adults. Sold by all druggists in Tecumseh.

Things above criticism are never beneath notice.

A higher health level.

"I have reached a higher health level since I began using Dr. King's new life pills" writes Jacob Springer of Franklin, Me. "They keep my stomach, liver and bowels working just right." If these pills disappoint you on trial, money will be refunded at C. A. Wright & Son's drug store. 25c.

Diamonds are going up—also the chins of their feminine wearers.

It's as easy to make money as it is to unmake yourself while making it.

A cure for misery.

"I have found a cure for the misery malaria poison produces" says R. M. James of Hamilton, S. C. "It is called Electric Bitters and comes in a 50 cent bottle. It breaks up chills or a bilious attack in almost no time and puts yellow jaundice clean out of commission." This great tonic medicine and blood purifier gives quick relief in all stomach, liver and kidney complaints and misery of a lame back. Sold under guarantee by C. A. Wright & Son

Wasteful Country Lighting.

Any regular Kerosene lamp that will give an actual 24 candle-power of light for 10 hours must cost about 6 cents for Kerosene, Chimneys and Wicks.

Besides, the lamp will need cleaning, filling, wick-trimming and chimney-wiping 365 days per year.

Now, Acetylene Gaslight will give an absolutely steady and uniform 24 candle-power light, for 10 hours, on a single pound of Calcium Carbide.

And that pound of Carbide will cost you only 3¾ cents, in the majority of States.

Moreover, the care of 40 Acetylene lights needs only half an hour's labor per month at most.

Compare that with the half hour per day (or 15 hours per month) of disagreeable labor needed to clean, fill, wick-trim and chimney-wipe even 8 lamps in a country home.

And when you have weighed these facts, reflect that Acetylene gaslight has no chimney to fog, no wick to char, no mantle to shatter.

It is the whitest, steadiest, coolest, cleanest and safest of all lights for home, hotel or store, as can be proved.

Which would you have, even if Kerosene light was as cheap as Acetylene Gaslight?

Write me to-day how many rooms you've got and I will tell you how little it need cost you to light them brilliantly with that beautiful eye-saving "Sunlight-at-Night" called Acetylene Gaslight.

Address me thus—Acetylene Jones, 8 Adams St. Chicago, Ill.

Soda Water ...Sal...

By FRANK H. SPEARMAN

Copyright, 1900, by Frank H. Spearman

WHEN the great engine which we called the Skyscraper came out of the Zanesville shops, she was rebuilt from pilot to tender.

Our master mechanic, Neighbor, had an idea, after her terrific collision, that she could not stand heavy main line passenger runs, so he put her on the Acton cut off. It was what railroad men call a jerk water run, whatever that may be, a little jaunt of ten miles across the divide connecting the northern division with the Denver stem. It was just about like running a trolley, and the run was given to Dad Sinclair, for after that lift at Oxford his back was never strong enough to shovel coal, and he had to take an engine or quit railroading.

Thus it happened that after many years he took the throttle once more and ran over, twice a day, as he does yet, from Acton to Willow Creek.

His boy, Georgie Sinclair, the kid engineer, took the run on the flier opposite Foley just as soon as he got well.

Georgie, who was never happy unless he had eight or ten Pullmans behind him and the right of way over everything between Omaha and Denver, made great sport of his father's little smoking car and day coach behind the big engine.

Foley made sport of the remodeled engine. He used to stand by while the old engineer was oiling and ask him whether he thought she could catch a jack rabbit. "I mean," Foley would say, "if the rabbit was feeling well."

Dad Sinclair took it all grimly and quietly. He had railroaded too long to care for anybody's chaff. But one day, after the skyscraper had got her flues pretty well chalked up with alkali, Foley insisted that she must be renamed.

"I have the only genuine skyscraper on the West End myself," declared Foley. He did have a new Class H engine, and she was awe inspiring, in truth. "I don't propose," he continued, "to have her confused with your old tub any longer, Dad."

Dad, oiling his old tub affectionately, answered never a word.

"She's full of soda, isn't she, father?" asked Georgie, standing by.

"Reckon she is, son."

"Full of water, I suppose?"

"Try to keep her that way, son."

"Sal Soda, isn't it, Dad?"

"Now, I can't say. As to that I can't say."

"We'll call her Sal Soda, Georgie," suggested Foley.

"No," interposed Georgie. "Stop a bit. I have it. Not Sal Soda at all. Make it Soda Water Sal."

Then they laughed uproariously, and in the teeth of Dad Sinclair's protests—for he objected at once and vigorously—the queer name stuck to the engine, and sticks yet.

To have seen the great hulking machine you would never have suspected there could be another story left in her. Yet one there was—a story of the wind. As she stood, too, when old man Sinclair took her on the Acton run, she was the best illustration I have ever seen of the adage that one can never tell from the looks of a frog how far it will jump.

Have you ever felt the wind? Not, I think, unless you have lived on the seas or on the plains. People everywhere think the wind blows, but it really blows only on the ocean and on the prairies.

The summer that Dad took the Acton run it blew for a month steadily—all of one August—hot, dry, merciless, the despair of the farmer and the terror of trainmen.

It was on an August evening, with the gale still sweeping up from the southwest, that Dad came lumbering into Acton with his little trolley train. He had barely pulled up at the platform to unload his passengers when the station agent, Morris Reynolds, coatless and hatless, rushed up to the engine ahead of the hostler and sprang into the cab. Reynolds was one of the quietest fellows in the service. To see him without coat or hat didn't count for much in such weather, but to see him sallow with fright and almost speechless was enough to stir even old Dad Sinclair.

It was not Dad's habit to ask questions, but he looked at the man in questioning amazement. Reynolds choked and caught at his breath as he seized the engineer's arm and pointed down the line.

"Dad," he gasped, "three cars of coal standing over there on the second spur blew loose a few minutes ago!"

"Where are they?"

The old man grasped the frightened man by the shoulder. "What do you mean? How long ago? When is I due? Talk quick, man! What's the matter with you?"

"Not five minutes ago. No. 1 is due here in less than thirty minutes. They'll go into her sure. Dad," cried Reynolds, all in a fright, "what'll I do? For heaven's sake, do something! I called up Riverton and tried to catch it, but she'd passed. I was too late. There'll be a wreck, and I'm booked for the penitentiary. What can I do?"

All the while the station agent, panic stricken, rattled on Sinclair was looking at his watch, casting it up, charting it all under his thick, gray, grizzled wool, fast as thought could compass.

No. 1 headed for Acton, and her pace was a hustle every mile of the way—three cars of coal bowling down on her, how fast he dared not think, and through it all he was asking himself what day it was. Thursday? Up! Yes, Georgie, his boy, was on the flier No. 1. It was his day up. If they met on a curve—

"What are you going to do?"

"Burns," thundered Dad to his fireman, "give her steam, and quick, boy! Dump in grease, waste, oil, everything! Are you clear there?" he cried, opening the throttle as he looked back.

The old engine, pulling clear of her coaches, quivered as she gathered herself under the steam. She leaped ahead with a swish. The drivers churned in the sand, bit into it with gritting tires, and forged ahead with a suck and a hiss and a roar. Before Reynolds had fairly gathered his wits Sinclair, leaving his train on the main track in front of the depot, was clattering over the switch after the runaways. The wind was a terror, and they had too good a start. But the way Soda Water Sal took the gait when she once felt her feet under her made the wrinkled engineer at her throttle set his mouth with the grimness of a gamester. It meant the runaways—and catch them—or the ditch for Soda Water Sal, and the throbbing old machine seemed to know it, for her nose hung to the steel like the snout of a pointer.

He was a man of a hundred even then—Burns—but nobody knew it then. We hadn't thought much about Burns before. He was a tall, lank Irish boy, with an open face and a morning smile. Dad Sinclair took him on because nobody else would have him. Burns was so green that Foley said you couldn't set his name afire. He would, so Foley said, put out a hot box just by blinking at it.

But every man's turn comes once, and it had come to Burns. It was Dick Burns' chance now to show what manner of stuff was bred in his long Irish bones. It was his task to make the steam—if he could—faster than Dad Sinclair could burn it. What use to grip the throttle and scheme if Burns didn't furnish the power, put the life into her heels as she raced the wind—the merciless, restless gale sweeping over the prairie faster than horse could fly before it?

Working smoothly and swiftly into a dizzy whirl, the monstrous drivers took the steel in leaps and bounds. Dad Sinclair, leaning from the cab window, gloatingly watched their gathering speed, pulled the bar up notch after notch, and fed Burns' fire into the old engine's arteries fast and faster than she could throw it into her steel hoofs.

That was the night the West End knew that a greenhorn had cast his chrysalis and stood out a man—knew that the honor roll of our frontier division wanted one more name, and that it was big Dick Burns'. Sinclair hung silently desperate to the throttle, his eyes straining into the night ahead, and the face of the long Irish boy, streaked with smut and channeled with sweat, lit every minute with the glare of the furnace as he fed the white hot blast that leaped and curled and foamed under the crown sheet of Soda Water Sal.

There he stooped and sweat and swung as she slewed and lurched and jerked across the fish plates. Carefully, nursingly, ceaselessly he pushed the steam pointer higher, higher, higher on the dial—and that despite the tremendous drafts of Dad's throttle.

Never a glance to the right or the left, to the track or the engineer. From the coal to the fire, the fire to the water, the water to the gauge, the gauge to the stack and back again to the coal—that was Burns. Neither eyes nor ears nor muscles for anything but steam.

Such a firing as the West End never saw till that night; such a firing as the old engine never felt in her choking flues till that night; such a firing as Dad Sinclair, king of all West and East End firemen, lifted his hat to—that was Burns' firing that night on Soda Water Sal, the night she chased the Acton runaways down the line to save Georgie Sinclair and No. 1.

It was a frightful pace—how frightful no one ever knew; neither old man Sinclair nor Dick Burns ever cared. Only, the crew of a freight, side tracked for the approaching flier, saw an engine flying light; knew the hunter and the quarry, for they had seen the runaways shoot by—saw then, a minute after, a star and a streak and a trail of rotten smoke fly down the wind, and she had come and passed and gone.

MR. AND MRS. BERI VANNESS

ANNIVERSARY

Fiftieth Wedding Anniversary of MR. AND MRS. BERI VANNESS

Last Friday, Jan. 24th, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph VanNess in this village occurred the celebration of the golden wedding of his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Beri VanNess. They were ably assisted by Mr. and Mrs. Bert Poucher of Tipton, Mrs. Poucher being their only daughter. The house was prettily decorated with yellow and green, yellow paper poppies being used with strands of the paper. The day was happily spent in social converse.

A sumptious three course dinner was served at noon, forty guests being seated at the tables and served by Mr. and Mrs. Joseph VanNess, Mrs. Poucher and Mrs. Titus. Appropriate souvenirs of the occasion were given each guest, a folder bearing the dates, 1858 1908, and containing pictures of the guests of honor. Mr. and Mrs. VanNess received many beautiful and useful presents including, cut glass, gold, silver, linen and china.

Friends from away who attended this happy event were Mrs. Amelia Hall of Kalamazoo, a sister of Mr. VanNess; Mrs. VanNess of Chicago, a sister-in-law of Mr. VanNess; Mr. and Mrs. Henry Tripp of Jackson; Mr. and Mrs. Vern Harrison and children, Mr. and Mrs. Bert Poucher and children of Tipton; Mrs. Chas. Klappich of Monroe; Mr. and Mrs. Fradenburg of Battle Creek; Mr. and Mrs. Johnson of Deerfield; Mr. and Mrs. Sheriff and Mr. and Mrs. Haines of Adrian.

Mr. and Mrs. VanNess were married Jan. 24, 1858, in the town of Yates, Orleans, county, New York. Ten years later they came to Michigan and since that time have lived near Tecumseh, where they have many warm friends. Since their residence here they have witnessed many improvements about their adopted home as well as the changes that have been made in the going out and coming in of Tecumseh's most prominent citizens.

Mr. and Mrs. VanNess have not found life a failure, they are as satisfied today as when they plighted their troth fifty ago. They have two children, Joseph, residing in Tecumseh and Lena now the wife of Bert Poucher and reside on a farm west of town. They have four grandchildren, all of whom were here to assist them in celebrating this important event and to make the day an unusually happy one.

They are both enjoying good health and the HERALD unites with their many friends in wishing them many more as pleasant years.

The Deception of Distance.

"It's very deceptive to judge of the size or capacity of an object which is fifty feet or more in the air," said an architect to the writer as we were passing the royal courts of justice a few days ago. "Now, look at that clock," pointing to the law courts clock, which hangs about seventy feet above the pavement. "It looks very small, doesn't it? Hardly big enough to hold a man. Yet a party of us breakfasted in the case before the works were put in." Everybody knows how deceptive is the appearance of the Westminster clock. Looking at the dial from the embankment or from Great George street, it seems as if a man of medium size could easily stretch across the dial with both arms. Yet it would take four pairs of outstretched arms to cross it. The minute hand, which looks like an ordinary walking stick, is longer than the two tallest soldiers in the life guards. The figures on the dial are bigger than a three-year-old child, and the second dots are as big as a dinner plate.—London Graphic.

Feeling a Critic.

What can be more mirth provoking than the naive simplicity with which a pompous critic, who prides himself on his lynx eyed acuteness, will sometimes walk into a trap that has been set for him? When Alexander Pope was translating Homer he read by request several books of the "Iliad" to Lord Halifax, whom he characterizes as a literary coxcomb, at his house. During the reading his lordship several times stopped the poet and suggested that certain passages might be improved. Perplexed and irritated by the advice, the poet withdrew with Garth, who laughed heartily at the incident, and told him to leave the verses just as they were, to call on Halifax a month later, thank him for his criticisms and then read again the verses to him unaltered. Pope followed this advice, saying to Halifax that he hoped his lordship would now find his objections removed, upon which Halifax, delighted, cried out: "Aye, now they are perfectly right. Nothing can be better."—William Mathews in Success Magazine.

Men and "Love Stories."

When a man has passed through the cycle of emotions called love he has had his adventures; other people's cease to have a personal bearing, and he anticipates nothing further from them.

It is not so with the young man and woman who, as the proverb says of the young bear, have all their troubles before them. The world of love, so full of mystery for them, has become to the maturer man translated into the concrete terms of domestic life, and the relations of man and woman pass into the domain of fact that can be tested by experience.

Yet novelists do not seem to understand this psychology of the mature man, and they continue to make the love story their chief staple, so that they are read chiefly by young men and women as callow as their own heroes and heroines. Pecuniarily they are of course catering for a larger market. The number of the immature by age and the immature by nature are always the larger part of mankind.—London Saturday Review.

Small Necked New Yorkers.

Statistics furnished by manufacturers of shirts and collars indicate that the average New York man has a smaller neck than his out of town brother. Comparison of orders shows that out of a given volume of business booked Boston and Chicago led in the matter of big sizes. Inquiry at several haberdashery shops in Manhattan resulted in the information that any number larger than sixteen and a half would have to be specially called for from the factory or had through the selling agent. In other cities it is an everyday experience to sell as high as size eighteen over the retail counter. Of course the element of snug fit is a factor, but as a regular proposition eastern and western men are more "bull necked" than is the case with their New York brethren.—New York Press.

Ball Players are Superstitious.

Superstitution runs amuck among ball players. The average player is chuck full of signs, symbols and omens. He is as filled with things which must be avoided and things which must be adopted as a native of the West Indies.

Rabbits' feet are common among the followers of the great national game. Horse shoes are more than prevalent. When a player can touch the back of a humpbacked man he is happy. If he can visit a graveyard at night with the corpse for a black cat he rejoices.

Manager Slear, is among the men who believe in things with bad and good luck coloring. The leader of the Indians never allows their bats to be put away until the end of a game, no matter how far the team may be ahead or behind and what period of the last inning has been reached. It is bad luck, don't you know?

Manager Myers has a lot of superstitution stowed away in that diminutive form of his. He never likes to win the first game of the season, especially if it is a home game. It brings a streak of bad luck, he thinks.

ROUND ABOUT US.

Township and village clerk, Wakefield Fisher, informs the Exponent that there wer e18 more births than deaths registered in this township and village during 1907. In the township there were 31 births and 20 deaths and in the village 12 births and 5 deaths.—Brooklyn Exponent.

Messrs E A. Coon and Wm Winkelman started out on the war path after wild game on Wednesday morning. Going to Onsted they were royally entertained by Peter Onsted, and succeeded in capturing a couple hundred weight of ferocious and untamed rabbits. At least, Ed Coon says they shot them, but it is hinted they bought them from a boy.—Blissfield Advance.

Cheap Feasting.

Hanging on the top of one of the stalls at a church bazaar recently was a sign which ran, "Luncheons, 1 to 3 p. m., 1s. 6d."

A country farmer and his wife were passing along admiring the various stalls and their contents when he espied the above sign and was heard to remark to his wife:

"We'll jiss hev our denners here, Jeannie. Two oors' steady eatin's no bad fur wann an' six!"—London Telegraph.

All bids must be upon printed form prepared for the purpose, which may be obtained of the clerk of the Board of Trustees, and must be enclosed in a sealed envelope addressed to the Board of Trustees and endorsed upon the outside "Proposal for constructing Sanitary Sewers in the village of Tecumseh, Michigan."

Each bid must be accompanied by a certified check on a local bank for One Thousand ($1000.00) Dollars, to be left in the hands of the clerk of the Board of Trustees subject to the conditions specified in the proposal, as a guarantee of good faith on the part of the bidder.

Before any bid will be accepted, the bidder must satisfy the Board of Trustees as to his competency to conduct the work and his resources for its vigorous prosecution.

The successful bidder will be required to give bonds in the sum of Twenty-five Thousand ($25,000.00) Dollars, with a surety company, authorized to do business in the State of Michigan, and satisfactory to the Board of Trustees, as surety.

Bids must be made on every item in the printed proposal.

Bids must be made on the labor and material separately for each item and the total shall be given for each item in words and figures.

Preference must be given to residents of Tecumseh in employment upon the work.

The name of the contractor and his place of residence must be filled in the blank left for that purpose in the proposal. When firms bid, the names of the individual members of the firm must be given.

The Board of Trustees reserves the right to reject any or all bids, or to waive defects in bids in the interest of the village.

The Board of Trustees reserves the right to adjust the extent of the work to the amount of the appropriation.

All bids will be compared on the basis of the engineers' preliminary estimates of quantities.

By order of the Board.

W. L. JONES, Clerk.

During the past week Henry Curtis sold his farm of 200 acres west of town to A. F. Eastom of Toledo, for the consideration of $16,000. Mr. Eastom is an extensive lumberman and we understand he contemplates moving a saw mill here in the spring for the purpose of cleaning the 80 or more acres of fine hard timber found on the farm. It will be a regret to many to have that fine grove felled and soon no more.—Dundee Reporter.

For Nervous, Over-worked and "Run Down" Women

Women in an exhausted, nervous state, due to over-work, continuous social functions or a general "run down" condition of health, often wonder why tonics and emulsions fail to benefit them. The reason is plain. Tonics and emulsions are good in their place, but they cannot build up the body until the nerves have been toned and quieted.

There's only one remedy that can restore health to women in this exhausted, nervous condition, because it acts directly upon the nerves.

The Story of Rexall

REX means "king," and the combination name REXALL "king of all."

We have proven time and time again that Rexall Remedies are kings above all others.

For more than two years an expert travelled all over the world in search of extraordinary remedies. Where ever he heard of a wonderful cure of any nature he did not rest until he got it personally, could test the effect of the prescription used. Where he found the remedy perfect he purchased the prescription, but if one nerve said 'it's Rexall remedy until the properties had been thoroughly analyzed by the chemists of the United Drug Company.

Rexall

Americanitis Elixir

is the only remedy of its kind in existence. As its name implies, it's a specific for the peculiar exhausted nervous conditions resulting from the continuous rush and tension under which Americans live. This remedy fills an important gap in the line of medicines.

Rexall Americanitis supplies to the body just those elements which Nature cannot supply in sufficient quantities to meet the unnatural drain upon the nervous system.

Phosphorus in soluble form is the basis of this splendid nerve food. Thousands of women have been saved from nervous prostration by the prompt use of Rexall Americanitis. To all conditions of nervous derangement, exhaustion and debility it brings permanent relief.

Cards announcing the marriage on Friday, Jan. 24th, of Miss Goldie Winona, daughter of Mrs. Elyssee Boyer Robison, to Fred Jas. McNair at the home of the bride in Denver, Col., have been received here by friends. They will be at home after March 1st at 429 West 7th street, Leadville, Col. Mr. McNair is a nephew of the Misses Agnes and Sarah McNair of this place.

Miss Louise Erskine of Tecumseh, while at Claypool, Ind., last week put on an entertainment for the high school which was a great success. The papers contained the following in regard to it: The director, Miss Louise Erskine, certainly has the ability to drill pupils for such work, as her efforts here abundantly prove. She came here on Sunday, leaving but a short time to drill such a large number of pupils and the rendition proves what the director accomplished in a few days' work.

Another of Tecumseh's leading business men passed away last Wednesday evening, when after a brief illness John L. Anderson, of the firm of Anderson & Rosacrans, was stricken. Mr. Anderson was taken ill on Thursday evening and peritonitis developed which caused his death six days later. Through his sufferings he bore up with remarkable fortitude till death claimed him.

Mr. Anderson was born in Tecumseh 51 years ago next April and had always lived in the village. He was educated in the Tecumseh schools and afterward at Granville College, O. After he completed his education he entered the store of Anderson & Co. as a salesman, where after six years of faithful service he became a partner in the firm, then composed of himself and father, Webster Anderson, Seaton W. Anderson and Fred Rosacrans. When the firm dissolved after 14 years, he became a partner in the firm of Anderson & Rosacrans, where for the past 12 years he has been active in business life.

His entire business career has been one of success and honor. Since its inception he has been secretary of the Business Men's Association and a leader in the business life of Tecumseh. Mr. Anderson was also for a number of years a leader in the athletic interests which have made Tecumseh so well known, being both president of the association and manager of the base ball team. In many other ways he has been a leader in the life of the village.

He was married in the fall of 1880 to Miss Julia Anderson, who with their children, Albert, Kenneth, Harold, Ernestine and Doris, survive him. Mr. Anderson also leaves behind him his father, Webster Anderson, two sisters, Miss Katherine Anderson and Mrs. B. H. Jannsen, two brothers, Richard and Raynor, besides a host of friends.

The funeral services were held with a prayer at the home and public services at the Presbyterian church of which he was a member, having joined in 1894. The large auditorium was crowded with friends and associates who had come to pay their tribute to the departed. The church choir sang, "In the hour of Trial" and "Abide with Me" and the pastor spoke briefly from Hebrews 6:19 where the christian's hope in death is likened to "an anchor to the soul, sure and steadfast, that entereth into that within the veil."

Beneath a bank of flowers the body was laid at rest in Brookside. The bearers were the nearest male relatives of the deceased, Richard E. Anderson, Raynor K. Anderson, Seaton W. Anderson, Buford P. Anderson, Erwin B. Anderson, Mr. Anderson's business associate and cousin, Fred Rosacrans.

The sudden death of Mr. Anderson leaves the whole community crushed and sorrowing. Gifted with a quiet, gentle and generous spirit he was universally a loved man. No greater tribute could be given him than the love and affection in which all who knew him, held him. Tecumseh loses one who for years has been a leader in business and general welfare of the village. In all aggressive movements he has played a prominant and useful part. The village is poorer for the loss of such a citizen.

His multitude of friends will miss his cheery voice and smile and his loyal devotion. Reserved in manner, yet gifted with rare sympathy, none knew him but to love. In his home a kind and thoughtful, loving spirit, made him a husband and father, who will be sadly missed by his loved ones. To all, he leaves behind a blessed memory of a true man, useful citizen, faithful and loved friend, cherished and devoted father. His departure leaves not only his home, but a whole community impoverished in its loss.

FOUND

Body of Mrs. Jarred VanVleet near

BLOOD'S BRIDGE

Last Night in About Two Feet of Water.

The body of Mrs. Jarred VanVleet was found last night near Blood's bridge in about two feet of water. Six men, Oscar Hall, Roy Van Vleet, Howard Blood, Will, Theodore and Cassius LaBounty started at the iron bridge last evening about 7 o'clock, going south and east. There were four men in the boat and two on the shore who held the boat with ropes over the bad places. They discovered the body 80 rods east of Blood's bridge where it had caught on the drift wood of a fallen tree. Officers were notified at once and arrived on the scene at 9 o'clock.

One week ago this morning Mrs. Van Fleet left her home and although neighbors, friends and officers have been searching constantly since, they could not find the slightest clue as to her whereabouts until last evening.

The body was brought to the undertaking rooms of Guy Belding last night. A jury was impanelled this morning consisting of Levi Hayden, S. W. Anderson, Jas. Kennedy, Warren Jones of Ridgeway, Fred Teachout and Joseph Smith. They met at 9 o'clock in the undertaking rooms and adjourned to meet at 10:30 in the council rooms. At the close of the inquest the remains were taken to the home, which has been made so desolate by her departure, where the funeral will be held Thursday morning at 10:30 o'clock.

When found, Mrs. VanVleet wore a dark colored morning wrapper and apron as she was dressed to prepare the morning meal. She wore overshoes but was without hat or coat. She was perfectly preserved, the cold weather keeping the body in a natural condition with only a slight bruise on one cheek.

Midweek service at Presbyterian church Wednesday evening at 7 p. m. Subject, "A Personal Experience meeting."

The Tecumseh Association will give a matinee on the ice here Thursday, Jan. 30, at 2 o'clock. There will be three races. The association was formed last evening with Fred Teachout, president; Jas. McCann, treasurer; C. A. Wright, secretary. Tecumseh will undoubtedly see a number of good matinees here during the coming season.

AMUSEMENTS.

The tremendous success of "The Vanderbilt Cup" at the Broadway theatre, New York, makes its appearance at the New Bradley Feb. 1 is of special interest. Prices, 75c, $1.00, $1.50.

JOINT INSTALLATION

Of the Tecumseh Hive and the Knights

OF THE MACCABEES

At Witherell Hall last Friday evening.

About 250 Maccabees and their friends attended the joint installation of the officers of the Lady and Sir Knights of the Maccabees held in Odd Fellow hall Friday evening. The meeting opened with the ladies in charge, Lady Edna Belding acting as Grand Installing officer, Lady Anna McCann as Grand Marshall and Lady Carrie Bryan as Grand Chaplain. The officers were installed and conducted to their respective stations. The work was beautifully done in every instance and received much flattering comment.

The Grand Installing officer for the Sir Knights was Comfort Chase, with Harry Scott as Grand Marshall and James Henderson as Grand Chaplain. Their work was as well done as that of the hive. At the close of the work a short program was rendered as follows:

Piano duet—Percy and Leland Heidenrich.

Mrs. J. M. Hiens had prepared some poetry entitled the Lady Maccabees of Tecumseh Hive, in which she gave a short history of the lodge.

Mrs. Louise Keenan, the Deputy was present and was called upon for a few remarks. She said it was a great pleasure to her to visit so progressive a lodge and complimented the ladies upon their work during the installation of their officers. As for the men, she said she could not criticise their work, but was greatly impressed with their ceremony of installation.

The guards of the hive were called upon to give their drill, which they did, and were heartily applauded. At the close of the program Mr. and Mrs. Witherell kindly opened their dance hall and invited the Ladies and Sir Knights to spend the evening in dancing, while Miss Metta MnKinney at the piano, and Elmer Melton with the violin furnished the music. Thus a few hours passed pleasantly and quickly. Among those present from out of town were Miss Anna Trosien of Adrian, Miss Powers of Detroit, and Miss VanGuilder, who is visiting her brother, Arthur Van Guilder.

DANGER OF CATARRH.

Catarrhal troubles are far more dangerous than they seem at first thought. If you have catarrh, there is an irritated state of the mucous membrane and weakened tissues which afford an ideal lodgement and culture medium for disease germs, especially those of consumption.

You should get cured as quickly as possible before any dangerous germs that you may breath lodge on the diseased tissue and work destruction in the throat and lungs.

The easiest, simplest, quickest, surest and cheapest way to cure catarrh is by the direct method, breathing Hyomei. This wonderful medicated air treatment does not drug and derange the stomach, but is breathed in, directly following and destroying all disease germs that may have been inhaled, and healing and vitalizing the tissues of the throat, nose and lungs so as to render catarrh and all other germ infections no longer possible.

The unusual way in which Hyomei is sold by C. A. Wright & Son is the best evidence of their confidence in the treatment and should dispel all doubt as to its curative properties. C. A. Wright & Son agree to refund the purchase price to anyone whom Hyomei fails to benefit, and you do not risk a cent in testing its healing virtues. A complete outfit costs but $1.00 if it helps you, not a cent if it does not do all that is claimed for it.

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Never Suspect it.

Prevalency of Kidney Disease.

Most people do not realize the alarming increase and remarkable prevalency of kidney disease. While kidney disorders are the most common diseases that prevail, they are almost the last recognized by patient and physicians, who continue to treat themselves with doctoring the effects, while the original disease undermines the system.

What To Do.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy fulfills every wish in curing rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. It corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes.

You may have a sample bottle and a book that tells all about it, both sent free by mail. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention this paper, and don't make any mistake but remember the name, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y.

KEEP THE KIDNEYS WELL

Many people take their lives in their hands by neglecting their kidneys when they need help. Sick kidneys are responsible for a vast amount of suffering but there is no need to suffer when all diseases and pains due to weak kidneys can be quickly and permanently cured by the use of Doan's Kidney Pills. Here is the statement of a Tecumseh citizen who has reclaimed good health by their use.

E. H. Hyde, living on Chicago street, Tecumseh, Mich., says: "I had suffered from kidney trouble for nearly 2 years. While working for the Lake Shore Ry. I was exposed to all kinds of weather and contracted a cold which settled on my kidneys. I did not take care of the trouble at first and it finally became aggravated and the pain so severe that I could not stoop or lift anything. I used a number of highly recommended remedies but received only temporary relief. Finally I tried Doan's Kidney Pills receiving much benefit so I continued until cured. I am always glad to recommend Doan's Kidney Pills."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn company, Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States. Remember the name Doan's—and take no other.

Success is the art of changing stumbling blocks to stepping-stones.

It depends upon the pill you take. DeWitt's little early risers are the best pills known for constipation and sick headache. Sold by B. J. Pulver.

Divorce gives but temporary relief—they usually marry again.

After a heavy meal, take a couple of Doan's Regulets and give your stomach, liver and bowels the help they will need. Regulets bring easy, regular passages of the bowels.

An undertaker is probably so called because he eventually overtakes the rest of mankind.

How to avoid pneumonia.

You can avoid pneumonia and other serious results from a cold by taking Foley's Honey and Tar. It stops the cough and expels the cold from the system as it is mildly laxative. Refuse any but the genuine in the yellow package. Sold by all druggists in Tecumseh.

STILL LONG WAY OFF

Is Self Government For Filipinos, Declares President.

TAFT MAKES LONG REPORT.

Forecasts Great Future For Islands. Denies Failure of Policy and Says People Are Anxious to Have the Soldiers Retained.

Washington, Jan. 27.—Nine years after the battle of Manila bay, Secretary Taft records the results of the American occupation of the archipelago and forecasts the future of the Filipinos, in an exhaustive report transmitted to congress by the president, with a letter, written by the chief executive, commending in the highest terms the secretary's conclusions. The president declares that ruin would have followed the adoption of any other policy towards the Philippines than that outlined by William McKinley and carried forward through these nine years and asserts that there is no brighter page in history that that dealing with the relations between the strong and the weak in those islands. He adds that the Filipinos "have yet a long way to travel before they will be fit for complete self government."

Secretary Taft's report records his observations on his recent visit to the islands to the extent of nearly eighty printed pages. Generally speaking, the secretary is optimistic in a high degree in treating of this subject, even though he cannot fix a time for declaring the independence of the islands. In answer to the critics who have made "the most astounding and unfair statements in respect to the cost to the United States of the Philippines," he figures out a total annual expenditure of $5,000,000, and he vigorously denies the failure of the Philippine policy.

Secretary Taft says that great changes have occurred in the islands. The people are now anxious to have the American soldiers retained. There is a high standard of administration of justice. Nothing is more popular than the constabulary. There are no questions between the government and the Roman Catholic church, unless the Aglipyan schism can be said to be involved. Peace prevails in a greater degree than ever before in the history of the islands. The magnificent Benguet road is now justified by the results obtained.

The secretary is willing to limit the amount of sugar and tobacco that can be exported to the United States. He predicts a development of business within twenty-five years that will make the Filipinos themselves stand high in the world's industrial population. His recommendations are that Philippine products be admitted into the United States free of duty under reasonable limitations; that present restrictions be removed on the acquisition of mining properties; that the Philippine government be authorized to conduct an agricultural bank, and, finally, that the islands be exempted from the operations of the coastwise shipping laws.

Joseph Busham, early in the morning, was found lying unconscious on one of the streets of Menominee. After gaining consciousness, he said that he was assaulted and robbed of seventy-five dollars. The man was employed at Watersmeet and was en route for Milwaukee.

Failed Banks Will Pay.

Kalamazoo, Mich., Jan. 27.—The Kalamazoo Trust company, trustee for the failed Richmond Union bank and the Bowman bank, expects to pay the first dividend to creditors this week. This dividend will come from the money on hand and from the sale of the easily marketable securities. It is said that the Richland Union bank will fare much better than the Bowman bank. The settlement of the affairs of the two banks is being made separately.

Didn't Need Them.

My Breath.

Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure has permanently restored to health many thousands who had found no relief in the medicines (allopathic or homoeopathic) of regular practicing physicians.

It has proved itself unique in the history of medicine, by being so uniformly successful in curing those diseases.

Nearly always, one of the first signs of trouble is shortness of breath. Whether it comes as a result of walking or running up stairs, or of other exercises, if the heart is unable to meet this extra demand upon its pumping powers—there is something wrong with it.

The very best thing you can do, is to take Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure. It will go to the foundation of the trouble, and make a permanent cure by strengthening and renewing the nerves.

"I know that Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure is a great remedy. For a number of years I suffered from shortness of breath, smothering spells, and pains in my left side. For months at a time I would be unable to lie on my left side, and if I lay flat on my back would nearly smother. A friend advised using Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure, which I did with good results. I began to improve at once, and after taking several bottles of the Heart Cure the pains in my side and other symptoms vanished. I am now entirely well. All those dreadful smothering spells are a thing of the past."—F. P. DRAKE, Middletown, O.

If the first bottle does not help you, the druggist will refund your money.

NOTICE SUBSCRIBERS

Among the rulings of the post office department which went into effect Jan. 1, '08, the one which affects the publishing business most seriously is that which forces advanced subscription payments. The law reads as follows:

Amended section 436 Postal Laws.

No. 3. A reasonable time will be allowed publishers to secure renewals of subscriptions, but unless subscriptions are expressly renewed after the term for which they are paid, within the following periods:

SEMI-WEEKLIES WITHIN NINE MONTHS.

They shall not be counted in the legitimate list of subscribers and copies mailed on account thereof shall not be accepted for mailing at the second class postage rate. Under these conditions the HERALD is powerless to extend credit beyond the specified time. We are sure the subscribers to the HERALD will understand our position and pay as soon as possible.

JACKSON'S BLUE SUNDAY.

Liquor and Cigars Secured Only From "Walking Dispensaries."

Jackson, Mich., Jan. 27.—The lid worked admirably in Jackson Sunday. While no news stands were open, newsboys sold papers on the streets. Nearly every place, except the hotels, was closed.

Streets were deserted, except at church hour and in the evening when a large gathering attended the vaudeville theater. Manager Marshall of the theater will undoubtedly be named in a complaint.

Citizens have reported that they were able to get whisky and cigars from "walking saloons and cigar stores." Enterprising coin getters supplied the scarce articles from their pockets at good prices per drink or smoke. One or two drunks were arrested, and probably several complaints will be made.

The electric lines running to suburban places did a fairly good business, and the supposition is that a couple of "blind pigs" and saloons, at those places, were the Meccas.

A gaming place was raided and four arrested at ten o'clock Sunday night.

BUENOS AYRES REACHED.

Buenos Ayres, Jan. 27.—Attended by a division of Argentine torpedo boats, the American torpedo boat flotilla, which left Rio Janeiro Jan. 21, has reached Buenos Ayres, the arrival being witnessed by a great crowd of spectators. Commandant Moreno of the Ministry of Marine at once went aboard the Whipple and welcomed the American officers in behalf of the government of the Argentine republic. The entire extent of the public docks, where berths had been prepared for the visiting fleet, was lined by detachments of marines and prefecture guards. A great number of spectators were down to the harbor to give silent but hearty welcome to the American sailors.

Lieutenant Cone, commander of the flotilla, was greatly pleased with the hearty reception. He said that but for the fog which, delayed the little vessels about twelve hours outside Rio Janeiro, the passage to Buenos Ayres had been fine. The Americans were met by the Argentine flotilla off Flores island, a day out. The welcoming fleet saluted and steamed around the flotilla, and for half an hour there was a warm exchange of greetings. Commander Cone subsequently boarded the Argentine flagship, and the trip to this port was continued.

Every boat in the flotilla is in excellent condition and made the passage without a hitch. The boats will remain here until Thursday morning, when they will steam for Sandy Point, in the Magellan strait, to join the battleship fleet.

A number of entertainments have been arranged in honor of the visitors, which will include excursions to interesting points, a banquet to be given by the minister of marine and receptions by the president of the republic and the Naval club. There will also be a reception at the American legation and a number of private parties.

Fall Resulted in Death.

WEDS COUNT LASZLO.

Gladys Vanderbilt Becomes Hungarian Nobleman's Bride.

CONCEDED A LOVE MATCH.

New York, Jan. 27.—In the famous Vanderbilt mansion, at Fifth avenue and Fifty-seventh street, today at noon, Miss Gladys, youngest daughter of Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, cousin of the Duchess of Marlborough and one of the richest of American heiresses, became the bride of Count Laszlo Jeno Maria Hoerik Szecsenyi, a young Hungarian noble of ancient lineage and comfortable fortune.

Both the prominence of the bride's family in the social and financial life of this country and the romantic circumstance of her choice of a husband lent to the ceremony an unusual degree of public interest. Miss Vanderbilt's fortune is estimated at from twelve millions to fifteen millions of dollars.

Purely Love Match.

Rumor has ever been busy engaging Miss Vanderbilt to numberless young Americans as well as to an endless succession of titled foreigners. But even the gossip mongers concede that in her marriage to this comparatively obscure youthful Hungarian, she is making purely a love match.

Count Laszlo is a handsome man of twenty-eight years, slender and straight, his bearing betraying his military training and devotion to out of door sports. He is the youngest of the four sons of Count Emerich Szechenyi, who was for many years the Austro-Hungarian ambassador at Berlin.

The present head of the house of Szechenyi is Count Dionys, brother of Count Laszlo. Count Dionys' wife was Countess De Caraman-Chimay and a cousin of Prince Chimay, who married Clara Ward, the American girl whose elopement with Rigo, the Gypsy violinist, brought her into notoriety a few years ago. The other brothers are Count Stephen and Peter, and all of them enjoy hereditary seats in the Hungarian house of magnates. Count Laszlo is said to have an income of some $60,000 a year and owns both town and country estates.

No Money Settlement.

There has been much talk of the money settlement to be made upon the country, but close friends of the family aver that unlike nearly all of the recent international marriages there will be no money settlement of any kind. The Countess Szechenyi will retain her great fortune and has told her friends that their joint income will be used in common in the American manner.

The marriage ceremony was performed by Monsignor Lavelle, rector of St. Patrick's cathedral, and the bride's attendants were Miss Ruth Vanderbilt Twombley and Miss Dorothy Whitney. Count Anton Sigray was the best man. After the ceremony, a breakfast was served, to which some 250 invitations had been issued. The Vanderbilt home was superbly arranged and decorated for the occasion, and one of the features of the ceremony was music by an orchestra of sixty pieces.

The wedding gifts are said to exceed $1,000,000 and are guarded day and night by detectives and special policemen.

The young couple left this afternoon for Newport, where Mrs. Vanderbilt's home, "The Breakers," had been prepared for them. There they will remain until Feb. 4, when they sail for Europe.

Poured Oil on Meat Block.

Charlotte, Mich., Jan. 27.—The meat war is getting savage. Some miscreant poured kerosene oil on the meat blocks and equipment of the "wild cat" dealers. Their business was delayed for some time, and the burning of considerable wood alcohol was required to purify the stands.

THE SHOEMAKER'S ART.

It Has Been Known Since the Earliest Days of Civilization.

A few winters ago I passed a day among the wonderfully decorated tombs in the cemetery of what was once Memphis, upon the western bank of the Nile, writes Julius Chambers in the Brooklyn Eagle. One of the show places is the remarkable underground palace that the illustrious Queen Ti of the fifth dynasty (i. e., about 4,500 years ago) constructed for her final resting place. It consists of a great court 40 by 60 feet, as I remember, and several other apartments, besides the mummy chamber, which is reached by a stairway leading down from the largest room. Upon the walls of this tomb are the best preserved pictures to be found in all Egypt, and among them are the figures of two artisans working upon coverings for the feet.

Therefore, makers of shoes, I salute you! More than 4,000 years before the art of printing had practical existence, although you will admit that the decorator of Queen Ti's tomb was almost a publisher, your art was recognized, respected and immortalized.

The natural impulse of mankind is to go barefoot. Every reader can remember youthful days in which the greatest possible pleasure was embodied in a run through the woods or along the shore unshod. Very well can I recall the secret spot in the barn in which I was wont to hide my shoes and stockings in order that I might be in the competition for the first stone bruise of the summer. That was the primitive man, speaking up for the faraway days "before we were women and men."

Hint to Housekeepers.

A penny spent on a receipt file will often save pounds in litigation.—Judge Emden in Reynolds' Newspaper.

AN OLD TIME ASCENT.

London's First Balloon and the Great Excitement It Raised.

Tremendous excitement was caused when London's first balloon went up. The balloon, manned by a young Italian named Vincent Lunardi, ascended from Moorfields, then an open space of ground, on Sept. 15, 1784, in the presence of more than 100,000 spectators. All business was suspended, the king himself setting the example by adjourning a cabinet council that happened to be sitting. Vast crowds followed the balloon's course, some on horseback, in carts, in chaises, but mostly on foot. The Great North road, above which the aeronaut sailed for some distance, was a roaring river of humanity.

Many were hurt in the crush, but the only fatality recorded was the death from fright of an old country woman, who, coming out of her cottage to see what the excitement was about, beheld the balloon just above her head. On the other hand, Lunardi undoubtedly saved one man's life, a jury bringing in a verdict of not guilty on a notorious highwayman in order that they, the prisoner and the judge who was trying the case might rush out of court to see the balloon.

The aeronaut descended eventually near Ware, in Hertfordshire, where his sudden drop from the clouds was the cause of more astonishment and excitement. Many of the spectators swooned with fear, while others urged the putting of Lunardi to death there and then on the ground that he must needs be a sorcerer and in league with the evil one.

There Are Plenty Like Him.

"I wonder what has kept Jones poor? He's always made a good salary."

"I know he's well paid, but he's one of the fellows who spend all their money trying to get something for nothing."—Detroit Free Press.

Discovering Writers.

The rejection of a manuscript often left a pang, but the acceptable manuscript, especially from an unknown hand, brought a glow of joy which richly compensated me for all I suffered from the others. To feel the touch never felt before, to be the first to find the planet unimagined in the illimitable heaven of art, to be in at the dawn of a new talent, with the light that seems to mantle the written page, who would not be an editor for such a privilege? I do not know how it is with other editors who are also authors, but I can truly say for myself that nothing of my own which I thought fresh and true ever gave me more pleasure than that I got from the like qualities in the work of some young writer revealing his power.—W. D. Howells in Atlantic.

He Knew His Sister.

Since the engagement of his pretty sister her small brother had been puzzling his head to understand what it meant.

"Why," exclaimed his mother, "Mr. Skaggs has asked sister to marry him. That means that he'll take care of her."

"Buy her things?" asked the boy.

"Yes."

"Hats and dinners and ice cream and everything?" he persisted.

"Yes," was the answer.

The boy thought it all over for a moment, and then he said:

A Freak of Memory.

"Why in the world are you carrying two umbrellas?" somebody asked the forgetful man, and he looked amazed at the question.

"I should think you'd guess that easily, knowing me so well," he said. "I'm carrying two so that if I forget and leave one anywhere I shall still have the other!"—Youth's Companion.

A VALID OBJECTION.

Richard Brinsley Sheridan early evinced a genius for getting something for nothing and, seeing the door of the refectory had inadvertently been left unlocked, peeped in and saw a huge basket of grapes freshly gathered from the orchard.

Stealthily closing the door and approaching the grapes, he thus addressed them: "I publish the banns of marriage between Richard Brinsley Sheridan and these grapes. Is there any one to forbid the banns?" And, having no reply to his query, he proceeded to fill his breadbasket from the other basket with great gusto. But retribution was to follow, for on the class being reassembled the master called upon Richard Brinsley Sheridan to stand forth and joined with his name the ominous name of Walker, who was the dunce of the school and selected from his weight and size to mount the culprit upon his shoulders in order that the master might get a firm surface upon which to use the birch with effect.

Sheridan being duly mounted and appropriately denuded of superfluous raiment, the master thus addressed him: "I publish the banns of marriage between Richard Brinsley Sheridan and this birch. Is there any just cause or impediment why these two parties should not be joined in holy matrimony?"

"Hold!" yelled Sheridan.

"Well?" said the master.

To which Sheridan said, "Why, sir, the parties are not agreed!"

This being not only witty, but apt, as being a valid objection in point of law, Sheridan was requested to retire and restore himself to his former habiliments amid the uncontrollable laughter of all concerned, including the head master.—Exchange.

How's This.

We offer one hundred dollars reward for any case of catarrh that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure

F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo.

We, the undersigned, have known F. J. Cheney for the last 15 years, and believe him perfectly honorable in all business transactions and financially able to carry out any obligation made by his firm

WALDING, KINNAN & MARVIN
Wholesale Druggists, Toledo

Hall's Catarrh cure is taken internally acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. Testimonials free. Price 75c per bottle. Sold by all druggists.

F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O.

Sold by all druggists, 75c.

Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

Half a loaf is better than a dozen loaves of the kind some bakers make.

An insidious danger.

One of the worst features of kidney trouble is that it is an insidious disease and before the victim realizes his danger he may have a fatal malady. Take Foley's Kidney Cure at the first sign of troubles as it corrects irregularities and prevents Bright's disease and diabetes. Sold by all druggists in Tecumseh.

Self made men are usually egotists, because they worship their creator.

Kodol for dyspepsia and indigestion is the result of a scientific combination of natural digestants with vegetable acids and contains the same juices found in a healthy stomach. It is the best remedy known today for dyspepsia, indigestion and all troubles arising from a disordered stomach. Take Kodol today. It is pleasant, prompt and thorough. Sold by B. J. Pulver.

Do you have backache occasionally or "stitches" in the side and sometimes do you feel all tired out, without ambition and without energy? If so, your kidneys are out of order. Take DeWitt's kidney and bladder pills. They promptly relieve backache, weak back, inflammation of the bladder and weak kidneys. Sold by B. J. Pulver

It is easier to learn some things than it is to unlearn them.

If a cough once gets into your system it acts on every muscle and fibre of the body and makes you ache all over. It especially affects the intestines and makes you constipated, so in order to get rid of a cold thoroughly and without delay you should not take anything that will tend to constipate. Kennedy's laxative cough syrup acts upon the bowels and thereby drives the cold out of the system. It contains no opiates—it is pleasant to take and is highly recommended for children. Sold by B. J. Pulver.

How to avoid appendicitis.

Most victims of appendicitis are habitually constipated. Orino Laxative Fruit Syrup cures chronic constipation by stimulating the liver and bowels and restores the natural action of the bowels. Orino Laxative Fruit Syrup does not nauseate or gripe and is mild and pleasant to take. Refuse substitutes. For sale by all druggists in Tecumseh.

A swallow may not make a summer but a frog makes a spring.

Special announcement regarding the national pure food and drug law.

We are pleased to announce that Foley's honey and tar for coughs, colds and lung troubles is not affected by the National Pure Food and drug law as it contains no opiates or other harmful drugs and we recommend it as a safe remedy for children and adults. Sold by all druggists in Tecumseh.

Things above criticism are never beneath notice.

A higher health level.

"I have reached a higher health level since I began using Dr. King's new life pills" writes Jacob Springer of Franklin, Me. "They keep my stomach, liver and bowels working just right." If these pills disappoint you on trial, money will be refunded at C. A. Wright & Son's drug store. 25c.

Diamonds are going up—also the chins of their feminine wearers.

It's as easy to make money as it is to unmake yourself while making it.

A cure for misery.

"I have found a cure for the misery malaria poison produces" says R. M. James of Louellen, S. C. "It is called Electric Bitters and comes in a 50 cent bottle. It breaks up chills or a bilious attack in almost no time and puts yellow jaundice clean out of commission." This great tonic medicine and blood purifier gives quick relief in all stomach, liver and kidney complaints and misery of a lame back. Sold under guarantee by C. A. Wright & Son.

Soda Water ...Sal...

By FRANK H. SPEARMAN

Copyright, 1900, by Frank H. Spearman

It was just east of that siding, so Burns and Sinclair always maintained, but it measured 10,000 feet east, that they caught them.

A shout from Dad brought the dripping fireman up standing, and, looking ahead, he saw in the blaze of their own headlight the string of coalers standing still ahead of them—so it seemed to him—their own speed was so great, and the runaways were almost equaling it. They were making forty miles an hour when they dashed past the paralyzed freight crew.

Without waiting for orders—what orders did such a man need?—without a word Burns crawled out of his window with a pip and ran forward on the footboard, clinging the best he could as the engine dipped and lurched, climbed down on the cowcatcher and lifted the pilot bar, to couple. It was a crazy thing to attempt. He was much likelier to get under the pilot than to succeed, yet he tried it.

Then it was that the fine hand of Dad Sinclair came into play. To temper the speed enough, and just enough, to push her nose just enough and far enough for Burns to make the draw bar of the runaway—that was the nicety of the big seamed hands on the throttle and on the air, the very magic of touch which on a slender bar of steel could push a hundred tons of flying metal up and hold it steady in a play of six inches on the teeth of the gale that tore down behind him.

Again and again Burns tried to couple and failed. Sinclair, straining anxiously ahead, caught sight of the headlight of No. 1 rounding O'Fallon's bluffs.

He cried to Burns, and, incredible though it seems, the fireman heard. Above all the infernal din, the tearing of the flanges and the roaring of the wind Burns heard the cry. It nerved him to a supreme effort. He slipped the eye once more into the draw and managed to drop his pin. Up went his hand in signal.

Choking the steam, Sinclair threw the brake shoes flaming against the big drivers. The sand poured on the rails, and with Burns up on the coalers setting brakes the three great runaways were brought to with a jerk that would have astounded the most reckless scapegraces in the world.

While the plucky fireman crept along the top of the freight cars to keep from being blown bodily through the air, Sinclair, with every resource that brain and nerve and power could exert, was struggling to overcome the terrible headway of pursuer and pursued, driving now frightfully into the beaming head of No. 1.

With the Johnson bar over and the drivers dancing a gallop backward; with the sand striking fire and the rails burning under it; with the old skyscraper shivering again in a terrific struggle and Burns twisting the heads off the brake rods; with every trick of old Sinclair's cunning and his boy duplicating every one of them in the cab of No. 1—still they came together. It was too fearful a momentum to overcome, when minutes mean miles and tons are reckoned by thousands.

They came together, but instead of an appalling wreck, destruction and death it was only a bump. No. 1 had the speed when they met, and it was a car of coal dumped a bit sudden and a nose on Georgie's engine like a fullback's after a center rush. The pilot doubled back into the ponies, and the headlight was scoured with nut, pea and slack, but the stack was hardly bruised.

The minute they struck Georgie Sinclair, making fast and leaping from his cab, ran forward in the dark, panting with rage and excitement. Burns, torch in hand, was himself just jumping down to get forward. His face wore its usual grin, even when Georgie assailed him with a torrent of abuse.

"What do you mean, you red headed lubber?" he shouted, with much the lungs of his father. "What are you doing switching coal here on the main line?"

In fact, Georgie called the astonished fireman everything he could think of until his father, who was blundering forward on his side of the engine, hearing the voice, turned and ran around behind the tender to take a hand himself.

"Mean?" he roared above the blow of his safety. "Mean?" he bellowed in the teeth of the wind. "Mean? Why, you impudent, empty headed, ungrateful rapscallion, what do you mean coming around here to abuse a man that's saved you and your train from the scrap?"

And big Dick Burns, standing by with his torch, burst into an Irish laugh, fairly doubled up before the nonplused boy and listened with great relish to the excited father and excited son. It was not hard to understand Georgie's amazement and anger at finding Soda Water Sal behind three cars of coal halfway between stations on the main line and on his time—and that the fastest time on the division. But what amused Burns most was to see the imperturbable old Dad pitching into his boy with as much spirit as the young man himself showed.

It was because both men were scared out of their wits; scared over their narrow escape from a frightful wreck; from having each killed the other, maybe—the son the father, and the father the son.

For brave men do get scared. Don't believe anything else. But between the fright of a coward and the fright of a brave man there is this difference—the coward's scare is apparent before the danger, that of the brave man after it has passed, and Burns laughed with a tremendous mirth "at th' two o' thim ajawin'," as he expressed it.

No man on the West End could turn on his pins quicker than Georgie Sinclair, though, if his hastiness misled him. When it all came clear he climbed into the old cab—the cab he himself had once gone against death in—and with stumbling words tried to thank the tall Irishman, who still laughed in the excitement of having won.

And when Neighbor next day, thoughtful and taciturn, heard it all, he very carefully looked Soda Water Sal all over again.

"Dad," said he, when the boys got through telling it for the last time, "she's a better machine than I thought she was."

"There isn't a better pulling your coaches," maintained Dad Sinclair stoutly.

"The 168 will suit me, Neighbor. Any old tub—eh, Foley?" said Dad, turning to the cheeky engineer, who had come up in time to hear most of the talk. The old fellow had not forgotten Foley's sneer at Soda Water Sal when he rechristened her. But Foley, too, had changed his mind and was ready to give in.

"That's quite right, Dad," he acknowledged. "You can get more out of any old tub on the division than the rest of us fellows can get out of a Baldwin consolidated. I mean it too. It's the best thing I ever heard of. What are you going to do for Burns, Neighbor?" asked Foley, with his usual assurance.

"I was thinking I would give him Soda Water Sal and put him on the right side of the cab for a freight run. I reckon he earned it last night."

In a few minutes Foley started off to hunt up Burns.

"See here, Irish," said he in his off hand way, "next time you catch a string of runaways just remember to climb up the ladder and set your brakes before you couple. It will save a good deal of wear and tear on the pilot bar, see? I hear you're going to get a run. Don't fall out the window when you get over on the right."

And that's how Burns was made an engineer and how Soda Water Sal was rescued from the disgrace of running on the trolley.

A PROPER EPITHET.

Easy Way In Which a Domestic Rupture Was Averted.

The troubles which are brought to a parish priest for solution are almost infinite in their variety. In a certain Prusian village, says Friedrich August Dressler in "Moltke In His Home," an old woman came to her spiritual adviser and proposed a separation from her husband.

"If he would beat me," she said, "that would be all right; that would show that he was really my man. But he calls me worse names; he calls me a 'subject!' I will not stand for that!"

"So, 'subject,' eh?" said the priest. "Yes, that is bad. It is a bad word. I did not think he would say that. But are you sure you understood? Did he say 'subject' or 'object?'"

The old woman shook her head. She was not certain. The priest smiled serenely.

"Ah, I thought so," he said. "Now, I am sure that is what he called you. 'Subject' would have been very bad. It would be hard to forgive that, but 'object,' pooh, it is nothing. If at all, it flatters one."

The woman laughed happily. "And, then, I need not leave him? I can still keep him for my man?" she asked eagerly.

"Certainly," said her mentor, "and rejoice. 'Object,' that is very fine, very! I was sure he did not say 'subject!'"

She went away entirely satisfied, and the priest heard of no more disagreements between the couple.

PIPES AND CIGARS.

Smoking Said to Serve as an Index to Character.

A person who smokes a cigar with the label band on is always a vulgarian; a person who displays two inches of ash adhering to a cigar is generally ostentatious; a person who selects a cigar because it is sprinkled with light spots is an ignoramus who credits any popular report, and a person who chews up the end of a cigar or a cigarette is more often than not of an irascible or peevish nature. So says the London Tribune, which adds:

Smoking is also a great test of natural courtesy in any individual. One can trace selfishness, boorishness, self assertiveness, timidity or good temper in a smoker's demeanor in any mixed company. Judging upon the example of Mr. Kipling, it has been asserted that the man who knocks his pipe ashes out behind the parlor couch is usually a genius. But this is a somewhat empty assertion, and at any rate it comprises a belief that is in nowise shared by housewives and landladies.

As a concluding rule for diagnosing character by tobacco habits, it may be accepted that the best men smoke quietly and without ostentation, offer you a good cigar without a preparatory oration on its cost and merits and smoke their pipes and cigars out to the end. When a man is concerned because his friends are not smoking with him, he is a person to be cultivated.

Dates Supplied.

"Don't wait for your opportunity—make it." So read Mr. Kalestalk, who had recently started in business as a greengrocer.

He was still pondering this excellent dogma when his eye caught an item in the sporting columns of the local paper, "Sploshton Wanderers Football club requires dates for ensuing season."

Here was a chance for Mr. Kalestalk, so he wrote to the secretary of the club:

"Dear Sir—I presume you require dates for use at half time. Shall be glad to supply quotation for same either by the stone or hundredweight."—London Graphic.

A Rather Light Meal.

An old South Carolina darky was sent to the city hospital. Upon his arrival he was placed in the ward, and one of the nurses put a thermometer in his mouth to take his temperature. Presently when the doctor made the rounds he said, "Well, my man, how do you feel?" "I feels right tol'ble, sar." "Have you had anything to eat?" "Yassar." "What did you have?" "A lady done gimme a piece of glass ter suck, sar."—Argonaut.

How Different Here!

With the Persian one cannot discuss his women folk. To ask a Persian about his wife is a grave breach of etiquette. The most you can do is to ask about the "mother of his son." If he has only daughters he does not mention them. They are a misfortune to be suffered in silence.—London Globe.

The Lovers.

"It seems to me, Mabel," said the girl's mother, "that you've become very fond of Mr. Prettyman in a very short time."

"Why, mother," exclaimed the blushing girl, "how can you say that?"

"I overheard you telling him last night that he was 'too hateful for anything.'"—Philadelphia Press.

Explained.

"Every one speaks of your benevolence, madam, and that you provide so many needy ones with food."

"Yes, yes; when one has three daughters learning to cook at the same time."—Fliegende Blatter.

Ernest Gamble Concert Co.

Wednesday evening the Ernest Gamble Concert Co. gave their entertainment at the New Bradley before an appreciative audience. Tuesday night the concert company played in Kentucky, only 50 miles from the Tennessee line, leaving that town at 2:30 Wednesday morning and arriving in Tecumseh Wednesday night on the 8:16, ten minutes late.

Mr. Gamble told of their experience in coming and the exciting times they had. They arrived in Cincinnati at noon Wednesday and were informed that they could get a train on the Big Four at one o'clock. Mr. Gamble went to a nearby hotel and was writing some letters when one of his company came running in to inform him that they had made a mistake in the time of the train and it was scheduled to leave in three minutes. Grabbing up his letters he rushed across the street, through the depot, only to see his train well on its way to Toledo. With the assistance of the railroad employees he managed to get together his letters which in his hurry he had strewn around the depot and street.

The company then called a cab, crossed the city and took a train on the C. H. & D. which left Cincinnati at one o'clock and arrived in Toledo 18 minutes before the Lake Shore train pulled out for Tecumseh. They again called a cab, which took about four minutes and crossed the city, catching the rear coach of their train, having no time for tickets or checking baggage. They arrived in Tecumseh just ten minutes late and put on a concert that surpassed anything of its kind ever played here and alone was worth the price of admission.

Argument For Feathers.

Opposition to the wearing of feathers in feminine headgear has encountered an argument which shows that there are two sides to this as to every other question. Attention is called to the fact that were the practice of wearing feathers to be abandoned tomorrow 30,000 girls would be at once thrown out of employment in Paris alone. A champion of the working girls insists that if a bird or a girl must perish it ought not to be the girl.—New York Press.

THE LAND OF OPHIR.

Where Was It—In Mashonaland, South Arabia or India?

One of the most interesting and important questions concerning Biblical sites perpetually invites research and persistently evades solution. "Where is the land of Ophir?" Dr. Karl Peters at a public meeting in Berlin declared emphatically that this famous Biblical region is located between the Zambezi and Limpopo rivers. He told his German audience how he has discovered many shafts of ancient gold mines, 500 temples, fortifications and other ruins of Phoenician origin. Dr. Peters affirms that coins unearthed in Mashonaland belong undoubtedly to the time of King Solomon. His opinion is that no other part of Africa could have exported the ivory, silver and precious stones which are recorded in the Bible as coming from Ophir.

Against this theory, founded as it undoubtedly is on very plausible evidence, Bible students are still likely to maintain, on the testimony of Genesis x, 29, that Ophir was a section of South Arabia. Here down to the time of Ezekiel the Phoenicians still landed to procure gold and gems with which those famous sailors and merchants of the ancient world traded in many countries distant from their Syrian shores.

Many erudite writers have attempted to identify Sofala, on the east coast of Africa, with Ophir, while yet others have located it in India. One of the most learned essays written on the subject is from the pen of Professor Hommel, who argued that the ancient land of gold was Arabia Felix.—Homiletic Review

Useless.

"Dear, oh, dear," sighed Mr. Sallowday, "I wish I knew some good way to acquire an appetite."

"Nonsense!" exclaimed his wife. "What do you want with an appetite? It would only give you more dyspepsia."—Philadelphia Press.

"I begin to realize," said young Mr. Kallow, "that I am no longer a mere youth now that I've got a little hair on my lip."

"Yes," said Miss Pert, "and I suppose in a month or so you'll have another one."—Exchange.

COUNTY FEDERATION

Of the Order of the

EASTERN STAR

Fully 200 people, all members of the O. E. S., visited Tecumseh yesterday attending the Monroe—Lenawee county federation of the chapters. Nearly every lodge in Lenawee county was represented. Associate Grand Matron, Mrs. Lyons of Hillsdale, was present, also Associate Grand Conductress, Mrs. Clara Eldredge of Adrian, and Ex-Worthy Patron, W. F. King of Adrian. The meeting was called to order at two o'clock by the President of the Association, Mrs. G. Roscoe Swift, of Adrian, and the following program rendered:

Prayer.
Singing—America.
Address of welcome—Mrs. Hicks and was responded to by Mrs. Stephenson of Morenci.

A business session followed, committees on resolutions were appointed, also one to decide where the federation would meet next time.

Instrumental solo—Mrs. Colvin of Fairfield.
Reading—Mrs. Ingenfritz, Monroe.
Vocal solo—Miss Decker, Adrian.
Reading—Mrs. Lyons, Hillsdale.
Singing.
Adjournment.

Supper was served at the Methodist church from 5 until 7. In the evening the chapter was opened by the Tecumseh officers and the degree work was conferred upon Miss Margaret Haire and Robert Haire, by the officers of the association, chosen from the various chapters. The work was followed by short talks by W. F. King of Adrian, Associate Grand Matron Lyons of Hillsdale. Mrs Lyons also repeated a little Scotch poem she gave at the afternoon meeting, upon request of some of the members. Associate Grand Conductoress Mrs. Eldredge of Adrian, also gave a little talk.

All complimented the officers upon their excellent work, there were very few criticisms that could be made. A program consisting of a solo by John Keeney, duet by B. J. Pulver and Elmer Slayton and a song by the Sunbeam quartette was rendered.

Refreshments were served in the dining room and a social hour enjoyed. The next meeting of the association will be held in June, the committee reporting that as yet no place had been found where they could hold the meeting but that by correspondence the secretaries of the various lodges would be notified in time, when a place was decided upon.

AN ORIGINAL POEM BY MRS. J. M. HIENS.

Tecumseh Lady Maccabees.

In the year 1900, month of May,
Was started a little band
Of earnest women, in number eighteen
Who chartered our Order grand.
From that band of eighteen women
In eight short years has grown
To one hundred and eighty members
By this is clearly shown
What faithful workers these
And we are proud to answer
As Lady Maccabees.

Our aim is our loved ones protection
By insurance and fraternity blended,
And we know if we are called from them,
The loving watch o'er them ne'er will be ended.
For fraternity is more than a name,
It is something so grand and true
That one who wears this mystical chain
Is by their honor bound to do
Their very best; and so you see
We are glad to answer fraternity's call
As a Lady Maccabee.

Four times has death entered our portal
And taken away four dear friends,
Our love and sympathy, mingled with grief
To their kindred, our Order extends.
To the members, when sickness comes
We try cheer and comfort to bring
With flowers, with bright words, with all we can do.
We are glad to hear and respond to all pleas,
For we are loyal sisters when true
Lady Maccabees.

We have glad and gay times too
We would fain confess
And when one of our girls get married
You can rightly guess,
That a shower is in order
And dishes to cook in we bring,
So the very happy husband,
Proud, and delighted can sing—
My wife can cook, fit for a king
And I am very glad to be,
The fortunate possessor of
A Lady Maccabee.

We have all kinds of entertainments,
The like cannot be beat
By any ordinary theatre shows,
While as for things to eat,
Oh my! the banquets and the spreads we have
Words fail me to express.
My sympathy for all you folks,
Who cannot with us be
But that's impossible if you're not
A Lady Maccabee.

My friends, to you all we extend
A standing invitation to join our ranks.
For we want you all to know
That our order stands together,
Be it joy or be it woe.
And we want our order to prosper,
To grow, to live to be,
One of the noblest orders on this earth
Ladies of the Modern Maccabees.

Anna A. Rogers, the author of the striking divorce article "Why American Marriages Fail," which appeared in the Atlantic for September, 1907, will contribute to the March Atlantic a paper on "American Mothers." As the September issue was sold out within a few days of publication, and much inconvenience was caused those who wished to obtain copies, orders for the March issue should be placed early. It does the business.

E. E. Chamberlain of Clinton, Me., says of Bucklen's arnica salve, "It does the business. I have used it for piles and it cured them. Used it for chapped hands and cured them. Applied it to an old sore and it healed it without leaving a scar behind." 25c at C. A. Wright & Son's drug store.

FINAL CALL

DEATH CLAIMS SEVERAL OF OUR RESIDENTS.

Old and Young answer the Summons.

Mrs. Jared Van Vleet.

Mary G. Welliver, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Welliver, was born in Adrian, May 31, 1869 and departed this life in Tecumseh Jan. 31, 1908, aged 38 years, 7 months and 20 days. She united with the Presbyterian church in Tecumseh in the winter of 1892 and was married to Jared D. VanVleet of Ridgeway, Oct. 17, 1894, going at once to the farm which ever since has been her home. She has been a member of the order of Eastern Star since Feb. 1895.

Mrs. VanVleet was prominently a home maker, all her thoughts and affections centering around her home and loved ones. When sickness or trouble came to those about her she was the first to carry aid and comfort to them. Those who knew her best loved her most for her sterling integrity and fidelity. Never very strong in body the care and anxiety by sickness of herself and family was more than her feeble brain could bear. Two little boys, Harley, aged 7 years and Glenn, aged 8 months were given to bless her home, these with her husband, father and mother, sisters, Mrs. Gatt of Raisin and Mrs Caldwell of Chicago, are left to mourn.

The funeral was held from the home yesterday morning at 10:30. Rev. Dunning of the Presbyterian church officiating. The remains were laid at Brookside.

CARD OF THANKS

We wish to express our sincere thanks to our many friends and neighbors who so kindly assisted us in our recent bereavement. We especially thank those who finally succeeded in recovering the body from the river also the choir and for the beautiful floral offerings.

JARED D. VANVLEET AND CHILDREN.
MR AND MRS. JOHN VANVLEET.
MR AND MRS. THOS WELLIVER
MR. AND MRS. MARTIN GATT.
MR. AND MRS. DUNCAN CALDWELL.

Wm. F. Steinhoff.

Wm. F. Steinhoff, for 23 years a resident of this place, died Sunday, Jan. 29, at midnight, of senile debility, aged 82 years, 9 months and 18 days.

Mr. Steinhoff was born in Simcoe, Ont. He was the second son of a family of 10 children, eight boys and two girls, his elder brother being still alive at the age of 85 years. He was three times married, the last time to Miss Harriett Stevens of this place 21 years ago. He was a shoemaker by trade and followed that occupation all his life. Three years ago he fell and broke his hip and he has been confined to the house helpless since that time. Besides his wife, he is survived by a son, Arthur Steinhoff, in Reese, Mich., and one in Ontario, also two brothers and a sister who live in Ontario, a brother in Bay City and Dr. B. F. Steinhoff of this place.

The funeral was held at the house Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock and was conducted by Rev. F. W. Kamm, assisted by Rev. Ward. The interment was at Brookside cemetery. Those from out of town who attended were Arthur Steinhoff of Reese, Mich., Miss Margaret Wells of Simcoe, Ont., Mrs. Jas. Stevens and daughter, Leila, of Adrian, and Harry Stevens of Detroit.

Wm. Clarkson.

Wm Clarkson, one of Tecumseh's prominent farmers, passed away Friday morning, Jan. 3, 1908. Although he had been ill for the past three months, his death came as a shock to his family and friends. The funeral service was held at his late residence and was conducted by Rev. DeSpelder, assisted by Rev. Dunning of the Presbyterian church of Tecumseh.

He was born in Macon township, Sept. 25, 1836. Besides leaving a wife and daughter, Mrs. Winthrop T. Phelps, of Marshall, and a host of sorrowing friends to mourn his loss, he is also survived by his brother, James, of Macon, and sister, Mrs. Henrietta Bailey of Tecumseh. He was a man of high standing in the community, but it is in his home where he was ever devoted, generous and faithful that he will be greatly and sadly missed.

Helen H. Corry.

The death of Mrs. John Corry came as a great shock to her friends and relatives Tuesday afternoon. She had entertained callers and although her health was poor, she seemed to be in the best of spirits Tuesday, all day, when about 4 o'clock she was taken with a fainting spell and died before Mr. Corry could get help.

The funeral was held from the house today at 10 o'clock, Rev. Dunning officiating and the remains were taken to Ridgeway for burial. Mrs. Corry leaves her aged husband and two daughters to mourn her loss. Mrs Chas Underwood of this place, and Mrs. Cook of Adrian.

Mrs. David Lavery.

Died, at her home near Macon, Mrs. David Lavery, Saturday, Jan. 25, aged 70 years. Mrs Lavery was born in the county of Antrim, Ireland in August 1837. She was married to David Lavery in 1877, coming to America in the 80's, having lived in Michigan the entire time. She leaves a husband, son and four grandchildren to mourn her loss.

CARD OF THANKS.

We wish to thank the friends and neighbors for their kindness to us during the sickness and death of our loved one, wife, mother and grandmother.

Mrs. Jas. Winans.

A letter just received from Mr. Jas Winans of Ottumwa, Iowa, announces the death of his wife, Mrs. Hattie Winans, whom so many of our citizens will remember as Miss Hattie Baxter, daughter of Hon. B. L. Baxter, formerly of Tecumseh. She passed away Sunday afternoon. Burial at Toledo Wednesday afternoon.

Girlhood and Scott's Emulsion are linked together.

The girl who takes Scott's Emulsion has plenty of rich, red blood; she is plump, active and energetic.

The reason is that at a period when a girl's digestion is weak, Scott's Emulsion provides her with powerful nourishment in easily digested form.

It is a food that builds and keeps up a girl's strength.

The restoration of confidence in the banks and the free circulation once more of the country's currency, have given a wholly different aspect to the economic conditions from that which was prevalent in November and December. The country is fundamentally prosperous and in most sections there is evident a gradual resumption of activity and a great deal of confidence as respects the future. There will be a good many business failures yet to come and for a year, perhaps two years, there will in many lines of business be a comparatively dull showing.—From "The Progress of the World" in the American Review of Reviews for February.

An exhibition was given by Robt. Elliott, who drove Royal Expedition, 2 year old stallion, ½ mile in 17½ seconds, 2:20 gait.

The next ice race will be given Wednesday, Feb. 5th, and 3 good prizes will be given in each race. Every one is invited. There will be a Green Race, Named Race and a Free for all.

BASE BALL

Magnates of the South Michigan league—all clubs represented excepting Bay City, met at the Griswold House, Detroit, Monday, and completed preparations for the most ambitious season in the history of the compact little league that has shattered traditions by lasting through two consecutive seasons. For 1908 the league has scheduled more games than in either of the two previous years of its existence. Each club will play 126 games, which means that no ball tosser will have any idle time on his hands.

As orginally planned, the season was to start on May 12, and to close on September 18, with 112 games to be played at that time. Those are still the opening and closing dates. But it was discovered that to put 112 games in this interval would make necessary a number of open dates. So the league Monday decided to boost the number of games to 126 which means that each club must play that number of games in 125 days.

Frank Bennett and Chas. W. Sarvis appeared as representatives of the Jackson association. The schedule committee was instructed to have the playing dates ready before the first of March.

CHURCH AFFAIRS

WORK BEING DONE IN OUR CHURCHES.

What is accomplished through the Social Life.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

All departments of our church life are moving along with great activity.

The prayer meetings on Wednesday evening are being largely attended and great interest shown.

The teachers meeting next week will be held at the manse when the teachers and officers of the school will be guests of the pastor and Mrs. Dunning.

Miss Cutting's class in the Bible school will give a social and shower in the near future at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Wilson for the benefit of Beulah Home.

The C. E. has started on a new list of attractive programs for the next few months. The musical program last Sunday was fine. There were over 60 in attendance.

The church is making its annual mission canvass and the members are responding liberally to the cause. The budget for all benevolences includes about $500. The pastor is making the canvass among the men and the Ladies Mission society among the women of the church.

Congregations which fill the church are present each Sunday evening. The pastor is preaching on "The Great Questions of Life." The men's choir has been furnishing fine music and has been ably assisted by Miss Magers, Miss Wilbur and Duaine Service with solos. The music will be a feature of the evening service.

Plans are being made for extensive improvements in the church building this spring. Plans formulated by the trustees through J. H. Smith, include the enlarging of the lecture room, a new kitchen and a vestibule to be added at the west rear entrance with toilet rooms. Work on the new improvements will begin shortly. The ladies society is working with the trustees in the new project.

The men's class will hold its annual banquet Friday evening, Feb. 21, at the church. The committee, consisting of F. R. Hurst, J. H. Smith and Jas. Lowry, is planning an occasion of great festivity. There will be a musical program and speeches and the speaker of the occasion will be Mr. Wang, Y. M. C. A., secretary of Tokio, Japan. Mr. Wang is one of the most brilliant Chinamen in America and is being educated in this country to take charge of the Y. M. C. A. work in Japan. He is a brilliant orator and a witty speaker and will add greatly to the jollification.

METHODIST CHURCH.

Mrs. B. Hurrey left Wednesday noon for Ann Arbor to spend a week with relatives.

Mrs. Erwin Conklin entertained the members of her Sunday school class last evening at her home on Chicago street. Mrs. Conklin has a class of little boys who are progressing rapidly in their church work.

The W. H. M. S. served a supper at their church last evening for the visiting members of the Order of the Eastern Star who were attending the Monroe — Lenawee County Association. About 150 suppers were served.

A pleasant evening was spent at the home of Mr. and Mrs. B. Hurrey last Tuesday evening, when Mrs. Hurrey assisted by Mrs. Ira Rogers, entertained about 40 guests in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Abrams. A musical program was rendered and at the close of the evening light refreshments were served. Mr. and Mrs. Abrams were presented with a half dozen teaspoons as a token of the esteem in which their friends in the church hold them and in appreciation for the many duties they have faithfully performed while attending this church.

BAPTIST CHURCH.

Fred Sheldon is having a touch of rheumatism.

O. B. Finch is confined to the house with a bad limb.

Mrs. Finch entertained her sister, of Oberlin, O., over Sunday.

There has been a marked increase in the attendance at Sunday school since giving out the pins. The scholars are all anxious for the gold pin.

As a church we have been called upon this week to mourn the loss by death of two of our members, Mrs. Margaret Freeman and Wm. Steinhoff.

Rev. Sweet of Adrian, assisted the pastor at the mid-week prayer meeting. Rev. Sweet will come every week for a little while and Prof. Lagerquist will have charge of the music

FRIENDS CHURCH.

The Junior Endeavor's invite their friends to attend their service next Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. They plan to have a special program.

All Christian Endeavorer's please remember the monthly business meeting at the home of Benjamin Swan next Tuesday evening at 7 o'clock.

The regular quarterly meeting of the Friends church will be held next Saturday and Sunday at Adrian. All go who can. Free entertainment will be provided.

The evangelistic services Mr. Wollam has been holding in his brother's church at West Milton, O., were very successful. The home congregation is glad to welcome he and his wife back again. During the absence of Mr. Wollam, Mr. Vincent Wood occupied the pulpit and very ably explained Friends' views on the ordinances.

UNIVERSALIST CHURCH.

Miss Sarah McNeil went to Adrian Thursday morning for the remainder of the week.

Mr. and Mrs. John VanVleet are spending some weeks with their son near Ridgeway.

At a parish meeting Thursday night it was decided to omit the Sunday evening services during February.

Mr. and Mrs. Friend McNeil returned Wednesday from Clinton, where they have been visiting their daughter, Mrs. Chas. Silvers.

The funeral of Mrs. Rebecca Ross, who died in Toledo last week, was held at the home of her son, Dr. Ross, in Onsted Saturday, Rev. Miss Young of Tecumseh, assisted by Rev. Cole of the Onsted Baptist church, officiated. Interment in Onsted.

EPISCOPAL CHURCH.

A little silver cross is to be presented to each member of the Sunday school, who increases the membership of this school before Easter.

The Altar Guild have been having some very enjoyable at homes at the residences of the different members. The next one will be held at the home of Miss Mingay Monday evening. A very good time is anticipated by the parish.

The regular services at the Friends church Sunday both morning and evening. The pastor will preach. Everyone welcome.

Universalist church, Rev. Blanche Young, minister. Subject of the morning discourse. "Walking with God." Sunday school at noon. No evening service. Bible study at 7 o'clock Thursday evening at Miss McNeil's Methodist Episcopal church, Sunday Feb. 2. Love feast at 9 a. m. followed at 10 o'clock by the quarterly meeting at which will occur baptism, reception of members and sacrament of the Lord's supper in which will be used for the first time, the Individual cup. Sunday school at 11:30. Topic for business men's class "Jesus Christ was very God." Topic for boys' class, "Daniel, a man of purpose" Class meeting at 5:30. League at 6 and preaching at 7.

AMUSEMENTS.

The theatre going public is like Oliver Twist, in that it demands "more" but unlike that unfortunate urchin in that it does not want more of the same sort It cries for novelty and the management of the Bradley opera house are sure that they have an absolutely novel production in the Vanderbilt Cup the automobile musical comedy which comes to the New Bradley and in which Barney Oldfield's big 90HP racing cars come on the stage in a real contest.

Meat Market.

Will Coller, who has occupied the west half of the Witherell block with a shooting gallery, has moved back into the east side with Mr. Witherell. The west half has been rented by W. W. Marsh, who with his son Harry, will open a meat market as soon as the store can be fitted for their occupancy.

FIRE

At Raisin Valley Seminary.

Fire broke out in room No. 7 occupied by Kenneth and Leslie Belcher in the boys' dormitory at Raisin Valley seminary Monday. When the fire was discovered it had a good start and would not have been conquered but for the quick work of the students. Everything in the room was destroyed but an alarm clock. The loss was about $250. The only injury was to Clarence Munch who scorched his hair.—Adrian Times.

You may have read about the blessings of poverty, but did you ever see any of them?

DIRECT UPON STOMACH.

Possibility of admisirting local treatment to that organ.

After a series of experiments covering a period of many years, a well-known specialist in stomach disorders discovered that to administer local treatment to the stomach was a possibility.

As a result of his study of the diseases of digestion and nutrition, he prepared a prescription called Mi-o-na stomach tablets that acts directly upon the stomach and bowels, increasing their strength and power to digest whatever food is eaten and quickly restoring health to these important organs.

Headaches, giddiness, palpitations, heat-burn, sleeplessness, flatulence, bad taste in the mouth, irritability, drowsiness, coated tongue and full feeling after eating, are but a few of the many distressing results of indigestion. Mi-o-na never fails to dispel all these troubles and all disorders of the stomach soon disappear when the remedy is used.

If you ever have the slightest symptom of indigestion or weak stomach, check its progress at once with Mi-o-na. The remedy is scientific, yet simple, and is fully guaranteed to be harmless under serial No. 1418 of the United States Pure Food and Drugs Law.

C. A. Wright & Son believe so strongly in the curative powers of Mi-o-na in all diseases of the digestive organs that they give a guarantee with every 50-cent box to refund the money if the remedy does not do all that is claimed for it. They take all the risk and you lose nothing but your indigestion when you buy Mi-o-na and that is a good loss.

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Never Suspect it.

Prevalency of Kidney Disease.

Most people do not realize the alarming increase and remarkable prevalency of kidney disease. While kidney disorders are the most common diseases that prevail, they are almost the last recognized by patient and physicians, who every test themselves with doctoring the effects, while the original disease undermines the system.

What To Do.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy fulfills every wish in curing rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. It corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes.

You may have a sample bottle and a book that tells all about it, both sent free by mail. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention this paper and don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y.

KEEP THE KIDNEYS WELL

Many people take their lives in their hands by neglecting their kidneys when they need help. Sick kidneys are responsible for a vast amount of suffering but there is no need to suffer when all diseases and pains due to weak kidneys can be quickly and permanently cured by the use of Doan's Kidney Pills. Here is the statement of a Tecumseh citizen who has reclaimed good health by their use.

E. H. Hyde, living on Chicago street, Tecumseh, Mich., says: "I had suffered from kidney trouble for nearly 2 years. While working for the Lake Shore Ry. I was exposed to all kinds of weather and contracted a cold which settled on my kidneys. I did not take care of the trouble at first and it finally became aggravated and the pain so severe that I could not stoop or lift anything. I used a number of highly recommended remedies but received only temporary relief. Finally I tried Doan's Kidney Pills receiving much benefit so I continued until cured. I am always glad to recommend Doan's Kidney Pills."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn company, Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States. Remember the name Doan's,—and take no other.

It depends upon the pill you take. DeWitt's little early risers are the best pills known for constipation and sick headache. Sold by B. J. Pulver.

Divorce gives but temporary relief—they usually marry again.

After a heavy meal, take a couple of Doan's Regulets and give your stomach, liver and bowels the help they will need. Regulats bring easy, regular passages of the bowels.

An undertaker is probably so-called because he eventually overtakes the rest of mankind.

How to avoid pneumonia.

You can avoid pneumonia and other serious results from a cold by taking Foley's Honey and tar. It stops the cough and expels the cold from the system as it is mildly laxative. Refuse any but the genuine in the yellow package. Sold by all druggists in Tecumseh.

MACON.

Go to Coller House for dinner, 25c.

Mr. and Mrs. C. O. Biddle came over from Ypsilanti Wednesday to attend the funeral of Mrs. VanVleet.

Will Harring of Ypsilanti, visited his parents the first of the week.

Sadie Higdon was given a surprise last Saturday afternoon by 13 of her young friends. Games and music were the amusements. Refreshments were served.

Miss Mary McKenzie returned to Adrian last Saturday.

Mark Randall and family of Ridgeway, spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. M. V. Hendershot.

Rob Munn of Detroit, and Mrs Fred Davis of South Bend, Ind., were called here Saturday by the death of their grandmother, Mrs. Lavery.

Mrs. David Lavery, who has been in poor health for a long time, passed away Saturday night. The funeral was held from the home Tuesday at 10 o'clock, Rev. Scarlett officiating. Burial at Ridgeway.

It is very important and in fact it is absolutely necessary to health that we give relief to the stomach promptly at the first signs of trouble—which are belching of gas, nausea, sour stomach, headache, irritability and nervousness. These are warnings that the stomach has been mistreated; it is doing too much work and it is demanding help from you. Take something once in a while, especially after meals, something like Kodol for dyspepsia and indigestion. It will enable your stomach to do its work properly. Sold by B. J. Pulver.

SPIDER AIRSHIPS.

How the Young Insects Sail Away With the Wind.

In early autumn the spider families separate. Hundreds of thousands of infantile spiders on a warm sunny morning scale the low bushes, cling to the tips of the leaves and project slender silken threads from the spinerets at the ends of their bodies. Before very long the air near the ground, becoming heated, ascends and carries up the silken threads with it. Still the little creatures hold on and pour out silk till each has some eight or ten feet of line rising almost perpendicularly into the air above it.

At last they let go and rise into the air themselves, each at the extremity of its own thread. In this way they are carried upward, perhaps for many hundreds of feet, till at last they meet a current of air moving slowly along, and by this they are carried often for many miles, while they can always descend at will by the simple expedient of rolling up their supporting threads.

On a warm autumn morning the air is often filled with these baby spiders, each sailing securely on its own little silken airship. When they descend bushes, trees and low plants are frequently covered with their gossamer threads.—London Standard.

A LESSON IN LATIN.

Criticism to Which the Duke of Wellington Objected.

Discussion of the best pronunciation of Latin recalls to the Liverpool Post a story about the Duke of Wellington. It was about the year 1844, and the chancellor in his gorgeous robes was reading the honor list aloud. The list was, of course, in Latin, and Wellington knew more about the handling of brigades than about Latin quantities. Whenever the name Carolus occurred the duke persisted in pronouncing the "o" long—"Caro-lus."

It was at last too much for one of the dons standing behind him, so, leaning over, he whispered, "If your grace will excuse me, I should like to point out that at Oxford we call that word 'Car-olus.'"

"Very good," said the duke. "Thank you. I'll remember." Presently came the name Jacobus, which, mindful of his lesson, he pronounced "Jac-obus."

Again the don leaned over. "I humbly beg your grace's pardon, but that name is 'Jaco-bus.'"

"Hang it all," muttered Wellington, "you can't chop and change like that! Caro-lus and Jaco-bus or Car-olus and Jac-obus, whichever you like. But stick to your own rules, if you please."

Time Works Wonders.

"Hello, Dixon!" said Thompson. "How's things?"

"Simply swimmingly, thanks, old chap! Couldn't be better. I was never doing so well in my life! I've got a hundred pounds in my pocket at this very moment."

"Yes; a hundred pounds—a hundred pounds! You understand?"

"Yes. I congratulate you!"

"But you believe me, don't you? A solid hundred pounds in golden sovereigns in my pocket—a hundred pounds!"

"So you said. Why do you keep repeating it?"

"Well, as a matter of fact, I'm testing that story about a fellow repeating a yarn until he comes to believe it himself. I expect to thoroughly convince myself about Thursday. You might lend me a sovereign till then, will you?"—Pearson's Weekly.

A Concert That Failed.

Hans Pfitzner, the composer of "The Rose In the Garden of Love," says the Munchener Neuesten Nachrichten, had a peculiar experience at Cologne, where he had arranged to give a song recital at one of the hotels. In his own account of the "concert that failed," written in rhyme, the composer says, "Only two tickets were sold after much advertising and the display of many pictures." The purchasers were his friends, who were prevented from being present. When all hopes as to audience had failed he asked to have supper served in the empty concert room. But instead of allowing him to take the meal in "grand solitude" the lights were turned out, and so was he.

Her Stipulation.

When a rosy cheeked, good natured Irish girl fresh from the other side recently sought employment in the service of a Germantown woman, the latter began anxiously to interrogate the girl as to her qualifications.

"Yes, mum, I t'ink so," responded the girl naively, "if ye'll not try to help me."—Harper's Weekly.

An Ideal Laxative.

Physics and Cathartics which purge, unload the bowels, and give temporary relief, but irritate, and weaken the digestive and expulsive organs. Laxative Iron-ox Tablets are as different in effect as truth is from falsehood. They nourish the bowel muscles and nerves, giving them strength and vigor to do the work nature intended, thus effecting a permanent cure by perfectly safe and natural means. The best laxative for children. Chocolate coated tablets, easy to take, never gripe or nauseate. 10c, 25c and $1.00 at all drug stores.

The Best Laxative for Children.

Parents should see to it that their children have one natural, easy movement of the bowels each day. Do not dose the child with salts or griping pills, as they are too powerful in effect, and literally tear their little insides to pieces, leaving the bowels weakened and less able to act naturally than before. Laxative Iron-ox Tablets act mildly and strengthen the bowels, and stimulate all the little organs to healthy activity. Chocolate coated tablets, easy to take, never gripe or nauseate. 10c, 25c and $1.00.

MAGIC IN MOROCCO.

Charms and Spells That Are Used by Moorish Women.

Mrs. Mansel-Pleydell writes of the curious charms used by the women of Morocco: "Moorish women resort much to charms to gain lovers or to keep their affections when gained. There is one charm which is seldom known to fail. It consists of shredding a small piece of an undergarment which the man has worn and, after certain incantations have been said over it, of rolling the particles into the shape of a small ball. This is embedded in a large ball of clay and, after being slightly damped, it is kept in a pot over the embers of live charcoal.

"I have been assured that as soon as the heat penetrates the clay the man, whoever he may be, will lay aside whatever work he is doing at the time and fly to the arms of the woman who invokes the charm. As long as the ball is kept warm so long will the heat of love burn in the heart of the lover for that woman.

"Another spell much resorted to is cast by cutting off the tips of a donkey's ears, cooking them and mixing them in the man's food. He then becomes as foolish as a donkey, with love for the charmer who has provided his unsavory repast."—Chicago News.

Sour Stomach

No appetite, loss of strength, nervousness, headache, constipation, bad breath, general debility, sour risings, and catarrh of the stomach are all due to indigestion. Kodol relieves indigestion. This new discovery represents the natural juices of digestion as they exist in a healthy stomach, combined with the greatest known tonic and reconstructive properties. Kodol for dyspepsia does not only relieve indigestion and dyspepsia, but this famous remedy helps all stomach troubles by cleansing, purifying, sweetening and strengthening the mucous membranes lining the stomach.

"Mr. S. S. Ball, of Ravenswood, W. Va., says—"I was troubled with sour stomach for twenty years. Kodol cured me and we are now using it in milk for baby."

PORTUGAL'S KING ASSASSINATED.

Crown Prince Also Killed and Younger Son Hurt.

ATTACKED IN STREETS.

Royal Family Had Just Returned to Lisbon.

WERE RIDING IN CARRIAGE.

Troops Pursue the Assassins—Three Killed; Three Captured—Queen Is Prostrated With Grief—Bodies Lie In Royal Palace—Soldiers Guard King's Residence—Prince Manuel at Once Made King.

Lisbon, Feb. 3.—All Portugal is overwhelmed at the assassination of the king and the crown prince. Though torn by internal dissensions the past few months, terrorized by acts of crime and bloodshed, uprisings in the streets, outrages with knife and bomb and always fearful lest these signs of revolution would culminate in some dreadful outburst of passion, the country was not prepared for the blow that fell when king and prince were shot to death in a public place where thousands had gathered to greet their home coming.

Queen Amelie is prostrated with grief. Troops guard the palace; a squadron of cavalry surround the house in which the premier, Franco, stays; special details are drawn up before public buildings, and reserves are quartered in barracks ready for a call that might come to spring to arms.

The attack on the royal family has had the opposite effect from that most feared, and peace and quiet reign. Premier Franco has proclaimed the accession of Prince Manuel to the throne; the naval and military chiefs, the high dignitaries of state, swore allegiance to the new king, and Portugal still lives under a monarchy.

How It Happened.

Returning from a sojourn at the king's estate at Villa Vicosa, accompanied by the queen, the crown prince and the infant Manuel, King Carlos seemingly was in happy mood when he stepped into the carriage in waiting at the railroad station here. Thousands of spectators, gaily attired, had set out to welcome the royal family. They made an animated scene. No one had thought of the dastardly assassination which was to come. The people were allowed to circulate as freely as they pleased.

The entire court, ministers and ladies in waiting and many army officers were in the station when the train drawing the royal family pulled in. The weather was glorious, almost like summer. The sun was almost setting at the moment the royal party arrived. It was because of the beautiful weather that an open carriage was in waiting for the royal family, and when they took their places they were greeted with some lifting of hats, but mostly in silence, as is the custom.

Assassins Attack Them.

As the carriage started up and sharply turned into the Rue de Arsenal, there was a cracking of guns, and a shower of bullets tore their way into the bodies of the king and crown prince and the little prince. The assassins, numbering six in all, boldly ran up to the sides of the carriage and poured in a hail of lead before the stupefied escort could intervene. The king and crown prince, half rising, fell back into the cushions, the blood gushing from many wounds. The coachman brought his whip across the flanks of his horses, and with a bound they dashed away, disappearing into the arsenal quadrangle. The panic stricken people, who had fled on all sides, could see the queen leaning over the crown prince and her younger son, who also was bleeding from wounds made by the assassins' bullets.

How many shots were fired no one can say, but it was a veritable fusillade. The effort of the crown prince, who was sitting opposite to the king, to rise, was pitiful and without avail, for he just lifted himself sufficiently to pitch forward and fall over the prostrate body of his father. Queen Amelie, uttering a scream that could be heard by all, threw herself towards her sons, shielding their bodies with her own. She frantically struck at the murderers with a boquet of roses which she had been carrying, but even in the face of this the men fired again and again. As he saw his father and his brother fall, Prince Manuel whipped out a revolver and discharged it at one of the men, but was himself struck on the right arm by a bullet from a carbine. A footman in the carriage also was wounded, and it was stated that a bullet grazed the queen's shoulder, but did not harm her.

Murderers Pursued.

Only mounted police accompanied the carriabe, as the king had refused military escort. The attack came from the rear. The king had been shot in the back of the neck. The murderers turned and fled into the crowds that, now panic stricken, had pressed back before their weapons. Then the guard charged upon them, pursuing them down the streets and riddling three of them with bullets. Hundreds of people joined in the pursuit, and the other three assassins were made prisoners. The royal carriage had by this time been driven into the quadrangle, and the gates of the arsenal were shut. The grief of the queen and Prince Manuel was heart breaking.

The news of the assassination spread like wildfire, and thousands of people, bewildered and terrified, poured into the streets. Soon the troops and police occupied all the prominent places, and the people then hurried to their homes and barricaded the doors and windows to await in fear the unknown future. The strictest measures were taken to suppress the slightest sign of disorder.

The bodies of the king and crown prince rest in the royal palace, and beside them the queen sits at times, sometimes with her hand pressing the forehead of King Carlos and again stroking the face of the dead crown prince.

The condition of the newly proclaimed king, Manuel, is satisfactory to the physicians. His wounds are not severe.

The bodies of King Carlos and Prince Luis will lie in state according to the custom of the court. The funeral probably will be held on Feb. 10.

STALLED IN SNOW.

Passengers on Trains Spent Night In Coaches.

DRIFTS BLOCK THE TRACKS.

Blizzard of Three Days' Duration Is Record Breaker—Entire Lower Peninsula Affected—No Serious Damage Has Been Done.

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 3.—The blizzard of Jan. 31, 1, 2 and 3 will go down in Michigan history as one of the worst experienced in the life of the state. Big storms in other years, notably in recent times those of 1883, 1886 and 1904, have been impressed on the memory of the "oldest inhabitants" and, perhaps, occasioned more damage and loss of life, but severity and duration the blow and snow of 1908 so far takes the palm.

The entire lower peninsula is in the grip of Old Boreas, snow being from eight inches to eight feet deep, but aside from a little demoralization of business and extra expense incurred by railroads and interurban lines, there is no damage reported.

Carsonville, Mich., Feb. 3.—The first train to arrive here since Friday pulled in at 5:30 Sunday afternoon, and forty-five half starved passengers besieged the hotel. Pere Marquette passenger train which left Port Huron at 7 o'clock Saturday evening for Port Austin arrived in Applegate at 11 o'clock and was slowly moving for this town until stalled by an eleven foot drift about three miles from here.

A snow plow had preceded the train, but this was unable to combat the snow and efforts to dig it out proved futile. The train crew relieved the hungry passengers by distributing bread which was in the express car.

The night was spent in the drift.

The train was released by means of another snow plow, which came from Port Huron and detoured, meeting the stalled engines, plows and cars. The train stocked up with provisions during the delay here and, preceded by the plows, started on its way to Port Austin.

Port Austin, Mich., Feb. 3.—There has not been a train in here since Friday and there are no immediate prospects of one arriving. The snow is piled in huge drifts, some of them as high as ten feet. The level of snow is perhaps three feet.

Muskegon, Feb. 3.—Grand Trunk train No. 31, which left Owosso Saturday afternoon and which was due at Muskegon at 7 o'clock Saturday night, did not arrive here until 4:25 Sunday afternoon.

When one mile east of Carson City, the train became stalled in a snow bank at Sycamore cut. The train remained in the cut from Saturday afternoon until Sunday afternoon.

The passengers were without food for three or four hours and would have been for a much longer period had not the express messenger brought them some bread which was in the express car.

The Pere Marquette trains from Chicago were very late, and on the Pentwater and Big Rapids divisions the trains were from one to six hours late. The thermometer registered 18 degrees below zero at 8 o'clock last night.

Traverse City, Mich., Feb. 3.—Saturday's blizzard did not abate until Sunday morning, with the result that traffic was demoralized on local railroads. Two Pere Marquette passenger trains due here at 6:45 and 11 p. m., respectively, did not arrive until 8:15 Sunday morning, being held at Henry, a small station near Thompsonville, all night because a local freight was stuck in the snow in Desmond cut. It was not until the snow plow got to it that the train was released and the passengers allowed to go on north.

Passengers on the trains held at Henry spent the night in the coaches.

Ludington, Mich., Feb. 3.—Navigation at this port was blocked for six hours Sunday, when at various times during the day Pere Marquette car ferries Nos. 15, 17 and 20 and Pere Marquette steamer No. 4 were fastened in the ice at the harbor entrance. The powerful ice tug George D. was finally successful in making a passage for ships.

St. Joseph, Mich., Feb. 3.—Southwestern Michigan was the scene during the night of one of the worst blizzards it has experienced in years. All traffic on the electric and steam railroads through Berrien county has been at a standstill for twenty hours.

South Haven, Mich., Feb. 3.—The Michigan Central snow plow and engine were derailed in the yards half a mile from the depot Sunday afternoon. They left the depot to clear the way for the passenger leaving an hour later. When running slowly, the flanges of the plow struck a switch

THAW IN MATTEAWAN

He Is Acquitted of Murder of Stanford White.

ON GROUNDS OF INSANITY.

Judge Orders Him Committed at Once to Asylum—He Takes Up Simple Life In New York's Institution For Insane.

Matteawan, N. Y., Feb. 3.—Harry K. Thaw has begun the routine of a simple life which the authorities at the state hospital for the criminal insane say will make his long stay in the Tombs prison in New York city seem like the height of gaiety in comparison. The new patient is in the observation ward. He has slept soundly at night, the presence of the fifty other men not giving him the slightest concern.

Thaw enjoyed the trip from New York with his counsel, as well as a dinner at the hotel in Fishkill Landing with his counsel and one or two newspaper friends.

Although the two deputies who accompanied him were guests at the dinner, there was no suggestion of prison or asylum restriction during the repast, and Thaw found the occasion much to his liking.

Given Knife and Fork.

Thaw eats at the "Knife and Fork Table." Only fifty-four men out of the more than 700 in the institution are allowed this privilege, the others being restricted to spoons. Thaw seemed much refreshed from his sound sleeps and declares he needed the rest after the trying hours while the jury was out. About 500 men are in the main dining room. When Thaw enters he is the center of attention. The novelty of the noted patient's presence has not yet worn off. No arrangements for specially prepared meals having yet been made for him, Thaw shared the hospital fare with all the others. His dinner included roast pork, potatoes, sauer kraut, bread, butter and coffee.

Sunday, Thaw attended divine services in the hospital auditorium, conducted by the Rev. Harry Sheldon, pastor of the Fishkill Landing Methodist Episcopal church. Thaw had expressed a desire to attend.

Thaw has declared to one of the attendants that he probably would not be in the hospital more than one week. He said his lawyers would sue out a writ of habeas corput in his behalf, and he was sure he would be allowed his liberty as the result of a hearing in court of an injuiry before a commission.

No Liquor or Tobacco.

During his stay in the observation ward, prior to being assigned to some particular division or to private quarters, Thaw will be under the immediate supervision of Dr. Amos T. Baker, one of the medical assistants to Superintendent Lamb. Dr. Baker said he would not allow Thaw to have liquor and tobacco unless his condition seemed to demand them for a time in medical moderation.

Thaw brought a large sum of money with him to the hospital, but finding he would not be allowed its custody, handed it to a newspaper man, who turned it over to his counsel. Provisions will be made by the family for special meals and table delicacies for Thaw.

Dr. Britton D. Evans of Morris Plains, N. J., and Dr. Smith Ely Jelliffe of New York, alienists, have visited the hospital. They were employed by the defense in both trials of Thaw and, while both evaded questions regarding their presence here, it is said they came at the instigation of Mrs. William Thaw to examine her son and be prepared with evidence when habeas corpus proceedings are brought up to liberate him.

"We just had a little time off," said Dr. Evans, who declared at the first trial that Thaw had a "brainstorm," "so we came up to see Harry."

New York, Feb. 3.—Harry K. Thaw has been acquitted of the murder of Stanford White, on the ground that he was insane on the night he did the shooting.

Four hours after the jury returned a verdict, Thaw started on his way to the asylum for the criminal insane at Matteawan, having been committed to that institution by Justice Dowling immediately after the verdict was returned. He will stay there until it has been decided that he is no longer insane and that his freedom will not endanger public safety.

The acquittal of Thaw on the ground of insanity makes it possible for the Thaw family to do what it is reported they have long desired to do—annul his marriage with Evelyn Nesbit. The statutes of New York state provide that a marriage contract where either of the parties was of unsound mind at the time of the marriage ceremony can be declared null and void.

For that reason any application made upon the part of the Thaw family will have to be submitted to the court, which can act only as the law provides.

Whether Thaw was pleased or displeased at the verdict, there was practically no way of telling at the time it was announced. He stood up, faced the jurors, the ghost of a smile passed over his face, and then he turned and spoke to one of his lawyers.

Opposed Going to Matteawan.

After being taken from the courtroom, however, he showed that he was violently opposed to going to Matteawan. At first he attempted to argue with his lawyers, principally Mr. Littleton, his chief counsel, but they would listen to no suggestion from him that an effort be made to test the validity of Justice Dowling's order.

It was said Mrs. Thaw, the prisoner's mother, felt at first that there should be some attempt made to obstruct her son's removal to the asylum, but she was convinced by Mr. Littleton that the proper course was to have Thaw taken to the asylum for a time before his family took any steps for his liberation.

Both Mr. Littleton and District Attorney Jerome declined to make any statement as to how they felt about the verdict. It goes without saying that Mr. Littleton was pleased that the course he had pursued in the trial had been vindicated.

Deafness cannot be cured

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the eustachian tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces

We will give one hundred dollars for any case of deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure Send for circulars free.

The best swimmer is the first to drown himself.

The editor of the Memphis, Tenn., Times writes: "In my opinion of Foley's honey and tar is the best remedy for coughs, colds, lung trouble, and to my own personal knowledge Foley's honey and tar has accomplished many permanent cures that have been little short of marvellous." Refuse any but the genuine in a yellow package. For sale by all druggists in Tecumseh.

Is it not sheer madness to live poor to die rich.

If a cough once gets into your system it acts on every muscle and fibre of the body and makes you ache all over. It especially affects the intestines and makes you constipated, so in order to get rid of a cold thoroughly and without delay you should not take anything that will tend to constipate. Kennedy's laxative cough syrup acts upon the bowels and thereby drives the cold out of the system. It contains no opiates—it is pleasant to take and is highly recommended for children. Sold by B. J. THE oldest man in the train service didn't pretend to say how long Sankey had worked for the company.

Pat Francis was a very old conductor, but old man Sankey was a veteran when Pat Francis began braking. Sankey ran a passenger train when Jimmie Brady was running, and Jimmie afterward enlisted and was killed in the Custer fight.

There was an odd tradition about Sankey's name. He was a tall, swarthy fellow and carried the blood of a Sioux chief in his veins. It was in the time of the Black Hills excitement, when railroad men, struck by the gold fever, were abandoning their trains, even at way stations, and striking across the divide for Clark's Crossing. Men to run the trains were hard to get, and Tom Porter, trainmaster, was putting in every man he could pick up without reference to age or color.

Porter—he died at Julesburg afterward—was a great jollier, and he was not afraid of anybody on earth.

One day a war party of Sioux clattered into town. They tore around like a storm and threatened to scalp everything, even to the local tickets. The head braves dashed in on Tom Porter, sitting in the dispatcher's office upstairs. The dispatcher was hiding under a loose plank in the baggage room floor. Tom, being bald as a sand hill, considered himself exempt from scalping parties. He was working a game of solitaire when they bore down on him and interested them at once. That led to a parley, which ended in Porter's hiring the whole band to brake on freight trains. Old man Sankey is said to have been one of that original war party.

Now, this is merely a caboose story, told on winter nights when trainmen get stalled in the snow drifting down from the Sioux country. But what follows is better attested.

Sankey, to start with, had a peculiar name—an unpronounceable, unspellable, unmanageable name. I never heard it, so I can't give it. It was as hard to catch as an Indian cur, and that name made more trouble on the payrolls than all the other names put together. Nobody at headquarters could handle it. It was never turned in twice alike, and they were always writing Tom Porter about the thing. Tom explained several times that it was Sitting Bull's ambassador who was drawing that money and that he usually signed the payroll with a tomahawk. But nobody at Omaha ever knew how to take a joke.

The first time Tom went down he was called in very solemnly to explain again about the name, and, being in a hurry and very tired of the whole business, Tom spluttered:

"Hang it, don't bother me any more about that name. If you can't read it, make it Sankey and be done with it."

They took Tom at his word. They actually did make it Sankey, and that's how our oldest conductor came to bear the name of the famous singer, and more I may say—good name as it was and is, the Sioux never disgraced it.

Probably every old traveler on the system knew Sankey. He was not only always ready to answer questions, but, what is much more, always ready to answer the same question twice. It is that which makes conductors gray headed and spoils their chances for heaven—answering the same questions over and over again. Children were apt to be a bit startled at first sight of Sankey, he was so dark, but he had a very quiet smile that always made them friends after the second trip through the sleepers, and they sometimes ran about asking for him after he had left the train.

Of late years—and it is this that hurts—these very same children, grown ever so much bigger and riding again to or from California or Japan or Australia, will ask when they reach the West End about the Indian conductor.

But the conductors who now run the overland trains pause at the question, checking over the date limits on the margins of the coupon tickets, and, handing the envelopes back, will look at the children and say slowly, "He isn't running any more."

If you have ever gone over our line to the mountains or to the coast you may remember at McCloud, where they change engines and set the sleeper in or out, the pretty little green park to the east of the depot, with a row of catalpa trees along the platform line. It looks like a glass of spring water.

If it happened to be Sankey's run and a regular West End day, sunny and delightful, you would be sure to see standing under the catalpas a shy, dark skinned girl of fourteen or fifteen years silently watching the preparations for the departure of the overland.

And after the new engine had been backed, champing, down and harnessed to its long string of vestibuled sleepers; after the air hose had been connected and the air valves examined; after the engineer had swung out of his cab, filled his cups and swung in again; after the fireman and his helper had disposed of their slice bar and shovel and given the tender a final sprinkle and the conductor had walked leisurely forward, compared time with the engineer and cried, "All abo-o-o-ard!" then as your coach moved slowly ahead you might notice under the receding catalpas the little girl waving a parasol or a handkerchief at the outgoing train—that is, at Conductor Sankey, for she was his daughter, Neeta Sankey. Her mother was Spanish and died when Neeta was a wee bit. Neeta and the limited were Sankey's whole world.

When Georgie Sinclair began pulling the limited, running west opposite Foley, he struck up a great friendship with Sankey. Sankey, though he was hard to start, was full of early day stories. Georgie, it seemed, had the faculty of getting him to talk, perhaps because when he was pulling Sankey's train he made extraordinary efforts to keep on time—time was a hobby with Sankey. Foley said he was so careful of it that when he was off duty he let his watch stop just to save time.

Sankey loved to breast the winds and the floods and the snows, and if he could get home pretty near on schedule, with everybody else late, he was happy, and in respect of that, as Sankey used to say, Georgie Sinclair could come nearer gratifying Sankey's ambition than any runner we had.

Even the firemen used to observe that the young engineer, always neat, looked still neater the days that he took out Sankey's train. By and by there was an introduction under the catalpas. After that it was noticed that Georgie began wearing gloves on the engine—not kid gloves, but yellow dogskin—and black silk shirts. He bought them in Denver.

Then an odd way engineers have of paying compliments—when Georgie pulled into town on No. 2, if it was Sankey's train, the big skyscraper would give a short, hoarse scream, a most peculiar note, just as they drew past Sankey's house, which stood on the brow of the hill west of the yards. Then Neeta would know that No. 2 and her father and naturally Mr. Sinclair were in again and all safe and sound.

When the railway trainmen held their division fair at McCloud, there was a lantern to be voted to the most popular conductor—a gold plated lantern, with a green curtain in the globe. Cal Stewart and Ben Doton, who were very swell conductors and great rivals, were the favorites and had the town divided over their chances for winning it.

But during the last moments Georgie Sinclair stepped up to the booth and cast a storm of votes for old man Sankey. Doton's friends and Stewart's laughed at first, but Sankey's votes kept pouring in amazingly. The favorites grew frightened. They pooled their issues by throwing Stewart's vote to Doton, but it wouldn't do. Georgie Sinclair, with a crowd of engineers—Cameron, Moore, Foley, Bat Mullen and Burns—came back at them with such a swing that in the final roundup they fairly swamped Doton. Sankey took the lantern by a thousand votes, but I understood it cost Georgie and his friends a pot of money.

Sankey said all the time he didn't want the lantern; but, just the same he always carried that particular lantern, with his full name, Sylvester Sankey, ground into the glass just below the green mantle. Pretty soon, Neeta being then eighteen, it was rumored that Sinclair was engaged to Miss Sankey—was going to marry her. And marry her he did, though that was not until after the wreck in the Blackwood gorge, the time of the big snow.

It goes yet by just that name on the West End, for never was such a winter and such a snow known on the plains and in the mountains. One train on the northern division was stalled six weeks that winter, and one whole coach was chopped up for kindling wood.

But the great and desperate effort of the company was to hold open the main line, the artery which connected the two coasts. It was a hard winter on trainmen. Week after week the snow kept falling and blowing. The trick was not to clear the line; it was to keep it clear. Every day we sent out trains with the fear we should not see them again for a week.

Freight we didn't pretend to move. Local passenger business had to be abandoned. Coal, to keep our engines and our towns supplied, we were obliged to carry, and after that all the brains and the muscle and the motive power were centered on keeping Nos. 1 and 2, our through passenger trains running.

Our trainmen worked like Americans. There were no cowards on our rolls. But after too long a strain men become exhausted, benumbed, indifferent, reckless even. The nerves give out, and will power seems to halt on indecision, but decision is the life of the fast train.

None of our conductors stood the hopeless fight like Sankey. Sankey was patient, taciturn, untiring and, a conflict with the elements, ferocious. All the fighting blood of his ancestors seemed to course again in that struggle with the winter king. I can see him yet on bitter days standing alongside the track in a heavy pea jacket and Napoleon boots, a sealskin cap drawn snuggly over his straight black hair, watching, ordering, signaling, while No. 1, with its frost bitten sleepers behind a rotary, struggled to buck through the ten and twenty foot cuts which lay bankful of snow west of McCloud.

Not until April did it begin to look as if we should win out. A dozen times the line was all but choked on us. And then, when snowplows were disabled and train crews desperate, there came a storm that discounted the worst blizzard of the winter. As the reports rolled in on the morning of the 5th, growing worse as they grew thicker, Neighbor, dragged out, played out, mentally and physically, threw up his hands. The 6th it snowed all day, and on Saturday morning the section men reported thirty feet in the Blackwood canyon.

It was 6 o'clock when we got the word and daylight before we got the rotary against it. They bucked away till noon, with discouraging results, and came in with their gear smashed and a driving rod fractured. It looked as if we were beaten.

No. 1 got into McCloud eighteen hours late. It was Sankey's and Sinclair's run west.

There was a long council in the roundhouse. The rotary was knocked out. Coal was running low in the chutes. If the line wasn't kept open for the coal from the mountains, it was plain we should be tied until we could ship it from Iowa or Missouri. West of Medicine Pole there was another big rotary working east, with plenty of coal behind her, but she was reported stuck fast in the Cheyenne hills.

Foley made suggestions, and Dad Sinclair made suggestions. Everybody had a suggestion left. The trouble was, Neighbor said, they didn't amount to anything or were impossible.

"It's a dead block, boys," announced Neighbor sullenly after everybody had done. "We are beaten unless we can get No. 1 through today. Look there! By the holy poker, it's snowing again!"

The air was dark in a minute with whirling clouds. Men turned to the windows and quit talking. Every fellow felt the same—at least all but one. Sankey, sitting back of the stove, was making tracings on his overalls with a piece of chalk.

"You might as well unload your passengers, Sankey," said Neighbor. "You'll never get 'em through this winter."

And it was then that Sankey proposed his double header.

He devised a snowplow which combined in one monster ram about all the good material we had left and submitted the scheme to Neighbor. Neighbor studied it and hacked at it all he could and brought it over to the office. It was like staking everything on the last cast of the dice, but we were in the state of mind which precedes a desperate venture. It was talked over for an hour, and orders were finally given by the superintendent to rig up the double header and get against the snow as quick as it could be made ready.

Ancient Legends of the Sacred River of the Hindoos.

From an icy cavern at the foot of a Himalayan snow bed more than 10,000 feet above the level of the sea issues a small stream which becomes the mighty Ganges, flowing for 1,500 miles through India to the bay of Bengal, and of whose course every foot is holy ground.

With Mother Ganga, as the pious Hindoos reverently call her, no river on earth can compare in sanctity.

The old poem tells us that the heavenly Ganges flowed from the toe of Vishnu and was brought down from heaven by the prayers of the saint Bhagiratha to purify the ashes of the 60,000 sons of King Sagara, who had been burnt by the angry glances of the sage Kapila.

Ganga was angry at being brought down from heaven, and to save the earth from her impetuous rush Siva caught the river on his brow and with his matted locks checked its course. The legends go on to tell how the descent of the Ganges disturbed the sage Jahnu in the performance of his religious duties, whereupon in his rage he drank up the river, but subsequently relented and permitted it to flow from his ear.—Pearson's Weekly.

END OF THE WORLD.

A scientific forecast of how the end of the world might come has been given by Professor Ellard Gore. His theory is that final cataclysm may possibly be the result of a collision between the sun and some dark, dead, derelict planet.

Although astronomers have no actual proof that such dead suns exist, without life or light and careering about in space, they believe it quite possible. The result of a collision between the sun and a dark planet would be that the former's light and heat would be enormously increased and the earth instantly destroyed by combustion.

Professor Gore tells how we should be warned of our approaching doom. "When about 15,000,000 miles from the sun, the dark body would begin to shine by reflected light. In about ten years it would have become so bright as to be visible to the naked eye. In fifteen years it would be brighter than any object except the moon. Very soon afterward would come the great catastrophe of its collision, moving at 400 miles a second, with the sun moving at the same speed."—Dundee Observer.

Proverbs of Siam.

It has been said, "Tell me a people's proverbs, and I will tell you what sort of people they are." Judged in this way, the Siamese are a shrewd people.

The Menam, their chief river, is to Siam what the Nile is to Egypt, and the elephant, tiger and crocodile are found in jungle and stream.

Here are a few of their proverbs: "When you go into the woods, do not forget your wood knife." "Place not your boat across the stream" (because of the current). "An elephant, though he has four legs, may slip, and a doctor is not always right."

"Go up by land, you meet a tiger; go down by water, you met a crocodile" (there are difficulties on all sides). "Nobility is seen in the race, manners in the individual." "If a dog bite you, do not bite him again." "He who lives under the sky should not be afraid of the rain." "Nourish no worms that eat timber" (be careful in the choice of friends).—London Scraps.

Friday Comes but Once a Week.

Friday is the weekly fraud. Everything goes wapper jawed, and the sailor man who sails finds himself food for whales, and the man who killed a friend on a Friday meets his end. On a Friday trade is slack, all the trains run off the track; William Doe, to his amaze, draws $10 and ten days; brickbats fall from buildings high, break your neck and make you cry; fevers, fires and frosts abound, earthquakes come and snort around. Old Subscriber in a pet comes to swear at the Gazette. Every one is feeling blue, everything is hind end to, yet some comfort we may seek. Friday comes but once a week.—Emporia Gazette.

Precautionary.

Johnston (to wife)—Well, Maria, I'm going to stay at home with you today and help you to tidy up the house. I'll tack down the carpets and hang up the pictures to begin with.

Mrs. Johnston (to the children)—Children, you may go over to grandma's and stay all day. (Aside) I know my husband is a deacon of the church, but for all that he's just as apt to hit his thumb with a hammer as any other man.—London Tit-Bits.

Cheap Fun.

He—You talk about men playing poker. It is no worse a vice than the shopping habit of the women. She—Perhaps not, morally speaking; but, then, it takes money to play poker, whereas a woman can shop all day without it costing her a cent except what she pays for car fare.—Boston Transcript.

"What fur?" demanded the man.

"To keep my hands warm, you idiot!" exclaimed the lady.—London Scraps.

Slaves of the Lamp.

An up to date Acetylene Lighting Plant can now be completely installed in the average country home—ready to light up,—in two days' time, without injury to ceilings, floors or walls.

And when once installed it will give you the same amount of light as you now use for one-third less than regular lamps will give with Kerosene at 12 cents per gallon.

Instead, brilliant Acetylene Light from permanent handsome polished brass brackets on the walls and neat brass chandeliers from the ceilings, city-like, elegant, up-to-date and out of the way.

Can't tip over (like Kerosene Lamps) where there are children—and does not need mantles, wicks nor chimneys.

Acetylene Light is so pure, so free from soot and color-fog that you can distinguish pale blue, pale pink or pale yellow under its rays as clearly at night, as you could in broad daylight.

Once a month the hired man must clean out and refill the generator in the basement. Takes him about 30 minutes per month to do this.

"The cost of all this?" you ask. So small comparatively, that the plant soon pays for itself through what you save on labor, chimneys and the difference between the cost of Carbide and the Kerosene you are now using.

Shall I give you more precise figures about this "Rural Gaslight"—called Acetylene?

Then write me to-day how many rooms you've got in house, hotel, or how large a store to light so I can answer intelligently and to the point.

Address me as follows—Acetylene Jones, 10 Adams St., Chicago, Ill.

ENGLISH JOCKEY CLUB.

Most Autocratic Governing Body in the World of Sport.

A writer in Fry's Magazine explains the origin and development of the Jockey club, the most powerful and autocratic governing body that is to be found in the whole world of sport. The Jockey club has an enormous power and is feared and respected by all who are subservient to it, and yet nobody ever elected it or gave it its authority. But it is the ideal governing body for racing. One of its most notable achievements was the virtual "warning off" Newmarket heath, though not in so many words, of a Prince of Wales, he who was afterward George IV.:

"His jockey, Sam Chifney the elder, was accused of riding the horse Escape unfairly, and the Jockey club demanded that he should be expelled from the turf. But the prince believed that the accusation against Chifney was entirely wrong and unjust, and he determined to stand by him at any cost. Thereupon the three stewards of the club who were then in office were called upon to take action, and Sir Charles Bunbury, on behalf of them, intimated to his royal highness that if he retained Chifney in his service no gentleman could or would run against him."

Greatly incensed, he withdrew from the turf altogether and did not resume his patronage of it until nine years later.

THE FIREPLACE.

One Thing That Helps Most to Make a Home Homely.

This I say: Go back and pick up lost good habits—the omitted amenities of life. Especially put back into your house the fireplace. It is the one thing that helps most to make a home homely. Build it big and broad. Let there be no gimcracks of fancy woodwork anywhere near it. Let it be only brick or stone. Then let the hearth be broad and wide. Make it so large every way that you need never fear for a snapping coal. Away with mats, for they are combustible! But a stool—that is another thing. Here you can forget the stocks and the office and the store. Here you can dream of rest and peace. Here it is possible that some of you have Tom and Harry and Bessie about your knees. There is no better way to reconstitute the family. It is the chief want of these modern days.

The world is never quite so independent or we quite so care free without a fire. There are vastness and lack of outline to a summer day. We get our feelings mixed up with the cosmos. The fireplace narrows our lives somewhat, but it completes and unifies things. We are happy to be just a part of the little warm home circle. Did anybody ever commit suicide who had a fireplace?—E. P. Powell in Outing Magazine.

Knocked Off the Gilt.

"Yes," one of the two women was saying, "I think I'll get for the drawing room those curtains I looked at last. The dining room's all right as it is, but the drawing room"—

"Now, will you listen to that?" exclaimed a man sitting near by in an undertone. "Her 'drawing room!' Why, say, she occupies a five room flat just over mine and a duplicate of it! Whenever I get more than three people in my little parlor I feel like apologizing for crowding them. If she were to add a grand piano to her furniture I'll bet she couldn't open the door more than halfway.

"But I suppose she must get a lot of comfort out of talking about her 'drawing room,' especially when strangers are listening. You know some women are queer that way."—New York Globe.

The Game He Preferred.

At dinner recently several men were discussing the merits of different kinds of game. One preferred canvasback duck, another woodcock and still another thought a quail the most delicious article of food. The discussion and the dinner ended at about the same time. "Well, Harry," said one of the men, speaking to the waiter at his elbow, "what kind of game do you like best?" "Well, Mr. Jones, to be frank, almost any kind of game suits me, but what I like best is an American eagle served on a silver dollar."—New York Tribune.

Willing.

One evening the head of the household came home earlier than usual and was very hungry. He said to the maid, "Please tell the cook to accelerate the dinner."

The maid brought back word to this effect: "If you please, sir, the cook says she hasn't any in the house, but if you can wait a little while she will send for some."

Carved His Name.

Naybor—That boy of yours seems to be a bright one. He'll cut out a name for himself some day, Popley (angrily)—He's done it already—on our new piano!

HICKS TRACK MANAGER.

Appointed to fill vacancy made by Hyames' resignation.

Curry Hicks of Eaton Rapids, was appointed track manager by the athletic board at Ypsilanti the past week to fill the vacancy made by the resignation of Jud Hyames, who was obliged to give up his work and return home at the end of last quarter. Mr. Hicks is one of the most popular men in both social and athletic circles of the college and the choice of the board in the selection of him as track manager is considered a wise one.

Pythian Sisters Installation.

The Pythian Sisters held their public installation in their hall last Friday evening to which about 100 guests had been bidden. Grand Chief Bond was present and conducted the installation in an impressive manner, assisted by Miss Edith Magers and Mrs. Nellie Adamson.

After the charge to each officer and the obligation had been taken the queen of flowers, who was Miss Metta McKinney, came into the room. She was preceded by four little girls, Misses Matthews, Ella Mathias and McIntyre, who carried the flowers and wreaths. Each officer was crowned with her flowers, the color appropriate to her office, and conducted to her station. Mrs. Bond then made a short address. Supper was served and dancing enjoyed by all until a late hour, Metta McKinney and Elmer Mellon furnishing the music.

Presentation of the Individual Cup.

The second quarterly meeting and communion was held at the M. E. church Sunday morning at which time the individual communion service was used for the first time. The set is the gift of Mrs. Harriett Barnes as a memorial to her husband, Dr. Laman Barnes, who for many years prior to his death was a devoted worker in the church. Rev. Ward spoke most highly of Dr. and Mrs Barnes in presenting the service as did B. Hurrey, who accepted as president of the Board of Trustees.

High School Debate.

A debate was held at the high school last Friday afternoon with about 40 visitors in attendance. Miss Clara Waldron was chairman and announced the following program:

Song—9th grade.
Rec.—Lena Lockwood.
Essay, Americans in Ireland—Thomas Elliott.
Solo—Leota Aten.
Essay, The Irish in America—Alice Combs.
Rec—Ruby Hall.
Solo—Edith Magers.
Debate, Resolved that the United States should adopt woman's suffrage.
Affirmative—Roy Bramble, Charles Teachout, Earl Wiley. Negative—Mary Kohler, Hazel Temple, Florence Linton.

The judges, Mrs. J. Wirt Dunning, Mrs. Andrew Wilson and Dr. W. A. Frost decided in favor of the affirmative. Song, America, by the school closed the exercises.

The February issue of the Ladies World appears to cover the domestic interests pretty thoroughly and in addition to have a large number of very entertaining stories by some of the best writers. Every time the publication comes to our table we marvel at the quantity and quality of matter given for 50c a year. Among the writers of adult fiction this month are Susie Bouchelle Wight, Grace McCowan Cooke, Katherine Grey, who tells how, when a little girl, she ran away to go on the stage, Mildred Stapley and Roy Norton, while Livingston B. Morse brings to an end Dream Animals, the cleverest stories for children that have appeared anywhere of late.

LAFCADIO HEARN.

The Way the Writer Got Even With the Heartless Editors.

"Lafcadio Hearn, that wonderful writer, worked on newspapers in his youth," said a publisher, "and the ruthless way his studies were changed, cut and butchered was a great woe to his heart.

"In after years Hearn took a malicious joy in collecting stories about editors—editors and their superior and omniscient way with manuscript.

"'I enjoyed that poem on the three ages of man in today's paper, Mr. Sheers; I enjoyed it immensely. Do you know, though, I thought that it was originally written the seven ages of man!'

"'So it was, sir; so it was,' said Editor Sheers pompously. 'Yes, the extract was originally written the seven ages of man, but I had to cut it down for lack of space.'

"Another story concerned a weather report. A reporter, discussing the weather, wrote that winter still lingered in the lap of spring.

"The editor as he read over the article called the reporter up to his desk and told him that he would cut out that sentence about winter lingering in spring's lap. He said the idea was good enough and original and all that sort of thing, but it would not do to publish because the high moral tone of the paper had to be maintained in a town full of school girls."

Staring at Royalty.

Royalties are early cured of any shyness of being looked at. They are there to be seen, and both the king and queen when they go to the opera and turn their glasses on the occupants of opposite boxes are openly amused by the disconcerted looks of persons who feel abashed under the inspection. Not a trace of self consciousness is left on the face of an English royalty, with the exception of perhaps a single princess under an artillery of glances. Such attentions are anything but resented. Indeed, the beautiful Duchess of Devonshire used to say that when the butcher boy ceased to turn round after her in the street she would know her reign was over.—London Chronicle.

Is Your Boy or Girl Thin or Nervous?

Parents do not seem to realize the great importance of curing nervousness in their children. They call in a doctor for a cough or a cold, but nervousness does not strike them as being serious enough. It is. A thin, nervous child rarely develops into a strong, healthy man or woman. More often nervous conditions become chronic and the child becomes a life-long, delicate, nervous invalid.

Rexall Americanitis Elixir

This remarkable remedy supplies phosphorus in soluble form to the body, tones and quiets the nerves and brings them to a normal, permanently healthy condition. The first bottle will convince you of the genuine merit of this remedy. Your duty to your child should urge you to try it.

75 Cents Per Bottle

THE FAIRNESS OF THIS Rexall GUARANTEE will appeal to every parent. If Americanitis does not benefit your child, just bring us back your empty bottle and tell us so, and we'll promptly hand you back your money. That shows our confidence in this remedy. There's nothing dangerous about Americanitis. We'll give you the entire formula upon request.

LITERARY NOTES.

In the February number of Everybody's the publishers have a production of which they may well be proud. From the cover which represents an Oriental rug of warm color and intricate design, down to the final pages where Thomas Lawson explains his reasons for giving up his long waged war upon criminal high finance, the magazine is packed with interesting, forceful narrative and a goodly share of romance and humor.

For variety of interest the February McClure's is in the lead. Miss Millmine resumes her "Life of Mrs Eddy," giving the history of the early church. Prof. Wm. Jas. of Harvard sounds a battle-cry to the colleges in his article, "The Social Value of the College-Bred;" Geo. Kibbe Turner's article, "The Men Who Learned to Fly," describes the experiments of inventors who have made better wings than a bird's and are offering for sale an aerial warship.

Suffering & Dollars Saved.

The February Century brings the first of the promised papers on Egypt, the text by Robert Hichens, the illustrations in color, by Jules Guerin—author and artist having visited Egypt specially to gather material for this feature. Both have caught and portrayed with rare sympathy of feeling the color, picturesqueness, wonder and mystery of Egypt's ancient monuments. This issue, too, contains the first of Helen Keller's new essays entitled "Sense and Sensibility," almost a song of thanksgiving for the wonderful experiences and emotions which are hers through her three senses and written with much grace and charm of style.

Since the strong campaign against child labor was started in 1906 by the Woman's Home Companion in conjunction with the National Child Labor committee, legislation for the protection of children or for compulsory education has been passed in 17 states of the Union. In the state of Missouri laws have been passed prohibiting night work for children under 16 years of age and prohibiting the employment of children under that age in manufactures involving the use of specified poisonous materials.

A strong novel dealing with political and social life in Washington is the leading feature of the February Smart Set. The story is entitled "The Reaping," and is written by Mary Imlay Taylor, whose past work has gained her an enviable place among fiction writers. A woman possessed of unusual beauty and endless ambition is the central figure of this absorbing tale. There are several minor characters whom Miss Taylor draws with a deft hand, and anyone who knows the fascinating life of the capital city will be amazed at the author's keen sense of observation. It is well worth reading.

It is said that Lippincott's is one of the fortunate magazines to thrive in spite of "depression times." People seem to realize that 12 first quality novels a year is not a luxury but a necessity. Hence they feel justified in holding on to this safe investment with its big paying dividends. Lippincott's is sometimes referred to as a "sure thing" and in America this expression covers a good deal—all of which must be highly gratifying to its publishers.

Thy sum of duty let two words contain—Be humble and be just.

INQUEST

Held last Tuesday over the Remains of

MRS. JARED VANVLEET

Of Tecumseh, whose Body was found in the River.

The inquest over the remains of Mrs. Jared VanVleet was held last Tuesday morning. The testimony of some of the witnesses is given below:

Dr. Frost was sworn in first and said he made a thorough examination of the body of Mrs. VanVleet, which he found to be in a perfect condition. There were no marks upon the body excepting a spot on the left side of the face and an abrasion upon the right knee that might have been caused when going into the water. She showed the effect of having been in the water sometime. Dr. Frost made a thorough examination of her clothing and found there was not a break of any kind showing signs of any struggle.

Mr. Belding in telling of the condition of the body when he was called said, "The hair of the head was considerably dirty, that is there was muddy water and ice in it. Not a spot on the body aside from which the doctor mentioned that he could find and no break in the clothing. She seemed to be dressed naturally besides having on shoes, stockings and overshoes. Her hair was done up, the hair pins were in the hair although pulled out some." The body was taken to his store, he did not see her in the water.

Mr. LaBounty was sworn in. He said he had spent some time looking for the body of Mrs. VanVleet and found the body just a little north and east of the scraper house beyond Blood's bridge entangled in the driftwood under probably two feet of water. Her clothes were caught in the driftwood. They had to drag the body and thought perhaps the bruise the doctor found upon the knee was done then as there was ice in the river.

There were six in the searching party, Oscar Hall, Roy VanVleet, Mr. Blood, two LaBounty boys and Will LaBounty. Oscar Hall saw the body first. The testimony the others gave was exactly the same. Oscar Hall made the statement that not a one of his party would accept of the offer of the reward that had been made by Mr. VanVleet.

Mr. Jared VanVleet, husband of the deceased woman, was called and said that he arose as usual Tuesday morning, Jan. 21st, at 5 o'clock, built the kitchen fire and then went out to do the chores. He milked the cows and went back to the house. When he went into the house he noticed the breakfast was cooking on the stove. The potatoes and meat were on and a good fire in the stove and as he supposed she was down cellar or stepped out somewhere, he did not mistrust anything until he had been in the house probably fifteen minutes, then he got the breakfast and put it on the table.

He asked the little boy where his mama was and he said she had gone out of the house. When Mr. VanVleet entered the house he said the little boy was trying to dress himself by the kitchen stove and he said when he saw his mama last she was in the sitting room by the coal stove. She had started to dress him and had put his under waist over his shoulders. He said he heard her open and shut the door and that was the last he saw of her. When asked if his mama bid him good bye, he replied she did not.

When Mr. VanVleet was positive that his wife was not around he notified his parents. When they came, the neighbor who had been butchering came over also after one of the hogs which Mr. VanVleet had to help him with it. Shortly after that Mr. VanVleet notified the neighbors over the line and a search was immediately started. Mr. VanVleet said his wife's health was not good and she had worried over the care of the younger child. They had help all through the butchering.

The jury came to the following conclusion, that Mrs VanVleet came to her death in a state of temporary insanity caused by her weak physical condition, committed suicide by drowning and further we find upon investigation, that Mr. Jared VanVleet, her husband, was in all ways a kind and indulgent husband and we exonerate him from any censure in connection with her death.

BUSINESS FIRM.

Robert McCoy and Thomas Birdsall have purchased the Michigan creameries and skimming stations formerly owned Edward Mott, and have already taken possession. The firm will be known as the Tecumseh Butter Company.

Both Mr. Birdsall and Mr. McCoy have had considerable experience in the business, Mr. Birdsall having had charge of the business here for the past four years and Mr. McCoy working at it about a year while north. They are both hustling and energetic young men and the HERALD wishes them a successful business career.

Macaroni Factory.

WABASH WRECK

Sunday evening Wabash passenger wrecked near

HOLLOWAY

Walter Lowry of Tecumseh, a passenger.

Shortly after 8 o'clock Sunday evening, the Wabash passenger due in Adrian at 7:17 but was one half hour late, struck a broken rail 2½ miles east of Holloway while going at the rate of 60 miles an hour and the train of eight coaches with the exception of the engine and baggage coach, toppled over to the left causing the death of one woman and serious and some fatal injuries to 34 passengers

Walter Lowry was on the train enroute to Detroit and was only slightly bruised on one arm. He was driven back to Tecumseh during the morning and later returned to the scene of the wreck with several from Tecumseh.

The dead woman, Mrs. John Vergo, a Hungarian, 30 years of age, with her husband were on their way back to their native land. She was placed on board the relief train and started for Adrian when she passed away never having regained conscionsness. Her husband was nearly frantic with grief although he was forced to restrain himself because of the other injured ones.

Among the more seriously injured are Mr. and Mrs. Metz of Detroit, formerly of Blissfield, Dr. L. J. Marshall and L. D. Johnson of Adrian. The wrecking crew had cleared away the wreck at 9 o'clock yesterday morning. Coroner Thomas decided an inquest was neccessary and the following jury was drawn, Joseph Hudson, Frank Baxter, Geo. Durfee, Chas. Wilcox, O. J. Avery and Ed Sheppard. The jury will meet at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning at the court house where the inquest will be held.

Farmers Institute.

The Farmers Institute was held in Witherell hall yesterday. There was a large number in attendance, but many who had been chosen for the program were unable to attend. At 10 o'clock in the forenoon the program opened with a prayer by Rev. Ward, which was followed by the singing of America.

State speaker Hon. M. L. Dean of Pontiac, was present and gave an interesting talk about "Troublesome Weeds and how to control them," which was followed by a discussion led by H. B. Eaton. They adjourned for dinner and 75 were served for that meal at the Grange hall.

The afternoon session was opened at one o'clock by a recitation by Clara Waldron. Miss Edna Peck of the high school, read an interesting paper on "Good Reading for the Home." In part she said that some families had no reading in their homes and this was supplied by the reading in schools. She thought this was a good thing in most instances. Children form a taste for reading while very young and if allowed to have the light trashy novels they would never care for anything deeper. Parents can overcome this by bringing substantial reading matter into their homes so that their children may form their high ideals.

Mrs. A. O. Howard led the discussion. M L. Dean gave an able address on "Clover, Cows and Comfort." He said that better work could be done in all kinds of work, especially farm work. Clover helped to make the cows have more comfort. He said some people fed cows carelessly, giving them most any thing to eat. If they received any benefit, all well and good, if not it was just the same. His address was discussed by A. W. Mills and others.

"The Factory View" by W. H. Burns and "The Sugar Beet Growing" was discussed by H. E. Dove. Their talks were very interesting. This closed the program as they were disappointed by their music for the afternoon session.

Base Ball Meeting.

Friday night about 30 of the business men of Tecumseh, met in the council rooms to decide about the base ball for the coming season. They adjourned to meet Wednesday night at 7 o'clock at the council rooms.

Herald Office Open.

The HERALD office will be open every Saturday night at 7 o'clock for the remainder of the evening to accommodate those who desire to pay for the HERALD. All accounts must be paid at once. Those who are in arrears kindly call and settle.

The jumping off place

"Consumption had me in its grasp, and I had almost reached the jumping off place when I was advised to try Dr. King's New Discovery, and I want to say right now, it saved my life. Improvement began with the first bottle and after taking one dozen bottles I was a well and happy man again" says Geo. Moore of Grimesland, N. C. As a remedy for coughs, colds, a healer of weak, sore lungs and for preventing pneumonia, New Discovery is supreme. 50c and $1 at C. A. Wright & Son's. Trial bottle free.

Mrs. J. B. Coller.

The sudden and sad death of Mrs. J. B. Coller came as a great shock to her many friends Monday morning Scarcely any one knew of her illness until her suffering was over. She returned Friday from a visit with relatives in Detroit. She was taken ill about 3:30 Sunday morning, gradually growing worse during the day, death bringing relief to her at five o'clock Monday morning.

Mrs. Coller has conducted a rooming and boarding house here for several years and during that time has made many friends. She leaves four sons, Leon, of Detroit, Will, Lester and Earl, of this place, beside her husband and a host of sorrowing relatives and friends to mourn her loss.

The funeral will be held from the house tomorrow at 2 o'clock, Rev. Ward officiating. Burial at Brookside.

The phychology of marriage and love is as capable of analysis as everything else says the Designer for February. It may be declared that marriage, for the woman, is to be divided into three distinct phases: First what the woman imagines her husband to be; second, what she discovers him to be; and third, what she must admit to herself that he really is. Also love may be divided into three distinct conditions: the love that loves in blindness, the love that recognizes faults and the love that loves in spite of faults.

NO MORE CATARRH.

C. A. Wright & Son will not allow it to exist in Tecumseh.

"There will be no more catarrh in Tecumseh," says C. A. Wright & Son, "unless people fail to follow the law of common sense."

C. A. Wright & Son make this statement because of the great success that has followed the use of Hyomei in the treatment of catarrhal troubles. So positive is this treatment in quick relief and permanent cure that they sell it under an absolute guarantee to refund the money if it does not do all that is claimed for it.

There is no other treatment or medicine for catarrhal troubles that is at all like Hyomei. It follows nature's plan in curing diseases of the throat and lungs by bringing healing medication right to the very spot where the disease germs exist. With this treatment, health-giving oils and balsams are breathed through a neat pocket inhaler that comes with every outfit, so that every breath you take while using Hyomei is a breath of healing air. It kills all catarrhal germs and prevents their growth, so that the cure is thorough and permanent.

Remember that Hyomei is sold under a guarantee to cost nothing unless it cures. If you have any catarrhal trouble, you should take advantage of C. A. Wright & Son's liberal offer.

Often The Kidneys Are Weakened by Over-Work.

Unhealthy Kidneys Make Impure Blood.

It used to be considered that only urinary and bladder troubles were to be traced to the kidneys but now modern science proves that nearly all diseases have their beginning in the disorder of these most important organs.

The kidneys filter and purify the blood—that is their work.

Therefore, when your kidneys are weak or out of order, you can understand how quickly your entire body is affected and how every organ seems to fail to do its duty.

If you are sick or "feel badly," begin taking the great kidney remedy, Dr Kilmer's Swamp-Root, because as soon as your kidneys are well they will help all the other organs to health. A trial will convince anyone.

If you are sick you can make no mistake by first doctoring your kidneys. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases, and is sold on its merits by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also a pamphlet telling you how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. Mention this paper when writing to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root Dr Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

KEEP THE KIDNEYS WELL

Many people take their lives in their hands by neglecting their kidneys when they need help. Sick kidneys are responsible for a vast amount of suffering but there is no need to suffer when all diseases and pains due to weak kidneys can be quickly and permanently cured by the use of Doan's Kidney Pills. Here is the statement of a Tecumseh citizen who has reclaimed good health by their use.

E. H. Hyde, living on Chicago street, Tecumseh, Mich., says: "I had suffered from kidney trouble for nearly 2 years. While working for the Lake Shore Ry. I was exposed to all kinds of weather and contracted a cold which settled on my kidneys. I did not take care of the trouble at first and it finally became aggravated and the pain so severe that I could not stoop or lift anything. I used a number of highly recommended remedies but received only temporary relief. Finally I tried Doan's Kidney Pills receiving much benefit so I continued until cured. I am always glad to recommend Doan's Kidney Pills."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn company, Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States. Remember the name Doan's,—and take no other.

It depends upon the pill you take. DeWitt's little early risers are the best pills known for constipation and sick headache. Sold by B. J. Pulver.

Divorce gives but temporary relief—they usually marry again.

After a heavy meal, take a couple of Doan's Regulets and give your stomach, liver and bowels the help they will need. Regulets bring easy, regular passages of the bowels.

An undertaker is probably so called because he eventually overtakes the rest of mankind.

La grippe coughs are dangerous as they frequently develop into pneumonia. Foley's Honey and Tar not only stops the cough but heals and strengthens the lungs so that no serious results need be feared. The genuine Foley's honey and tar contains no harmful drugs and is in the yellow package. Sold by all druggists in Tecumseh.

BRIEF DISPATCHES.

The plant of the Atlantic Compress company, in Americus, Ga., with between 2,000 and 2,500 bales of cotton has been destroyed by fire. The total loss is estimated at $150,000, covered by insurance. The origin is unknown.

A passenger train on the Southern railway, known as the New York limited, was wrecked one mile east of Sweetwater, Tenn., injuring a number of persons. The train, while running at high speed, ran into an open switch and crashed into a loaded coal car.

While en route to St. Louis from Nashville, Tenn., Rev. Ira Landreth, D. D., general secretary of the Presbyterian Brotherhood of America, was suddenly stricken with appendicitis. On advice of doctors, Rev. Landrith was taken back to his home in Nashville.

Rev. Dr. Frank Britol, pastor of the Metropolitan Methodist Episcopal church in Washington, had a narrow escape from death in his pulpit. A plate ornament, weighing ten pounds, fell from the ceiling a distance of fifty feet, striking him a glancing blow on the head. He fell to the floor unconscious and bleeding from a severe scalp wound. He is suffering from nervous shock, but his condition is not considered serious.

Captain Rawson J. Post, whose sixty-seven years had been filled with adventure and marked by several heroic deeds, died aboard his ship, the Shouthern Pacific liner Comus, while the steamer was tied to her pier in New York. Death was due to heart failure. Twenty-five years ago, Captain Post rescued some forty passengers and the members of a crew of a British vessel and for this he was given a medal of honor by the British government.

THE MULE IN THE JUG.

An Arab Proverb and the Legend That Gave It Birth.

Who can affirm that the mule entered the jug?

This proverb is frequently quoted to show that, though one may conscientiously believe in a thing which may seem extravagant in itself, it is better not to repeat it from fear of being disbelieved. It arises from the following Arabic legend: An Arab who denied the existence of genii once bought a mule and took it home. When performing his evening ablutions, he saw the mule enter a jug, and this so scared him that he ran shouting to the neighbors and told them what he had seen. They, thinking him mad, endeavored to appease him, but all in vain. He vociferated more and more, so that the authorities sent him to the madhouse. When the doctor came to see him, he repeated the account of what he had seen, whereupon the doctor ordered him to be detained. He continued upon each visit of the doctor to repeat his statement until his friends succeeded in persuading him that if he wished to regain his freedom he must recant. This he did, and the doctor set him at liberty, to the great joy of his family and friends. On making his ablutions as before he again saw the mule, this time peeping out of the jug, but on this occasion he contented himself with remarking to the mule: "Oh, yes, I see you well enough, but who would believe me? And I have had enough of the madhouse." Needless to say that the genii to avenge themselves for his disbelief in them had transformed one of themselves into a mule and as such entered the jug.—Cairo (Egypt) Sphinx.

A ROCKING STONE.

New York's Souvenir of the Remote Glacial Period.

Though tens of thousands of persons yearly see the great rocking stone of Bronx park in New York city, few realize that it is the city's most conspicuous souvenir of the glacial period, when all of this section was covered with an ocean of ice some 1,500 feet thick that was moving slowly toward the south.

That pinkish bit of granite, weighing thirty tons, standing seven and one-half feet above its rocky base, being ten feet broad and eight feet thick, came from the far north, carried in the resistless icy arms of the glacier that swept over the continent down to this latitude, marking its path by depositing great bowlders as it moved and leaving scratches on the firm rocks beneath, from the sliding, grinding bits and masses of granite that settled to its base and were pushed along as it moved.

This same bowlder left its mark on the bare face of the rocky hill to the north of it, in which lies the crocodile pool. There the scratches are visible today, pointing to where the bowlder stands and telling the story of part of its travels.

When the melting ice departed from the great block of granite, it left it standing through the ages a rocking stone so delicately poised that a pressure of fifty pounds exerted on its most northern angle causes its apex to sway north and south about two inches.—New York Herald.

A Considerate Reporter.

When the Maine was blown up the wife of Lieutenant Commander Wainwright was at her home in Washington. She had heard nothing of the news when she was awakened about 4 o'clock in the morning by a violent knocking at the door of her house. Finally Mrs. Wainwright rose and looked out of the window, asking what was the matter. A voice called out, "Are you the wife of Lieutenant Commander Wainwright?" "Yes. What do you want?" "The Maine has been totally destroyed. We are reporters and wish for some information about Mr. Wainwright." Only this and nothing more. The shock caused the poor lady to fall in a dead faint, from which she did not rally for several hours, and, fortunately for her, it was then known her husband was not among the lost.

Hippophagy.

Hippophagy being in low water in these later days, somebody has set himself to show what an exceedingly respectable history attaches to the practice. Among the ancients, especially in China, eating horseflesh was general, and it was only killed in Europe by a papal decree of Gregory III., though why horseflesh should have been interdicted does not appear. It was only the famine caused by Napoleon's invasion that revived the practice in Germany, where it has survived ever since.—London Globe.

"If you want to study human nature just try being a salesman in a department store for even a short time," said the clerk over his evening meal. "There isn't a day but I have a quiet laugh over the remarks of customers or, more frequently, would be customers. Today, for instance, I was approached by a well dressed elderly woman with the request to show her some cups and saucers. She did not want china ones—something in porcelain, for 'common everyday use,' she said. I brought out samples, and finally her choice simmered down to a plain white and the other a white with a dull grayish green figure. As if to account for her decision she said to me in a most confidential tone: 'I guess I'll take the gray ones. They won't show the dirt so soon.'"—New York Press.

A Pugnacious Super.

When F. R. Benson, the actor, was training two armies of "supers" for a battle, he had some difficulty in persuading the weaker side to submit to be conquered. Even at the first performance the vanquished force, which included a somewhat pugnacious Irishman, who may be called X., upset traditional usages by severely mauling its victors, and the play must have suffered if the hint of one of the warriors had not been taken.

"Look a-here, Mr. Benson," he said, "if you want us to be beaten, you must put X. in the other army. That's the only way."—London Standard.

MAJOR RANSOM DEAD.

Venerable Michigan Soldier and Citizen Passes Away at Grand Rapids.

Major Ransom had a long and eventful career. He was born April 28, 1828, in Townsend, Vt., and was therefore nearly eighty years of age.

He emigrated with his parents in October, 1834, to Michigan and was reared in the paternal home at Kalamazoo. He was educated in the district schools and the Michigan Huron institute, later the branch of the University of Michigan, where he was prepared for admission to the sophomore class in 1845. He graduated from the university in the class of 1848 with the degree of A. B., and in 1895 the regents conferred on him the degree of A. M.

Major Ransom was associated with his father at Kalamazoo in banking and various business enterprises. He emigrated to the territory of Kansas in 1857. With the fall of Fort Sumpter, the major enlisted in Co. E. of the Second regiment of Kansas volunteers and was elected lieutenant and later captain of his company.

In 1877, Major Ransom returned to Michigan and in 1881 was appointed deputy state railroad commissioner. Many of the railroad laws of this state now in force were prepared by Major Ransom for the legislative committees. At the close of his official career, he retired from active life to a home in St. Joseph, Mich., where he lived with his wife until her death last March.

Major Ransom was a Knight Templar, member of the G. A. R., Michigan Pioneer society and was greatly interested in educational matters and particularly those of the Michigan university.

Insurance Companies Beaten.

Kingston, Jamaica, Feb. 3.—The English insurance companies that lost heavily in the earthquake and fire of January, 1907, have had a further verdict handed down against them. Two test cases for the payment of losses sustained at the time of the earthquake were recently decided adversely to the companies. The latter appealed against the findings of the lower courts and took the matter to the supreme court. The supreme court upheld the decision of the lower body, dismissed both appeals and refused the application of the companies for a test trial.

Preacher in Jail.

Springfield, O., Feb. 3.—Rev. William G. Whitaker, giving his home as Exeter, Kas., is in jail here charged with using the United States mails to defraud. The affidavit on which Whitaker was arrested was sworn out by the postmaster of Asheville, N. C., and avers that Whitakers claimed to represent an estate in England which he said was worth from $200,000,000 to $600,000,000 and belonged to the heirs of John Whitaker and Jane Scott Parker. He communicated with a number of people in this country and claimed that for the small fee of $10 he would look after their interests.

In Receivers' Hands Again.

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 3.—Once more the property known as the Detroit, Toledo & Ironton railroad is in the hands of receivers, being placed there by an order of the United States court in Detroit, which also appointed Vice President and General Manager G. K. Lowell and General Counsel B. S. Warren receivers. The immediate cause of this action was the failure to meet the interest on bonds.

She Was Posted.

"And do you doubt my love?" he asked passionately.

"No, Samuel," she answered, with admirable tact, "but when you say that the day you call me yours will usher in an era of lifelong devotion and tender solicitude you—pardon me, dear, you put it on a trifle too thick. You seem to forget, Samuel, that I am a widow."—London Telegraph.

Marquette, Mich., Feb. 3.—It snowed some, and it blew here a little Saturday. Sunday was fair, with the temperature above zero. No storm is raging in this portion of upper Michigan. Train service is not interrupted.

Bay City, Mich., Feb. 3.—Stalled in the snow, piled to the tops of the coaches, Michigan Central passenger train No. 75, which left this city Saturday, was held in the grasp of the storm on the plains a few miles north of Mt. Forest for over fifteen hours.

Members of the crew accompanied some of the passengers to farm houses and obtained provisions for the forty or more passengers on the train. They breakfasted in the coaches, and the train was released Sunday by a crew sent from this city.

TWO ARE DEAD.

Many Injured by Grand Trunk Train Tipping Over.

Adrian, Mich., Feb. 3.—The Detroit accommodation on the Wabash, due in here at 7:47 and running late, was wrecked two and a half miles east of here shortly before 10 o'clock last night. Two persons were killed and over two score were injured. The dead:

MRS. JOHN SMITH, Milwaukee.

MRS. FRANCES BARBO, Budapest, Hungary.

The injured: William Boyd, New York; Mrs. Elizabeth Cretes, Marion, Ind.; Miss Maude Shirt, Detroit; Edgar Davis, Detroit; H. Schwetzborg, Detroit; Allen See, Binghamton, N. Y.; Wilson Skoss, New York; F. J. Gellen, East Orange, N. J.; W. Stanter, East Orange, N. J.; F. A. LaDuke, Providence, R. I.; H. T. Croffard, New York; Anna Neogebane, Kirksville, Mo.; E. L. Layrop, Ft. Wayne, Ind.; William Schultz, Champaign, Ill.; L. J. Marshall, Adrian; E. Preston, Piperville, Ont.; John Smith, Milwaukee; Frank Kaiser, New York; Charles Donnell, North Hampton, Mass.; G. Fuller, New York; William Erwin, New York; Charles Wright, Brooklyn; Miss Schlegman, Toledo; L. D. Johnson, Adrian; A. M. Balbridge, Omaha, Neb.; A. G. Wainwright, St. Louis, Mo.; Joseph Johnski, East Chicago, Ind.; Joseph Bogoli, East Chicago, Ind.; Mrs. A. J. McKay, Detroit; Mrs. Metz, Detroit.

The cause of the wreck is not known, but it is supposed to have been caused by a broken flange, due to bucking heavy snow drifts.

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 3.—Valentine Arnold, the thirteen-year-old lad who ran away with something over $200 in cash belonging to Louis A. Rabaut & Co., wholesale toy merchants, 208 Jefferson avenue, was arrested in Ann Arbor, and Truant Officer Max Grossman was sent after him. The boy admitted he had traveled all over the country until his money was gone. It was while spend Sunday at the home of his relatives, Fry brothers, in Ann Arbor, that the officers took him in charge. He was held at Central station on a charge of larceny.

MICHIGAN BRIEFS.

Dead from cold, the body of Samuel Trixler was found in a small hut a few miles north of Newport. Trixler was a civil war veteran.

Edward Hodges is lodged in jail at Flint to serve a term of sixty days for cruelty to a horse, which he recently left standing in the street at Clio for a whole day without food or water.

Eight Eaton county publishers met at Auditor General Bradley's office in Lansing and organized the Eaton County Publishers' association. F. N. Green of the Olivet Optic was made temporary president and M. H. Dafoe of the Charlotte Republican secretary. Meetings will be held quarterly.

John Bouerle, jr., of Maybee, is dead from typhoid fever. He was eighteen years old. About eight weeks ago, the mother died from the same disease. To add to the sorrow of the father, he was the only one of the family able to attend the funeral of the son, one sister and one brother of the deceased being still weak from the fever.

During a fierce blizzard, the First Baptist church at Benton Harbor, one of the finest edifices of that denomination in western Michigan, caught fire and was totally destroyed, causing a loss of $25,000. The firemen were unable to fight the blaze because of the high wind. The men suffered greatly from the intense cold.

Rev. Myron B. Carpenter, seventy-six years old, of Lansing, is dead of paralysis. He was a teacher in his younger days, but entered the ministry of the Universal church about forty years ago. He was pastor of several churches. In 1870, he accepted a position in the auditor general's office, where he remained for twenty years. Subsequently, he was an alderman of Lansing and city assessor.

Margaret's Alphabet.

Little Margaret was having difficulty with the alphabet, which was being taught her in the good old way. The letter H was a desperate pitfall. H she could not remember, so her mother said, "See, Margaret, it looks like a gate." That was an inspiration. Now Margaret is in clover. She never forgets, but this is what she says:

A, b, c, d, e, f, g, gate, i, etc. Her mother sees still harder work ahead in making the little maid forget.—Washington Star.

He Was Poetical Even if Useless and Dishonest.

In one way Persia reminds one kindly of England, for there are such things as difficulties with servants even in Teheran. The author dismissed one of his servants, who, as he had been a tailor, was incompetent to do anything but sew on buttons. The man protested, "What will become of me now that I have been eating your salt for such a long time and am driven out into the streets?" He was reminded that he had only been employed for a fortnight. He answered that he felt it had been for years. He was told that he was no good, but his volubility only increased. "How can I be no good after having stayed with you? Can you forget what Sa'di said: 'A piece of clay having fallen into the Hammam from my beloved's hand into mine, I said to it, Art thou musk or ambergris that I am drunk with thy perfume, which catches at the heart?' It answered: 'I was but a worthless piece of clay, but I was in company with a rose for a moment. This companionship transformed me or else I should still be the same piece of clay that I was.'"

One can pity the state of an English mistress confronted with such an argument. The author kept his servant another week, and he remarks disconsolately that in that time he discovered that if the tailor was a poet he was also a thief.—London Globe.

ADVERTISING.

"Advertising is today the mightiest factor in the business world," writes Truman A. De Weese in System, the Magazine of Business. "It is an evolution of modern industrial competition. It is a business builder, with a potency that goes beyond human desire. It is something more than a 'drummer' knocking at the door of the consumer, something more than mere salesmanship on paper.

"Advertising is a positive creative force in business. It builds factories, skyscrapers and railroads. It makes two blades of grass grow in the business world where only one grew before. It multiplies human wants and intensifies desires. The result is that it forces man to greater consumption, hence stimulates his production to keep up with his buying desires.

"Before advertising was developed into a fine art and before it became a factor in the commercial world the business of the manufacturer and merchant was to supply the normal needs and desires of the human family; merchandising was bounded by man's necessities and by his meager knowledge of the luxuries which he deemed within his reach."

Wakeful?

There are three different manifestations of sleeplessness.

First, hardly to sleep a wink all night; second, to lie awake a long time before falling asleep; third, to fall asleep soon, waking up after several hours and then find it hard to sleep again.

They mean that somewhere in the nerve fibres, somewhere in the brain cells, somewhere in the blood vessels that carry blood to the brain, something is radically wrong, and must be righted, or the end may be worse than death.

To right it, take Dr. Miles' Nervine.

They indicate diseases which may lead to Epilepsy, Fits, St. Vitus' Dance, Nervous Prostration, Paralysis, Insanity.

"My husband had been sick for weeks, could not sit up to have his bed made. With all the medical help we could get he continued to grow worse. He could neither sleep or eat. Our baby girl was sent away, and all callers barred, because he could not stand a bit of talking. I read of a case of nervous prostration cured by Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine. We began giving it to him, and in a few days he was able to be dressed. From that time he steadily improved. Nervine saved his life."—MRS. A. O. HASKIN, Freeville, N. Y.

Sour Stomach

No appetite, loss of strength, nervousness, headache, constipation, and breath, general debility, sour risings, and catarrh of the stomach are all due to indigestion. Kodol relieves indigestion. This new discovery represents the natural juices of digestion as they exist in a healthy stomach, combined with the greatest known tonic and reconstructive properties. Kodol for dyspepsia does not only relieve indigestion and dyspepsia, but this famous remedy helps all stomach troubles by cleansing, purifying, invigorating and strengthening the mucous membrane lining the stomach.

Mr. S. S. Sox of Ravenswood, W. Va., says: "I was troubled with sour stomach for three years. Kodol cured me and we are now using it in our family for baby."

MICHIGAN BRIEFS.

James Westfall, a well known contractor and builder, of Niles, is dead, aged sixty-four. He leaves a widow and one son.

Mrs. Mary Conlon of Marine City, pleaded guilty to keeping her saloon open on Sunday. She is the first of seventeen arrested in the "lid" crusade to admit guilt.

George Stanard, a resident of Pottersville for many years, stepped out of the way of one Grand Trunk train before another and was instantly killed.

Charles Smith, aged thirty-five, a Northfield farmer, was stricken with paralysis and fell from his sleigh. He was found unconscious in the road and died about an hour later.

George Campbell of Owosso was crushed between two cars at Milan and his right arm, breastbone and collarbone broken. He was taken to the University hospital in Ann Arbor.

The Monroe council raised the city clerk's salary to $840 per annum, police chief to $55 and policemen to $50 per month, the raises becoming operative at the expiration of the terms of the present incumbents.

With the hands of a highwayman around her throat, Miss Olive Congdon, stenographer in the Eastern Michigan asylum of Pontiac yielded her purse. The man returned it on finding only a few odd pieces of change in it.

An Anti-Saloon league will employ a number of students of Albion college for the temperance crusade to be conducted in many counties of the state, and the students will spend the summer in making stump speeches. They are now getting material for the talks.

Asks $150,000 of Glazier.

Lansing, Mich., Feb. 6.—Attorney-General Bird has made demand on Frank P. Glazier that he pay forthwith to the state the amount of his bond, $150,000. This is asked as security against any loss to the state through the failure of the Chelsea bank. In event of Glazier's refusal to pay this sum, Bird will take steps in the courts to enforce it.

Found Dead on Straw Stack.

Monroe, Mich., Feb. 6.—Ben Roberts, son of a well-known farmer living north of this city, who had been missing from home since Sunday night, was found dead on top of a strawstack near the barn. It is supposed he climbed up to throw straw down to the cattle and was affected with heart trouble and froze to death.

Elected to Succeed Bates.

Owosso, Mich., Feb. 6.—Col. James S. Parker, of Flint, has been elected to succeed Robert J. Bates as head of the Third Infantry, Michigan National Guard.

ELABORATE FUNERAL

Will Be Carried Out When King and Prince Are Buried.

CEREMONY BEGINS AT 10 A. M.

Cortege Escorting Remains Will Be Made Up of Dignitaries of Both State and Church—Bodies to Lie in State Three Days.

Lisbon, Feb. 6.—The funeral of the late King Carlos and Crown Prince Luiz on Saturday will be attended with ceremonies of impressive dignity and with the usual display of all mourning pageantry which attends the obsequies of Portuguese monarchs. The ceremonies will begin at 10 o'clock in the morning.

From the chapel at the Necessidades palace, where the bodies have reposed, servants of the house of Braganza, in the presence of the high officers of the palace and of state, the special ambassadors and representatives of foreign sovereigns, and states, will carry the coffins from their resting place to the funeral carriages. In front of the coffins will march the high church dignitaries carrying upraised crosses; the royal, civil and military households and the ministers, peers and deputies. Following the coffins will walk the queen mother and her son, King Manuel, after whom will come the ambassadors.

From the Necessidades palace to the church of San Vincente de Fora, where the services will be held, the funeral cortege will move slowly through streets heavily guarded by troops. The distance is about two miles.

Band Will Lead Cortege.

A picket of municipal cavalry will precede the cortege. At its head a military band will march, playing dirges. The carriages of the civil governor and the ministers will follow and then will come the state carriages each drawn by eight horses covered with black trappings.

If the health of the king will permit, he will ride in the carriage following that of the majordomo. The imperial crown of the dead king with its covering of crepe and surrounded by flowers will rest in the following carriage, after which will come a carriage bearing the sword and helmet of King Carlos, which likewise will bear crepe and be decorated with floral tributes. The members of the Roman Catholic hierarchy will ride in the next carriage after which will be drawn the "carriage of respect" bearing wreaths and flowers sent as tributes to the memory of the dead king and his son.

The coffin of the king will be borne on the following carriage. A guard of honor will ride on either side, as will also be the case with the carriage bearing the coffin of the crown prince, which will come next. A body of troops composed of every branch of the army—cavalry, artillery and infantry—will march behind.

At the Church.

When the church of San Vincente de Fora has been reached the bodies will be received at the main entrance by the brotherhood of Misericordia, the archbishop and all the bishops of Portugal, with upraised crosses. Following the coffins the new king and the princes of the houses of Savoy, Hohenzollern and Bourbon will walk. The king will proceed to the tribune prepared for him and the queen mother, while the princes will occupy a tribune facing the royal box.

The funeral services will be conducted by the cardinal patriarch of Lisbon. Before granting absolution a short allocation in praise of Don Carlos and Crown Prince Luiz will be delivered by him.

After the bodies have lain in state for three days in the church, the coffins will be carried through the cloisters to the royal pantheon where rest the remains of the princes of the illustrious house of Braganza. The queen mother and King Manuel will follow the bodies to their last resting place. The remains will be placed in niches prepared for them. The firing of guns will announce to the people that the solemn ceremonies are at an end.

Train Kills Telegrapher.

Jackson, Mich., Feb. 6.—Charles G. Schlimner, aged fifty, a telegrafer employed at the east end of the junction yards, was killed by Detroit-bound passenger train No. 6, on the Michigan Central railroad. Schlimner was on the way to his post on a railway velocipede, and due to the blizzard which was raging is thought not to have heard the train which was behind him. His skull was crushed. He leaves a widow and three children.

ANOTHER BIG STORM.

Michigan Again In Throes of Terrific Blizzard.

TRAINS ARE MUCH IMPEDED.

Some of Them Stalled For Many Hours In Snow—North and South Roads Suffered Most—Cadillac Schools and Factories Close.

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 6.—Michigan has again experienced the grasp of a blizzard which has tied up transportation lines, cut off rural mail delivery and in some cases closed schools and factories. The northern and western part of the state seem to have been most seriously affected and many divisions, particularly on north and south railroads, were put out of commission entirely. On all roads trains were from two to ten hours late.

Vassar, Mich., Feb. 6.—Another storm started in here at 6 a. m. Wednesday and continued through the day. All the surrounding cuts on the railroads were filled with snow. Rural carriers attempted to cover their routes with two teams attached to their rigs, but were forced to give up.

On the Caro branch of the Michigan Central but one train was run, the regular schedule being canceled. Near Caro the only two engines on the branch collided and one was completely demolished, while the other was disabled. No one was injured.

A train on the road from Owenville to Caro has been stalled four days. Passenger train No. 22, running east on the P. M., was stalled here Wednesday morning and after backing in here got an aditional engine and proceeded.

On the Michigan Central No. 208, the Wolverine flyer from Bay City to Detroit and the east, arrived on time here at 12:41, but it became stalled in a drift near Millington. After an afternoon of work in clearing the track the train went on its way early in the evening. No. 203, Detroit to Mackinaw, was also stalled at Millington. No mail was received here during the day.

Marshall, Mich., Feb. 6.—Snow and sleet so covered the third rail of the Battle Creek-Jackson interurban tracks that cars could not get current through the shoe, so that traffic had to be abandoned Wednesday. Trains are also being stalled.

Cadillac, Mich., Feb. 6.—Mills and schools were closed Wednesday for the first time on account of the biggest storm in the history of Cadillac. There was only one train in here and that on the G., R. & I., running six hours late.

The train left here to become stalled in a snowdrift filling a cut six miles out, and is still there. The passengers provided themselves with provisisons, expecting such an emergency.

The Ann Arbor railroad canceled its two morning trains. On the Lake City division of the G., R. & I three engines left here with two coaches, but the train became buried in a drift and had to back in here.

No attempt is being made at rural free mail delivery.

Muskegon, Mich., Feb. 6.—Traffic conditions on the Pere Marquette out of Muskegon caused practically suspension of railroad business Wednesday.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Feb. 6.—The upper lake district has been swept by a blizzard and the snow is drifted in some places ten feet deep. Trolley lines and railways are tied up and it may be days before they recover from the storm. The smaller towns are completely isolated, and livestock is suffering.

Benton Harbor, Mich., Feb. 6.—A fierce rain and sleet storm swept this section Wednesday. Railroads and interurbans are operating under most trying conditions.

Traverse City, Mich., Feb. 6.—Railroad service was practically paralyzed here Wednesday, the first train from the south arriving at 7 o'clock last night and bringing the only mail received here all day.

Edmore, Mich., Feb. 6.—The train through this point west to Howard City was stalled in the drift about a mile and a half west of here early Wednesday morning. It remained so all day, but was dug out by the snow plow Wednesday night and proceeded on its way.

On the Big Rapids-Ionia division of the P. M. no trains were run in either direction until 6 p. m.

Bay City, Mich., Feb. 6.—The snow storm which started Wednesday morning has practically isolated Bay City. Trains from every direction are hours behind time. All of the freight trains have been abandoned and the railroad companies are bending all their efforts to get passenger trains through.

Interurban traffic practically suspended Wednesday afternoon and local street car service was kept up under greatest difficulty.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Feb. 6.—Traffic in the western part of the state is practically at a standstill again. The "worst storm of the year" now extends over this district. Four trains are reported stalled, one at Holland, one at Big Rapids and two at Muskegon.

The local street car and interurban lines are out of service.

Marquette, Mich., Feb. 6.—Railroad traffic is much demoralized in the upper peninsula, the result of a snow and sleet storm of widespread proportions. The weather is not cold and no particular discomfort has been occasioned.

Flint, Mich., Feb. 6.—Every snow plow in the service of the Pere Marquette was reported tied up by snow drifts in the Thumb district Wednesday night and towns through that country are completely isolated except for partial wire service.

The train known as the Huckleberry, carrying a consignment of flour, is still stalled on the main line of the Flint river division. It has been there since Saturday. The passengers were taken to Otter Lake in sleighs and the crew followed.

Big Rapids, Mich., Feb. 6.—The severest storm of wind and snow in years set in here soon after midnight when the mercury was about zero and huge drifts of snow are everywhere. The first passenger train from the north over the Grand Rapids & Indiana in twenty hours reached here at 4 o'clock Wednesday afternoon. It became stalled two miles north of the city. It took several hours' work to dig out the train. In the meantime food was prepared and sent out in sleighs to the forty imprisoned and hungry passengers and crew.

Three freight trains were snowed in between here and Walton Junction.

Slot Machines Smashed.

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 6.—Circuit Court Judge Rohnert presided over a slot machine smashing bee in the basement of the county building. Twenty-nine machines, valued at over $3,000, were destroyed. Former County Detective John Troy, who captured all of them during the past few months, swung a big sledge hammer, while the building carpenter gave able assistance with an ordinary ax. The work of destruction took over an hour. Mr. Troy removed over $100 in nickles from the machines, which money he turned over to the county treasurer.

Schaefer Located in Havana.

Kalamazoo, Mich., Feb. 6.—Joseph F. Schaefer, who mysteriously disappeared from Kalamazoo several weeks ago, leaving his wife and reported by her to have committed suicide, has been located in Havana, Cuba. He announces his intention to return and bring action against Proprietor Gibbs of the Eclipse Clothing company, for making the statement that he was short in his accounts.

Depot Burns.

Ionia, Mich., Feb. 6.—The Pere Marquette railway passenger depot, a brick structure, has been destroyed by fire, only a portion of the walls now standing. A terrific snow and windstorm prevailed. The hour was early, and nobody was in the station. The loss is estimated to be $10,000.

Caid MacLean to Be Released.

Tangier, Feb. 6.—Caid Sir Harry MacLean, who has been in the hands of the bandit Raisuli for the past seven months, is now within four hours' ride of Tangier and probably will be released today. The British government has finally succeeded in bringing their negotiations with Raisuli to a close and in return for the release of Caid MacLean will pay $100,000 to Raisuli and guarantee him protection and immunity.

Ward Case Adjourned.

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 6.—By the decision of Judge Connolly the trial of Representative Charles E. Ward, charged with manslaughter in connection with the death of Edith Presley, was postponed until the end of the constitutional convention when William C. Manchester, chief counsel, will be free. Attorney James Murtha appeared in court for Ward and asked for adjournment.

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the eustachian tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever, nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give one hundred dollars for any case of deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

Special announcement regarding the National pure food and drug law.

We are pleased to announce that Foley's honey and tar for coughs, colds and lung troubles is not affected by the National Pure Food and drug law as it contains no opiates or other harmful drugs and we recommend it as a safe remedy for children and adults. Sold by all druggists in Tecumseh.

There are countless roads on all sides to the grave.

Kodol for dyspepsia and indigestion is the result of a scientific combination of natural digestants with vegetable acids and contains the same juices found in a healthy stomach. It is the best remedy known today for dyspepsia, indigestion and all troubles arising from a disordered stomach. Take Kodol today. It is pleasant, prompt and thorough. Sold by B. J. Pulver.

Do not make unjust gains, they are equal to a loss.

Foley's honey and tar cures the most obstinate coughs and expels the cold from the system as it is mildly laxative. It is guaranteed. The genuine is in a yellow package. Sold by all druggists in Tecumseh.

The early riser is healthy, cheerful and industrious.

Do you have backache occasionally or "stitches" in the side and sometimes do you feel all tired out, without ambition and without energy? If so, your kidneys are out of order. The best swimmer is the first to drown himself.

The editor of the Memphis, Tenn., Times writes: "In my opinion of Foley's honey and tar is the best remedy for coughs, colds, lung trouble, and to my own personal knowledge Foley's honey and tar has accomplished many permanent cures that have been little short of marvellous." Refuse any but the genuine in a yellow package. For sale by all druggists in Tecumseh.

Is it not sheer madness to live poor to die rich.

If a cough once gets into your system it acts on every muscle and fibre of the body and makes you ache all over. It especially affects the intestines and makes you constipated, so in order to get rid of a cold thoroughly and without delay you should not take anything that will tend to constipate. Kennedy's laxative cough syrup acts upon the bowels and thereby drives the cold out of the system. It contains no opiates—it is pleasant to take and is highly recommended for children. Sold by B. J. Pulver.

Neighborhood Favorite.

Mrs. E. C. Charles of Harbor, Me., speaking of Electric Bitters says: "It is a neighborhood favorite here with us." It deserves to be a favorite everywhere. It gives quick relief in dyspepsia, liver complaint, kidney derangement, malnutrition, nervousness and general debility. Its action on the blood as a purifier makes it especially useful as a spring medicine. This grand alterative tonic is sold under guarantee by C. A. Wright & Son. 50c.

There is nothing ill said that is not ill taken.

Many ills come from impure blood. Can't have pure blood with faulty digestion, lazy liver and sluggish bowels. Burdock Blood Bitters strengthens stomach, bowels and liver, and purifies the blood.

Sankey's Double Header

By FRANK H. SPEARMAN

Copyright, 1900, by Frank H. Spearman

All that day and most of the night Neighbor worked twenty men on San-key's device. By Sunday morning it was in such shape that we began to take heart.

The cabs were buried in white.

"If she don't get through she'll get back again, and that's what most of 'em don't do," growled Neighbor as he and Sankey showed the new ram to the engineers.

They had taken the 566, Georgie Sinclair's engine, for one head and Burns' 497 for the other. Behind these were Kennedy, with the 314, and Cameron, with the 296. The engines were set in pairs, headed each way and buckled up like pack mules. Over the pilots and stacks of the head engines rose the tremendous plows which were to tackle the toughest drifts ever recorded, before or since, on the West End. The ram was designed to work both ways. Under the coal each tender was loaded with pig iron.

The beleaguered passengers on No. 1, sidetracked in the yards, watched the preparations Sankey was making to clear the line. Every amateur on the train had his camera snapping at the ram. The town, gathered in a single mob, looked silently on and listened to the frosty notes of the skyscrapers as they went through their preliminary maneuvers. Just as the final word was given by Sankey, in charge, the sun burst rough the fleecy cloud and a wild cheer followed the ram out of the western yard. It was good luck to see the sun again.

Little Neeta up on the hill must have seen them as they pulled out. Surely she heard the choppy, ice bitten screech of the 566. That was never forgotten, whether the service was special or regular. Besides, the head cab of the ram carried this time not only Georgie Sinclair, but her father as well. Sankey could handle a slice bar as well as a punch and rode on the head engine, where, if anywhere, the big chances covered. What he was not capable of in the train service we never knew, because he was stronger than any emergency that ever confronted him.

Bucking snow is principally brute force. There is little coaxing. Just west of the bluffs, like code signals between a fleet of cruisers, there was a volley of sharp tooting, and in a minute the four ponderous engines, two of them in the back motion, fires white and throats bursting, steamed wildly into the canyon.

Six hundred feet from the first cut Sinclair's whistle signaled again. Burns and Cameron and Kennedy answered, and then, literally turning the monster ram loose against the dazzling mountain, the crews settled themselves for the shock.

At such a moment there is nothing to be done. If anything goes wrong, eternity is too close to consider. There come a muffled drumming on the steam chests, a stagger and a terrific impact and then the recoil, like the stroke of a trip hammer. The snow shoots into the air fifty feet, and the wind carries a cloud of fleecy confusion over the ram and out of the cut. The cabs were buried in white, and the great steel frames of the engines sprung like knitting needles under the frightful blow.

Pausing for hardly a breath, the signaling again began, then the backing, up and up and up the line, and again the massive machines were hurled screaming into the cut.

"You're getting there, Georgie!" exclaimed Sankey when the rolling and lurching had stopped. No one else could tell a thing about it, for it was snow and snow and snow, above and behind and ahead and beneath. Sinclair coughed the flakes out of his eyes and nose and mouth, like a baffled collie. He looked doubtful of the claim until the mist had blown clear and the quivering monsters were again recalled for a dash. Then it was plain that Sankey's instinct was right. They were gaining.

Again they went in, lifting a very avalanche over the stacks, packing the banks of the cut with walls hard as ice. Again as the drivers stuck they raced in a frenzy, and into the shriek of the wind went the unearthly scrape of the overloaded safeties.

Slowly and sullenly the machines were backed again.

"She's doing the work, Georgie!" cried Sankey. "For that kind of a cut she's as good as a rotary. Look everything over now while I go back and see how the boys are standing it. Then we'll give her one more and give it the hardest kind."

And they did give her one more, and another. Men at Santiago put up no stouter fight than they made that Sunday morning in the canyon of the Blackwood. Once and twice more they went in, and the second time the bumping drummed more deeply. The drivers held, pushed, panted and gained against the white wall, heaved and stumbled ahead, and, with a yell from Sinclair and Sankey and the fireman, the double header shot her nose into the clear over the Blackwood gorge.

As engine after engine flew past the divided walls each cab took up the cry. It was the wildest shout that ever crowned victory.

Through they went and halfway across the bridge before they could check their monster catapult. Then at a half full they shot it back at the cut. It worked as well one way as the other.

"The thing is done," declared Sankey. Then they got into position up the line for a final shoot to clean the eastern cut and to get the head for a dash across the bridge into the west end of the canyon, where lay another mountain of snow to split.

"Look the machines over close, boys," said Sankey to the engineers. "If nothing's sprung we'll take a full head across the gorge—the bridge will carry anything—and buck the west cut. Then after we get No. 1 through this afternoon Neighbor can get his baby cabs in here and keep 'em chasing all night. But it's done snowing," he added, looking into the leaden sky.

He had everything figured out for the master mechanic—the shrewd, kindly old man. There's no man on earth like a good Indian and, for that matter, none like a bad one. Sankey knew by a military instinct just what had to be done and how to do it. If he had lived he was to have been assistant superintendent. That was the word which leaked from headquarters after he got killed.

And, with a volley of jokes between the cabs and a laughing and a yelling between toots, down went Sankey's double header again into the Blackwood gorge.

At the same moment, by an awful misunderstanding of orders, down came the big rotary from the West End with a dozen cars of coal behind it. Mile after mile it had wormed east toward Sankey's ram, burrowed through the western cut of the Blackwood, crashed through the drift Sankey was aiming for and then whirled out into the open, dead against him, at forty miles an hour. Each train, in order to make the grade and the blockade, was straining the cylinders.

Through the swirling snow which half hid the bridge and swept between the rushing plows Sinclair saw then coming. He yelled. Sankey saw them a fraction of a second later, and, while Sinclair struggled with the throttle and the air, Sankey gave the alarm through the whistle to the poor fellows in the blind pockets behind. But the track was at the worst. Where there was no snow there were whiskers. Oil itself couldn't have been worse to stop on. It was the old and deadly peril of fighting blockades from both ends on a single track.

The great rams of steel and fire had done their work, and, with their common enemy overcome, they dashed at each other, frenzied, across the Blackwood gorge.

The fireman at the first cry shot out the side. Sankey yelled at Sinclair to jump, but Georgie shook his head. He never would jump. Without hesitating an instant, Sankey caught him in his arms, tore him from the levers, planted a mighty foot and hurled Sinclair like a block of coal through the gangway out into the gorge. The other cabs were already emptied, but the instant's delay in front cost Sankey's life. Before he could turn the rotary crashed into the 566. They reared like mountain lions and pitched headlong into the gorge. Sankey went under them.

He could have saved himself. He chose to save Georgie. There wasn't time to do both. He had to choose, and he chose instinctively. Did he, maybe, think in that flash of Neeta and of whom she needed most, of a young and a stalwart protector better than an old and a failing one? I do not know. I know only what he did.

Every one who jumped got clear. Sinclair lit in twenty feet of snow, and they pulled him out with a rope. He wasn't scratched. Even the bridge was not badly strained. No. 1 pulled over it next day. Sankey was right—there was no more snow, not enough to hide the dead engines on the rocks. The line was open.

There never was a funeral in McCloud like Sankey's. George Sinclair and Neeta followed together, and of mourners there were as many as there were people. Every engine on the division carried black for thirty days.

His contrivance for fighting snow has never yet been beaten on the high line. It is perilous to go against a drift behind it. Something has to give.

But it gets there, as Sankey got there, always and in time of blockade and desperation on the West End they still send out Sankey's double header, though Sankey—so the conductors tell the children, traveling east or traveling west—Sankey isn't running any more.

AN ILL FATED SHIP.

Mystery and Tragedy That Encompassed the Great Eastern.

There was a mystery about that ill fated ship. Nothing went right with her. She stuck at the launch, and it cost an extra $350,000 over and above the sum set aside for the purpose to get her into the water. On her trial trip her boilers burst, killing some of the stokers. Then she ran aground and carried on so outrageously that her crew thought her surely bewitched. She had started badly. While she was building a pay clerk sent by one of the contractors with $6,500 in wages for the men disappeared. It was not unnaturally assumed that he had bolted with the money. His wife and family were left unprovided for, with the stigma of his supposed crime upon them.

Thirty years after her launch the Great Eastern went into the cemetery at Birkenhead to be broken up. While she was being taken to pieces the ship breakers discovered between her inner and outer casings of steel the skeleton of a man. Papers which had fallen from his clothes enabled his identity to be traced. It was the skeleton of the pay clerk who thirty years before had disappeared. There was no money; that was never recovered.

The supposition is that the poor fellow on going on to the ship was pounced upon by workmen who knew that he had the money with him; that they stunned him and, having a small place in the side of the vessel to complete, crammed his body in and built him up in it. No reward would have induced a sailor to sail in that vessel had he known of the terrible secret sealed up in her walls.—Chicago News.

Odd Epitaph.

A traveler in Ireland recently saw upon an old tombstone over there this epitaph:

CHURCH AFFAIRS

WORK BEING DONE IN OUR CHURCHES.

What is accomplished through the Social Life.

UNIVERSALIST CHURCH.

Mrs. Ethel Mathias is visiting her sister, Mrs. McIntosh, in Detroit.

Annie Ferguson was quite ill the past week but is now able to be out.

Mr. and Mrs. John VanVleet have moved to their farm west of Ridgeway to keep up the home for their bereaved son and family.

Under the new system of out lines the interest is growing in the Bible study class which meets at Miss McNeil's Thursday evenings. Remember to bring notebooks and pencils.

Rev. M. B. Carpenter of Lansing, one of the pioneers of our faith, passed to his reward last week. He was a brother of Rev. Olivia Woodman of Paw Paw, lecturer for the national Grange.

The annual Valentine party will be given to the pupils and friends of our Sunday school next Friday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Ferguson. Mrs. Geo. Nisle and children are expected here at that time.

The many friends of Mrs. Caroline Mabee, who has been treating with an Adrian oculist the past two months, will be glad to learn that she has entirely recovered. She is now visiting her son at Newaygo and will return about April 1.

Rev. Louisa Haight is pleasantly settled over a Unitarian parish at Perry, Ia., about 35 miles north of DesMoines. It is a beautiful city and noted for its handsome buildings. Her friend, Mrs. Phillips of Charlotte, well known to our club ladies, is with her.

METHODIST CHURCH.

We mourn the loss of a valued member of our church Mrs. J. B. Coller, whose death occurred last Monday.

The regular monthly business meeting and social of the Epworth League was held in the church parlors Tuesday evening. After the business session a program was given followed by a guessing game. Ice cream and wafers were served.

The individual cup was presented at the Methodist church last Sunday in memory of Dr. Laman Barnes. Dr. Barnes' favorite hymn was rendered. The service consisted of four trays with covers, each tray holding about 50 of the individual cups, also the two silver bread trays.

Four were taken into the membership of the church last Sunday by letter. They were Mrs. Washburn and two children and Bessie Saxton. Walter Brotherton was taken on probation and Miss Margaret Rubadou baptized. Others have signified their intention of coming in the church, but on account of the severe weather have been obliged to wait.

Fern Hanford and Harriett Hurrey went to Adrian yesterday to attend a meeting of the Queen Esther Circle. Miss Hurrey, secretary of the young peoples work of the W. H. M. S. of the Ann Arbor district presented the conference banner to the Adrian girls for the largest increase in membership for the year. They were entertained by Mrs. D. H. Ramsdell.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

Plan on the men's banquet the 21st. Mr. Wang will be principal speaker.

The primary and junior departments will be given a sleighride tomorrow at 5:30. Meet at church.

The messenger boys are playing basket ball at their regular meetings for 15 minutes each night and enjoy it hugely.

The sleighride which the young people had planned for last night had to be postponed on account of bad roads until Tuesday night.

The Missionary Circle met with Mr. and Mrs. Slayton Friday night. Papers were read by Mrs. Slayton and Miss Widney and an interesting talk by Miss McNair. The subject was Alaska.

BAPTIST CHURCH.

Miss Lulu Stahler has been quite sick this week with the grip.

Mrs. Carrie Bryan has been confined to the house this week on account of sickness.

Rev. Sweet of Adrian, was over again Wednesday evening and a most interesting meeting was held.

At a recent business meeting of the B. Y. P. U. they voted to pay $75 towards church expenses besides pledging something for state work.

Rev. Mr. Sweet, pastor of the First Baptist church of Adrian, and Prof. Lagerquist will be here Wednesday and Friday evenings of next week to assist in the special services.

Rev. Kamm has been confined to the house the past week with grip. The pulpit was occupied Sunday morning by Jay Moree, who read a sermon. There was no evening service.

FRIENDS CHURCH.

Mrs. Jane Satterthwaite and Mrs. Truman Crossman are both ill with severe colds.

By the death of Mrs Melissa Herring the Home Department of the Sunday school loses one of its most faithful members.

Miss Beth Satterthwaite has been appointed to assist Miss Merle Kenyon in the cradle roll department of the Sunday school.

Rev. Wollam and wife, Mrs. Frank Clark, Miss Mary Swan, Messrs. Richard Harkness, Vincent Wood, Frank Clark and Benjamin Swan attended the quarterly meeting at Adrian last Saturday.

EPISCOPAL CHURCH.

Mrs. Matthew Snell and baby of Detroit, are visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Tom Wilson.

Several of the Sunday school scholars have brought new pupils to the school and received silver crosses.

Rev. Kemp will give a large picture as a reward for each pupil who attends the school regularly from now until Easter.

The Altar Guild social at the home of Miss Nellie Mingay Monday evening was well attended and a good time was enjoyed by all.

The third annual conference of the Lenawee county Y. M. C. A. was held in Morenci Feb. 1 and 2 with delegates present from 8 towns in the county, Percy Bowen of Tecumseh, acting as president of the convention. During the Saturday meeting papers were delived by Forest Moore of Palmyra, Raymond Hervey of Blissfield, Albert Miller and Irving Werner of Morenci, Chester Kemp of Clinton, Dale Hodges and Percy Bowen.

At the banquet Rockwell Gust of Morenci, acted as toastmaster, Earl McNeil of Tecumseh, County Secretary Hurst, E. C. Brown of Morenci, C. L. Rowe of Jackson, A. E. Roberts of Boston and Mr. Boardman of New York, responding. Two meetings for boys was held Sunday and the convention closed Sunday night with a meeting of 500 people in Stair auditorium. Special music was furnished by Newell's orchestra and a choir of men, a solo being rendered by Harold Granger of Morenci. Convention speakers addressed the meeting.

The regular services at the Friends church Sunday both morning and evening. Bible school immediately following the morning service. C. E at 6 o'clock. Everyone welcome.

Veteran Volunteer Roll.

Be it enacted, etc., That upon the witten application of the Secretary of the Interior and subject to the conditions and requirements hereinafter contained, the name of each surviving volunteer soldier in the United States Volunteer Army of the civil war shall be entered upon a roll to be known as "the veteran volunteer roll:" Provided, however, That each such soldier shall have served with credit as an enlisted man not less than eighteen months in the field with troops in said Volunteer Army between April 20, 1861 and July 15, 1866. He shall have been honorably discharged from service. Said application shall be accompanied with proof of the identity of the applicant as the person whose name appears upon the military organization to which he claimed to belong, and such application to be placed upon such roll and the identity shall be sworn to in the manner and form provided by law of other applications for pensions. In the event that such applicant has been wounded in the line of his duty and thereby disabled from serving for said term of eighteen months, or was discharged for disability contracted in the service, or was mustered out because of close of war, upon proof of such fact, if he be otherwise qualified, he shall be entitled to be entered upon such roll the same as though he had served for the full term hereinbefore provided for. Any soldier captured in battle or in the line of his duty and serving in Confederate prisons shall have his time of such service counted the same as if he had served in the field.

Sec. 2. That each of the class herein after described, when entered upon such roll, shall be paid, out of any money in the treasury of the United States appropriated for pensions, the sum of $1 per day from and after the date of his application for the benefits conferred by this act during his natural life.

Tuberculosis in Michigan.

According to statistics furnished by Dr. F. W. Shumway of the state board of health there occur annually 9,822 cases of tuberculosis in the state of of Michigan. Last year there were 2,412 deaths due to this disease, an annual mortality rate per 100,000 population of 97.6. Only 410 cases recovered. Thus tuberculosis claims yearly a number of victims more than four times as great as the loss of life in the Iroquois theatre fire in Chicago, an event regarded as one of the world's great catastrophes. So common has been tuberculosis in our midst that we have come to look upon it as inevitable and have accepted its ravages with resignation.

Modern medical science brings an entirely different conception. With the discovery that tuberculosis—the tubercle bacillus—lives within the bodies of man and certain animals and spreads by means of sputum, discharges, dust, food etc., the human race has come to know that the "White Plague" is not a necessary evil, but one that can be successfully fought and ultimately eradicated. The people must be taught the nature of the disease, the proper treatment of the infected individual and the protection of the noninfected.

There are seven different ways of conducting the Anti-Tuberculosis Campaign among the most important are:

Education of the public by literature, lectures and exhibits.

Legislation concerning the spitting nuisance.

Disinfection of houses in which tuberculosis has existed.

Outdoor life and fresh air treatment.

Inspection of schools, factories, etc., to prevent spread of infection.

Out of 212 institutions in Michigan, such as hospitals, county houses, etc., 33 have special wards, private rooms or tents, 24 give fresh air treatment and 16 have special means of treating the disease.

Plans are being made for a Michigan Anti Tuberculosis crusade. A state committee of 86 members has been appointed for the adequate representation at the International congress and for the formation of a State association. Dr. C. G. Jennings of Detroit, is chairman, Dr. A. S. Warthin of Ann Arbor, is secretary, committee contains Govenor, State officials, presidents of women's clubs, business men, etc. Seventy subcommittees have been formed throughout the state. Delegates from these will meet in Detroit Feb. 21, at 8 p. m.

The International congress will be held in Washington, D. C. during next September. Forty-six nations will be represented by their greatest men in medicine and will furnish exhibits illustrating their progress in the fight against tuberculosis. Suitable exhibits will be made by each state represented, illustrating its prevalence, etc., and Governor Warner has directed all State departments to aid in the preparation of the Michigan exhibit and many have already begun their work.

Upon communicating with Dr. Conklin this morning we are informed that a sub-committee in this town has not yet been formed and probably will not be until ater the state meeting in Detroit Feb. 21. It will undoubtedly be controlled by the Lenawee county medical society.

SEWER BIDS

Opened Tuesday Afternoon

CONTRACT

Awarded to A. P. Southworth, Adrian.

The sewer bids were opened last Tuesday afternoon and found to be lower on the whole than they were last fall. At a special meeting of the council last Wednesday evening the contract was awarded to A. P. Southworth of Adrian, whose figures are $35,338 24.

WHY

WHY WASN'T THE SEWER CONTRACT

Let to the Lowest Bidder?

Is it not "up to the Council" to explain to the taxpayers of Tecumseh why they awarded the sewer contract to a party who bid nineteen hundred dollars in excess of the lowest bid received. It has been rumored that a Michigan contractor was selected because he would be more easily amenable to Michigan law than a contractor from Ohio.

Is this the basis on which we wish a contractor selected? Is he more amenable to Michigan law than the Ohio firm of Sanitary Engineers who planned the sewer? Is he more amenable to Michigan law than the Ohio Inspector who will be responsible for the proper installation of the sewer?

Certainly the Council cannot claim that the party to whom the contract was awarded was more competent or responsible than Prosser & Wonn who submitted a bid $1900 lower, nor can they successfully contend that they are better equipped or possessed of greater experience than Townsend & Co., one of the largest and best firms in the middle west, who were more than $400 lower in price.

Is "Loyalty to Lenawee" worth $1900 more than "Loyalty to Tecumseh?"

Is "Push Adrian" worth $400 more than to "Push Tecumseh?"

Speak up, gentlemen of the Council.

THE VARIOUS BIDS IN ROTATION.

Kinney & Lasley	$39,909.50.
Gould & Wayback	$39 985.78.
M. Lewandowski	$38,186 33.
F. Porath & Sons	$38,945 60.
Hennessy & Bros.	$37,574.67.
J. O. Shoup & Co.	$37,124.95.
E. L. Schneider	$37,104 01.
J. N. Bick, Toledo	$35,886 22.
F. M. Benner	$35,453 00.
A. B. Southworth	$35 338.24.
Prosser & Wonn,	$33,451.20.
W. J. Townsend Construction Co.	$34,911.24.

Old Bids.

Gould & Waback	$54,304 63.
A. P. Southworth	$49,785.26.
Ford, Porath & Sons	$41,330 57.
F. M. Benner	$41,272 68.
E. L Snedicor	$40,332 35
Shomp & Bird,	$39,844 87.
W. S. Townsend	$37,407 82.

At the meeting of the council last night it was decided to award the contract of furnishing Tecumseh with a sewer system to A. P. Southworth of Adrian. His figures were not the lowest, but the council considered everything, including a pride in Lenawee county friendship for Adrian and gave Mr Southworth the contract.

Smiling Faces in Town.

There were many smiling faces in town the first of the week, the smile being caused by the Anthony Fence Co., when the stockholders received their annual dividend. During the year after paying 6 per cent. on the preferred stock, the stockholders of the common stock received 6 per cent. with a surplus of $15,000 left in the company's hands at the end of the year. During the year they have built 3 double looms that have developed greatly beyond their expectations both in quantity of product and economy of production. Certainly Tecumseh could not ask for a more prosperous manufacturing plant than the Anthony Fence Co. We wish them prosperity for another year.

No man is born without faults, but he lives best who has the fewest.

Love of our neighbor is the only door out of the dungeon of self.

Women and wrestlers have to put up with some men—'cause they can't put em down.

Mrs. J. B. Coller.

Mrs J B. Coller, wife of J. B. Coller, proprietor of the Coller House on West Chicago street, passed away Monday morning after only a few hours' illness. Mrs. Coller was as well as usual when she retired Saturday evening and at three o'clock Sunday morning she was stricken with purpura haemorrhagica in a malignant form. Sunday noon she lost consciousness and remained in an unconscious condition until the struggle was ended. Her demise has stricken her family and friends with grief.

Deceased was formerly Miss Ida Easterly and was born in Saline township 46 years ago. She spent her girlhood days in Ypsilanti. At the age of 20 years she was married to Jesse B. Coller of Macon, and their union was blessed by four sons, all of whom survive. The family resided in Macon until seven years ago, when they moved to Tecumseh and since that time Mr. and Mrs. Coller have conducted a rooming and boarding house, where Mrs. Coller has won countless friends with her sweet and sunny disposition.

She was a member of the Lady Maccabees and in this order her loss is keenly felt. Her husband and four sons, Leon, of Detroit; Will, Lester and Earl, of this place, are left to mourn with numerous relatives and friends. The home made desolate, the father and sons bereft of loving wife and mother, makes the death inexpressibly sad and the deep est sympathy of their friends here and in her old home is extended to the stricken family.

The funeral was held from the house at 2 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, Rev. Ward, pastor of the Methodist church, where for years the deceased had attended divine worship, conducted the services and paid a beautiful tribute of respect to departed worth. The Lady Maccabees attended in a body as a last mark of respect to one whom in life they knew but to love. The casket, containing all that was mortal of Ida Coller was completely wreathed with flowers which gave silent testimony of the affectionate regard in which she was held. The husband and four sons and nephew, Ernest Coller, acted as bearers. Burial at Brookside.

Those from away who attended her funeral were Mrs. Easterly and son, Leon Coller, wife and baby of Detroit, Mrs. Horace Hudson of Breckenridge, Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Coller, Mrs. Maurice Harrington and son of Macon, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Lewis of Jackson.

CARD OF THANKS

To the many kind friends who came to us during our bereavement and contributed all that human kindness could suggest to help and comfort us, we return our heartfelt thanks and while such devoted friendship cannot remove the sad memories that linger around the vacant chair, it throws the pure light of friendship into our desolate home. We wish to especially thank the Lady Maccabees, Odd Fellows and other friends for the many beautiful flowers.

MISS RUBY WALKER.

Miss Ruby Walker of Adrian, who teaches school at Ridgeway, suddenly lost her mind while in her school room Monday afternoon and now lies in a critical condition at the home of David Boyd her boarding place. Miss Walker left Adrian Sunday night on the train following the one wrecked at Holloway. The train was stopped on the scene of the wreck and she was bundled into a frigid depot where she remained until 3 o'clock in the morning when some citizen from Britton took her to his home for the remainder of the night.

Monday morning Miss Walker drove to her school in Ridgeway and it was there in the afternoon she was taken suddenly ill. Dr. Morden of Macon, is with her and says she is suffering with congestion of the brain. She has been gradually growing worse and now no longer recognizes anyone. Her mother Mrs. C. M. Walker of Adrian, is with her and her death is momentarily expected.

D. T. & I. in the Hands of a Receiver

Word comes from New York that an attachment for $200,000 against the Detroit, Toledo & Ironton Ry. of Michigan in favor of the receivers of the Knickerbocker Trust Co., of New York, was placed in the hands of the sheriff yesterday. The receivers of the trust company are Ernest Thalman, Geo. Rives and Henry C. Ide all of New York. The above amount was loaned by the Knickerbocker Trust Co. to the D. T. & I. on May 29, 1907 to be repaid six months after that date, but which was not paid.

The New York Journal of Commerce says the attachment was granted on the grounds that it is a foreign corporation. The papers were served on H. B. Holman & Co., bankers, who with Col. Eugene Zimmerman hold the controlling interest in the D. T. & I.—Toledo Blade.

Get leave to work in this world. 'Tis the best that life may offer.

Boys are not always eating, some times they are busily engaged in looking for something to eat.

OUR NATIONAL DANGER.

Time to cry a halt before a panic comes.

The business spirit is crushing out the sweeter element of home life. We are in danger of a great commercial decline because men, as a whole, think only of getting wealth.

There are thousands, both men and women, who do not take time to eat properly. They rush through life and as a result we have an age of indigestion, nervousness, irritability, sleepless nights and morose disposition. There is not much difference between downright suicide and the way some people disregard unmistakable signs of stomach trouble.

With the great advance in the knowledge of digestion and nutrition, resulting in the discovery of Mi-o-na tablets, there is no longer any excuse for one to have ill health from stomach weakness.

Mi-o-na strengthens the walls of the stomach, stimulates secretion of the digestive juices, regulates the liver and restores muscular contraction to the intestines and bowels, so no laxative is needed.

Sick headaches, palpitation, bad taste in the mouth, yellow skin, irritability, coated tongue and melancholy are a few of the many distressing results of indigestion. Mi-o-na never fails to dispel all these troubles. It is a scientific preparation guaranteed under the Pure Food Law by No. 1418.

C. A. Wright & Son sell Mi-o-na in 50 cent boxes and guarantee to refund the money if the remedy does not give complete satisfaction.

ROOSEVELT DENIES IT.

Declares He Has Not Used His Official Position to Further Taft's Campaign.

Washington, Feb. 10.—President Roosevelt has made answer to the recent public statements that he has made use of federal patronage to further the presidential interests of Secretary Taft. The answer is in the form of a letter addressed to William Dudley Foulke of Richmond, Ind., and includes a letter from Mr. Foulke to the president suggesting the need of such a statement.

The president begins by characterizing the charges as "false and malicious." He follows this with an analysis of all appointments sent by him to the senate for its action to show that in no case has the proximity of a presidential contest influenced his action.

Peace Conference at Wilmington.

Washington, Feb. 10.—Arrangements have been completed for the holding of an arbitration and peace conference at Wilmington, N. C., the first week in May. The congress will occur on the first anniversary of the North Carolina Peace society, organized immediately after and as a result of the great national peace congress held at New York last year. The purpose of the congress is to spread among the people accurate knowledge of the progressive proposals approved by the second Hague conference and to popularize the ideas which the American group of the inter parliamentary union desires to propose at the approaching inter parliamentary conference to be held at Berlin next August.

Believed They Were Murdered.

Corry, Pa., Feb. 10.—That Albert Damon and his aged sister, Mrs. Jane Satterlee, who were found dead in their apartments, were murdered, is not doubted by County Detective Watson, who made an examination of the premises. Damon's nose, arm and jaw were fractured, and his sister had a severe concussion on the back of the head. After the killing, Damon had been placed upright in a chair. The body of Mrs. Satterlee was found in bed, carefully covered with the bed clothing. Both were fully clad, and their bodies were in an advanced state of decomposition. The motive for the crime was not robbery, as money and valuable papers were still in Damon's pockets.

King Leopold's Mind Failing.

Brussels, Feb. 10.—There are indications that the government may have soon to deal with a difficult problem in regard to King Leopold. Its nature may be indicated by the remark made by a member of the cabinet in the lobby of the chamber of deputies. He said, "The king is no longer in a normal condition of mind." Signs of a mental breakdown of Leopold have been noticeable for several months.

NO LIQUOR IS SOLD.

Detroit and Bay City Saloons Forced to Close.

GRATIFYING WERE RESULTS.

Marvelous Falling Off In Arrests In Detroit—Roadhouses In Vicinity of Bay City Did Thriving Business. They Will Be Closed Next.

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 10.—The closing law was obeyed in Detroit Sunday. The parched citizen was disappointed when he tried the saloon doors. Among those to whom booze and recreation are synonomous, there was futile rebellion against fate. Among business men, officials, clergymen and even the better class of liquor dealers, there was strong approbation of the police commissioner's edict and the sober calm it created.

The blotters in the various police stations showed a marvelous falling off in the number of drunks arrested Sunday night. At Woodbridge, the place to which all uncertain footsteps lead in the downtown district, there were but five devotees of Bacchus.

Commissioner Smith says that the police carried out the order without difficulty, and the results were gratifying.

"The whole trouble has lain in the practice of the police of showing partiality to certain parties engaged in the trade," said Mayor Thompson. "Some of the downtown dealers have been allowed to do things that were forbidden to others. Everybody believes in the enforcement of the law. Even the saloonists would be willing to obey if they were all treated alike.

"There is no reason why the law should not have been enforced before."

Bay City, Mich., Feb. 10.—The lid was clamped on Sunday in the city through the efforts of the Law and Order league, which brought pressure to bear on the prosecuting attorney and Chief of Police Murphy during last week.

The work was done thoroughly, and if there was a saloon doing business Sunday it was unknown to the police and to the "vigilence committee," which has been patrolling the city even more thoroughly than do the police.

The fellows who wanted a drink, however, have not had to go dry. So far, no efforts has been made to close up the numerous roadhouses, and they have done the most thriving business in their history. It was a case of go to a roadhouse or go without, and there was a steady procession of topers headed for the saloons outside the city limits during the day, but this consolation is to be short-lived. Within the next week or two the men who have been so successful in securing an enforcement of the law within the city are planning to turn their attention to the rest of the county.

Prosecutor Hitchcock said Sunday that it was their intention to adopt the same methods in the county that have been followed in the city, and a general enforcement of all laws regulating salcons is promised. There is some doubt as to the efforts in the county being successful, but even a trial at law enforcement will be a surprise, as nothing of that sort has ever been attempted by the county authorities in the past.

Celebrate Fiftieth Anniversary.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Feb. 10.—Fiftieth anniversary of the organization of the Students' Christian association was observed in University hall Sunday night, the annual address being given by Rt. Rev. Charles P. Anderson, bishop of Chicago. His subject was "The Church and the World." The program included also an anthem, "Rejoice in the Lord," composed especially for this occasion by Prof. William Howland of the university school of music and sung by a chorus of fifty voices. President Angell introduced the speaker in a few words, referring to the fact that the Students' Christian association was the first organization of this character, not only in the University of Michigan, but in any institution of learning in this country, so that in celebrating its anniversary they were celebrating the anniversary of the foundation of similar Christian work in the history of the country.

Captain Eben Ward Injured.

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 10.—Captain Eber Ward, the veteran steamship man, was severely injured in an elevator accident in the Campau building and now lies in his son's residence at 201 Hurlbut avenue. He suffered a fracture of the left leg near the hip and of the left shoulder. He is said to be resting as easy as his injuries will permit.

NEW YORK TO PARIS.

Six Automobile Teams Will Attempt the Trip.

MEN FACE PERILOUS TASKS.

Journey Will Be Made Via Alaska and Asia—Machines Are Equipped to Travel Across Snow and Ice—Expect to Soon Reach 'Frisco.

New York, Feb. 10.—Details of the start of an automobile race from New York to Paris, next Wednesday morning, have been arranged. Six teams are to be sent away in this most extraordinary of all the many motor contests that have been planned since the horseless vehicle first came into use. Four nations will be represented among the contestants and this fact, in addition to the territory to be traversed, will give a world-wide interest to the race.

Three French crews, one German, one Italian and one American will make the start when word to go is given by Mayor George B. McClellan of New York city. The place of the start is at Times square, in the heart of the city, and the first stage of the long journey leads up Broadway and Riverside drive to the city limits. Two hundred or more automobiles are expected to accompany the racing cars as far as Yonkers.

Three of the drivers contested in the famous Pekin to Paris race, the success of which caused the present unusual contest to be projected. A part of the journey is to be made over the same route traversed by the winning car in the Pekin to Paris race—from Irkutsk, on the line of the trans-Siberian railroad, to Paris.

Men Are Confident.

All of the men are confident of their ability to take their machines safely through the difficult tasks before them. The winter journey across the western plains and the plateaus of the United States, including the crossing of the Rockies in Idaho, at an altitude of more than 8,000 feet, is regarded by the racing enthusiasts as the easiest part of their work, and they expect to be in San Francisco inside of thirty days. As to the remainder of the journey, including as it does the first experience with an automobile in the polar regions, the estimates of the time required to get through to Paris vary from six to nine months.

Each car will be equipped with every contrivance the drivers believe the exigencies of the journey will require. Spiked tires, for travel over the frozen rivers of Alaska and Siberia, are a part of the equipment, and various devices for retaining heat in the engines and radiators have been made. Camp utensils, repair outfits and stores will make cumbersome baggage. The route leads through many miles of heretofore untravelled wastes; but, so far as it has been possible, the committee in charge of the contest have made arrangements for supply stations. The drivers, it s believed, will elect to keep together through the more difficult stages of the trip, leaving the speed feature to the last.

Take Steamer at 'Frisco.

Reaching San Francisco, the automobilists will take a steamer to Seattle and there transfer to another steamer to Valdez, Alaska. A journey of 1,100 miles, by snow packed roads and frozen rivers, will bring the racers to Nome.

The arrangements for crossing Bering straits are not yet perfected. Unless there is solid ice, a steamer will be taken to East Cape, Siberia, a matter of some sixty miles. Then the autoists will skirt the frozen shore of the Arctic sea to the mouth of the Lena river. Up this frozen stream, they will make their way to Irkutsk, from which point the roads to Moscow, St. Petersburg, Berlin and Paris are well defined.

Alleged Woman Burned Her Barn.

Adrian, Mich., Feb. 10.—In contesting the payment of $2,000 insurance to Myrtle E. O'Toole, the Ohio German Fire Insurance company alleges that the fire that destroyed her barn was of an incendiary origin. The company's witness to establish such a theory was Mrs. O'Toole's brother, Ernest Grover. Grover testified that four months before the fire, Mrs. O'Toole told him that if she could not raise the money to pay the mortgage on the farm, she would burn the barn.

Old Couple Wed.

Niles, Mich., Feb. 10.—It has just been learned that William Heaton, a prosperous farmer of Penn township, Cass county, and Mrs. Julia C. Devenbaugh of Elkhart, Ind., had been quietly married. The groom is seventy-two years old and the bride sixty-two years of age.

MANY SEE DEAD KING.

Bodies of Carlos and His Son Lie In State.

GREAT CROWD AT CHURCH.

Thousands Unable to Gain Admission. Those Who Passed Coffins Brought Flowers as Loving Tokens—Crush Nearly Resulted in Panic.

Lisbon, Feb. 10.—Thousands of Portugese, poor and rich, humble and pretentious, filed slowly Sunday through the noble cathedral of San Vicente and gazed for the last time on the faces of their king and crown prince. When night fell and the doors of the church were closed, there was still a large crowd patiently awaiting admission. They turned away disappointed. This afternoon, at two o'clock, the caskets will be closed and transported to the pantheon, where, with further ceremonies, they will be placed in the sepulchre.

All the people Sunday wore some emblem of mourning and, in passing the coffin, placed beneath them floral offerings; some budding wild flowers from the fields; others simple clusters of violets, and other elaborate creation and rare exotic blooms. The bodies were guarded constantly by officers of the army and navy, royal archers and the palace guard. Masses were said at various altars for the dead, and prayers were offered in many homes.

Women Fainted in Crush.

During the afternoon, the square in front of the church, though guarded by soldiers, became dangerously crowded with people who had poured in from various sections of the city and its environs. Many were knocked down, especially women and children; and women fainted, both within the church and while waiting on the streets. A child, who was crushed to the ground under the surging mass striving for admission, was dead when finally lifted from under the feet of the crowd.

In official circles, it is believed that the ceremony in connection with the coronation of King Manuel may not occur for two or three months and, perhaps, may never occur, as the young king wishes to inaugurate his reign with as little ostentation as possible—not unlike Gutave of Sweden.

Indications point to relatively tranquility for a few weeks, when republic activity and determination to proclaim a republic, which appear strongly in evidence, may force important developments.

Cold in Oil Region.

Oil City, Pa., Feb. 10.—The coldest weather in the history of the oil region has just been experienced here, the temperature ranging from 20 to 30 degrees below zero. Frank Barnes, aged twenty-one years, of Endeavor, Pa., near here, was found dead in a shed, having been frozen to death.

TWO WRECKS ON WABASH.

Rails Broke in One Case and Spread in Another.

Delhi, Ont., Feb. 10.—A bad railroad wreck occurred two miles east of Delhi. No. 1, fast Wabash flyer, running between Detroit and Buffalo, ran off the track. The accident was caused by a broken rail. All five coaches were run into the ditch, and the last two Pullmans turned over and rolled down the embankment.

The auxiliary from St. Thomas was hurried to the wreckage and had the track clear for traffic in a short time.

Several were hurt but not seriously. That no one was killed is miraculous.

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 10.—"The train did not roll down the embankment," said J. J. Sims, division superintendent.

"A wrecking train was sent out, but before it arrived, the train was on the tracks and ready to start. It arrived in this city later. None of the passengers was seriously hurt; a few of them received bruises, and one passenger, Mrs. J. W. Daniels of Wallace, Ida., was taken to the hospital at St. Thomas. She was uninjured, however, but was suffering from the shock."

Belleville, Mich., Feb. 10.—Only the guard rails prevented "The Wabash Flyer" from plunging into the Huron river when the train jumped the track in the bridge, three miles west of here. A spreading rail is believed to have been the cause of the accident. The engine remained on the track, but five passenger coaches were derailed and the baggage car parly lifted from the rails. The coaches dragged along the ties for some distance. Including two approaches on trestles, the bridge is about 250 feet long. It is thirty feet above the bed of the stream.

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the eustachian tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give one hundred dollars for any case of deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

Special announcement regarding the National pure food and drug law.

We are pleased to announce that Foley's honey and tar for coughs, colds and lung troubles is not affected by the National Pure Food and drug law as it contains no opiates or other harmful drugs and we recommend it as a safe remedy for children and adults. Sold by all druggists in Tecumseh.

There are countless roads on all sides to the grave.

At time when you don't feel just right when you have a bad stomach, take something right away that will assist digestion, not something that will stimulate for a time but something that will positively do the very work that the stomach performs under ordinary and normal conditions, something that will make the food digest. To do this you must take a natural digestant like Kodol for dyspepsia. Kodol is a scientific preparation of vegetable acids with natural digestants and contains the same juices found in a healthy stomach. Each dose will digest more than 3,000 grains of good food. It is sure to afford prompt relief: it digests what you eat and is pleasant to take. Sold by all druggists.

Do not make unjust gains, they are equal to a loss.

Foley's honey and tar cures the most obstinate coughs and expels the cold from the system as it is mildly laxative. It is guaranteed. The genuine is in a yellow package. Sold by all druggists in Tecumseh.

The early riser is healthy, cheerful and industrious.

The trouble with most cough remedies is that they constipate. Kennedy's laxative cough syrup acts gently but promptly on the bowels and at the same time it stops the cough by soothing the throat and lung irritation. Children like it. Sold by all druggists.

The best swimmer is the first to drown himself.

The editor of the Memphis, Tenn., Times writes: "In my opinion of Foley's honey and tar is the best remedy for coughs, colds, lung trouble, and to my own personal knowledge Foley's honey and tar has accomplished many permanent cures that have been little short of marvellous." Refuse any but the genuine in a yellow package. For sale by all druggists in Tecumseh.

Is it not sheer madness to live poor to die rich.

Bert Barber of Elton, Wis., says: "I have only taken four doses of your kidney and bladder pills and they have done for me more than any other medicine has ever done. ....The.... McWilliams Special

...By...

FRANK H. SPEARMAN

Copyright, 1909, by Frank H. Spearman

IT belongs to the stories that never were told, this of the McWilliams Special. But it happened years ago, and for that matter McWilliams is dead. It wasn't grief that killed him either, though at one time his grief came uncommonly near killing us.

It is an odd sort of a yarn, too, because one part of it never got to headquarters, and another part of it never got from headquarters.

How, for instance, the mysterious car was ever started from Chicago on such a delirious schedule, how many men in the service know that even yet?

How, for another instance, Sinclair and Francis took the ratty old car reeling into Denver with the glass shriveled, the paint blistered, the hose burned and a tire sprung on one of the Five-Nine's drivers, how many headquarters slaves know that?

Our end of the story never went in at all—never went in because it was not deemed—well, essential to the getting up of the annual report. We could have raised their hair; they could have raised our salaries, but they didn't; we didn't.

In telling this story I would not be misunderstood. Ours is not the only line between Chicago and Denver. There are others, I admit it. But there is only one line, all the same, that could have taken the McWilliams Special, as we did, out of Chicago at 4 in the evening and put it in Denver long before noon the next day.

A communication came from a great La Salle street banker to the president of our road. Next the second vice president heard of it, but in this way:

"Why have you turned down Peter McWilliams' request for a special to Denver this afternoon?" asked the president.

"He wants too much," came back over the private wire. "We can't do it."

After satisfying himself on this point the president called up La Salle street.

"You must do it."

"When will the car be ready?"

"At 3 o'clock."

"When must it be in Denver?"

"Ten o'clock tomorrow morning."

The president nearly jumped the wire.

"McWilliams, you're crazy. What on earth do you mean?"

The talk came back so low that the wires hardly caught it. There were occasional outbursts such as, "Situation is extremely critical," "Grave danger," "Acute distress," "Must help me out."

But none of this would ever have moved the president had not Peter McWilliams been a bigger man than most corporations, and a personal request from Peter, if he stuck for it, could hardly be refused, and for this he most decidedly stuck.

"I tell you it will turn us upside down," stormed the president.

"Do you recollect," asked Peter McWilliams, "when your infernal old pot of a road was busted eight years ago—you were turned inside out then, weren't you? And hung up to dry, weren't you?"

The president did recollect. He could not decently help recollecting. And he recollected how, about that same time, Peter McWilliams had one week taken up for him a matter of two millions floating with a personal check and carried it eighteen months without security when money could not be had in Wall street on government bonds.

Do you—that is, have you heretofore supposed that a railroad belongs to the stockholders? Not so. It belongs to men like Mr. McWilliams, who own it when they need it. At other times they let the stockholders carry it—until they want it again.

"We'll do what we can, Peter," replied the president, desperately amiable. "Goodby."

I am giving you only an inkling of how it started, not a word as to how countless orders were issued and countless schedules were canceled, not a paragraph about numberless trains abandoned in toto and numberless others pulled and hauled and held and annulled. The McWilliams Special in a twinkle tore a great system into great splinters.

It set master mechanics by the ears and made reckless falsifiers of previously conservative trainmen. It made undying enemies of rival superintendents and incipient paretics of jolly train dispatchers. It shivered us from end to end and stem to stern, but it covered 1,026 miles of the best steel in the world in rather better than twenty hours and a blaze of glory.

"My word is out," said the president in his message to all superintendents thirty minutes later. "You will get your division schedule in a few moments. Send no reasons for inability to make it. Simply deliver the goods. With your time report, which comes by Dy. M. S., I want the name and record of every member of every train crew and every engine crew that hauls the McWilliams car." Then followed particular injunctions of secrecy. Above all, the newspapers must not get it.

But where newspapers are secrecy can only be hoped for, never attained. In spite of the most elaborate precautions to preserve Peter McWilliams' secret—would you believe it?—the evening papers had half a column, practically the whole thing. Of course they had to guess at some of it, but for a newspaper story it was pretty correct, just the same. They had to a minute the time of the start from Chicago and hinted broadly that the schedule was a hair-raiser, something to make previous very fast records previous very slow records. And—here in a scoop—was the secret—the train was to convey a prominent Chicago capitalist to the bedside of his dying son, Philip McWilliams, in Denver. Further, that hourly bulletins were being wired to the distressed father and that every effort of science would be put forth to keep the unhappy boy alive until his father could reach Denver on the special. Lastly, it was hoped by all the evening papers (to fill out the half first column scare) that sunrise would see the anxious parent well on toward the gateway of the Rockies.

Of course the morning papers from the Atlantic to the Pacific had the story repeated—scare headed, in fact—and the public were laughing at our people's dogged refusal to confirm the report or to be interviewed at all on the subject. The papers had the story anyway. What did they care for our efforts to screen a private distress which insisted on so paralyzing a time card for 1,026 miles?

When our own, the west end of the schedule, came over the wires there was a universal, a vociferous, kick. Dispatchers, superintendent of motive power, train master, everybody, protested. We were given about seven hours to cover 400 miles—the fastest percentage, by the way, on the whole run.

"This may be grief for young McWilliams and for his dad," grumbled the chief dispatcher that evening as he cribbed the press dispatches going over the wires about the special, "but the grief is not theirs alone."

Then he made a protest to Chicago. What the answer was none but himself ever knew. It came personal, and he took it personally, but the manner in which he went to work clearing track and making a card for the McWilliams Special showed better speed than the train itself ever attempted, and he kicked no more.

After all the row it seems incredible, but they never got ready to leave Chicago till 4 o'clock, and when the McWilliams Special lit into our train system it was like dropping a mountain lion into a bunch of steers.

Freights and extras, local passenger trains even, were used to being sidetracked, but when it came to laying out the fliers and (I whisper this) the White Mail and the Manila express the oil began to sizzle in the journal boxes. The freight business, the passenger traffic, the mail schedules of a whole railway system were actually knocked by the McWilliams Special into a cocked hat.

From the minute it cleared Western avenue it was the only thing talked of. Divisional headquarters and car link shanties alike were bursting with excitement.

On the West End we had all night to prepare, and at 5 o'clock next morning every man in the operating department was on edge. At precisely 3:58 a. m. the McWilliams Special stuck its nose into our division, and Foley—pulled off No. 1 with the 466—was heading her dizzy for McCloud. Already the McWilliams had made up thirty-one minutes on the one hour delay in Chicago, and Lincoln threw her into our hands with a sort of "There now, you fellows! Are you any good at all on the West End?" And we thought we were.

Sitting in the dispatcher's office, we tagged her down the line like a swallow—Harvard, Oxford, Zanesville, Ashton—and a thousand people at the McCloud station waited for 6 o'clock and for Foley's muddy cap to pop through the Blackwood bluffs, watched him stain the valley maples with a stream of white and black, scream at the junction switches, tear and crash through the yards and slide hissing and panting up under our nose, swing out of his cab and look at nobody at all but his watch.

We made it 5:59 a. m., Central time; the miles, 136; the minutes, 121. The schedule was beaten and that with the 136 miles the fastest on the whole 1,026. Everybody in town yelled except Foley. He asked for a chew of tobacco and, not getting one handily, bit into his own piece.

While Foley melted his weed George Sinclair stepped out of the superintendent's office—he was done in a black silk shirt, with a blue four-in-hand streaming over his front—stepped out to shake hands with Foley as one hostler got the 466 out of the way and another backed down with a new skyscraper, the 509.

But nobody paid much attention to all this. The mob had swarmed around the ratty, old, blind eyed baggage car which, with an ordinary way car, constituted the McWilliams Special.

"Now, what does a man with McWilliams' money want to travel special in an old photograph gallery like that for?" asked Andy Cameron, who was the least bit huffed because he hadn't been marked up for the run himself. "You better take him in a cup of hot coffee, Sinkers," suggested Andy to the lunch counter boy. "You might get a ten dollar bill if the old man isn't feeling too badly. What do you hear from Denver, Neighbor?" he asked, turning to the superintendent of motive power. "Is the boy holding out?"

"I'm not worrying about the boy holding out; it's whether the Five-Nine will hold out."

"Aren't you going to change engines and crews at Arickaree?"

"Not today," said Neighbor grimly. "We haven't time."

Just then Sinkers rushed at the baggage car with a cup of hot coffee for Mr. McWilliams. Everybody, hoping to get a peep at the capitalist, made way. Sinkers climbed over the train chests which were lashed to the platforms and pounded on the door. He pounded hard, for he hoped and believed that there was something in it. But he might have pounded till his coffee froze for all the impression it made on the sleepy McWilliams.

"Hasn't the man trouble enough without tackling your chicory?" sang out Felix Kennedy, and the laugh so discouraged Sinkers that he gave over and sneaked away.

At that moment the editor of the local paper came around the depot corner on the run. He was out for an interview and, as usual, just a trifle late. However, he insisted on boarding the baggage car to tender his sympathy to McWilliams.

The barricades bothered him, but he mounted them all and began an emergency pound on the forbidding blind door. Imagine his feelings when the door was gently opened by a sad eyed man, who opened the ball by shoving a rifle as big as a pinch bar under the editorial nose.

"My grief, Mr. McWilliams," protested the interviewer in a trembling voice, "don't imagine I want to hold you up. Our citizens are all peaceable"—

"Get out!"

"Why, man, I'm not even asking for a subscription. I simply went to ten"—

"Get out!" snapped the man with the gun, and in a foam the newsman climbed down. A curious crowd gathered close to hear an editorial version of the Ten Commandments revised on the spur of the moment. Felix Kennedy said it was worth going miles to hear. "That's the coldest deal I ever struck on the plains, boys," declared the editor. "Talk about your bereaved parents. If the boy doesn't have a chill when that man reaches him I miss my guess. He acts to me as if he was afraid his grief would get away before he got to Denver."

Meantime Georgie Sinclair was tying a silk handkerchief around his neck, while Neighbor gave him parting injunctions. As he put up his foot to swing into the cab the boy looked for all the world like a jockey, toe in stirrup. Neighbor glanced at his watch.

"Can you make it by 11 o'clock?" he growled.

"Make what?"

"Denver."

"Denver or the ditch, Neighbor," laughed Georgie, testing the air. "Are you right back there, Pat?" he called as Conductor Francis strode forward to compare the mountain time.

"Right and tight, and I call it five-two-thirty now. What have you, Georgie?"

"Five-two-thirty-two," answered Sinclair, leaning from the cab window. "And we're ready."

"Then go!" cried Pat Francis, raising two fingers.

"Go!" echoed Sinclair, and waved a backward smile to the crowd as the pistons took the push and the escapes wheezed.

Women and "Sport."

When a big shoot takes place in the coverts near one of our country houses the occasion is made a sort of society gathering. The ladies of the house party grace it with their presence, and other ladies of the neighborhood are glad to be allowed the honor of such company. Thus a large and fashionable party assembles, and while each beat is in progress the girls and women try to look on unmoved while a wounded hare kicks and squeals upon the ground for minutes which seem interminable to the sensitive onlooker until the beat is over and the dogs are loosed to finish off the cripples. And, though the hare's piteous shrieking makes its case seem the worst, the mere tumbling over and over of a wounded bird is a shocking sight to see as the time passes and no one goes forward to release it of its life.—London Mail.

Lighting Country Homes for Less Money.

Calcium Carbide, from which Acetylene Gas is made, looks like coal, won't burn, can't explode, and comes in moisture proof steel drums containing 100 lbs.

When Carbide is dropped into a tank of water it immediately produces Acetylene Gas which combines with Air for Lighting.

The resulting Acetylene Gaslight is identical with Sunlight. It is so Sun-like that it makes plants grow as rapidly and naturally at night as Sunlight makes them grow by day.

Two million Americans use it regularly,—and already 348 Towns are publicly lighted with it.

One pound of "Carbide" costs 3¾ cents, in most of the States east of the Rocky Mountains.

This 5 cubic feet of Acetylene Gas will give 24 candle-power Light for 10 hours.

All for 3¾ cents observe.

Compare this cost per candle-power with common Kerosene Light as regularly used.

A Kerosene Lamp which will give an actual 24 candle-power of light for 10 hours will average a cost of 6 cents for Kerosene, Chimneys and Wicks.

Six cents against 3¾ cents for Carbide and water.

Don't let the contrast escape you.

Observe that the Acetylene Light will be cool, clean, brilliant and white like Sunlight. You can see pale blue, pale pink, or pale yellow as clearly by it as by Daylight.

This means about 6 hours per year of labor for 40 Light capacity, as against (30 minutes per day, or) 182 hours per year with Kerosene Lamps.

Write me today how many rooms you've got, or how large your store, and I'll tell you what it would cost to light them with brilliant Sunlike Acetylene.

W. P. STOCKING

Writes from his home in Long Beach. Pays a tribute to the late

GEORGE N. STACY

Editor of the Herald. Writes also of the California winter.

Although I never met the late Geo. N. Stacy, editor and proprietor of the HERALD I had become very much attached to him through our correspondence during the time I have been writing for the HERALD. His letters have always been couched in the most friendly terms making me feel that I had been intimately acquainted with him for years. He also treated my efforts to interest the HERALD readers with courtesy often showing an appreciation beyond my hopes or expectations. His sudden passing came as a shock to me and in his death I feel that I have lost a true friend. Through a kind letter from Mrs. Stacy I learn that I am to remain a welcome visitor to the HERALD. If my letters in the past have been interesting to anyone I am glad and I shall try to interest them in the future.

A California Winter.

No matter how mild and pleasant a winter you may be having in Michigan I feel that we can go you several points better. So far we have missed but one feature of a tropical California winter, i. e. rain. We need much more rain and ranches are becoming somewhat alarmed as it is too dry to put in their crops. Irrigated crops, oranges and lemons are doing fine. In the 14 years we have lived here we have not experienced more perfect weather. It has been more like a Michigan June. Outdoor work has not been intercepted during the entire winter as much as I have often seen it interrupted during the month of June in Michigan. There have been but few days so far this winter that people have not spent some part of the day in the surf.

Many spend the middle of the day sitting or lying on the warm sand, walking up and down the beach at low tide on sand as smooth and almost as hard as a floor, gathering clams, tiny ones not larger than a good sized white bean for clam soups and chowder, or gathering shells or kelp, a sea weed, out of which many curious things are formed and then dried to keep their shape. From early morning until late in the afternoon many men, women and children are fishing from the pier and from boats. All sizes of fish from the three or four inch surf fish and herring to 150, 250 or 350 lb. black sea bass or devil fish. It seems to me sometimes as though winter was a misnomer for this season of the year in California.

Michigan People in Long Beach.

We have living in one of our cottages Mrs. Hattie Norton of Adrian, and Mrs. Kate Cory Tuttle, a former resident of Tecumseh and Adrian. About one block from us live Mr. and Mrs. Loomis. Mrs. Loomis' maiden name was Blackmer, she is a cousin of Chas. and Leroy Blood. Mr. Loomis is a Jackson man. Mrs. Lucia Julian Martin, who was a resident of Toledo, O., for a number of years, also resides here.

Prof. Tripp, who was born and raised in Franklin, a little west of Tecumseh and was graduated from Ann Arbor University, with his wife have a pleasant and valuable home here in the city while the Professor has a chair in the Occidental College at Los Angeles. There are many other Michigan people living here in Long Beach but the most of them quite remote from Tecumseh.

Saturday, Jan. 25.

We expected to be in attendance at the Michigan mid-winter picnic in Los Angeles but the heavy rains of the past four days and also this a. m. kept us at home. The Michigan Association holds two picnics a year. The business and pleasure meeting is held on the 26th of June, Admission Day each year at East Lake Park, Los Angeles. At this meeting officers are selected for the ensuing year, the place for the mid-summer picnic chosen and other business connected with the association. Membership is free. The mid-summer picnic is wholly for sociability and pleasure, they are very enjoyable.

We are just in receipt of a friendly letter from Dr. Wm. Patterson of Whatland, Cal. He reports a prosperous year financially. He also reports considerable sickness of his wife and daughter. I see by the HERALD that Los Angeles has become the home of some more Tecumseh people in the persons of Geo. Graves and family. I hope to meet them and become acquainted with them. In another letter I want to continue our ramble in Brownville and vicinity.

Raisin Valley Encampment.

At a special meeting of the Raisin Valley encampment No. 12 last Thursday night Grand Scribe Patriarch John B. Penfield was present and re-installed the lodge. The following officers were elected and installed:

Elks' Circus.

All roads lead to Toledo the week of Feb. 17, because of the great carnival of fun and midwinter circus which the Elks give at the Coliseum. The bill is headed by Powers' famous Hippodrome elephants. The Carlos circus is another act. The Eliets, five in number, will give a trapeze and flying ring act. Miss Maude Burbank and her $10,000 horse, Dyanno, will give one of the finest riding acts ever seen. These acts are only a few that might be mentioned. Remember all roads lead to Toledo.

Nursing baby?

It's a heavy strain on mother.

Her system is called upon to supply nourishment for two.

Some form of nourishment that will be easily taken up by mother's system is needed.

Mother and baby are wonderfully helped by its use.

Snowed in.

People in the vicinity of Sand lake for the past week have been snowed in. Don Godkin and wife and Mrs. C. H. Cooper of Adrian, who have been spending a month there for Mr. Godkin's health, planned to return to their home last Saturday morning and had arranged with Warren Drake of Pentecost, to go after them with a rig. He failed to show up as the road between Pentecost and the lake was drifted full of snow.

They secured Emmett S. Marsh, who lives at Brighton's beach, the west side of the lake, to drive them to Onsted. They were evidently the first ones over the road as they had to shovel their way through snow drifts five feet deep and over. They finally got to Onsted and went to Adrian on a freight train.

McKinley Club Banquet.

At the McKinley Club banquet which will be held at Schoolcraft's rink, Adrian, Thursday evening the following men will speak: Hon. Geo. S. Legare, Congressman from North Carolina; Hon. Julius Kahn, Congr. from California; Hon. Chas. E. Townsend, Congr. from Second Dist. of Michigan, and Hon. H. C. Smith from Adrian. The Home Workers society of the Presbyterian church will furnish the banquet.

Keeping open house.

Everybody is welcome when we feel good, and we feel that way only when our digestive organs are working properly. Dr. King's new life pills regulate the action of stomach, liver and bowels so perfectly one can't help feeling good when he uses these pills. At C. A. Wright & Son's drug store. 25c.

DEPARTMENT OF COMMERCE & LABOR.

Bureau of Immigration & Naturalization.

The Department of Commerce and Labor are sending out circulars to the farmers which directs their attention to Section 40 of the act of Congress, to regulate the immigration of aliens into the United States, in regard to their distribution among the several states and territories desiring them. In order to carry out the object of the act the division of information is seeking to get into direct communication with all of the farmers of the United States who may wish to employ farm labor or domestics, or who may have lands for sale or rent, with a view to learning from them what their needs are and the details of the same.

For gathering this information certain blanks are used of which the Division of Information will forward copies on request.

Suffering & Dollars Saved.

E. M. Loper of Marillo, N. Y., says: "I am a carpenter and have had many severe cuts healed by Bucklen's arnica salve. It has saved me suffering and dollars. It is by far the best healing salve I ever found." Heals burns, sores ulcers, eczema and piles. 25c at C. A. Wright & Son's drug store.

Success Lies in Results

What REXALL Has Done:

In a little over three years REXALL Remedies have become the most widely known and trusted medicines in the world—have scored the biggest success in the history of the drug business.

Why?

Because they're made of the purest drugs—but not that alone.

Because the most skilled pharmacists that can be employed make them—but not that alone.

Because they are based on the prescriptions of the most successful physicians in the world—but not that alone.

Because they represent the combined wisdom and experience of over a thousand of the foremost retail druggists in this country, of which we are one,—but not that alone.

All these things have been indispensable.

They CURE—that's why.

Not patent medicines, either—we'll tell you the formula of any one of them if you want to know it.

We can hold up any REXALL Remedy before you and honestly say: "We know what this is made of and all about it. It has cured thousands. It will cure you. Our reputation, the possession of your good will, our whole business existence depends on this REXALL Remedy giving satisfaction to you."

Isn't that what you want to buy, rather than the sort for which you can hold no one in sight responsible?

FOR NERVES — AMERICANITIS ELIXIR

The wonderful results of this remedy are due to the fact that it supplies Phosphorus to the nerve cells in a condition in which it can be immediately and easily taken up by them.

The Glycophosphates, actual nerve tissue builders, are one of the most recent and valuable additions to this branch of medicine and unquestionably a more efficient remedy than the well-known Hypophosphites.

The Iron Pyrophosphates are the most easily assimilated form of iron which give tone and color, and the combined alkaloids of Calisaya Bark have a tonic effect on almost all the functions of the body. 75c. and $1.00 a bottle.

REXALL "83" HAIR TONIC

Resorcin is one of the latest and most effective germ-killers discovered by science, and in connection with Beta Naphthol, which is both germicidal and antiseptic, a combination is formed which not only destroys the germs which rob the hair of its nutriment, but creates a clean and healthy condition of the scalp, which prevents the development of new germs.

Pilocarpin is a well known agent for restoring the hair to its natural color, where the loss of color has been due to a disease of the scalp. It is not a coloring matter or dye.

This combination of curatives mixed with alcohol as a stimulant, perfects the most effective remedy for hair and scalp troubles known today. Per bottle, 50c.

"REXALL" ORDERLIES
The New Laxative

If you suffer from constipation or a sluggish liver, we want you to try this newest member of the Rexall family. It has never failed.

"Rexall" Orderlies have all the virtues and none of the defects of those laxatives and cathartics already known. They are harmless vanilla-flavored tablets that effect a re-adjustment of Nature's functions—no griping, no nausea, no purging.

Pleasant to the taste—they give immediate relief.

A trial will prove to you that they are the best laxative and cathartic ever prescribed.

10c. a box of twelve; 25c. a box of 36.

THIS "REXALL" GUARANTEE IS ON EVERY PACKAGE

"This preparation is guaranteed to give satisfaction. If it does not, come back and get your money. It belongs to you and we want you to have it."

Electric Light.

Electric light may be burned in sleeping room or sick chamber without injurious result, the air remaining pure and sweet. Not so with other forms of illuminating. One open-flame light consumes as much oxygen as four grown persons, vitiates the air and makes perfect health under such conditions impossible. Use Electric Light that's pure, clean convenient and safe.

Pop Corn Poppers.

A new social organization has been formed in Tecumseh. It has been incorporated under the blue laws of the order and is called the Pop Corn Poppers, officered by B. J. Garlinghouse, president, John B. Smith, secretary and treasurer, and H. W. Stevens, manager. This organization meets from 5 to 6 times each week after supper in the spacious store room of Deputy Sheriff Marshal Junky Brown & Co's. feed store.

This organization is founded on a firm financial basis, each member, of which there are 47, is required to pay the initiation fee of 3 cents before he can nibble at the crib or thrust his hand into the snowy white pile of pop corn on the counter. Every one who drops in and refuses to join the P. C. P's. then after due consideration does not feel like being left out in the cold, is charged 6 cents. By this means they have a surplus in the treasury, 1 corn popper, 14 ears of pop corn, ½ lb. butter and a 50 lb sack of salt on hand.

MRS. ELMINA HAYWARD.

Wife of a former pastor of the Universalist church, died in Longmont Feb. 3.

Mrs. Elmina Hayward, wife of Rev. Henry L. Hayward, pastor of the Universalist church here for several years, died at her residence in Longmont, Col. Feb. 3 of paralysis and diabetes, aged 79 years and 6 days. In 1863 Rev. and Mrs. Hayward organized the Universalist church in this place and remained here 9 years.

She was a Universalist by faith and her property has almost entirely been willed to a church and a college of that denomination, the church being in Denver and the school in New York State. She was owner of the Longmont Ledger, a weekly paper printed in that city and has always been a reporter. The funeral was held from the residence, Rev. J. W. Neely officiating One peculiar feature of the occasion was that not a relative was present.

EASTERN STAR

Golden Rod Chapter Honor 100th Anniversary of the Birth of

MRS. ELIZABETH FELTON

Last Saturday, Feb. 8, at the Town hall, Clinton, Golden Rod chapter, Order of the Eastern Star celebrated the 100th birthday anniversary of Mrs. Elizabeth Felton, a charter member of that chapter and the oldest member of the Eastern Star in the world, with a banquet. Mrs. Felton, who had been anxiously waiting for this event, was not able to be present, having been unconscious since early that morning. For several weeks the Clinton chapter, have been preparing for this event, invitations had been sent out among their own people and several of the sister chapters to which over 200 responded.

The hall was handsomely decorated in yellow and white bunting also red, white and blue flags. The menu was as follows: roast beef, mashed potatoes, dressing, brown gravy, brown bread and white bread sandwiches, pickles, jelly, cabbage salad, coffee, doughnuts and cake. The guests were served by members of the Star, who were dressed as Puritan maidens. The souvenirs were pictures of Mrs. Felton and the napkins were decorated with golden rod, bearing the date of the occasion and Mrs. Felton's name across the center.

Although the visitors were disappointed at not having Mrs. Felton with them they enjoyed a few hours with Mr. Frank McNally, aged 111 and whose birthday occurs April 2nd. Mr. McNally is enjoying as good health as usual. Rheumatism has left him without the use of his limbs and he is obliged to ride in a wheel chair. Mr. McNally helped to build the Tecumseh Union school, then for many years worked in a grist mill in Clinton. Until a few years ago he has been able to earn his own living.

Although he is without kith or kin in this country he has many friends who look after his welfare. Among the other old people were Mrs. Seth Plumb aged 97, and Mrs. Sarah Wastel aged 93. Clinton is very proud of her old people. Those from Tecumseh who attended were, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Belding, Mrs H. D. Cutting, Anna and Allie Cutting, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Teachout, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Moiles, Bert Waring, Fred Rector, Misses Anna and Helen Wilson, May Lowry and Bess Spayde.

Blackman—Ennis Marriage.

Judge R. H. Blackman of the county court of Clear Creek county, journeyed to Denver the first of the week and on Wednesday afternoon was united in marriage to Miss Katie Ennis. The ceremony was performed by Judge Grant L. Hudson of the county court of Denver county, and so well had the plans been laid that not even the reporters of the Denver papers tumbled to the occasion. Both Judge and Mrs. Blackman are well and favorably known throughout Clear Creek county, having resided here the greater portion of their lives. After the honeymoon of a couple of days spent in the capital city the couple returned to Georgetown, where the groom has prepared for the occasion. They at once took up housekeeping in the Blackman residence in the east part of town and are now at home to their many friends. The groom is a son of A. Blackman, one of our pioneer residents, while the bride is a daughter of Thomas Ennis, a prosperous rancher of Middle Park. Judge Blackman is now serving his fourth year as county judge of Clear Creek county and is held in high esteem by the legal fraternity throughout the state. He has upon a number of occasions sat in Denver for Judge Hudson and his style of grinding out the law for the lawyers of the capital city has won for him an enviable reputation. The Courier joins in extending to the happy couple most sincere congratulations and entertains wishes for them of a long voyage upon the matrimonial sea.—Georgetown, Col., Courier, Jan. 11, 1908.

Mr. Blackman was a grandson of Abram Hanford, well know in this vicinity in former years.

TO CATARRH SUFFERERS.

C. A. Wright & Son have been advising all who suffer from any symptoms of catarrh such as offensive breath, dryness of the nose or stoppage, droppings in the throat, coughing spasms, general weakness and debility to use Hyomei. They go so far as to offer to refund the money to any user of Hyomei who is not perfectly satisfied with the results.

Quick relief follows the use of Hyomei treatment, the stoppage of the nose is removed, the dropping ceases, the breath becomes sweet, the catarrhal germs are destroyed and their growth prevented

Hyomei is the surest, quickest, easiest and cheapest way to cure catarrh. It does not drug and derange the stomach, it goes to the seat of the trouble, destroying the catarrhal germs, healing and vitalizing the tissues.

Go to C. A. Wright & Son any day and by a complete Hyomei outfit for $1 with the understanding that if it does not give satisfaction your money will be refunded. All you have to do is to inhale a little occasionally using the pocket inhaler that comes with every outfit and the symptoms of catarrh will quickly disappear. Try it, you will be surprised and pleased at the results.

ECZEMA

Cured in less than four weeks.

Those who have had experience with this stubborn disease can hardly believe at first that Wonderful Dream Salve can and does cure Eczema.

There is no doubt about the matter whatever. A great many letters are on file in our office from grateful patients, telling of the quick and easy way in which Wonderful Dream Salve has removed all traces of this torturing skin affliction.

Mr. John T. Kealey, a well-known business man, located in the Stevens Bldg., Detroit, Mich., was recently cured of a bad case of Eczema of fourteen years' standing. After treating with many doctors and taking many remedies without relief, Mr. Kealey was induced to try Wonderful Dream Salve, and in four weeks was entirely cured. He says:

"I certainly consider this a remarkable cure, inasmuch as I have spent hundreds of dollars in the fourteen years of annoyance with this troublesome itching skin ailment. I have since the cure of my case heard of other cures, some of them even more remarkable than mine, which go toward demonstrating the value of Wonderful Dream Salve as a great skin healer."

If you have Eczema, why not try a box of Wonderful Dream Salve. If it fails, your druggist will refund your money. Isn't that fair enough? Keep it in your home for Chilblains, Chapped hands, Piles, Cuts, Burns, Frost-bites, Boils and Sores of any kind. You will never use anything else 25c a box at your druggist or mailed prepaid direct.

The Cause of Many Sudden Deaths.

There is a disease prevailing in this country most dangerous because so deceptive. Many sudden deaths are caused by it—heart disease, pneumonia, heart failure or apoplexy are often the result of kidney disease. If kidney trouble is allowed to advance the kidney-poisoned blood will attack the vital organs, causing catarrh of the bladder, or the kidneys themselves break down and waste away cell by cell.

It corrects inability to hold urine and scalding pain in passing it, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often through the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases.

Swamp-Root is pleasant to take and is sold by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle of this wonderful new discovery and a book that tells all about it, both sent free by mail. Address, Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

CURED TO STAY CURED.

If you suffer from backache
From urinary disorders
Or any disease of the kidneys
Be cured to stay cured
Doan's Kidney Pills will cure you.

Tecumseh people testify.

Read a case of it:

Orson Austin, retired, living on Logan street, Tecumseh, Mich., says "I still hold the same high opinion of Doan's Kidney Pills today as when I gave my statement for publication some 5 years ago. Prior to that time I had kidney disease with distressing pains in my my kidneys I did not take care of the trouble at first and it finally became aggravated and the pain so severe that I could not stoop or lift anything. I used a number of highly recommended remedies but received only temporary relief. Finally I tried Doan's Kidney Pills receiving much benefit so I continued until cured I am always glad to recommend Doan's Kidney Pills"

DATES AND FIGS.

Frugal Fare of the Desert Wanderers of the East.

While journeying across the desert Mrs. A. Goodrich-Freer, author of "In a Syrian Saddle," met a lonely traveler bound for Medeba. On hearing that the caravan was bound for the same place he asked permission to join them. Incidentally he furnished an illustration of the difference between necessities and luxuries.

We were very grateful, says the writer, for coffee and an excellent lunch of sausage, potted meat and jam, with white bread, brought from Jerusalem. We ate our dainties with some sense of guilt, as the newcomer produced his lunch of dates and figs.

Dates and figs, he informed us, were the natural food of desert wanderers, sufficing to the body, stimulating to the mind. The wheat, the flesh, above all the alcohol of civilization, were mere irrelevancies.

Was it not diet such as this—and he waved a pair of sensitive hands over his ascetic larder—which had enabled him to reply to the inquiry of a personage as to how many hours a day he could ride in the desert, "Twenty-four, your majesty, since a day does not contain twenty-five?"

Was it not on a diet of figs and dates that he had ridden sixty hours without dismounting? Was it your meat eater, your wine drinker, who remained sound and wholesome when necessity obliged him to refrain from ablution for twenty-one days?

At this point he carefully counted his date stones, observed that two more were yet due to his appetite and finished his frugal luncheon.

ONLY A TRAMP.

Raising the Curtain For a Moment on One of Life's Tragedies.

A recent incident which holds in its simple outlines the possibility of past tragedy is described in the New York Times. It is another illustration of how careless the world is of the individual and how thick is the cloak which one may wrap about his personality. Not long ago a laborer employed by the Erie railroad in Jersey City was run over by a train and had his leg cut off.

A policeman telephoned for an ambulance. The injured man lay on a grass patch, apparently bleeding to death. Just then a typical railroad tramp in dirty rags sauntered along. He tapped a policeman's elbow.

"May I ask what's the matter, officer?" he inquired.

"Man bleeding to death," replied the policeman.

"Would you mind if I looked at him?" asked the tramp. "I might be of service."

"Go ahead," responded the officer.

Bending low over the wounded laborer, the tramp asked for water to wash his hands and then begged the crowd for clean handkerchiefs. With a half dozen deft, rapid twists he made a tourniquet and stopped the flow of blood.

"Are you a doctor?" some one asked as the man slipped away through the crowd.

"I used to be," he replied as he hurried off.

Patriotism in the Making.

Patriotism in New York is cosmopolitan. They have a flag drill in the schools in which the children of every race and clime, as the hymn book says, are taught to salute the stars and stripes and give "their heads, their hands and their hearts to their country." And in some of the big downtown schools you may see children from homes German, Italian, Syrian, Scandinavian, Jewish, Hungarian, Chinese, Armenian, Greek and heaven knows how many other nationalities all joining in this picturesque ceremony. It gives one a realizing sense of the variety of material which it put into this crucible we call a city and which in another generation or two will be simply American.—Boston Transcript.

Talking Through the Nose.

So called "talking through the nose" is not talking through the nose at all, but rather failure to do so—that is, instead of letting the tone flood into the nasal cavity, to be re-enforced there by striking against the walls of the cavity, which act as sounding boards for the tone confined within that cavity, we shut off the cavity and refuse the tone its natural re-enforcement. It takes on as a result a thin, unresonant quality which we call nasal, although it is thin and unpleasing because it lacks true nasal resonance. The only remedy lies in ceasing to shut off the cavity.—Katherine Jewell Everts in Harper's Bazar.

Frog's Narrow Escape.

A correspondent writes: "My son, aged ten and a half years, was working in the garden when a viper about two feet long glided past him. A good shot with a stone about the size of a cricket ball broke the reptile's spine, while a sharp edge of the granite cut open the belly, thereby restoring to freedom a frog, which hopped out of its prison unhurt."—Madras Mail.

Speaking.

"Did you think Miss Jawkins has speaking eyes?"

"I'm sure I don't know," replied the young lady. "If she had, her mouth wouldn't give them a chance to be heard."—Chicago Record-Herald.

The Young Baby.

From a morning paper: "Nurse wanted to look after young baby, age about eighteen." We do not know much about the subject, but is that particularly young for a baby?—London Globe.

His Eminence.

A French cardinal, being small of stature and hunchbacked at that, always gave the keenest repartee when addressed with "highness" and "eminence." "My highness is five feet two inches, and the eminence I carry on my back."

Seemed Incomprehensible.

Mrs. Somer—What delicately constructed things these big steamships are! Mr. Somer—Why do you say that? Mrs. Somer—Just think of the breaking of a screw disabling the whole ship.—Philadelphia North American.

Poor Jones!

Missionary—Can you give me any information about Deacon Jones, who labored among your people three years ago? Cannibal—Well, the last I heard about him he had gone into consumption.—Judge.

A Spanish proverb declares that "a papelitos (a paper cigar), a glass of clear water and a kiss from a pretty girl will sustain a man for a whole day."

Lyle, Gage & Company's Institution Is In Trouble.

Dowagiac, Mich., Feb. 10.—The City bank did not open for business today. It has been suspected of tottering for some days. Its deposits are said to have amounted to $100,000.

The City bank was run under the firm name of Lyle, Gage & Co. and was not incorporated, although it was once a state bank. It was founded over thirty years ago by Daniel Lyle and up to this time had been regarded as one of the soundest financial institutions in this part of the country. Frank W. Lyle, son of the founder, is its president.

Last Tuesday, Leon R. Lyle, son of the president, resigned his position as cashier and is also believed to have sold his interest in the bank. Since that time, according to the current story, business men have been drawing out their deposits, and the other Dowagiac bank, owned by Lee Bros., has declined to advance the City bank any funds.

The Lee Bros.' bank is expecting a run, but it has secured enough currency to tide it over. Money arrived with nearly every train Saturday night and Sunday and more is expected. There was no run on the Lyle, Gage & Co. bank, but when the bank's unexpected action was learned Sunday, there was some little excitement on the streets. Nearly all the farmers around this town have money on deposit in the City bank.

None of the City bank stockholders, officials or its attorneys could be seen. Each declined to answer his telephone, and not one was seen on the streets. Just what action will be taken cannot be figured at this time.

Singular Fatal Accident to Boy.

Portland, Mich., Feb. 10.—While six children were playing in the house of Michael Tierweiler, in the absence of their parents, Sylvester Tierweiler, nine years old, was accidentally shot through the head and wounded so that he died a few hours afterward. The lad was bending to tie his shoes when Baby Tierweiler, three years old, reached up from a woodbox on which she was playing and dislodged an old rifle which was hung on the wall. The rifle fell against the box and was discharged. The bullet flew across the room and struck Sylvester.

Dodging Thirteen.

"When I lived in New York," writes a former New Yorker from Berlin, "there was a house near Central park which should have borne the number 13, but because of the superstition of the occupant permission was secured to place the number 11a or 15a over the door. I spoke of the circumstance a few days ago and learned that the thirteen superstition was more clearly marked here. In the instance mentioned by me an individual was concerned. Here it was the most important corporation in Wiesbaden. There is no No. 13 bathroom in any of the bathhouses, no No. 13 room in any hotel and no No. 13 place at any table d'hote. At Langenschwalbach the baths, under government control, also have bath cells No. 12a where they should be numbered 13."—New York Tribune.

A Worthy Antagonist.

"Did you visit any of the old caves when you were up in Scotland?" Jorkins was asked by a friend.

"Yes," replied Jorkins reminiscently, "and, by gum, we had to forcibly pull Maria out of one cave."

"Good gracious! She was fascinated by its beauty, I suppose."

"No, it wasn't beauty. You see, there is a wonderful echo in the cave, and Maria couldn't bear to think of the echo having the last word."—Liverpool Mercury.

Instincts of a Woman.

A little girl who had for some time wanted a dog was taken very ill. One day when much better she told her mother of her desire and begged her to ask her grandpa to buy her one. The mother answered that grandpa did not like dogs and probably would not be willing to buy one. Then, seeing the little invalid look sadly disappointed, she said, "Well, wait till you get well, my dear, then we will see."

"Oh, no," answered the child, whose few years had taught her some wisdom. "The more sick I am the more likely he will be to buy it for me."—Exchange.

Financial Troubles in Denmark.

Copenhagen, Feb. 10.—A small financial panic has arisen here on account of a tight money market and extensive speculations on the bourse. Two of the smaller banks have been affected and one of these has been forced to suspend payments. There has been a run on several of the banks. The minister of finance has conferred with the officials of five of the principal banks here, and it was decided that the government, in conjunction with the leading banks, guarantee all the risks for the banks affected by placing the necessary funds at their disposal which will immediately satisfy all their Danish and foreign creditors.

May Again Ask Kelsey's Removal.

Albany, N. Y., Feb. 10.—That Governor Hughes will renew to the senate this week his recommendation of last year that Otto Kelsey be removed from office of state superintendent of insurance on the ground of inefficiency is the general expectation here, though the governor will say nothing on the subject. The general expectation is that the governor will transmit to the senate in support of his recommendation the report of Matthew C. Fleming, the special commissioner appointed by the governor to investigate the insurance department. Mr. Fleming's report was made public last week and contains severe criticism of Mr. Kelsey's administration.

Brooded Over Another Man's Death.

Fort Worth, Tex., Feb. 10.—Brooding over the suicide of Banker Hutchins, a man he did not know, Eric C. Cambrell, thirty-eight years old, shot and killed himself at a local hotel. Cambrell was a son of Rev. Dr. J. B. Cambrell, the noted Baptist divine, and had practiced law in Dallas for many years. He formerly edited several newspapers in Mississippi. He called on Hunt McCaleb, an old newspaper friend, and discussed the suicide of Banker Hutchins. He later went to a hotel and wrote a note asking that McCaleb be notified of what he had done. He leaves a widow and a six-year-old son in Dallas.

Mrs. Thaw Visits Her Son.

Matteawan, N. Y., Feb. 10.—Mrs. William Thaw, mother of Harry Thaw, visited her son for over an hour Sunday at the Matteawan state hospital. Mrs. Thaw appeared to be in feeble health and was assisted off and on the train by a nurse.

A WHALE'S MOUTH.

The Grove of Twelve Foot Quills That Fills the Cavern.

The rules for eating accredited to Gladstone and Fletcher, which required thirty-two, more or less, chews to each mouthful, were never meant for the true whale. It has no teeth, and it swallows its food whole, catching it in the baleen, or strips of "whalebone," which depend from the sides of its mouth. If a whale saw the whalebones that womankind are accustomed to using in their waists he would never recognize them as part of his alimentary system, they are so small. In the form in which they would be familiar to him they would be ten or twelve feet long and look like giant brushes, with a handle ten inches wide at the end.

One might wonder how any animal could close its mouth with a grove of twelve foot quills sticking out of the roof. When the mouth closes the slabs of baleen lie flat in grooves. When the mouth opens the slabs spring forward, completely filling the cavern. One whale may have as many as 700 in its mouth. Sometimes the weight of this giant mouth fringe is a ton, and the contents of the mouth of one whale taken in Bering sea on Oct. 20, 1883, weighed 3,100 pounds, or a ton and a half.—New York Tribune.

Busy Man Versus Busy Man.

Those who tell you they "always are rushed to death" usually acomplish the least, and largely because they are imaginative. The really busy man, who turns off an immense amount of work with the quiet and precision of a perfect machine, must have the imagination to look ahead a day or a month or a year. At the least, his thought is always a few seconds ahead of his action; his head saves his heels; he is not continually tripping over his own feet. But the buzzy man can never understand the busy man. Having no imagination himself, he saves his own face by saying that the man who never fusses over his work has little to do.

Let us hear no more about imagination being impracticable. It is one of the most practical things in the world. A due proportion of it used with judgment "will from many a blunder free us and foolish notion." The only condition under which it may seem superfluous is that of one who has some monotonous task to perform automatically day after day. Doubtless if one is to be in an automatic job forever the less imagination the better, but if he is ever to get out of it the quicker he cultivates some imagination the sooner will he get out.—Chicago Tribune.

Hoarding.

Hoarding is not only an economic mistake, but an economic crime as well. It is, in fact, a survival of the evil days of maladministration. It comes down to us from the time when nearly all governments were conquerors which considered themselves entitled to plunder their subjects. Thus hoarding is founded upon distrust of the government.—Statesman, Calcutta.

MICHIGAN BRIEFS.

Register of Deeds Solomon S. Fox of Allegan is dead of apoplexy after a ten days' illness. He was a pioneer of the county, going to Allegan shortly after the Civil war.

Cass county has solved the tramp problem. The supervisors have made arrangements with the Detroit house of correction to keep their tramp convicts for $1.75 per week if sentenced to less than four months and $1.50 per week if sentenced to more than four months.

Attorney General Bird has filed the claim of the state for $685,000 on deposit in the Chelsea Savings bank with Receiver Wedemeyer. He will also present the state's claim to the referee in bankruptcy in the Glazier case when he has an opportunity to do so. Every precaution is being taken to secure the state's interests in the Glazier matter.

Dan Close, pool room proprietor, at Deerfield, told William Schroeder, the manager of the electric light plant, that if his light bill was high again he would take it out of Schroeder's hide. That Close is a man of his word was demonstrated by the bandages that decorated Schroeder's head when he asked the prosecutor for a warrant for assault and battery.

Despite the statements that have been made concerning the increasing scarcity of fish in Saginaw bay waters, fishermen are turning in the largest winter catches in ten years. The bay will this year "house" a larger village of spear fisherman than for many years, and for the first time in years fishermen's huts are being erected on the river and inside Bay City limits. Tons of fish are being pulled out daily, and teams are already going out on the ice after loads

John Meier, a farmer living near Lennox, found a package of ground coffee on the ground near his mail box. It was neatly done up and had every appearance of having come out of a grocery store in that condition. He took it into the house and, opening it, made a careful examination of its contents. A foreign substance, just visible to the eye, aroused his suspicion, and he took it to a druggist, who found that it contained a sufficient amount of arsenic to have killed the entire family.

Unemployed Make Startling Demands.

St. Louis, Feb. 10.—The national convention of the unemployed, which has been in session here intermittently for a week, has closed with a large gathering of the self styled "hoboes." As a finale, all the resolutions proposed during the week were accepted, including those urging that the itinerant unemployed attend church in a body on Sundays, the abolition of vagrancy laws and an act of congress pensioning unemployed and providing for an appropriation of $150,000,000 with which the unemployed might be hired to deepen the Mississippi and the Ohio rivers.

Train is Finally Released.

Flint, Mich., Feb. 10.—The passenger train on the Flint river division of the Pere Marquette railroad, snowbound for six days a short distance south of Otter Lake, has been released after repeated efforts on the part of a crew of men with a power plow. The arrival here of the train, which signalized the reopening of traffic on the division, was made the occasion for a noisy disturbance by a crowd gathered at the station.

Your Heart.

When Your Heart Fails to Pump Your Blood, Trouble Results.

Have you heart trouble?

You have, if you find it hard to breathe after walking up stairs, exercising, etc. If you have pain in your left side, in chest, back or shoulder. If you suffer from cold extremities, pale face, blue lips, dry cough, swollen ankles.

TAFT HONORED GUEST.

Michigan Again Entertains Secretary of War.

SPEAKS AT GRAND RAPIDS.

Chief Speaker at Lincoln Club Banquet—Eulogizes Martyred President and Reviews Philippine Policy. Other Prominent Men Also Attend.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Feb. 13.—The Lincoln club banquet here last night was a brilliant success, with a galaxy of prominent speakers. It was held in the Klingman furniture exposition building, and more than 2,000 persons occupied seats at the table. The hall was elaborately decorated, and, as a compliment to Ambassador Jusserand of France, French colors were mingled with the American.

President Roy M. Watkins of the Young Men's Republican club and President Charles Holden of the Lincoln club opened the banquet with greetings. Senator William Alden Smith was toastmaster and introduced the guests of the evening. The speakers were Ambassador Jusserand, Congressman George Edmund Foss, Secretary of War William H. Taft, Governor Curtis Guild, Jr., of Massachusetts and Director John Barrett of the bureau of American republics at Washington.

Each speaker was enthusiastically received, but the greatest ovation was accorded Secretary Taft.

It was a busy day for Taft. He arrived from Kansas City at 2:15, and the day's activities included a public reception at the Morton House, a reception and speech at the convention of the State League of Republican Clubs, a reception and speech to the Taft club at the Majestic theater, a social dinner at the home of Philo C. Fuller, the Lincoln club banquet and address and another banquet later in the evening.

Governor Guild of Massachusetts and Governor Warner of Michigan were guests at a luncheon given by the Spanish War Veterans.

An incident of the banquet was the announcement that Senator William Alden Smith would not be a candidate for delegate-at-large to the Republican national convention, he withdrawing in favor of John W. Blodgett, Michigan's member of the Republican national committee.

Of Political Nature.

Secretary Taft's address was largely of a political nature. He dealt to considerable length with that subject upon which he is so well informed, namely, the nation's policy in the Philippines.

Mr. Taft again voiced his approval of the manner in which the administration had dealt with the so-called trusts and expressed the opinion that he believed Lincoln would have acted as Roosevelt has done had he been living in the present age. Mr. Taft's subject was, "What Would Lincoln Do Today?"

Speaking of Lincoln, he said in part:

"It is difficult to fit into a new niche of history a really great man whose greatness is indissolubly associated with a particular crisis in which he lived. One cannot take him from the environment in which the grandness of his character stands out.

"There are a few lives which seem to have been shapen so providentially to meet a country's great need as that of Lincoln with reference to slavery and the civil war. Coming from a childhood of the greatest penury and discomfort and squalor, mingling with the humblest and the poorest in a western settlement, Lincoln acquired a sense of equality and democracy and a love of equal rights that never left him and gave deep color to his whole life.

Had Great Sense of Justice.

"His soul revolted at human slavery. He had a tenderness of heart and a sympathy with his fellow men that manifested itself in the smallest details of his life, and he had a power of putting himself in another's place which gave him a profound sense of justice. He understood the place of human nature as few men have. He knew the motives and the things which influenced the plain people as no other American in our American race of politicians has understood them.

"He had a sense of humor and a power of quaint expression and a capacity for creating apt stories which enabled him to give force by homely illustration to the arguments which his great power of logic enabled him to drive home. He was the greatest politician of his age; and, while he had deeply imbedded in his moral nature the principles in favor of human liberty, he did not propose to sacrifice his influence to bring about the goal of his whole life's ambition by going so fast in extreme declarations of abstract principles as to deprive him of future usefulness."

Coldwater, Mich., Feb. 13.—The annual banquet of the Branch County Lincoln club was held here last evening. Four hundred were seated at the banquet table and half as many more gathered to hear the speaking that followed. United States Senator J. C. Burrows of Kalamazoo was toastmaster, and addresses were made by J. Adam Bede, congressman from Minnesota; Burnitt Hamilton, Battle Creek, and C. N. Baldwin of Adrian.

Noted Prelate Is Dead.

Marshall, Mich., Feb. 13.—Rev. Fr. Peter A. Baart, rector of St. Mary's church, one of the best known priests in Michigan and internationally recognized as an authority on church law, is dead. Dr. Baart attended a seminary in Kalamazoo Tuesday, last week, and returned with a severe cold. Pneumonia developed in its severest form. The funeral arrangements will be made by Bishop Foley in Detroit. Dr. Baart was born in Coldwater July 28, 1855. After attending public and private schools, he was sent to St. Mary's in Cincinnati, O. In 1880, he obtained the degree of licentiate of sacred theology in St. Mary's university in Baltimore. While still a deacon and too young for priesthood, he temporarily acted as secretary for Bishop Borgess of Detroit. He was ordained to the priesthood June 29, 1881, and made assistant of Holy Trinity church in Detroit. Eight months later, he went to Marshall at the request of Bishop Borgess and took charge of the local parish, then badly demoralized. With untiring zeal, he built up the parish to be one of the handsomest and best church properties in the state. As an authority on church law, several important matters were referred to him from Rome for report or settlement.

Plymouth, Mich., Feb. 13.—Bundled in neat clothes, a baby was found on the doorstep of the residence of Mr. and Mrs. George Wilskie in the morning. Pinned to the clothes, was the following note:

"Take good care of the baby. Feed the best milk fixed with warm water. His name is Harry Smith, and he is legal. He comes from a poor family, and his father is dead. Take good care of him, and you will be rewarded some day. He is a month old.

(Signed) "THE MOTHER."

The Wilskies will likely turn the child over to the authorities.

LINCOLN'S BIRTHDAY.

Many Organizations Throughout Country Observe It.

NOTED MEN MAKE SPEECHES

Washington's Grand Army and Historical Society Hold Joint Gathering—Four Senators at Pittsburg—Governor Hughes Addresses Three Clubs.

Washington, Feb. 13.—The ninety-ninth anniversary of the birth of Abraham Lincoln was fittingly celebrated here last night at the Church of Our Father, under the joint auspices of the Grand Army of the Republic and the United States Historical society, assisted by the Women's Relief corps. Mr. Harry A. Colman, president of the United States Historical society, called the meeting to order and made an address. Among the noted men who delivered addresses on the different phases of the life of the martyred president were: Vice President Fairbanks, Speaker Cannon of the house of representatives, Secretary of Agriculture Wilson, Associate Justice Harlan of the supreme court of the United States, Representatives Dawson of Iowa and others.

United States Senator Albert J. Beveridge of Indiana last night was the principal speaker at the annual Lincoln day banquet of the Marquette club. Another speaker was James R. Garfield, secretary of the interior, who spoke on "Special Privileges," reviewing the cases in which he has been interested and in which rebating has been alleged.

New York, Feb. 13.—With Governor Hughes as their chief guest of honor, three Republican organizations in the greater city celebrated Lincoln's birthday last evening by dinners. Governor Hughes began his round of speeches by attending the twenty-second annual Lincoln dinner of the Republican club of the city of New York at the Waldorf-Astoria. John Maynard Harlan of Chicago was another speaker.

Three Democratic nominees for the governorship of New York state in past campaigns spoke last night at the Lincoln birthday celebration held at the National Democratic club. The three speakers were former Judge D. Cady Herrick, John B. Stanchfield and former Justice Augustus A. Van Wyck. Over 200 members of the club and their guests attended. Judge Herrick was the guest of honor and principal speaker.

Leaving Manhattan borough, Governor Hughes went to Brooklyn, where he was the guest of and addressed two organizations, the Lincoln club and the Union League club.

Pittsburg, Feb. 13.—With four United States senators, as many congressmen and several hundred of the most prominent men of the Pittsburg district in attendance, the annual Lincoln birthday banquet of the Pittsburg Chamber of Commerce was held at the Hotel Schenley here last night. The dinner was very successful, and the chief address was delivered by Senator P. C. Knox. The other speakers and guests were: Senators J. P. Dolliver, Iowa; Thomas H. Carter, Montana; Boies Penrose, Pennsylvania, and Congressman J. Sotat Fassett of New York.

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 13.—Appropriate Lincoln birthday exercises were held Wednesday at the national Lincoln monument and the old Lincoln home. The exercises were in charge of the Grand Army of the Republic and the Women's Relief corps.

Germans to Wrestle Jap Style.

Berlin, Feb. 13.—The Japanese method of wrestling, jiu jitsu, is to be introduced into all the military and naval gymnasiums of Germany at the express command of the emperor. His majesty has directed all officers going through a course of gymnastic instruction at the central gymnasium to acquire a thorough acquaintance with the rules of jiu jitsu, more especially those connected with defense against unexpected attacks. The officers, after obtaining their certificates of proficiency, will be detailed to the gymnasiums of the various local garrisons throughout the empire, of which they will impart a knowledge of the method to the recruits as soon as they join each year.

Why the Sun Sets.

Little Jack asked his mother one night why the sun set so often. She told him that it might rise in the morning. This seemed a useless reason, and Jack hunted for another. At last he said:

"Oh, I know, mother. The sun sets so that she can hatch all the days."—Washington Star.

NEW GUNS FOR THEM.

Government Ready to Supply State Militias.

POWERFUL RIFLES MADE.

Shoots a Sharp Pointed, Light Steel Clad Bullet—Has Enormous Range. Postmaster General Meyer Opens Important Question With Senate.

Washington, Feb. 13.—Acting Secretary Oliver is able to make the important announcement that the war department, at last, is in position to completely arm the organized militia of the country, 100,000 strong, with the new high powered army rifle or musket.

The weapon is officially known as the model of 1903, rechambered for the ammunition of 1906, the distinguishing feature of which is the new sharply pointed, light steel clad bullet with its enormous range and flat trajectory. Governors of states may have the new rifle for their militia upon requisition and turning in the Krag-Jorgensen guns of the type used in the Spanish-American war, the first magazine shoulder arm regularly issued to the American army.

The completion of this stock of arms will not close the great manufacturing armories, but they will be fully employed for a long time in making a stock of the new rifles to be held in reserve for the purpose of arming any volunteer army that may be called into the field in the future.

Postmaster General Meyer has informed the senate that he believed he has the right to continue a postmaster in office even if the nomination formally has been rejected by the senate. This position raises an issue between an executive department and the senate over the constitutional provision relating to appointments and confirmations of federal officeholders.

The communication from the postoffice department relates to the case of William Northup, postmaster of Pensacola, Fla. Senator Taliaferro discovered recently that Northup is still drawing the salary as postmaster in spite of the fact that his nomination was rejected nearly a year ago. At his suggestion, the senate called upon the postmaster general for an explanation. The response was brief. Mr. Meyer declare that under the regulations governing appointments, he has the authority to continue Northup in office until his successor has been appointed. His position undoubtedly will create discussion in executive session.

NOTHING NEW DEVELOPED.

Board of State Auditors Before the Grand Jury.

Mason, Mich., Feb. 13.—The grand jury devoted Wednesday's session to former State Treasurer Glazier's financial affairs. It was an uneventful session. Practically nothing was uncovered in the way of evidence the extence of which was not known before.

The three members of the board of state auditors, Secretary of State Prescott, Auditor General Bradley and Land Commissioner Rose, occupied the entire time of the jury during the afternoon. Each of the three knew in an official way some things about the state treasury during Glazier's administration, but when each of them was asked in turn if he knew anything about alleged corrupt methods to influence the election of a United States senator in January, last year, or about certain members of the legislature striking the American Harvesting company for money as a condition for killing the bill to install a binder twine plant at Jackson prison, he declared that he knew no more than has been printed in the newspapers.

The three members of the auditing board told in detail how they passed upon the regularity of the bonds required from banks in which state funds are deposited by the treasurer and how two of them, the auditor general and the land commissioner, made monthly inspection of the treasury department. They pointed out how the treasurer has the sole discretion to say how much state funds can be deposited in one bank after the bank's bond has been approved.

The members of the board were agreed that the treasurer has altogether too much discretion in the matter. The sum of their testimony was simply to corroborate in a way what the jury had before known.

Deafness cannot be cured

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the eustachian tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give one hundred dollars for any case of deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure Send for circulars free.

Special announcement regarding the National pure food and drug law.

We are pleased to announce that Foley's honey and tar for coughs, colds and lung troubles is not affected by the National Pure Food and drug law as it contains no opiates or other harmful drugs and we recommend it as a safe remedy for children and adults Sold by all druggists in Tecumseh.

There are countless roads on all sides to the grave

At time when you don't feel just right when you have a bad stomach, take something right away that will assist digestion, not something that will stimulate for a time but something that will positively do the very work that the stomach performs under ordinary and normal conditions, something that will make the food digest To do this you must take a natural digestant like Kodol for dyspepsia. Kodol is a scientific preparation of vegetable acids with natural digestants and contains the same juices found in a healthy stomach Each dose will digest more than 3,000 grains of good food It is sure to afford prompt relief: it digests what you eat and is pleasant to take. Sold by all druggists.

Do not make unjust gains, they are equal to a loss.

Foley's honey and tar cures the most obstinate coughs and expels the cold from the system as it is mildly laxative. It is guaranteed. The genuine is in a yellow package. Sold by all druggists in Tecumseh.

The early riser is healthy, cheerful and industrious.

The trouble with most cough remedies is that they constipate. Kennedy's laxative cough syrup acts gently but promptly on the bowels and at the same time it stops the cough by soothing the throat and lung irritation Children like it. Sold by all druggists

The best swimmer is the first to drown himself.

The editor of the Memphis, Tenn., Times writes: "In my opinion of Foley's honey and tar is the best remedy for coughs, colds, lung trouble, and to my own personal knowledge Foley's honey and tar has accomplished many permanent cures that have been little short of marvellous." Refuse any but the genuine in a yellow package. For sale by all druggists in Tecumseh.

Is it not sheer madness to live poor to die rich.

Bert Barber of Elton, Wis., says: "I have only taken four doses of your kidney and bladder pills and they have done for me more than any other medicine has ever done. I am still taking the pills as I want a perfect cure." Mr. Barber refers to DeWitt's kidney and bladder pills. They are sold by all druggists.

Neighborhood Favorite.

Mrs. E. C. Charles of Harbor, Me., speaking of Electric Bitters says: "It is a neighborhood favorite here with us." It deserves to be a favorite everywhere. It gives quick relief in dyspepsia, liver complaint, kidney derangement, malnutrition, nervousness and general debility. Its action on the blood as a purifier makes it especially useful as a spring medicine. This grand alterative tonic is sold under guarantee by C. A. Wright & Son 50c.

There is nothing ill said that is not ill taken.

Many ills come from impure blood Can't have pure blood with faulty digestion, lazy liver and sluggish bowels. Burdock Blood Bitters strengthens stomach, bowels and liver, and purifies the blood.

Itching, torturing skin eruptions, disfigure, annoy, drive one wild. Doan's ointment brings quick relief and lasting cures. Fifty cents at any drug store.

....The.... McWilliams Special

...By... FRANK H. SPEARMAN

Copyright, 1900, by Frank H. Spearman

A coal went up. The little engineer shook his cap and with a flirting snaking slide the McWilliams Special drew slipping away between the shining rails for the Rockies.

Just how McWilliams felt we had no means of knowing, but we knew our hearts would not beat freely until his infernal special should slide safely over the last of the 266 miles which still lay between the distressed man and his unfortunate child.

From McCloud to Ogalalla there is a good bit of twisting and slewing, but looking east from Athens a marble dropped between the rails might roll clear into the Ogalalla yards. It is a sixty mile grade, the ballast of slag and the sweetest, springiest bed under steel.

To cover those sixty miles in better than fifty minutes was like picking them off the ponies, and the Five-Nine breasted the Morgan divide, fretting for more hills to climb.

The Five-Nine—for that matter any of the skyscrapers are built to balance ten or a dozen sleepers, and when you run them light they have a fashion of rooting their noses into the track. A modest up grade just about counters this tendency, but on a slump and a stiff clip and no tail to speak of you feel as if the drivers were going to buck up on the ponies every once in awhile. However, they never do, and Georgie whistled for Scarboro Junction and 180 miles and two waters in

198 minutes out of McCloud, and, looking happy, cussed Mr. McWilliams a little and gave her another batful of steam.

It is getting down a hill, like the hills of the Mattaback valley, at such a pace that pounds the track out of shape. The Five-Nine lurched at the curves like a mad woman, shook free with very fury, and if the baggage car had not been fairly loaded down with the grief of McWilliams it must have jumped the rails a dozen times in as many minutes.

Indeed the fireman—it was Jerry MacElroy—twisting and shifting between the tender and the furnace, looked for the first time grave and stole a questioning glance from the steam gauge toward Georgie.

But yet he didn't expect to see the boy, his face set ahead and down the track, straighten so suddenly up, sink in the lever and close at the instant on the air. Jerry felt her stumble under his feet—caught up like a girl in a skipping rope—and, grabbing a brace, looked, like a wise stoker, for his answer out of his window. There far ahead it rose in hot curling clouds of smoke down among the alfalfa meadows and over the sweep of willows along the Mattaback river. The Mattaback bridge was on fire, with the McWilliams Special on one side and Denver on the other.

Jerry MacElroy yelled. The engineer didn't even look around, only whistled an alarm back to Pat Francis, eased her down the grade a bit, like a man reflecting, and watched the smoke and flames that rose to bar the McWilliams Special out of Denver.

The Five-Nine skimmed across the meadows without a break and pulled up a hundred feet from the burning bridge. It was an old Howe truss and snapped like popcorn as the flames bit into the rotten shed.

Pat Francis and his brakeman ran forward. Across the river they could see half a dozen section men chasing wildly about throwing impotent buckets of water on the burning truss.

"We're up against it, Georgie," cried Francis.

"Not if we can get across before the bridge tumbles into the river," returned Sinclair.

"You don't mean you'd try it?"

"Would I? Wouldn't I? You know the orders. That bridge is good for an hour yet. Pat, if you're game I'll run it."

"Holy smoke!" mused Pat Francis, who would have run the river without any bridge at all if so ordered. "They told us to deliver the goods, didn't they?"

"We might as well be starting, Pat," suggested Jerry MacElroy, who deprecated losing good time. "There'll be plenty of time to talk after we get into Denver or the Mattaback."

"Think quick, Pat," urged Sinclair. His safety was popping murder.

"Back her up, then, and let her go!" cried Francis. "I'd just as lief have that baggage car at the bottom of the river as on my hands any longer!"

There was some sharp tooting; then the McWilliams Special backed; backed away across the meadow, halted and screamed hard enough to wake the dead. Georgie was trying to warn the section men. At that instant the door of the baggage car opened, and a sharp featured young man peered out.

"What's the row? What's all this screeching about, conductor?" he asked as Francis passed.

"Bridge burning ahead there."

"Bridge burning!" he cried, looking nervously forward. "Well, that's a deal! What you going to do about it?"

"Run it. Are you McWilliams?"

"McWilliams? I wish I was for just one minute. I'm one of his clerks."

"Where is he?"

"I left him on La Salle street yesterday afternoon."

"What's your name?"

"Just plain Ferguson."

"Well, Ferguson, it's none of my business, but as long as we're going to put you into Denver or into the river in about a minute I'm curious to know what the blazes you're hustling along this way for."

"Me? I've got $1,200,000 in gold coin in this car for the Sierra Leone National bank—that's all. Didn't you know that five big banks there closed their doors yesterday? Worst panic in the United States. That's what I'm here for and five huskies with me eating and sleeping in this car," continued Ferguson, looking ahead. "You're not going to tackle that bridge, are you?"

"We are and right off. If there's any of your huskies want to drop out, now's their chance," said Pat Francis as Sinclair slowed up for his run.

Ferguson called his men. The five, with their rifles, came cautiously forward.

"Boys," said Ferguson briefly, "there's a bridge afire ahead. Those guys are going to try to run it. It's not in your contract, that kind of a chance. Do you want to get off? I stay with the specie, myself. You can do exactly as you please. Murray, what do you say?" he asked, addressing the leader of the force, who appeared to weigh about 260.

"What do I say?" echoed Murray, with decision, as he looked for a soft place to alight alongside the track. "I say I'll drop out right here. I don't mind train robbers, but I don't tackle a burning bridge—not if I know it," and he jumped off.

"Well, Peaters," asked Ferguson of the second man coolly, "do you want to stay?"

"Me?" echoed Peaters, looking ahead at the mass of flame leaping upward. "Me stay? Well, not in a thousand years. You can have my gun, Mr. Ferguson, and send my check to 439 Milwaukee avenue, if you please. Gentlemen, good day." And off went Peaters.

And off went every last man of the valorous detectives except one lame fellow, who said he would just as lief be dead as alive anyway and declared he would stay with Ferguson and die rich.

Sinclair, thinking he might never get another chance, was whistling sharply for orders. Francis, breathless with the news, ran forward.

"Coin? How much? Twelve hundred thousand. Whew!" cried Sinclair. "Swing up, Pat. We're off."

The Five-Nine gathered herself with a spring. Even the engineer's heart quailed as they got headway. He knew his business, and he knew that if only the rails hadn't buckled they were perfectly safe, for the heavy truss would stand a lot of burning before giving way under a swiftly moving train. Only, as they flew nearer, the blaze rolling up in dense volume looked horribly threatening. After all, it was foolhardy, and he felt it, but he was past the stopping now, and he pulled the choker to the limit. It seemed as if she never covered steel so fast. Under the head she now had the crackling bridge was less than five hundred, four hundred, three hundred, two hundred feet, and there was no longer time to think. With a stare, Sinclair shut off. He wanted no push or pull on the track. The McWilliams Special was just a tremendous arrow, shooting through a truss of fire and half a dozen speechless men on either side of the river waiting for the catastrophe.

Jerry MacElroy crouched low under the gauges. Sinclair jumped from his box and stood with a hand on the throttle and a hand on the air, the glass crashing around his head like hail. A blast of fiery air and flying cinders burned and choked him. The engine, alive with danger, flew like a great monkey along the writhing steel. So quick, so black, so hot the blast and so terrific the leap, she stuck her nose into clean air before the men in the cab could rise to it.

There was a heave in the middle like the lurch of a seaslck steamer, and with it the Five-Nine got her paws on cool iron and solid ground, and the Mattaback and the blaze, all except a dozen tongues which licked the cab and the roof of the baggage car a minute, were behind. Georgie Sinclair, shaking the hot glass out of his hair, looked ahead through his frizzled eyelids and gave her a full head for the western bluffs of the valley; then looked at his watch.

It was the one hundred and ninetieth milepost just at her nose, and the dial read 8:55 to a second. There was an hour to the good and seventy-six miles and a water to cover, but they were seventy-six of the prettiest miles under ballast anywhere, and the Five-Nine reeled them off like a cylinder press. Seventy-nine minutes later Sinclair whistled for the Denver yards.

There was a tremendous commotion among the waiting engines. If there was one there were fifty big locomotives waiting to charivari the McWilliams Special. The wires had told the story in Denver long before, and as the Five-Nine sailed ponderously up the gridiron every mogul, every consolidated, every ten wheeler, every hog, every switch bumper, every air hose screamed an uproarious welcome to Georgie Sinclair and the skyscraper.

They had broken every record from McCloud to Denver, and all knew it, but as the McWilliams Special drew swiftly past every last man in the yards stared at her cracked, peeled, blistered, haggard looks.

"What the deuce have you bit into?" cried the depot master as the Five-Nine swept splendidly up and stopped with her battered eye hard on the depot clock.

"Mattaback bridge is burned. Had to crawl over on the stringers," answered Sinclair, coughing up a cinder.

"Where's McWilliams?"

While the crew went up to register two big four horse trucks backed up to the baggage car, and in a minute a dozen men were rolling specie kegs out of the door, which they laid in, as being quicker than to tear open the barricades.

Sinclair, MacElroy and Francis with his brakeman were surrounded by a crowd of railroad men. As they stood answering questions a big prosperous looking banker with black rings under his eyes pushed in toward them, accompanied by the lame fellow, who had missed the chance of a lifetime to die rich, and by Ferguson, who had told the story.

The banker shook hands with each one of the crew. "You've saved us, boys. We needed it. There's a mob of 5,000 of the worst scared people in America clamoring at the doors, and, by the eternal, now we're fixed for every one of them. Come up to the bank. I want you to ride right up with the coin, all of you."

It was an uncommonly queer occasion, but an uncommonly enthusiastic one. Fifty policemen made the escort and cleared the way for the trucks to pull up across the sidewalk so the porters could lug the kegs of gold into the bank before the very eyes of the rattled depositors.

In an hour the run was broken. But when the four railroad men left the bank after all sorts of hugging by excited directors they carried not only the blessings of the officials, but each in his vest pocket a check, every one of which discounted the biggest voucher ever drawn on the West End for a month's pay, though I violate no confidence in stating that Georgie Sinclair's was bigger than any two of the others. And this is how it happens that there hangs in the directors' room of the Sierra Leone National a very creditable portrait of the kid engineer.

Besides paying tariff on the specie, the bank paid for a new coat of paint for the McWilliams Special from caboose to pilot. She was the last train across the Mattaback for two weeks.

Professor Swallowed It All.

The scholarly William E. Byerly, professor of mathematics at Harvard, was once asked by a student how to develop a retentive memory. The professor answered that ordinary mental exercise was sufficient to secure a good memory, whereat the student asked if he might test the mental capacity of his instructor. Professor Byerly agreed, and the student asked him to listen to and remember several varied items for a test. He began:

"One quart of whisky."

"Um!" said the professor.

"Six pounds of sugar, a pint of sour milk, three onions, half a gallon of molasses and two raw eggs."

"Um!" said the professor.

"Two green apples, twenty-six peanuts, one and a half cucumbers and four mince pies."

"Um!" said the professor.

"A package of starch, sixty-seven cakes of yeast and the skins of seven bananas. Got that down?"

"Yes," answered Dr. Byerly.

"How does it taste?" asked the student.—Boston Herald.

Close Questioning.

In recalling incidents connected with Virginia politics some years ago a prominent Virginian recently related to a Washington man an account of an investigation of election frauds in the lower section of the state. In the course of the proceedings it developed that the ballots in an important precinct had not been sealed after the final count, thereby being exposed to fraudulent practices. The chairman of the investigating committee closely questioned the election judge as to why the prescribed duty of carefully securing the ballots had been neglected.

"Could you not obtain any mucilage in the town?"

"No, sir."

"Could you not procure some sealing wax—some shoemaker's wax, if nothing else?"

"No, sir."

"Well, then, sir, why didn't you go out into the woods and get some resin? Do you mean to tell me that there were no pine trees around there shedding tears at your infamous rascality?"—Washington Star.

THE MONEY QUESTION.

An Inquisitive Youngster and an Ingenious Father.

"Papa," began Gunston junior, "when the government of the United States began to coin gold and silver money it was necessary to buy the gold and silver, wasn't it?"

"Yes, my son," replied Gunston senior rather cautiously.

"Of course, papa," resumed the youngster, "you'll be able to tell me where the government got the money to buy the gold and silver."

"Why—er—of course," stammered Gunston senior as he put down the paper and gazed thoughtfully at the boy. "Now, let me understand you. The government wanted to coin money, and in order to do so it was necessary to purchase gold and silver. You want to know where the government got the money to buy the gold and silver?"

"That's right," chuckled Gunston junior gleefully, and a great joy filled his being as he thought of his all important sire struggling with the simple question.

"Why, sonny, the government simply issued dollar bills and bought gold and silver with them. Anything else?"

"Yes," said Gunston junior. "Where did the government get money to buy paper for the dollar bills?"—Harper's Weekly.

The Bible of the Poor.

The "Bible of the Poor" was one of the most interesting of the early block books, which were printed in Belgium in the fourteenth century, before the use of movable type, from blocks. The book consisted of forty leaves, printed on one side, making twenty when pasted together, and gave a pictorial representation of scenes from the life and passion of our Lord, with suitable inscriptions from holy writ in the abbreviated Latin of the period. The "Biblia Pauperum," as it was called, was intended as an aid to devotion for the use of poor persons who could not afford to buy complete copies of the Bible. Originally the book is believed to have been specially designed for the poor friars, who found the pictures useful when they went about preaching, to illustrate their sermons and to rouse the interest of their congregations. A richly illuminated MS. of the "Bible of the Poor," executed in the Netherlands about 1400, is kept in the British museum. An early copy of the "Biblia Pauperum" was sold some years ago for 245 guineas.

VILLAGE LOCAL CHURCH AFFAIRS

WORK BEING DONE IN OUR CHURCHES.

What is accomplished through the Social Life.

UNIVERSALIST CHURCH.

Henry Sweet has been suffering an attack of lagrippe since Saturday.

Every one who has a copy of my Choice Hymns No. 1, please return to me by next Sunday. THE PASTOR.

Miss Amanda Kidder of Detroit, well known here, will occupy the pulpit Sunday morning, Mar. 1, during the absence of our pastor at Onstell. Come and hear her.

A letter from Mrs. Henry Shepherd of Cleveland, reports herself and daughter's family well and enjoying the activities of All Souls Universalist church in that city.

As already noticed in the Tuesday's issue, Mrs. Mary E. Hayward died of paralysis at her home in Longmont, Col., Monday evening, Feb. 3 '08, aged 79 years. Mrs. Hayward was the wife of Rev. Henry L. Hayward, pastor of our church here from 1853 to '70, resigning his charge at that time but continuing his residence here until '79 when they moved to Longmont, where he served as pastor of the local church until 1882, when he purchased an interest in the Longmont Ledger which he edited until his death Sept. 26, 1897. Mrs. Hayward retained her interest in the Ledger until her death.

Hers was a very active, purposeful life. Besides being a most zealous and devoted Universalist all her life, she was an ardent W. C. T. U. woman and interested and helpful in all reform work both at home and abroad. She was a woman of rare intellectual gifts and noble christian character. Though very outspoken against any evil, she was dearly beloved by all who knew her. One niece residing in San Antonio, Texas, is her sole surviving relative and she was unable to be present at her aunt's funeral, but there was no lack of genuine mourners. Her body was lovingly laid to rest by the side of her husband in the Longmont cemetery Feb 6. Her property was almost entirely willed to St. Lawrence University, a Universalist school, at Canton, N. Y., and $1000 went to the church of her faith in Denver.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

Session meeting will be held at the manse next Tuesday evening.

Mrs. Snedicor will entertain the Messenger boys next Monday at tea.

The prayer meetings are being well attended and with great interest. In spite of bad weather Wednesday sixty were present.

The ladies aid society held a business meeting at the church yesterday and the plans for remodelling the church were discussed.

Mrs. Slayton entertained her Sunday school class at her home last evening. Several others were invited in to share the social hour.

This week the young people have made the most of the sleighing. Saturday the primary and juniors were given a ride, the Messenger boys went to Clinton Monday and Thursday the Christian Endeavors, 75 strong, went to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Vance Goheen, where a delightful evening was spent.

MEN'S BANQUET NEXT FRIDAY NIGHT.

The annual banquet given by the men of the church will be held in the church parlors next Friday night. Invitations will be sent out tomorrow and 150 plates will be provided for. Banquet will begin at 6 sharp.

The banquet is to be of a high order and an excellent program has been prepared. The feature of the evening will be the presence of Mr. Wang, a resident of Shanghai, China, one of the most brilliant Chinamen in America, who will respond to the toast "A Chinaman's Impressions of America." He is a graduate of the Imperial University in China and will come dressed in native costume. He is being educated here to take charge of the Y. M. C. A. in Japan.

In addition Rev. Sweet of Hudson, will speak. F. K. Hurst will act as toastmaster and enliven the evening with an entirely new set of jokes. There will be a fine musical program. The committee will make full announcements Tuesday.

METHODIST CHURCH.

The intermediate and primary departments have contributed $1.25 to the old people's home in Chelsea.

Much interest was manifest in the men's class Sunday in studying the inspirations of the Bible led by J. S. Temple. About 30 were present.

The second quarterly tea meeting of the W. F. M. S was held last evening at the home of Miss Carrie Sawyer. A good program was given and a fine supper served.

The pastor has been invited by the superintendent of the Anti-saloon league to be one of fifty speakers in the Local Option contest to be simultaneously carried on in fourteen counties this spring.

The regular meeting of the Queen Esther Circle will be held at the home of Edna Wright Saturday at 3 p. m. The study topic is our work in the south. Full attendance desired to discuss important plans.

Our church suffers a severe loss in the leaving of Mr. and Mrs. Abrams. They have been loyal supporters and it will be difficult, indeed, to supply his place in directing the music. May they be greatly prospered in their new home.

The special committee appointed to draft a constitution and by-laws for the Sunday school is beginning its work and it is greatly desired that all who have any suggestions to offer will at once hand such to the superintendent or pastor as soon as possible.

FRIENDS CHURCH.

Mrs. Thos. Hanley is on the sick list.

Mrs. E. A. Wollam is confined to her home with a severe cold.

In spite of the inclement weather Wednesday evening there was an unusually large number at prayer meeting. The pastor gave a most helpful talk on "Being Like Jesus."

The Junior Christian Endeavor society had a most interesting service last Sunday. The following program was given:

Music.
Sentence prayers.
Responsive reading conducted by Beth Satterthwaite.
Music.
History of Junior C. E.—Lowa Howe.
True Heart of C. E.—Lena Lockwood.
Five months of Francis E. Clark's work—Clyde Mitchell.
Music.
Bible texts contest conducted by Mrs. Wollam.
Repeating of texts by each member of the society.
Music.

Miss Merle Kenyon has the Junior work in charge.

BAPTIST CHURCH.

Mrs. Gates of Detroit, is spending some time among friends here.

Mrs. Lydia McIntyre is helping to care for her granddaughter, who is very ill.

The Sunday school voted to give $5 toward the new singing books we have just purchased.

Miss Helen Fisher of Oberlin, O., is making an extended visit with her aunt, Mrs. O. B. Finch.

We were pleased to have Misses Ethel Keyser and Maud Rogers as visitors in our S. S. last Sunday.

Miss Fern Stringham played the organ last Sunday in place of Mrs. Harry Moore, who was visiting her parents in Ann Arbor.

EPISCOPAL CHURCH.

Mrs. Albert is a prisoner at present owing to an attack of neuralgia.

A missionary tea is being held at the home of Mrs. Floyd Freeman this afternoon.

Mrs. C. C. Kemp of Clinton, attended the Monday club picnic held at Mrs. Gillespie's Monday afternoon.

Services will be held in the Episcopal church Sunday morning at 10 o'clock. Sunday school at 11:30. Mid-week service Friday night at 7:30 followed by choir practice.

Nursing baby?

It's a heavy strain on mother.

Her system is called upon to supply nourishment for two.

Some form of nourishment that will be easily taken up by mother's system is needed.

Mother and baby are wonderfully helped by its use.

A Little Too Far.

"There is such a thing as overdoing your part," declared a man of the law who now has the knowledge gained by much experience.

"Shortly after I began practice in the west I was called upon to defend a man who had drawn a revolver on another and threatened to kill him. The accused did not have a character above reproach, but the prosecuting witness was also shady in reputation, and I made the most of this fact. I pictured him as a desperado of the most dangerous type, a man that was a constant menace to the community and one who would recognize no other law than that of force. Such men as he, I insisted, made necessary the organization of vigilance committees and injured the fair name of the west among the older communities of the country.

"The jury returned a verdict of guilty and my man was sentenced to a year's imprisonment. As soon as court adjourned the foreman of the jury came to me and said: 'Young feller, you spread it on too thick. After that there rip snortin' speech of yourn we couldn't do nothin' else 'an what we done.'

"'I don't understand you, sir.'

"'You don't? Why, we found the durned gerloot guilty 'cause he didn't shoot.'"—Detroit Free Press.

What English Means.

Mrs. Smith—What are you reading, John? Mr. Smith—I am reading Herbert Spencer's "Principles of Biology." Mrs. Smith—Why—what—what's that, John? Mr. Smith—Herbert Spencer's "Biology." Let me read you an extract—his definition of life. Listen: "It consists of the definite combinations of heterogeneous changes, but simultaneous and successive, in combination with external coexistences and sequences."

"Why, John, what in the world is the man talking about?"

"I am astonished at you, Jane. Why, this is the work of the great English scientist."

"Yes, I know, but what is he writing about?"

"He is defining life, I told you. What did you suppose he was writing about?"

"Good gracious! I thought he was trying to get a patent on a clothes-horse."—London Tit-Bits.

When Religion Called.

In his book "Work in Great Cities" the bishop of London writes: "You have often not only to learn, but to practice, what may be described as the foot and door trick. It is ruination to the boot and sometimes hurts the toe, but it consists in rapidly, but quickly, passing the foot in the moment the door is opened in order to secure, at any rate, a few minutes' parley." As to what may happen he writes: "After long hesitation it will be opened by a little girl about half a foot, and then you will hear a distant voice from the wash tub in the rear, 'Well, Sally, who is it?' Then Sally will answer at the top of her voice, 'Please, mother, it's religion.' You will require all your presence of mind to cope with that."

The time came, however, when every door was thrown wide open to welcome "our bishop."—London Christian Globe.

Sweetly Thoughtful.

The De Jones back lawn was a lawn in name only. It was really an arid desert—bald, so to speak—and in dry weather it was always as dusty as a motor track. To the astonishment of Mrs. De Smythe, who lived next door, she one day saw her devoted husband turning the garden hose upon the De Jones' "lawn."

"Well, I never!" she exclaimed, "I'm sure I wouldn't trouble to lay the dust in the De Jones' back yard, John, especially as they are such a hateful lot of gossips. Small thanks you'll get for your trouble anyway."

Hubby turned to his better half with a smile which told of mixed pleasure and vindictiveness.

"That's all right, my dear. Their darling little Fido was washed snow white this morning. Now he's out there rolling about like a barrel and rubbing the mud well into his fleecy coat. Trust your husband, my sweet, for real, unadulterated thoughtfulness!"—London Scraps.

Keeping open house.

SELFRIDGE WINS FIGHT.

Overcomes objections of London County Council to building plans.

The following cable from London, England, will be read with interest by the friends of Harry G. Selfridge, a former resident of this place, but in recent years a merchant prince of Chicago and London:

Harry G. Selfridge, the Chicago merchant, has won a signal victory in his fight to put up a Chicago building in Oxford street in staid old London.

The final obstacle has been overcome and work on the construction is being rushed. The building will be ready for occupancy by the end of the year.

The obstacles have been of two kinds. One was the uncompromising attitude of certain owners of old buildings that had to be pulled down and the other was the mediaeval building regulations of the London county council.

Under the pressure of the Chicagoan and the interests allied with him the councilors admitted the soundness of the American building methods and framed a bill which will be pressed at once in parliament to permit the use of these methods here.

Mr. Selfridge is constructing a steel shell with which, should the necessary law not be obtained in time, he can build the thick walls required by the London regulations.

The name of the firm, instead of being Selfridge & Waring, as was originally proposed, will be the Selfridge Company, Limited.

Mr. Selfridge is planning a trip to Chicago with his mother in a few weeks.

RECIPE FOR RHEUMATISM.

There is so much rheumatism here in our neighborhood that the following advice by an eminent authority who writes for readers of a large Eastern daily paper, will be highly appreciated by those who suffer:

Get from any good pharmacy ¼ ounce fluid extract dandelion, 1 ounce compound kargon, 3 ounces of compound sarsaparilla. Shake these well in a bottle and take in teaspoonful doses after each meal at bedtime; also drink plenty of good water.

It is claimed that there are few victims of this dread and torturous disease who will find ready relief in this simple home made mixture and in most cases a permanent cure is the result.

This simple receipt is said to strengthen and cleanse the eliminative tissues of the kidneys so they can filter from the blood and system the poisons, acids and waste matter which cause not only rheumatism but numerous other diseases. Every man or woman here who feels that their kidneys are not healthy and active or who suffer from any urinary trouble whatever should not hesitate to make up this mixture as it is certain to do much good and may save you from much misery and suffering after awhile.

Our home druggists say they will either supply the ingredients or mix the prescription ready to take if our readers ask them.

Michigan for Horse Racing.

The word has gone forth among the trainers and a number of those around Cleveland say that Michigan looks good to them. By coming up here they know they will have racing all summer without a bit of trouble and that their horses will be carried from one town to the other at the least expense.

Not only will the best men try the Michigan game, but trainers who live here and have raced elsewhere think they will do just as well at home. One of these is Fred D. Teachout of Tecumseh. Teachout was a big winner up this way for several years and last season after two meetings he strayed. That was about enough, for he says he will stay up here in 1908 and a few years after that.

Fred D. Teachout is at his home in Tecumseh, where he has been working a number of horses and he says that he will be ready when the bell rings at Ionia, where he started last year. Teachout will not have that "white thing," Fred D., that took a mark of 2:11¼ at Monroe. He won six races with Fred D. and sold him for $3,500, which calls to mind the fact that the McGettigans, for whom Teachout works, can sell one as good as anybody. They got $3,250 for the Pacelot, 2:14¼. It is expected that Teachout will have the pacing stallion McCrage Simmons, 2:08¼, on a half-mile track, which is the stallion record for the year.

Central G., 2:16¼ will be Teachout's entry in trotting classes. Tony B. 2:14¼ that won five 1sts for him is looking good. He will also try Fair Ellen, 2:23¼ that was sick most of the season.

If stakes are given Teachout will be there with his 3-year old trotter by Metallas, 2:11, the pet of the string. He claims this one is faster than anything any of the rest of the boys have. Time will tell.

EAT WHAT YOU WANT

A few years ago, when a sufferer from indigestion went to a stomach specialist, the result was a frigid diet list that almost meant starvation.

But the first thing to do in the case of indigestion or stomach weakness is to strengthen the muscular walls of the stomach and intestines, so that they will care for the food that is eaten. In no other way can this be done as well as by taking a Mi-o-na tablet before each meal. This restores strength to the stomach muscles and stimulates the pouring out of gastric juices, so that the food is digested readily and its nourishment retained in the system to build up energy and vitality.

Do not think the sick headache, heartburn, bad taste in the mouth, coated tongue, spots before the eyes, sleeplessness and the many other symptoms that are the direct result of indigestion, will go away of themselves. The stomach must be built up and strengthened by Mi-o-na before you can be well and strong, free from suffering and distress.

In many of the best homes in Tecumseh and adjoining towns, the handy little Mi-o-na tablets, so pleasant to take, yet so effective, have given quick and lasting relief from indigestion and that disagreeable full feeling after eating.

The guarantee that C. A. Wright & Son give with every 50-cent box of Mi-o-na, to refund the money unless the remedy cures, shows their confidence in the treatment. They take the whole risk and Mi-o-na will not cost you a penny unless it cures

ECZEMA

Cured in less than four weeks.

Those who have had experience with this stubborn disease can hardly believe at first that Wonderful Dream Salve can and does cure Eczema.

There is no doubt about the matter whatever. A great many letters are on file in our office from grateful patients, telling of the quick and easy way in which Wonderful Dream Salve has removed all traces of this torturing skin affliction.

Mr. John T. Kealey, a well-known business man, located in the Stevens Bldg., Detroit, Mich., was recently cured of a bad case of Eczema of fourteen years' standing. After treating with many doctors and taking many remedies without relief, Mr. Kealey was induced to try Wonderful Dream Salve, and in four weeks was entirely cured. He says:

"I certainly consider this a remarkable cure, inasmuch as I have spent hundreds of dollars in the fourteen years of annoyance with this troublesome itching skin ailment. I have since the cure of my case heard of other cures, some of them even more remarkable than mine, which go toward demonstrating the value of Wonderful Dream Salve as a great skin healer."

If you have Eczema, why not try a box of Wonderful Dream Salve. If it fails, your druggist will refund your money. Isn't that fair enough? Keep it in your home for Chilblains, Chapped hands, Piles, Cuts, Burns, Frost-bites, Boils and Sores of any kind. You will never use anything else 25c a box at your druggist or mailed prepaid direct.

The Cause of Many Sudden Deaths.

There is a disease prevailing in this country most dangerous because so deceptive. Many sudden deaths are caused by it—heart disease, pneumonia, heart failure or apoplexy are often the result of kidney disease. If kidney trouble is allowed to advance the kidney-poisoned blood will attack the vital organs, causing catarrh of the bladder, or the kidneys themselves break down and waste away cell by cell.

It corrects inability to hold urine and scalding pain in passing it, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often through the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases.

Swamp-Root is pleasant to take and is sold by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle of this wonderful new discovery and a book that tells all about it, both sent free by mail. Address, Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper. Don't make a mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

CURED TO STAY CURED.

If you suffer from backache
From urinary disorders
Or any disease of the kidneys
Be cured to stay cured
Doan's Kidney Pills will cure you.
Tecumseh people testify.
Read a case of it:

Orson Austin, retired, living on Logan street, Tecumseh, Mich., says "I still hold the same high opinion of Doan's Kidney Pills today as when I gave my statement for publication some 5 years ago. Prior to that time I had kidney disease with distressing pains in my my kidneys. I did not take care of the trouble at first and it finally became aggravated and the pain so severe that I could not stoop or lift anything. I used a number of highly recommended remedies but received only temporary relief. Finally I tried Doan's Kidney Pills receiving much benefit so I continued until cured. I am always glad to recommend Doan's Kidney Pills."

LOST ON ISLAND.

Admiral Evans Will Search For a "Robinson Crusoe" In South American Waters.

Washington, Feb. 13.—A man by the name of Jeffs, and whose home is said to have been in Connecticut, is believed to be stranded on one of the Galapagos or Tortoise islands, situated off the west coast of South America.

A prominent person from Connecticut interested in Jeff's case has written to the department asking that one of the vessels of Admiral Evans' fleet stop at the islands on their way from Callao, Peru, to Magdalena bay and make a search for him. According to the information at hand, Jeffs is thought to be on the island of Santa Cruz, which also bears the name of indefatigable, but definite data about him is lacking.

A request made heretofore that an American war vessel search for the man had to be refused, because there were no ships in that part of the world at the time. This time, however, one will stop and orders with that end in view will be given to Admiral Evans before he leaves Callao. Either a supply ship or the repair vessel accompanying the battleships will conduct the search. There is a lighthouse on one of the islands, which are said to be now nearly unpeopled.

To Erect Memorial to Hamilton.

Washington, Feb. 13.—At a largely attended meeting of the board of trustees of the Alexander Hamilton National Memorial association here, a project for the erection of a memorial in honor of Hamilton in this city was launched. The following permanent officers of the association were elected: President, Justice John M. Harlan of the supreme court of the United States; vice presidents, Secretary of the Treasury George B. Cortelyou, H. B. F. McFarland of the board of commissioners of the District of Columbia, Senator Lodge of Massachusetts, Judge John F. Dillon of New York and former Ambassador Joseph H. Choate of New York; secretary, Frank W. Collins, Washington, D. C.; assistant secretary, Paul E. Sleman, Washington, D. C.; treasurer, Milton E. Alles, Washington, D. C.

Five Probably Killed.

Providence, R. I., Feb. 13.—Five persons are believed to have been killed by the explosion of a mixer in the starch factory of C. S. Tanner. Three persons were injured. Their condition is not regarded as serious. The building was badly wrecked by the explosion and fire following completed the work of destruction. The dead: Richard Gomes, John Dautt and three other men, names unknown. Three colored men who were passing the building at the time were hit by bricks and pieces of mortar and also suffered burns from quantities of hot starch, which was sprinkled liberally about the neighborhood. The exact cause of the explosion remains still to be determined.

Loyal Legions Banquet.

Washington, Feb. 13.—The Hon. James Bryce, the British ambassador to the United States, and Justice David J. Brewer of the United States supreme court were among the speakers at the twenty-sixth annual banquet of the Military Order of the Loyal Legion of the United States, which last night celebrated the anniversary of the birth of Abraham Lincoln. Mr. Bryce responded to the toast, "Lincoln, the Thinker and Leader;" Justice Brewer, "The Military Order of the Loyal Legion—a Genuine Peace Society," and Rev. Ulysses Grant B. Pierce of Washington, "The Habit of Heroism, the Nation's True Defense." Abraham Lincoln was enrolled a companion of the Military Order of the Loyal Legion of the United States by special resolution April 16, 1865.

Sixteen Indians Tried Suicide.

San Antonio, Tex., Feb. 13.—A special to The Express from Mazatalan says: Sixteen Yaqui Indians, deported from Sonora and enroute to the Isthmus of Tehuantepec and to Yucatan, attempted to commit suicide by jumping into the ocean from the government transport when a short distance from Mazatalan. Boats were put out, and ten of the number were hauled out of the water. The other six were drowned. Those rescued declared they preferred death to serving on plantations or in the army in the "hot country" of Mexico. It is reported from Sonora that there are now more than 1,500 Yaquis under guard in that state awaiting deportation.

Captain Ward Wants Big Damages.

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 13.—Captain Eber Ward, who was severely injured in an elevator accident in the Campau building, has filed a suit for $50,000 damages in the circuit court through his attorneys, Henry G. Nicol and Bowen, Douglas, Whiting & Murfin. The case is started by praecipe against D. J. Campau, owner and manager of the block.

Led Life of Burglar at Night.

Alton, Ill., Feb. 13.—Henry Schuelle, a wealthy and long respected building contractor, in custody on a charge of burglary, has confessed that for years he had been robbing the stores of his neighbors at night. The dual life of Schuelle was revealed by Jeremiah Kennedy, owner of a dairy and cigar store, friend and neighbor, who caught Schuelle in the store at night.

Dried Elderberry Leaves in Asthma.

"If you will gather leaves from an elderberry bush when they are green and let them dry and then put them into a pillow and sleep upon them nightly for about three months," said a Petersburg (Tenn.) man, "they will cure the worst case of asthma. After they are dried the leaves have a peculiar but pleasing odor. By inhaling this odor the asthma is cured. I know a number of people who cured themselves of asthma by sleeping on dried elderberry leaves."—Nashville Tennessean.

To whom it may concern: Take notice that on December 14th, A. D. 1907, a writ of attachment was issued from the circuit court for the county of Lenawee, Michigan, wherein Fred Lewis is named as plaintiff and John C Bailey as defendant, for the sum of one hundred thirty one dollars and thirty-nine cents and that said writ was made returnable January 6th A. D. 1908.

Dated January 15, 1908.

GARFIELD R. GILLESPIE
Attorney for Plaintiff.
Business address, Tecumseh, Mich.

Mortgage Sale.

Default having been made in the conditions of payment of a certain mortgage made and executed by Wolcott W. Marsh and Birdie Marsh, his wife, and delivered to the Tecumseh State Savings Bank, of Tecumseh, Michigan, which mortgage bears date the 6th day of October, 1906, and was recorded in the office of the Register of Deeds for the County of Lenawee, state of Michigan, on the 8th day of October, 1906, in Liber 153 of mortgages on page 80, and there being claimed to be due at this date upon the indebtedness secured by said mortgage the sum of two hundred forty-four and sixty-four one hundredths dollars, and no suit or proceeding at law or in equity having been instituted for the recovery of said indebtedness;

Notice is therefore hereby given that, for the purpose of realizing the amount of said indebtedness, together with the costs of this proceeding, including an attorney fee as allowed by law, by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, the undersigned will, on the 16th day of March, A. D. 1908, at ten o'clock in the forenoon of said day, at the east front door of the Court House, in the City of Adrian, in said County of Lenawee, that being the place where the Circuit Court for said County of Lenawee is holden, sell, at public vendue to the highest bidder, the following described property, viz: That parcel of land in the Village of Tecumseh, County of Lenawee and State of Michigan, described as being all that part of Block one of Hewitt's addition to said village bounded by beginning in the east line of Pearl street twelve rods north from the north line of Logan street and running thence east twelve rods to land formerly owned by Dove; thence south four rods to Richart's land; thence west six rods; thence south three rods; thence west six rods to east line of Pearl street; thence north in that line to beginning.

THE TECUMSEH STATE SAVINGS BANK.
Mortgagee

Dated this 14th day of December, A. D. 1907.
Fred B. Wood, Attorney for Mortgagee.

STATE OF MICHIGAN, County of Lenawee ss. Probate court for the county of Lenawee.

At a session of the probate court for the county of Lenawee, holden at the probate office, in the city of Adrian, on the 9th day of January in the year one thousand nine hundred and eight.

Present, Harry L. Larwill, judge of probate.

On reading and filing the petition, duly verified of Frances E Clarkson, widow of said deceased, praying that administration of said estate may be granted to Winthrop T. Phelps, or some other suitable person.

It is ordered, that Monday, the 10th day of February next, at nine o'clock in the forenoon be assigned for the hearing of said petition.

And it is further ordered that a copy of this order be published in the TECUMSEH HERALD, a newspaper printed and circulating in said county of Lenawee, for three successive weeks previous to said day of hearing.

HARRY L. LARWILL,
(A true copy). Judge of Probate.
E. I. Larwill, probate register.

Quite a "Character."

Here is a "character" given to a servant on leaving her last situation: "The bearer has been in my house a year, less eleven months. During this time she has shown herself diligent at the house door, frugal in work, mindful of herself, prompt in excuses and honest when everything was out of the way."—London Tit-Bits.

Accidentally Shot His Mother.

St. Louis, Feb. 13.—David Kolich, aged twenty-seven years, who had just returned home after extended service in the United States navy, shot and probably fatally wounded his aged mother, Mrs. Olive Kolich. Kolich surrendered to the police. Both he and his mother claim the shooting was accidental.

Coal Miners Strike.

Duquoin, Ill., Feb. 13.—Following a stormy meeting between miners and operators, 1,000 miners employed by the Crerar Clinch Coal company, Chicago, have gone on strike. The trouble originated over the price of powder the operators have been selling to the miners.

Small Collision on Grand Trunk.

Battle Creek, Mich., Feb. 13.—An eastbound freight on the Grand Trunk, Willis Gilbert engineer, crashed, head-on, into a yard engine in charge of John L. Watkins, near McCamly street. Both engineers stuck to their posts, which was all that prevented a bad wreck. Both locomotives were smashed, and two freight cars loaded with corn were ruined. Loss, about $10,000

Senator McKay Is Dead.

Caro, Mich., Feb. 13.—State Senator William McKay is dead at his home here. Senator McKay had been ill for some time, and his death was not unexpected. His family of six children were at his bedside when dissolution took place. He had been ill for about two months, complications from ailments incident to age being the cause. William McKay was a pioneer of Tuscola county and prominent in the affairs of this place and the Thumb district for many years. He was serving his first term in the upper house of the Michigan legislature.

Republican Convention May 12.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Feb. 13.—The Republican state central committee met here and fixed May 12 as the date and Grand Rapids as the place for the state convention to elect delegates-at-large to the national Republican convention. The basis of representation will be one delegate for each 250 votes cast for secretary of state in the last election, making a total of 917 delegates. Congressman Edward Hamilton will be temporary chairman, and William A. Waite of Detroit secretary.

May Die From Horse's Kick.

Saginaw, Mich., Feb. 13.—William Kloah, a farmer of Kochville, this county, lies at the Saginaw general hospital in a critical condition as the result of a kick in the head by a horse. His skull is fractured.

MICHIGAN BRIEFS.

Frank Tisdale and M. Taylor, well known upper Michigan woodsmen, have killed fourteen wolves and two wildcats during the past two months.

Henry Dumes, while walking from the smoking car to the day coach on a train near Menominee, slipped and, falling beneath the wheels, was cut in two.

While playing with a dog, the twelve-year-old son of William O'Donnel of Rochester was badly bitten about the face by the animal. He will be disfigured for life. The dog was killed.

While passing a sleigh which was being loaded with logs at the Escanaba Wooden Ware company's camp, near Escanaba, Alexander Gordisunk, a teamster, was struck by a log and instantly killed.

John Hicks, the Perry hotel proprietor, declares he will board up the doors and windows of his modern hotel. He put $18,000 into the business five years ago, but the village council has practically forbidden him to sell liquor.

Johanes Wilhout, aged sixty-one, was instantly killed at Grand Rapids by an incoming Michigan Central passenger train. He lived in the outskirts of the city, and he was walking into the city on the tracks when struck.

An impressive double funeral was held at the home of Mrs. Anna Cavanaugh, near Yale, when the bodies of the two McKay brothers, John, aged eighty-nine, and George, aged eighty-seven, were laid to rest. The brothers, who had never been separated in life, died within thirty hours of each other.

The Saragossans.

It is said that the queer, composite race of people that dwell upon the waterlogged hulks of the Saragossa sea, in the mid-Atlantic, have a pretty theory about death. They believe that those to whom the messenger comes when the sun is shining brightly are transported straight away to a heaven of warm fresh water only four feet in depth, in which they may wade and disport themselves to all eternity. On the other hand, those who receive the call of death in hours of darkness must needs endure a probationary period before they can enter into the future life. The Saragossans are in addition firm believers in premonitions, omens and foreordinations.

Deafness cannot be cured

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the eustachian tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give one hundred dollars for any case of deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

Special announcement regarding the National Pure food and drug law.

We are pleased to announce that Foley's honey and tar for coughs, colds and lung troubles is not affected by the National Pure Food and drug law as it contains no opiates or other harmful drugs and we recommend it as a safe remedy for children and adults. Sold by all druggists in Tecumseh.

There are countless roads on all sides to the grave.

At time when you don't feel just right when you have a bad stomach, take something right away that will assist digestion, not something that will stimulate for a time but something that will positively do the very work that the stomach performs under ordinary and normal conditions, something that will make the food digest. To do this you must take a natural digestant like Kodol for dyspepsia. Kodol is a scientific preparation of vegetable acids with natural digestants and contains the same juices found in a healthy stomach. Each dose will digest more than 3,000 grains of good food. It is sure to afford prompt relief; it digests what you eat and is pleasant to take. Sold by all druggists.

Do not make unjust gains, they are equal to a loss.

Suffering & Dollars Saved.

E. M. Loper of Marillo, N. Y., says "I am a carpenter and have had many severe cuts healed by Bucklen's arnica salve. It has saved me suffering and dollars. It is by far the best healing salve I ever found." Heals burns, sores ulcers, eczema and piles. 25c at C. A. Wright & Son's drug store.

The early riser is healthy, cheerful and industrious.

The trouble with most cough remedies is that they constipate. Kennedy's laxative cough syrup acts gently but promptly on the bowels and at the same time it stops the cough by soothing the throat and lung irritation. Children like it. Sold by all druggists.

The best swimmer is the first to drown himself.

The editor of the Memphis, Tenn., Times writes: "In my opinion of Foley's honey and tar is the best remedy for coughs, colds, lung trouble, and to my own personal knowled[illegible] honey and tar has accomplished many permanent cures that have been little short of marvellous." Refuse any but the genuine in a yellow package. For sale by all druggists in Tecumseh.

Electric Light.

Electric light may be burned in sleeping room or sick chamber without injurious result, the air remaining pure and sweet. Not so with other forms of illuminating. One open-flame light consumes as much oxygen as four grown persons, vitiates the air and makes perfect health under such conditions impossible. Use Electric Light that's pure, clean convenient and safe.

Cupid arrows told the future fortune of many. Refreshments were served to 38 the favors being dainty pink and blue heart valentines.

The antipathy in Tecumseh against Adrian that is said to have existed for many years, should be relegated into innocuous desuetude, if a vestige of it remains. There is surely no reciprocal antipathy on the part of Adrian. As one of the proofs of this, it is claimed that in at least two of the cigar stores of this city, the leading sellers in the way of cigars are made in Tecumseh and that such has been the case for several years. When we reflect that the cigar business is rather varied and discriminating, this popularity of the Tecumseh weed in Adrian attests two things. One of them is that Tecumseh knows how to make good cigars and the other is a friendly feeling for our northern neighbor that is cemented in the smoke of her delectable cigars.—Adrian Press.

Mrs. Francis Herring.

Frances M. Smith was born in Yates county, N. Y., June 27, 1844, the youngest of a family of nine children and died in Tecumseh, Mich., Feb. 4, 1908, aged 64 years, 7 months and 17 days. Her father and mother came to Michigan when she was 12 years old, settling first at Flint and later removing to Saline, where they lived until their death.

Dec. 28, 1864, she was married to Francis Herring of Macon. Leaving Saline they removed to Ridgeway and later to Tecumseh, where death separated them. Four children were born to this union, Mrs. Bennett and Mrs. Wm. Lee of Tecumseh, Mrs. Moody of Detroit, and Chas. Herring of Malinta, Ohio. During her long illness Mrs. Herring was a great sufferer and often expressed the desire to leave this world which held only pain for her, for the home beyond. Over a year ago she found peace in believing in the Saviour and lived in the strength of that faith until the end. Interment at Macon cemetery.

"STAY THOU WITH ME."

Stay Thou with me; soon will the night be come,
E'en now the sun has set behind the hill;
The hind has led his weary cattle home,
And the loud busy day at last is still.

Come, Lord, and bending from Thy glorious throne
Greet me this evening with Thine own bequest—
Thy promised peace; in Thee, in Thee alone,
Can my heart find a sweet and holy rest

Ah, Lord, Thou comest from my father-land,
My homesick longings are not hid from Thee;
Bring me some tidings from that sacred strand,
Give me the eyes of faith my home to see

E'en while I wait, listening to hear thy voice,
I feel my heart enkindled by thy love;
A ray of glory makes my soul rejoice—
A gracious token from my home above.

Presbyterian Men's Banquet.

The second annual banquet of the men of the Presbyterian church will be held in the church parlors Friday evening, Feb. 21, at 6 o'clock. The banquet will be held in honor of Washington's birthday for the men of the church and one of the events of the season. The feature of the evening will be the appearance of Chentin T. Wang of Shanghai, China.

Mr. Wang will appear in Oriental costume and will tell of the impressions America makes upon the Chinese. Mr. Wang is an able and brilliant speaker, being a graduate of the Imperial University of China and will interest all who hear him. Rev. M. J. Sweet of Hudson, will respond to the toast "Union not Unity." Other toasts to enliven the evening will be given by local talent. An elaborate banquet will be provided which will supply the wants of every one present. Invitations were sent out the early part of the week and seats have been provided for 150 men.

Tecumseh will have a team for 1908

MEETING HELD

Last evening. Officers elected for coming season.

One of the most enthusiastic and largest meetings of its kind ever held in Tecumseh, was held last evening at the council rooms, when the Tecumseh Base Ball association met for the purpose of deciding whether or not Tecumseh would enter the South Michigan league for the season of 1908.

Joe Jackson, president of the league, and sporting editor of the Detroit Free Press; James Reynolds, secretary and manager of the league; and Sporting Editor of the Jackson Patriot, were present at this meeting and were warmly received by the base ball association.

The Tecumseh Association are all right financially, having fully $3,000 subscribed for the team during the day yesterday. Officers were elected as follows:

Pres.—R. A. Heesen.
Sec. & Mgr.—Arthur L. Pocklington.
Treas.—W. L. Fisher.

As for players the association is in hard shape, having sold so many of the last year's team, but will under the present management be able to produce a team to enter the circuit and we hope to hold the pennant so easily won last season. Wagner has been spoken of as a playing manager. Sloar has been given his release from the Tecumseh team and Jackson is after him. Tecumseh is bound to have a winning team.

McKINLEY CLUB

Banqueted in Schoolcraft's Rink, Adrian last Thursday evening.

The annual McKinley club banquet was held at the Schoolcraft rink on Thursday evening last week to which over 600 were in attendance. The business session of the club was held at the Hotel Gregg at 5 o'clock and the officers were elected as follows:

Clark Baldwin—Pres.
Leland Bean—Sec.
Fred Acker—Treas.

Adrian—G. N. Harris.
Clinton—H. H. Halladay.
Franklin—G. A. VanDusen.
Macon—Mark Mills.
Ogden—C. H. Beardsley.
Raisin—Edgar Rogers.
Ridgeway—Wm. Rynd
Tecumseh—H. W. Stevens.

At 6 o'clock the skating rink was opened and the company marched to music by Harwood's orchestra. They were served by the ladies of the Home Workers of the Presbyterian church and friends. The tables were nicely decorated with flags and the colors attractively placed. At the close of the banquet cigars were enjoyed by the company.

Hon. Henry C. Smith acted as toast master. Seated at the speakers' table were Hon. D. B. Morgan, Hon. H. C. Smith, Hon. C. E. Townsend, Hon. Geo. Legare, Hon. Julius Kahn, Rev. J. W. Gray, Hon. W. J. Parker, Hon. E. J. Bryant, F. E. Priddy, M. H. Hoisington and Chas. Clark. About 30 were in attendance from Tecumseh and pronounced the speeches the best they had ever heard since the history of the club.

Eight Killed

In a wreck between the Toledo & Western car from Adrian and the Big Four Flyer

MRS. JOHN NEIPP

And two sons of Toledo, Killed almost instantly.

A horrible accident occurred at Toledo Saturday night when the Big Four Flyer struck the Toledo and Western car from Adrian at 8:10, killing almost instantly eight people and injuring fifteen. Among the passengers were Mrs. John Neipp and two sons, Lincoln and Theodore, who had been spending a couple of days in Adrian with her mother, Mrs. Louise Freytag, and were returning to Toledo, where the husband and father awaited them.

The mother was instantly killed and clasped in her arms was her son, Theodore, aged 5 years, who lived a few minutes, conscious to the last and trying to arouse his mother from her death stupor by calling for her to speak to him. The other son, aged 7 years, was dead when taken from the wreck. During the night the bodies of Mrs. Neipp and her two children were unidentified. Thinking his wife and children had decided to remain in Adrian over night, Mr. Neipp made no search of inquiry for her and it was not until he went out Sunday morning to view the scene of the wreck that he recognized the bodies of his family among the unidentified and unclaimed.

He notified her relatives in Adrian, her mother being in church. The dead woman had always resided in Adrian until nine years ago when she married Mr. Neipp, a hardware dealer in Toledo. Beside her husband and mother she leaves to mourn five sisters, Mrs. Louis Wagner, Mrs. Ed Parker, Elizabeth, Amanda and Beatrice, and two brothers, Fred and Carl, all of Adrian. The funeral occurred in Toledo this afternoon at two o'clock, there being but one service and the three bodies were buried in the one grave.

ROBERT ELLIOTT

As several of the men of this place, interested in the horse racing, were walking on the ice at the Red Mill pond laying out a course for today's races, Robert Elliott stepped upon what looked to them like solid ice but was only slightly frozen, and plunged into the water. He threw his arms out, catch the solid ice, holding himself up until he was rescued by the others.

INVITE A TEST.

C. A. Wright & Son ask catarrh sufferers to try Hyomei on their guarantee.

C. A. Wright & Son invite all who suffer from any form of catarrhal troubles to get a Hyomei outfit from them with their absolute guarantee that if it does not give perfect satisfaction, the money will be refunded upon request

There is no other treatment for catarrh that in any way resembles Hyomei, none that gives such quick curative results and lasting satisfaction, no medicine that can take its place, none that can be sold on a guarantee like this, to refund the money unless it cures.

Catarrh is a germ disease and can be cured only by breathing Hyomei, so that the most remote air cells in the nose, throat and lungs are reached by its antiseptic healing powers. In this way all catarrhal germs are killed, the irritated mucous membrane is healed and catarrh is driven from the system.

This wonderful medicated air treatment does not drug and derange the stomach, but is breathed through a little pocket inhaler that goes with every dollar outfit.

The unusual way in which C. A. Wright & Son sell Hyomei attests their confidence in the remedy.

DO YOU GET UP WITH A LAME BACK?

Kidney Trouble Makes You Miserable.

Almost everybody who reads the newspapers is sure to know of the wonderful cures made by Dr Kilmer's Swamp Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy.

It is the great medical triumph of the nineteenth century; discovered after years of scientific research by Dr. Kilmer, the eminent kidney and bladder specialist, and is wonderfully successful in promptly curing lame back, uric acid, catarrh of the bladder and Bright's Disease, which is the worst form of kidney trouble.

Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is not recommended for everything but if you have kidney, liver or bladder trouble it will be found just the remedy you need. It has been tested in so many ways, in hospital work and in private practice, and has proved so successful in every case that a special arrangement has been made by which all readers of this paper, who have not already tried it, may have a sample bottle sent free by mail, also a book telling more about Swamp-Root, and how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper and send your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. The regular fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles are sold by all good druggists. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

Or any disease of the kidneys
Be cured to stay cured.
Doan's Kidney Pills will cure you.
Tecumseh people testify.
Read a case of it:

Orson Austin, retired, living on Logan street, Tecumseh, Mich., says "I still hold the same high opinion of Doan's Kidney Pills today as when I gave my statement for publication some 5 years ago. Prior to that time I had kidney disease with distressing pains in my my kidneys. I did not take care of the trouble at first and it finally became aggravated and the pain so severe that I could not stoop or lift anything. I used a number of highly recommended remedies but received only temporary relief. Finally I tried Doan's Kidney Pills receiving much benefit so I continued until cured. I am always glad to recommend Doan's Kidney Pills."

What Affected the Water Supply.

It was market day. A young woman who works in a downtown office building had hurried to the busy mart where a coliseum was once planned and had purchased Sunday supplies. A big water tank stood in one corner of the office where she is employed. She had seen a man put ice in it for drinking water. That would be just the place for her provender.

"What the"—

The demure young woman's employer had sought to lave his thirst, but he set the cup down quickly. He shook with anger at the iceman. The demure one quaked with fear. Angry eyes met timid eyes. Then came the confession.

"I'm awful sorry, Mr. —," she quavered, "but I thought there was some kind of a thing-a-ma-jig in there that would keep it from"—

She burst into tears. He lifted the lid, and there met his gaze a bunch of celery, young onions, radishes, a pound of butter, lard, veal cutlets and some lettuce.

He did not stop to see the rest, as he lighted a big, strong, black cigar.—Indianapolis News.

Hard to Please.

As Miss Lamson arrayed herself for the meeting of the Harvest Gleaners she expressed her mind freely and fully to her Aunt Eunice. "If they try to make me secretary again I shall up and tell them just what I think of them," she said, with great decision.

"Sho!" remarked Aunt Eunice, who had learned not to waste words.

"Yes, I shall," insisted Miss Lamson. "Here I've worked for them for ten solid years, and they've never even suggested getting anybody else to take the burden from my shoulders. Its—it's disgraceful!"

On Miss Lamson's return Aunt Eunice cast one glance at her niece and then put in her word of sympathy.

"Poor child, they've imposed on you again!" she said in her soothing voice.

"Imposed on me!" cried Miss Lamson, a dull flush rising to her cheek bones. "I should think they had! I declined the nomination, and they elected that little Robins woman right over my head. But there's no such thing as gratitude nowadays."—Youth's Companion.

Not Quite the Same.

A country clergyman vouches for the truth of this story. Having arrived at that point in the baptismal service where the infant's name is conferred, he said, "Name this child."

"Original Story," said the sponsor nurse.

"What do you say?" he asked in surprise.

"Original Story," she repeated in clear, deliberate tones.

"It's a very odd name, isn't it? Are you sure you want him called by the name of Original Story?"

"Original Story—that's right."

"Is it a family name?" the minister persisted.

"Named after his uncle, sir," explained the nurse.

And so as Original Story the little fellow was christened. Some weeks after this event the minister made the acquaintance of the said uncle—a farm laborer in another village—whose name was Reginald Story.—London Tatler.

Even Worse.

He—Darling, don't you know that it is unlucky to postpone a wedding? She—I can't help that. My dressmaker is ill, and I'm afraid it would be more unlucky if I were to go and get married before having all the clothes I want made while my father is still willing to pay for them.

His Privilege.

Mrs. Crimsonbeak—This paper says a normal man breathes 200,000 times in the course of one day. Mr. Crimsonbeak—Yes, my dear; that is his privilege while the women are talking.—Exchange.

Sunlight-at-Night

Think of the pleasant winter evenings Acetylene Lighting insures.

Think of the eyesight it prolongs and saves; the valuable Reading it encourages; the Social advantages it means: the Contentment-at-home of the Young Folks.

Think of the years of lamp-cleaning it saves, and the ever-present risk in carrying around lighted hand lamps which it precludes.

Then reflect upon this:

When once installed a modern Acetylene Light Plant will give you as much Light as you now get from Kerosene—at a third less cost.

In this way, and in the labor saved on Lamp cleaning 365 times per year, an Acetylene Plant pays for itself, while being an asset as valuable as any part of the house,—good for 40 years service.

Write me today how many rooms you've got to light (or how large a store) and I will tell you how little it need cost to install the right sort of Lighting Plant for your individual purpose.

Address me thus—Acetylene Jones, 7 Adams St., Chicago, Ill.

For Pain

Take a Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pill, and the Pain will disappear Like Magic.

Not by paralyzing the nerves and glands, like opium, morphine, cocaine, and other dangerous drugs, but by increasing the natural secretions.

This action is obtained as a result of modern discoveries in medicine, making it possible to relieve pain without bad after-effects.

You can safely depend upon Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills to relieve and cure such pains as Neuralgia, Headache, Stomachache, Menstrual Pains, Rheumatism, Backache, Toothache, etc.

They will also, by their calming action on the nerves, almost instantly relieve such distressing feelings as Dizziness, Car-Sickness, Indigestion, Irritability, Sleeplessness, Nervousness, etc.

Not merely do they relieve, but they also absolutely cure, because by persevering in their use, you do away with the cause.

Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills are guaranteed that first package will benefit, or your money back. Never sold in bulk.

"I am thankful for the good Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills have and are doing me. Ever since the war I have had spells of severe throbbing headache, caused by catarrh, until six years ago, I began taking Anti-Pain Pills, the only remedy that ever gave me relief. Since then I have not had one hard attack, because I take a Pill and it overcomes the difficulty."—GEO. SAUNDERS, Greensburg, Ind.

Neighborhood Favorite.

Mrs. E. C. Charles of Harbor, Me., speaking of Electric Bitters says: "It is a neighborhood favorite here with us." It deserves to be a favorite everywhere. It gives quick relief in dyspepsia, liver complaint, kidney derangement, malnutrition, nervousness and general debility. Its action on the blood as a purifier makes it especially useful as a spring medicine. This grand alterative tonic is sold under guarantee by C.A. Wright & Son. 50c.

Ballet Shoes.

Ballet shoes fit like a stocking. They are of leather, with a thin leather sole about an inch wide and with the uppers sewed so that they come under the foot. The ballet dancer wants no rubber heels, instep arch supports nor any other of the foot supporting or reforming devices which are commonly used by ordinary mortals. The toe dancer desires a hard box toe on her ballet shoes, but the ordinary dancer seeks only shoes that will give perfect freedom of movement of the joints and muscles of the feet. It is a rule of good dancers, a shoe man of experience says, to wear shoes that will allow for space between the toes. It is a point of good fit that all persons should heed, he says. High heels are put on to stage shoes for effect, not to promote good dancing. Many stage shoes are made with short fore parts and high heels to make the feet look smaller and the person taller.—Boston Globe.

Poor Jack.

Deafness cannot be cured

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the eustachian tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever, nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give one hundred dollars for any case of deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O.

Sold by all druggists, 75c.

Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

There are mighty few people who don't occasionally tell stories.

Special announcement regarding the National pure food and drug law.

We are pleased to announce that Foley's honey and tar for coughs, colds and lung troubles is not affected by the National Pure Food and drug law as it contains no opiates or other harmful drugs and we recommend it as a safe remedy for children and adults. Sold by all druggists in Tecumseh.

There are countless roads on all sides to the grave.

At time when you don't feel just right when you have a bad stomach, take something right away that will assist digestion, not something that will stimulate for a time but something that will positively do the very work that the stomach performs under ordinary and normal conditions, something that will make the food digest. To do this you must take a natural digestant like Kodol for dyspepsia. Kodol is a scientific preparation of vegetable acids with natural digestants and contains the same juices found in a healthy stomach. Each dose will digest more than 3,000 grains of good food. It is sure to afford prompt relief; it digests what you eat and is pleasant to take. Sold by all druggists.

Do not make unjust gains, they are equal to a loss.

Suffering & Dollars Saved.

E. M. Loper of Marillo, N. Y., says "I am a carpenter and have had many severe cuts healed by Bucklen's arnica salve. It has saved me suffering and dollars. It is by far the best healing salve I ever found." Heals burns, sores ulcers, eczema and piles. 25c at C. A. Wright & Son's drug store.

The early riser is healthy, cheerful and industrious.

The trouble with most cough remedies is that they constipate. Kennedy's laxative cough syrup acts gently but promptly on the bowels and at the same time it stops the cough by soothing the throat and lung irritation. Children like it. Sold by all druggists.

The best swimmer is the first to drown himself.

The editor of the Memphis, Tenn., Times writes: "In my opinion of Foley's honey and tar is the best remedy for coughs, colds, lung trouble, and to my own personal knowledge Foley's honey and tar has accomplished many permanent cures that have been little short of marvellous." Refuse any but the genuine in a yellow package. For sale by all druggists in Tecumseh.

It is not sheer madness to live poor to die rich.

Neighborhood Favorite.

Mrs. E. C. Charles of Harbor, Me., speaking of Electric Bitters says: "It is a neighborhood favorite here with us." It deserves to be a favorite everywhere. It gives quick relief in dyspepsia, liver complaint, kidney derangement, malnutrition, nervousness and general debility. Its action on the blood as a purifier makes it especially useful as a spring medicine. This grand alterative tonic is sold under guarantee by C. A. Wright & Son. 50c.

Bert Barber of Elton, Wis., says: "I have only taken four doses of your kidney and bladder pills and they have done for me more than any other medicine has ever done. I am still taking the pills as I want a perfect cure." Mr. Barber refers to DeWitt's kidney and bladder pills. They are sold by all druggists.

There is nothing ill said that is not ill taken.

A healthy man is a king in his own right; an unhealthy man is an unhappy slave. Burdock Blood Bitters builds up sound health—keeps you well.

The fox may lose his hair, but not his cunning.

"Suffered continually the torment of itching piles. Nothing helped me until I used Doan's Ointment. It cured me permanently."—Hon. John Garret, Girard, Ala.

STATE IS UNDER SNOW

Latest Blizzard Has Broken Previous Records.

EVERY COUNTY IS COVERED.

Drifts Are From Two to Ten Feet Deep—Railroads, in Some Cases, Almost Completely Tied Up—Rural Carriers Unable to Reach Patrons.

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 20.—From Erie to Superior one way and from Huron to Michigan the other, and then almost as far again from the boundary lines on all sides of Michigan is the empire of the snows. The winter of 1907-8 in this state has been a series of "worst storm in years," but this blizzard renders the cherished memory of "the oldest inhabitant" a shattered ideal.

The storm's work is almost complete. Every county in both peninsulas is covered by a level of from one to two feet, and drifts mount from those depths to ten feet. The same serious hamper to business as was experienced two weeks ago threatens even worse proportions of damage now. Interurban car lines are badly blocked, and every railway snowplow is in use, trying to relieve the situation. Rural mail delivery is out of the question, as there is hardly a country road in the state where traffic of any sort can be carried on. In some parts, farmers manage to get around on horseback.

This snow is lighter than the last, and it is due to this fact that drifts are going deeper. The wind is varying throughout the state, but the northeasters and northwesters seem to prevail for the most part, lake shore towns being hit hardest.

In this city, ninety cars have been crippled by the short circuiting and the burning out of motors. The snow fighters have had no relaxation since early Tuesday night. Altogether, the storm is estimated to have cost the Detroit United railway $10,000.

Steam Lines Suffer.

On the steam lines, double engines have been attached to all trains, and snowplows have bucked the drifts since early Wednesday morning. Schedules went to pieces. Trains run an hour late over all divisions of the Grand Trunk. The Michigan Central has been having its troubles, although no cases of absolute stalling have been reported. Trains from St. Louis and Chicago are tardy, and more difficulty is anticipated. The wind, piling the snow across the rails in long, deep windrows, makes progress slow, even with two powerful locomotives attached to each string of coaches.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Feb. 20.—This city is now free from storm, but the weather is growing colder, and more snow is predicted by the local weather bureau. The Muskegon, Grand Rapids, Grand Haven and Muskegon interurban road is completely tied up. A passenger car was stranded all night at Walker, a few miles from the city limits. The interurban company sent out sleighs to bring in the fifteen passengers in the morning. They had made their way to farm houses and telephoned their friends and secured breakfast.

The Grand Rapids and Indiana train from Chicago, due at 10 o'clock at night, arrived at 6:50 in the morning, having been stalled at various points. The Lake Shore trains are all running several hours late, while the Pere Marquette system in this territory is having much trouble in moving trains. All traffic on steam roads from here north is very seriously hampered.

Saginaw, Mich., Feb. 20.—The Saginaw district has apparently been less seriously affected by the storm than other parts of the state. No trains have been stalled and although there have been some delays conditions are on the whole not unsatisfactory. All trains are run with two engines and the snowplows are actively at work.

On the Pere Marquette the greatest difficulty is experienced in the Thumb district. Nearly all trains have been annulled. On the Michigan Central trains are not seriously delayed.

Kalamazoo, Mich., Feb. 20.—Kalamazoo is almost stormbound, train service on all railroads being greatly impaired or stopped entirely. The Fruit Belt Line, from this city to South Haven, is the greatest sufferer, being unable to run any trains.

On the Michigan Central, the Wolverine flyer, due here at 11:46 a. m., was stalled between Marengo and Marshall for several hours and finally reached Comstock, several miles east of this city. There it struck a big bank, and five engines were unable to move it. Passengers were transferred to other trains, which went around on the other track, and a gang of 100 men is at work digging out the train.

The Michigan United railways discontinued service between this city and Battle Creek. Many city car lines are out of operation. Rural mail carriers have made no trips.

Ionia, Mich., Feb. 20.—The worst tieup on the Pere Marquette has occurred here. Not a single train, in or out of Ionia, reached its destination. The many cuts, in and about Ionia, are completely filled with snow, and half a dozen trains are stalled.

A dozen locomotives have been sent out from Ionia on relief work.

All rural mail service was suspended, and it will be several days before normal conditions prevail.

Owosso, Mich., Feb. 20.—A light snow accompanied a heavy blow here, and railway cuts and country roads are drifted full. Train No. 4, on the Ann Arbor railroad, southbound, has not been heard from. No. 22, Grand Trunk train from Muskegon, has not yet arrived. All other trains are running from one to two hours late.

Bay City, Mich., Feb. 20.—Street cars are stalled in drifts from six to eight feet deep in all parts of the city, and snowplows are unable to reach and relieve them.

Port Huron, Mich., Feb. 20.—The storm continues unabated, and traffic on the Grand Trunk and Pere Marquette railroads is greatly delayed.

Vassar, Mich., Feb. 20.—The very worst storm of the season is on here. There has been a fall of snow that was drifted with a forty mile wind. Rural delivery is tied up, and from six to eight feet of snow is piled up in the streets.

The Caro branch of the Michigan Central is tied up at Caro, only one train going through Wednesday. The P., O & N. train is off the track at Owendale. The Pere Marquette, from Port Huron to Saginaw, is tied up. Michigan Central trains on the main line are running, though very late.

DECLARE A HOLIDAY.

Peruvians Thus Honor Memory of Washington and Arrival of Fleet.

Lima, Peb. 20.—The American battleship fleet is expected to reach Callao today. Two wireless messages, one from the flagship Connecticut and one from the Peruvian cruiser Colonel Bolognesi, now coming up the coast with the Americans, have been received.

The first message conveyed the information that the fleet was then 224 miles from the port, and the second forwarded a message of thanks from Rear Admiral Evans. In his own name and those of the officers of the fleet, he expressed his appreciation of the affectionate welcome by the Peruvian nation and the president. Admiral Evans said he considered the Peruvian escort to Callao a great honor and thanked the government for its offer to transmit his message to the navy department at Washington, but added that he had nothing at present to communicate.

The government has issued a decree making Saturday a holiday, in honor of Washington's birthday and the American's visit, and it has ordered the Peruvian war vessels to salute the American flag at noon. The banks and commercial houses have closed, and great crowds are ready to greet the fleet when it steams into port and take part in the later festivities. President Parde will give a public reception to Rear Admiral Evans and the other officers, at 5 o'clock on Friday afternoon.

The wireless message from the Connecticut said that Admiral Evans has not yet recovered his health.

Washington, Feb. 20.—The exchange of felicitious greetings between President Pedro Montt of Chile and President Roosevelt, occasioned by the visit of the battleship fleet to the harbor of Santiago, Chile, as contained in cablegrams, have been made public at the state department. President Montt says:

"I have just witnessed the passage, in line, of the powerful American squadron which, in command of Admiral Evans, carries the American flag on the Pacific, and have been given the opportunity to view and admire one of the most splendid of the manifestations achieved in every field by the United States of America.

"The salute this day given to our banner signifies a demonstration of cordial friendship for the Chilean people, which I thankfully acknowledge in their name, while making wishes for the constant prosperity of the United States and the happiness of its illustrious president."

To this message President Roosevelt responded:

"I appreciate your excellency's friendly message. The lively interest of the Chilean people in the review of the American ships and the exchange of naval courtesies are regarded by my countrymen as fresh tokens of cordial good will between the two countries. I offer you my friendly greetings and the best wishes of the American people for the welfare of Chile."

President Points Out Danger.

Washington, Feb. 20.—President Roosevelt has sent a letter to the interstate commerce commission, in which he indicates the importance of the commission's action with respect to the limitation of the hours of labor of railway employes and points out the possibility of serious differences arising between railroad companies and their employes with respect to wages and hours. The president strongly deprecates the making of any issue between railroad companies and their employes in the matter of wages, if that can be avoided; instructs the commission to secure all possible information in advance, so that the responsibility may be fairly placed and to hold itself in readiness to mediate if strikes are threatened.

High Forester Official Dead.

Rochester, N. Y., Feb. 20.—Charles F. A. Young, grand chief ranger of the Foresters of America, is dead, at his home, of typhoid pneumonia. He had been ill only a few days.

BRIEF DISPATCHES.

The state of Illinois has given the Chicago Telephone company permission to increase the company's capital of $20,000,000 to $30,000,000.

Eight persons had to jump from the second story of a burning building at Houston, Tex., three of them being injured, one dangerously.

An interesting literary exhibit, in which are shown first editions of all the works of John Milton, as well as many later editions, is being held at Columbia university.

Because his wife threatened to secure a divorce from him, L. Asbury of Seattle, Wash., shot and killed her. He then turned the gun upon himself and sent a bullet crashing through his brain.

Hal Newton Carlyle of New York, an actor of national prominence, dropped dead, at Grand Junction, Colo., just as he was about to go upon the stage. He was sixty-five years of age.

The world's record for shearing sheep by machinery was broken, at Phoenix, Ariz., by F. Him, who sheared 325 sheep in nine hours. The shearing plant employs thirty shearers, and the plant also made a world's record, shearing 6,572 sheep in nine hours, or 220 per man.

Keeping open house.

Everybody is welcome when we feel good, and we feel that way only when our digestive organs are working properly. Dr. King's new life pills regulate the action of stomach, liver and bowels so perfectly one can't help feeling good when he uses these pills. At C. A. Wright & Son's drug store. 25c.

VILLAGE LOCAL

CHURCH AFFAIRS

WORK BEING DONE IN OUR CHURCHES.

What is accomplished through the Social Life.

METHODIST CHURCH.

The Ladies Aid served a colonial supper in the church parlors last night.

The benevolence committee met Tuesday night to make plans leading up to the benevolence offering taken at Easter.

The W. H. M. S. will hold their regular meeting with Mrs. Hutrey next Thursday afternoon. The topic is "Our work in the South."

The Queen Esther Circle will have a social at the home of Lelah Rogers tonight. George and Martha Washington will be there to receive the guests. Refreshments will be served and a silver offering taken. All are invited.

The Michigan Christian Advocate of Feb. 15th, contained a picture of the Methodist parsonage at Bad Axe. It is a beautiful colonial house and is the home of Rev. M. T. Seelye and family, a former pastor of the Methodist church of this place. Mr. Seelye is to be congratulated upon being the occupant of so beautiful a home which harmonizes with the elegance of the church which is adjacent." In describing the house the Advocate says:

The house is well proportioned, finely designed and well balanced bit of architecture. The simplicity of scheme and elegance of finish are evident. The perfect equipment and the utility secured by the interior plans to be appreciated requires that one see the house itself.

That a northern town in the "Thumb" of the state should have one of the choicest parsonages in the entire conference, is surprising and many wonder how it could be had. We ourselves can hardly tell, but know that this church is a body of high-minded and generous people and that one choice Christian woman set her heart upon it that the pastors should have a nice home. This good woman has supplemented the contributions of the membership and furnished all the rest of the money the undertaking needed.

There has been no rash incurring of expense, no beginning of an enterprise in excess of ability to pay, no debt to harass preacher and people in later years. Everything has been paid for and though several thousand dollars were spent upon it, the house is under no mortgage. It is a difficult art to know how to give money to good causes, wisely and this art is pretty well possessed in this church and this visible result is one of its evidences.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

A new announcement board will shortly be placed on the front of the church.

The visiting committees will soon make a canvass to secure a religious census of the village.

The Home department of our Bible school, numbering 109, with 9 visitors, all of whom are studying the International S. S. lessons.

The men's banquet will be given in the church tonight at six o'clock. Covers have been placed for 150 and a delightful menu prepared.

At the session meeting Tuesday night the church letters of Gladys Thielan, Blanch Snyder, Mr. and Mrs. John Bickman, Mrs. Raynor Benedict and Mrs. J. H. Griffith were received.

The men's choir has been furnishing the Sunday evening congregations with fine music this winter. Numbers have been coming early to hear the practice. The church is open at six o'clock and all are welcome at that hour.

The ladies of the church have arranged with the Consolidated Lyceum Bureau for a production of "Parsifal" to be given in the church in the near future. The play is given by a reader to pipe organ accompaniment and illustrated with stereoptican photograps of the production.

Last Sunday evening a literary program was given at the C. E. meeting in charge of Florence Keyser. A paper, "Ralph Conner's Books," was read by Miss Widley; "The Bible as good Reading" Dwight Clarkson; a story by Lulu Aylesworth; a reading on the religion of Longfellow, May Lowry and anecdotes on the religious life of Lincoln.

EPISCOPAL CHURCH.

Mrs. Louis Schnieder is on the sick list.

Rev. Kemp called on parishoners in town Tuesday.

Mrs. H. Stout is confined to the house with rheumatism.

Mrs Codling has been ill for the past few days but is about again.

Miss Josephine Hayden has been confined to the house with inflammation of the eyes for several days.

The missionary circle will have for their subject next month, "Bishops and their various locations." Every one is requested to bring something on this subject.

In honor of the 40th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Hicks which occurred Tuesday, Feb. 18, the parish presented them with a bunch of 40 carnations, accompanied by a valentine which must be seen to be appreciated.

BAPTIST CHURCH.

Mrs. Holdridge Sr. is spending the week with Mrs. Ella Sheldon.

Mrs. C. H. Bramble and Miss Florence Bryan are on the sick list.

Dr. Montgomery of Adrian, was at the meeting Wednesday evening.

Rev. Kamm's sisters, who have been visiting him, returned to their homes Wednesday morning.

Mrs. Hattie Shelmire has returned to Manchester after visiting a week with her nephew, Jay Morse.

The monthly missionary meeting which was to have been held Wednesday afternoon at Mrs. A. C. Bryan's has been postponed until Wednesday afternoon, Feb. 26, at the same place.

Everyone is cordially invited to attend the meetings being held at the Baptist church. You cannot fail to be helped by hearing the very earnest gospel sermons preached by Rev. Sweet.

FRIENDS CHURCH.

Owing to the illness of Rev. Wollam, Mr. Swan took charge of the Wednesday evening service.

The executive committee meeting of the C. E. will meet again with Mrs. Reuben VanWinkle Tuesday at the usual time.

Do not forget that next Wednesday evening the monthly business meeting of the church follows the service. Make a special effort to come.

All were eager to get the new missionary mite boxes which were given out last Sunday in the primary and intermediate grades of the Sunday school.

The monthly meeting of the Missionary society was held Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Jane Satterthwaite. The lesson was taken from the new book Gloria Christi, and the topics assigned for study, were discussed.

Services will be held in the Episcopal church Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock. Sunday school at 11:30. Mid-week service Friday night at 7:30, followed by choir practice.

The regular services at the Friends church Sunday both morning and evening. Bible school immediately following the morning service. C. E. at 6 o'clock. Everyone welcome.

Universalist church. Owing to the illness of the pastor, Miss Amanda Kidder of Detroit, well known here, will fill the pulpit Sunday a. m. Sunday school at noon. No evening service. Bible study at 7 o'clock Thursday evening at Miss McNell's.

Methodist Episcopal church, Sunday. Rev. Ward pastor. Morning worship at 10, subject "The Spirit of Washington and Lincoln." Topic for business men's class "What is the Life of Jesus to us." Epworth League at 6:00 o'clock. Class meeting at 5:30. Evening service at 7. All are welcome to these services.

Presbyterian church, John Wirt Dunning, minister. Usual services Sunday. Subject of morning sermon, "Washington—A Man, a Patriot and a Child of God." Bible school and men's class at 11:15. Men's class subject, "The Father of his Country." C. E. at 6 p m, subject, "Little Things Christ makes Great." At the evening service the pastor will speak on "What is it to be Saved," a new answer to an old question. Special music.

Rev. F. W. Sweet, pastor of the First Baptist church of Adrian, who has charge of the revival meetings being held here will also be with us at the Sunday morning service and Bible school hour. His morning theme "Kadesh Barnea." Mr. Sweet would be glad to meet a full attendance at the Bible school and it is hoped that the teachers will make a special effort to have all scholars present. Rev. E. H. Lovett, D. D. of New York, will preach in the evening; he is a brilliant speaker and you are invited to hear him. Meetings will be held every evening next week. Rev. Sweet will preach and we hope to have with us Prof. Lagerquist of Adrian, to take charge of the music. All welcome.

Heavy Snow Delays Traffic.

The heavy snow fall of Wednesday greatly hindered the railroad traffic. All of the trains were late that managed to get through at all and the two passengers on the D. T. & M. were annulled. A relief train was sent out from Adrian about four o'clock in the afternoon. The 7:03 on the Lake Shore was on the crossing at Chicago and Railroad streets Wednesday morning about half an hour, owing to the drifts in front of the council building. The 2:55 came down about 6:20. They have been running about on time today.

Don't neglect your cough.

Statistics show that in New York City alone over 200 people die every week from consumption.

And most of these consumptives might be living now if they had not neglected the warning cough.

A NEW OCCUPATION FOR THE FARMER.

Bales Snow for Summer Use.

Arcola, Ill., Feb. 17.—W. W. Pepper, who resides northeast of this city near Newman, is at work with a number of hay balers baling up snow for next summer's use. He tried the experiment last year and found that baled snow makes an ice of better quality than ordinary frozen or manufactured ice. He had no trouble in disposing of his last year's output and will work on a bigger scale this year. The baled snow will stand more hot weather than ordinary ice will.

Of Interest to the Esperanto Club.

Paris, Feb. 17.—Charles Frohman will have the "Morals of Marcus" translated into Esperanto and announces that he expects to present Miss Marie Doro in the international language version of that comedy in Berlin next August. This will be the first play to have the distinction of translation and presentation in Esperanto. It will be a combination of an American actress, an English play and a Russian Pole, Dr. Zamenhof's one-man made language.—Chicago Record-Herald.

MAKE IT YOURSELF.

A well known authority on rheumatism gives the readers of a large New York daily paper the following valuable yet simple and harmless prescription which anyone can easily prepare at home:

Mix by shaking well in a bottle and take a teaspoonful after each meal and at bedtime.

He states that the ingredients can be obtained from any good prescription pharmacy at small cost and being of vegetable extraction are harmless to take.

This pleasant mixture, if taken regularly a few days, is said to overcome almost any case of rheumatism. The pain and swelling, if any, diminishes with each dose until permanent results are obtained, without injuring the stomach. While there are many so-called rheumatism remedies, patent medicines, etc., some of which do give relief, few really give permanent results and the above will no doubt be greatly appreciated by many sufferers here at this time.

Inquiry at the drug stores of this neighborhood elicits the information that these drugs are harmless and can be bought separately or the druggists here will mix the prescription for our readers, if asked to.

UNIVERSITY OF MICHIGAN.

Items of Interest taken from the U. of M. News Letter.

On Feb. 26, 27 and 28 at Ann Arbor the Michigan Union will present "Michigenda," a comic opera written by students in the University.

At the January meeting of the Regents of the University of Michigan it was decided to have a new science building to cost $275,000 and will be completed Oct. 1, 1909.

Skiing has become a popular sport this winter among the students of the University whenever there has been snow enough on the hills around Ann Arbor. They are led on their trips by Dr. Hollander, teacher of Norwegian.

Athletics at the University of Michigan netted $33,893 89 last year according to the last report of the treasurer, the foot ball season bringing in the largest share of the total receipts, a sum of $25,631.15.

Registration at the University Hospital shows that 3,208 patients were treated during the past year.

Children having malformations and other congenital maladies may be admitted to the hospital for treatment at the expense of the state if their parents reside in Michigan.

The regular yearly state appropriation for the University of Michigan amounts to $650,288.

The estimated value of the state U. of M. is: grounds $376,800, buildings $1,715,200, equipment, $976,694.

Fees from students amounted to $278,803 at the University of Michigan for the year ending June '07.

A Piano at a Nominal Price.

Chicago's largest music house, Lyon & Healy, announces a Clearing Sale of Pianos. Several hundred splendid instruments are offered without reserve until all are sold. In this stock are a number of Steinway and Weber pianos and new and second-hand pianos, including instruments of the following well-known makes: Lyon & Healy, Huntington Vose, Knabe, Washburn, Fischer, Kimball, Chickering, etc., etc. In upright pianos neat instruments at $120, $140, $150, $165, $190, $200 and upwards. This is an opportunity that will not occur again. Any piano not proving entirely satisfactory may be returned at their expense. Address Lyon & Healy, 10 Adams street, Chicago. Distance is no obstacle, for in proportion to the saving to be made the freight charges are insignificant. Any banker will assure you of the entire responsibility of Lyon & Healey and their record of 44 years for honorable dealing. Write today so as to avoid disappointment.

Security For Your Live Stock

of every kind, and for your fields of growing crops, is what you want, and what you have a right to expect, when you buy fence. A fence that a bull can break through or break down is not worth paying good money for. You want weight in the fence you buy, weight enough to turn the heaviest Percheron or stop a "devil wagon." CELEBRATES

His 85th Birthday Today.

LUCIUS LILLEY

One of the Oldest and Best Known Bankers in the State.

"My birthday! How many years ago?
Twenty or thirty! Don't ask me,
Forty or fifty! How can I tell?
I do not remember my birth, you see."

Although Mr. Lilley may not remember his birth, he can, no doubt, remember looking in the old family Bible and reading, "Born in Homer, Cortland county, N. Y., to Zenas and Sarah Lilley Feb. 21, 1823, a son christened Lucius," and it is this same Lucius Lilley, born, 85 years ago, that today is receiving the congratulations of his friends.

We find other towns boasting of their long lived citizens but certainly no town can boast of a man, who at the age of 85 years, is as active in business as Mr. Lilley. He is one of the oldest and best known bankers in the state, a director of the Detroit Trust Co., a member of the Detroit Bankers Club and has acted as delegate from the Michigan Bankers Association to the National Association. The churches and Kings Daughters have reason to be very grateful to Mr. Lilley for the many kindnesses they have received from him.

Almost any day for the last 53 years Mr. Lilley could be found in the banking room of the Lilley State Bank, always glad to see and have a chat with his friends. The Chinese have a maxim, "There are plenty of acquaintances in the world but very few real friends." That Mr. Lilley can be a warm true friend the HERALD well knows, for he has been that to Mr. Stacy and myself for many years. And with his many friends the HERALD, and myself, congratulate him on attaining his 85th birthday.

STOP THE STRENUOUS LIFE.

Weakens the tissues and lessens organic vitality.

The stress and strain of the strenuous life in both city and country tends towards stomach troubles.

The frantic rush for pleasure, money and excitement is bringing serious results. Elaborate food, late suppers, over-eating and too much drinking are some of the causes of stomach weakness for which the individual is responsible.

Five people suffer today where one did ten years ago with sick headache, dizziness, flatulence, distress after eating, specks before the eyes, bloating, nervousness, sleepless and the many other symptoms of indigestion.

All who are suffering with stomach troubles and that means at least two out of three in Tecumseh and other towns, should use Mi-o-na stomach tablets. Nothing else is as safe, yet effective nothing else can be so thoroughly relied upon to relieve all troubles from indigestion as Mi-o-na. It is unlike any remedy heretofore known and is actually one of the most valuable discoveries in modern medical science.

It is not a mere digestive taken after the food is eaten, but a true tonic, stimulant and strengthener for the muscular walls of the stomach, increasing the flow of digestive fluids and putting the stomach into such condition that it does the work Nature expects of it. It is an absolute and lasting cure, for it banishes all weakness and debility from the stomach and bowels.

So reliable is Mi-o-na in its curative action that C. A. Wright & Son, with every 50-cent box they sell give a guarantee to refund the money unless the remedy does all that is claimed for it.

Deafness cannot be cured

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the eustachian tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever, nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give one hundred dollars for any case of deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

Special announcement regarding the National pure food and drug law.

We are pleased to announce that Foey's honey and tar for coughs, colds and lung troubles is not affected by the National Pure Food and drug law as it contains no opiates or other harmful drugs and we recommend it as a safe remedy for children and adults Sold by all druggists in Tecumseh.

There are countless roads on all sides to the grave.

At time when you don't feel just right when you have a bad stomach, take something right away that will assist digestion, not something that will stimulate for a time but something that will positively do the very work that the stomach performs under ordinary and normal conditions, something that will make the food digest To do this you must take a natural digestant like Kodol for dyspepsia. Kodol is a scientific preparation of vegetable acids with natural digestants and contains the same juices found in a healthy stomach. Each dose will digest more than 3,000 grains of good food It is sure to afford prompt relief; it digests what you eat and is pleasant to take. Sold by all druggists.

Do not make unjust gains, they are equal to a loss.

Suffering & Dollars Saved.

E. M. Loper of Marillo, N. Y., says "I am a carpenter and have had many severe cuts healed by Bucklen's arnica salve. It has saved me suffering and dollars. It is by far the best healing salve I ever found." Heals burns, sores ulcers, eczema and piles. 25c at C. A. Wright & Son's drug store.

The early riser is healthy, cheerful and industrious.

The trouble with most cough remedies is that they constipate. Kennedy's laxative cough syrup acts gently but promptly on the bowels and at the same time it stops the cough by soothing the throat and lung irritation. Children like it. Sold by all druggists.

The best swimmer is the first to drown himself.

The editor of the Memphis, Tenn., Times writes: "In my opinion of Foley's honey and tar is the best remedy for coughs, colds, lung trouble, and to my own personal knowledge Foley's honey and tar has accomplished many permanent cures that have been little short of marvellous." Refuse any but the genuine in a yellow package. For sale by all druggists in Tecumseh.

It it not sheer madness to live poor to die rich.

Neighborhood Favorite.

Mrs. E. C. Charles of Harbor, Me., speaking of Electric Bitters says: "It is a neighborhood favorite here with us." It deserves to be a favorite everywhere. It gives quick relief in dyspepsia, liver complaint, kidney derangement, malnutrition, nervousness and general debility. Its action on the blood as a purifier makes it especially useful as a spring medicine. This grand alterative tonic is sold under guarantee by C. A. Wright & Son. 50c.

Bert Barber of Elton, Wis., says: "I have only taken four doses of your kidney and bladder pills and they have done for me more than any other medicine has ever done. I am still taking the pills as I want a perfect cure." Mr. Barber refers to DeWitt's kidney and bladder pills. They are sold by all druggists.

There is nothing ill said that is not ill taken.

STATE IS UNDER SNOW

Latest Blizzard Has Broken Previous Records.

EVERY COUNTY IS COVERED.

Drifts Are From Two to Ten Feet Deep—Railroads, in Some Cases, Almost Completely Tied Up—Rural Carriers Unable to Reach Patrons.

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 20.—From Erie to Superior one way and from Huron to Michigan the other, and then almost as far again from the boundary lines on all sides of Michigan is the empire of the snows. The winter of 1907-8 in this state has been a series of "worst storm in years," but this blizzard renders the cherished memory of "the oldest inhabitant" a shattered ideal.

The storm's work is almost complete. Every county in both peninsulas is covered by a level of from one to two feet, and drifts mount from those depths to ten feet. The same serious hamper to business as was experienced two weeks ago threatens even worse proportions of damage now. Interurban car lines are badly blocked, and every railway snowplow is in use, trying to relieve the situation. Rural mail delivery is out of the question, as there is hardly a country road in the state where traffic of any sort can be carried on. In some parts, farmers manage to get around on horseback.

This snow is lighter than the last, and it is due to this fact that drifts are going deeper. The wind is varying throughout the state, but the northeasters and northwesters seem to prevail for the most part, lake shore towns being hit hardest.

In this city, ninety cars have been crippled by the short circuiting and the burning out of motors. The snow fighters have had no relaxation since early Tuesday night. Altogether, the storm is estimated to have cost the Detroit United railway $10,000.

Steam Lines Suffer.

On the steam lines, double engines have been attached to all trains, and snowplows have bucked the drifts since early Wednesday morning. Schedules went to pieces. Trains run an hour late over all divisions of the Grand Trunk. The Michigan Central has been having its troubles, although no cases of absolute stalling have been reported. Trains from St. Louis and Chicago are tardy, and more difficulty is anticipated. The wind, piling the snow across the rails in long, deep windrows, makes progress slow, even with two powerful locomotives attached to each string of coaches.

Grand Rapids, Mich., Feb. 20.—This city is now free from storm, but the weather is growing colder, and more snow is predicted by the local weather bureau. The Muskegon, Grand Rapids, Grand Haven and Muskegon interurban road is completely tied up. A passenger car was stranded all night at Walker, a few miles from the city limits. The interurban company sent out sleighs to bring in the fifteen passengers in the morning. They had made their way to farm houses and telephoned their friends and secured breakfast.

The Grand Rapids and Indiana train from Chicago, due at 10 o'clock at night, arrived at 6:50 in the morning, having been stalled at various points. The Lake Shore trains are all running several hours late, while the Pere Marquette system in this territory is having much trouble in moving trains. All traffic on steam roads from here north is very seriously hampered.

Saginaw, Mich., Feb. 20.—The Saginaw district has apparently been less seriously affected by the storm than other parts of the state. No trains have been stalled and although there have been some delays conditions are on the whole not unsatisfactory. All trains are run with two engines and the snowplows are actively at work.

On the Pere Marquette the greatest difficulty is experienced in the Thumb district. Nearly all trains have been annulled. On the Michigan Central trains are not seriously delayed.

Kalamazoo, Mich., Feb. 20.—Kalamazoo is almost stormbound, train service on all railroads being greatly impaired or stopped entirely. The Fruit Belt Line, from this city to South Haven, is the greatest sufferer, being unable to run any trains.

On the Michigan Central, the Wolverine flyer, due here at 11:46 a. m., was stalled between Marengo and Marshall for several hours and finally reached Comstock, several miles east of this city. There it struck a big bank, and five engines were unable to move it. Passengers were transferred to other trains, which went around on the other track, and a gang of 100 men is at work digging out the train.

The Michigan United railways discontinued service between this city and Battle Creek. Many city car lines are out of operation. Rural mail carriers have made no trips.

Ionia, Mich., Feb. 20.—The worst tieup on the Pere Marquette has occurred here. Not a single train in or out of Ionia, reached its destination. The many cuts, in and about Ionia, are completely filled with snow, and half a dozen trains are stalled.

A dozen locomotives have been sent out from Ionia on relief work.

All rural mail service was suspended, and it will be several days before normal conditions prevail.

Owosso, Mich., Feb. 20.—A light snow accompanied a heavy blow here, and railway cuts and country roads are drifted full. Train No. 4, on the Ann Arbor railroad, southbound, has not been heard from. No. 36, Grand Trunk train from Muskegon, has not yet arrived. All other trains are running from one to two hours late.

Bay City, Mich., Feb. 20.—Street cars are stalled in drifts from six to eight feet deep in all parts of the city, and snowplows are unable to reach and relieve them.

Port Huron, Mich., Feb. 20.—The storm continues unabated, and traffic on the Grand Trunk and Pere Marquette railroads is greatly delayed.

Vassar, Mich., Feb. 20.—The very worst storm of the season is on here. There has been a fall of snow that was drifted with a forty mile wind. Rural delivery is tied up, and from six to eight feet of snow is piled up in the streets.

The Caro branch of the Michigan Central is tied up at Caro, only one train going through Wednesday. The P., O & N. train is off the track at Owendale. The Pere Marquette, from Port Huron to Saginaw, is tied up. Michigan Central trains on the main line are running, though very late.

DECLARE A HOLIDAY.

Lima, Feb. 20.—The American battleship fleet is expected to reach Callao today. Two wireless messages, one from the flagship Connecticut and one from the Peruvian cruiser Colonel Bolognesi, now coming up the coast with the Americans, have been received.

The first message conveyed the information that the fleet was then 224 miles from the port, and the second forwarded a message of thanks from Rear Admiral Evans. In his own name and those of the officers of the fleet, he expressed his appreciation of the affectionate welcome by the Peruvian nation and the president. Admiral Evans said he considered the Peruvian escort to Callao a great honor and thanked the government for its offer to transmit his message to the navy department at Washington, but added that he had nothing at present to communicate.

The government has issued a decree making Saturday a holiday, in honor of Washington's birthday and the American's visit, and it has ordered the Peruvian war vessels to salute the American flag at noon. The banks and commercial houses have closed, and great crowds are ready to greet the fleet when it steams into port and take part in the later festivities. President Parde will give a public reception to Rear Admiral Evans and the other officers, at 5 o'clock on Friday afternoon.

The wireless message from the Connecticut said that Admiral Evans has not yet recovered his health.

Washington, Feb. 20.—The exchange of felicitious greetings between President Pedro Montt of Chile and President Roosevelt, occasioned by the visit of the battleship fleet to the harbor of Santiago, Chile, as contained in cablegrams, have been made public at the state department. President Montt says:

"I have just witnessed the passage, in line, of the powerful American squadron which, in command of Admiral Evans, carries the American flag on the Pacific, and have been given the opportunity to view and admire one of the most splendid of the manifestations achieved in every field by the United States of America.

"The salute this day given to our banner signifies a demonstration of cordial friendship for the Chilean people, which I thankfully acknowledge in their name, while making wishes for the constant prosperity of the United States and the happiness of its illustrious president."

To this message President Roosevelt responded:

"I appreciate your excellency's friendly message. The lively interest of the Chilean people in the review of the American ships and the exchange of naval courtesies are regarded by my countrymen as fresh tokens of cordial good will between the two countries. I offer you my friendly greetings and the best wishes of the American people for the welfare of Chile."

President Points Out Danger.

Washington, Feb. 20.—President Roosevelt has sent a letter to the interstate commerce commission, in which he indicates the importance of the commission's action with respect to the limitation of the hours of labor of railway employes and points out the possibility of serious differences arising between railroad companies and their employes with respect to wages and hours. The president strongly deprecates the making of any issue between railroad companies and their employes in the matter of wages, if that can be avoided; instructs the commission to secure all possible information in advance, so that the responsibility may be fairly placed and to hold itself in readiness to mediate if strikes are threatened.

High Forester Official Dead.

Rochester, N. Y., Feb. 20.—Charles F. A. Young, grand chief ranger of the Foresters of America, is dead, at his home, of typhoid pneumonia. He had been ill only a few days.

BRIEF DISPATCHES.

The state of Illinois has given the Chicago Telephone company permission to increase the company's capital of $20,000,000 to $30,000,000.

Eight persons had to jump from the second story of a burning building at Houston, Tex., three of them being injured, one dangerously.

An interesting literary exhibit, in which are shown first editions of all the works of John Milton, as well as many later editions, is being held at Columbia university.

Because his wife threatened to secure a divorce from him, L. Asbury of Seattle, Wash., shot and killed her. He then turned the gun upon himself and sent a bullet crashing through his brain.

Hal Newton Carlyle of New York, an actor of national prominence, dropped dead, at Grand Junction, Colo., just as he was about to go upon the stage. He was sixty-five years of age.

The world's record for shearing sheep by machinery was broken, at Phoenix, Ariz., by F. Him, who sheared 325 sheep in nine hours. The shearing plant employs thirty shearers, and the plant also made a world's record, shearing 6,572 sheep in nine hours, or 220 per man.

Everybody is welcome when we feel good, and we feel that way only when our digestive organs are working properly. Dr. King's new life pills regulate the action of stomach, liver and bowels so perfectly one can't help feeling good when he uses these pills. At C. A. Wright & Son's drug store. 25c.

VILLAGE LOCAL

CHURCH AFFAIRS

WORK BEING DONE IN OUR CHURCHES.

What is accomplished through the Social Life.

METHODIST CHURCH.

The Ladies Aid served a colonial supper in the church parlors last night.

The benevolence committee met Tuesday night to make plans leading up to the benevolence offering taken at Easter.

The W. H. M. S will hold their regular meeting with Mrs Hurrey next Thursday afternoon. The topic is "Our work in the South."

The Queen Esther Circle will have a social at the home of Lelah Rogers tonight. George and Martha Washington will be there to receive the guests. Refreshments will be served and a silver offering taken. All are invited.

The Michigan Christian Advocate of Feb. 15th, contained a picture of the Methodist parsonage at Bad Axe. It is a beautiful colonial house and is the home of Rev. M. T. Seelye and family, a former pastor of the Methodist church of this place. Mr. Seelye is to be congratulated upon being the occupant of so beautiful a home which harmonizes with the elegance of the church which is adjacent. In describing the house the Advocate says:

The house is well proportioned, finely designed and well balanced bit of architecture. The simplicity of scheme and elegance of finish are evident. The perfect equipment and the utility secured by the interior plans to be appreciated requires that one see the house itself.

That a northern town in the "Thumb" of the state should have one of the choicest parsonages in the entire conference, is surprising and many wonder how it could be had. We ourselves can hardly tell, but know that this church is a body of high-minded and generous people and that one choice Christian woman set her heart upon it that the pastors should have a nice home. This good woman has supplemented the contributions of the membership and furnished all the rest of the money the undertaking needed.

There has been no rash incurring of expense, no beginning of an enterprise in excess of ability to pay, no debt to harass preacher and people in later years. Everything has been paid for and though several thousand dollars were spent upon it, the house is under no mortgage It is a diffcult art to know how to give money to good causes, wisely and this art is pretty well possessed in this church and this visible result is one of its evidences.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

A new announcement board will shortly be placed on the front of the church.

The visiting committees will soon make a canvass to secure a religious census of the village.

The Home department of our Bible school, numbering 109, with 9 visitors, all of whom are studying the International S. S. lessons.

The men's banquet will be given in the church tonight at six o'clock. Covers have been placed for 150 and a delightful menu prepared.

At the session meeting Tuesday night the church letters of Gladys Thielan, Blanch Snyder, Mr. and Mrs. John Bickman, Mrs. Raynor Benedict and Mrs. J. H. Griffith were received.

The men's choir has been furnishing the Sunday evening congregations with fine music this winter. Numbers have been coming early to hear the practice. The church is open at six o'clock and all are welcome at that hour.

The ladies of the church have arranged with the Consolidated Lyceum Bureau for a production of "Parsifal" to be given in the church in the near future The play is given by a reader to pipe organ accompaniment and illustrated with stereoptican photograps of the production.

Last Sunday evening a literary program was given at the C. E meeting in charge of Florence Keyser. A paper, "Ralph Conner's Books," was read by Miss Widley; "The Bible as good Reading" Dwight Clarkson; a story by Lulu Aylesworth; a reading on the religion of Longfellow, May Lowry and anecdotes on the religious life of Lincoln.

EPISCOPAL CHURCH.

Mrs. Louis Schnieder is on the sick list.

Rev. Kemp called on parishoners in town Tuesday.

Mrs. H. Stout is confined to the house with rheumatism.

Miss Josephine Hayden has been confined to the house with inflammation of the eyes for several days.

The missionary circle will have for their subject next month, "Bishops and their various locations" Every one is requested to bring something on this subject.

In honor of the 40th wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Hicks which occurred Tuesday, Feb. 18, the parish presented them with a bunch of 40 carnations, accompanied by a valentine which must be seen to be appreciated.

BAPTIST CHURCH.

Mrs. Holdridge Sr. is spending the week with Mrs. Ella Sheldon.

Mrs. C. H. Bramble and Miss Florence Bryan are on the sick list.

Dr. Montgomery of Adrian, was at the meeting Wednesday evening.

Rev. Kamm's sisters, who have been visiting him, returned to their homes Wednesday morning.

Mrs. Hattie Sheimire has returned to Manchester after visiting a week with her nephew, Jay Morse.

The monthly missionary meeting which was to have been held Wednesday afternoon at Mrs. A. O. Bryan's has been postponed until Wednesday afternoon, Feb. 26, at the same place.

Everyone is cordially invited to attend the meetings being held at the Baptist church. You cannot fail to be helped by hearing the very earnest gospel sermons preached by Rev. Sweet.

FRIENDS CHURCH.

Owing to the illness of Rev. Wollam, Mr. Swan took charge of the Wednesday evening service.

The executive committee meeting of the C. E. will meet again with Mrs. Reuben VanWinkle Tuesday at the usual time.

Do not forget that next Wednesday evening the monthly business meeting of the church follows the service. Make a special effort to come.

All were eager to get the new missionary mite boxes which were given out last Sunday in the primary and intermediate grades of the Sunday school.

The monthly meeting of the Missionary society was held Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs Jane Satterthwaite. The lesson was taken from the new book Gloria Christi, and the topics assigned for study, were discussed.

Services will be held in the Episcopal church Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock. Sunday school at 11:30. Mid-week service Friday night at 7:30, followed by choir practice.

Heavy Snow Delays Traffic.

The heavy snow fall of Wednesday greatly hindered the railroad traffic. All of the trains were late that managed to get through at all and the two passengers on the D. T. & M were annulled. A relief train was sent out from Adrian about four o'clock in the afternoon. The 7:03 on the Lake Shore was on the crossing at Chicago and Railroad streets Wednesday morning about half an hour, owing to the drifts in front of the council building. The 2:55 came down about 6:20. They have been running about on time today.

Bales Snow for Summer Use.

Arcola, Ill., Feb. 17.—W. W Pepper, who resides northeast of this city near Newman, is at work with a number of hay balers baling up snow for next summer's use. He tried the experiment last year and found that baled snow makes an ice of better quality than ordinary frozen or manufactured ice. He had no trouble in disposing of his last year's output and will work on a bigger scale this year. The baled snow will stand more hot weather than ordinary ice will.

Paris, Feb. 17.—Charles Frohman will have the "Morals of Marcus" translated into Esperanto and announces that he expects to present Miss Marie Doro in the international language version of that comedy in Berlin next August This will be the first play to have the distinction of translation and presentation in Esperanto. It will be a combination of an American actress, an English play and a Russian Pole, Dr. Zamenhof's one-man made language.—Chicago Record-Herald.

MAKE IT YOURSELF.

A well known authority on rheumatism gives the readers of a large New York daily paper the following valuable yet simple and harmless prescription which anyone can easily prepare at home:

Fluid extract dandelion, ½ ounce; compound kargon, 1 ounce; compound syrup sarsaparilla, 3 ounces

Mix by shaking well in a bottle and take a teaspoonful after each meal and at bedtime.

He states that the ingredients can be obtained from any good prescription pharmacy at small cost and being of vegetable extraction are harmless to take.

This pleasant mixture, if taken regularly a few days, is said to overcome almost any case of rheumatism. The pain and swelling, if any, diminishes with each dose until permanent results are obtained, without injuring the stomach. While there are many so-called rheumatism remedies, patent medicines, etc., some of which do give relief, few really give permanent results and the above will no doubt be greatly appreciated by many sufferers here at this time.

Inquiry at the drug stores of this neighborhood elicits the information that these drugs are harmless and can be bought separately or the druggists here will mix the prescription for our readers, if asked to.

CELEBRATES

His 85th Birthday Today.

LUCIUS LILLEY

One of the Oldest and Best Known Bankers in the State.

"My birthday! How many years ago?
Twenty or thirty! Don't ask me,
Forty or fifty! How can I tell?
I do not remember my birth, you see."

Although Mr. Lilley may not remember his birth, he can, no doubt, remember looking in the old family Bible and reading, "Born in Homer, Cortland county, N. Y., to Zenas and Sarah Lilley Feb. 21, 1823, a son christened Lucius," and it is this same Lucius Lilley, born 85 years ago, that today is receiving the congratulations of his friends.

We find other towns boasting of their long lived citizens but certainly no town can boast of a man, who at the age of 85 years, is as active in business as Mr. Lilley. He is one of the oldest and best known bankers in the state, a director of the Detroit Trust Co., a member of the Detroit Bankers Club and has acted as delegate from the Michigan Bankers Association to the National Association. The churches and Kings Daughters have reason to be very grateful to Mr. Lilley for the many kindnesses they have received from him.

Almost any day for the last 53 years Mr. Lilley could be found in the banking room of the Lilley State Bank, always glad to see and have a chat with his friends. The Chinese have a maxim, "There are plenty of acquaintances in the world but very few real friends." That Mr. Lilley can be a warm true friend the HERALD well knows, for he has been that to Mr. Stacy and myself for many years. And with his many friends the HERALD, and myself, congratulate him on attaining his 85th birthday.

STOP THE STRENUOUS LIFE.

Weakens the tissues and lessens organic vitality.

The stress and strain of the strenuous life in both city and country tends towards stomach troubles.

The frantic rush for pleasure, money and excitement is bringing serious results. Elaborate food, late suppers, over-eating and too much drinking are some of the causes of stomach weakness for which the individual is responsible.

Five people suffer today where one did ten years ago with sick headache, dizziness, flatulence, distress after eating, specks before the eyes, bloating, nervousness, sleepless and the many other symptoms of indigestion.

All who are suffering with stomach troubles and that means at least two out of three in Tecumseh and other towns, should use Mi-o-na stomach tablets. Nothing else is as safe, yet effective nothing else can be so thoroughly relied upon to relieve all troubles from indigestion as Mi-o na. It is unlike any remedy heretofore known and is actually one of the most valuable discoveries in modern medical science.

It is not a mere digestive taken after the food is eaten, but a true tonic, stimulant and strengthener for the muscular walls of the stomach, increasing the flow of digestive fluids and putting the stomach into such condition that it does the work Nature expects of it. It is an absolute and lasting cure, for it banishes all weakness and debility from the stomach and bowels.

So reliable is Mi-o-na in its curative action that C. A. Wright & Son, with every 50-cent box they sell give a guarantee to refund the money unless the remedy does all that is claimed for it.

DO YOU SUFFER WITH A LAME BACK?

Kidney Trouble Makes You Miserable.

Almost everybody who reads the newspapers is sure to know of the wonderful cures made by Dr Kilmer's Swamp Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy.

It is the great medical triumph of the nineteenth century; discovered after years of scientific research by Dr. Kilmer, the eminent kidney and bladder specialist, and is wonderfully successful in promptly curing lame back, uric acid, catarrh of the bladder and Bright's Disease, which is the worst form of kidney trouble.

Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is not recommended for everything but if you have kidney, liver or bladder trouble it will be found just the remedy you need. It has been tested in so many ways, in hospital work and in private practice, and has proved so successful in every case that a special arrangement has been made by which all readers of this paper, who have not already tried it, may have a sample bottle sent free by mail, also a book telling more about Swamp-Root, and how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper and send your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. The regular fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles are sold by all good druggists. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

Doan's Kidney Pills will cure you.
Tecumseh people testify.
Read a case of it:

Orson Austin, retired, living on Logan street, Tecumseh, Mich., says "I still hold the same high opinion of Doan's Kidney Pills today as when I gave my statement for publication some 5 years ago. Prior to that time I had kidney disease with distressing pains in my my kidnys. I did not take care of the trouble at first and it finally became aggravated and the pain so severe that I could not stoop or lift anything. I used a number of highly recommended remedies but received only temporary relief. Finally I tried Doan's Kidney Pills receiving much benefit so I continued until cured. I am always glad to recommend Doan's Kidney Pills."

AFTER CHINESE TRADE

Japanese Exceptionally Aggressive In Orient.

IT IRRITATES THE NATIVES

America Is Losing Her Commercial Foothold—Japan Not Blamed—It Is Affect of Our Internal Government Regulations.

Washington, Feb. 20.—Information from unofficial and individual sources evidencing the aggressiveness of Japan in Manchuria has been accumulating in the state department for some time. That this condition is irritating in increasing degrees to China is also a matter of knowledge here. It is stated with authority, however, that in no manner has the Chinese government brought the matter to the attention of the American government, and no representation on the subject is looked for.

A remarkable explanation of the attitude of our government in this important matter is developed as the result of inquiry directed toward officials, who cannot be quoted, but are in positions to direct our policies. In effect, it is as follows:

Not Charged to Japan.

It is frankly admitted that America is losing her commercial foothold in the Orient. This loss, however, is not charged to Japan. Rather, it is asserted to be the effect of the growing tendency toward internal governmental regulation in the United States. As an illustration of this, attention is called to these facts: Five years ago, flour in barrels was being shipped to the Orient from the northwest; steel rails from Pittsburg, and cotton in bales from Texas. These shipment were made possible because of an exceedingly low ocean freight rate arrived at by a railroad combination.

This rate has been condemned by our courts as a conspiracy against trade, and the development of this trade has been abandoned. The domestic war, as it is characterized, against the Standard Oil company, which is credited with the largest Oriental trade of any American enterprise, is declared to have been disastrously effective in the Orient, while the tobacco and cotton goods trades are said to have been dealt heavy blows through the operation of railroad regulation here.

From this point, it seems easy for government officials here conversant with foreign matters to view Japanese commercial aggression in Manchuria with a greater degree of complaisance than would be the case in the face of an urgent domestic demand for governmental assistance. Japan, it is asserted, can, without great difficulty, justify everything she has done in Manchuria as sanctioned by the "open door" policy, initiated by the late Secretary Hay, and adhered to by the greater nations, including Japan.

Is Japan Justified?

While Japan may justify these things in the strictest sense under the "open door" policy, it has been charged that there exists evidence of her use of many methods and practices which might not bear the light of impartial investigation. Besides, her claim to an equal footing with other nations in Manchuria on the "open door" basis, she has, it is asserted, obtained many valuable concessions through which her control of the railroad and telegraphic facilities is practically complete. This control is known to be used primarily in the interest of Japanese tradesmen and to the detriment of all foreign competitors. These disadvantages are, of course, being felt by American tradesmen, as well as by those of other foreign nations. As the trade of Germany, England and other nations is more valuable than the American trade, and as these nations are what is termed highly commercially organized, it would not be a great surprise to American diplomacy to hear of protests from these quarters against Japan's aggression.

Would Give Bartholdt Nobel Prize.

Washington, Feb. 20.—The American group of the International Parliamentary union, composed of members of the United States senate and house of representatives, held a meeting at the capitol, and by unanimous vote, Representative Richard Bartholdt of St. Louis, Mo., was selected as the candidate of the American group for the next Nobel peace prize, attached to which is a cash award of $40,000. The nomination was in recognition of the distinguished service rendered by Dr. Bartholdt in personally persuading the support of Great Britain and Germany to the obligatory arbitration clause presented to the second Hague conference by the United States. Dr. Bartholdt represented the American group at that convention.

The Best Laxative for Children.

Parents should see to it that their children have one natural, easy movement of the bowels each day. Do not dose the child with salts or griping pills, as they are too powerful in effect, and literally tear their little insides to pieces, leaving the bowels weakened and less able to act naturally than before. Laxative Iron-ox Tablets tone and strengthen the bowels, and stimulate all the little organs to healthy activity. Chocolate coated tablets, easy to take, never gripe or nauseate. 10c, 25c and $1.00.

HOLLOWAY.

An Ideal Laxative.

Physics and Cathartics which purge, unload the bowels, and give temporary relief, but irritate, and weaken the digestive and expulsive organs. Laxative Iron-ox Tablets are as different in effect as truth is from falsehood. They nourish the bowel muscles and nerves, giving them strength and vigor to do the work nature intended, thus effecting a permanent cure by perfectly safe and natural means. The best laxative for children. Chocolate coated tablets, easy to take, never gripe or nauseate. 10c, 25c and $1.00 at all drug stores.

Man and Wife Are Convicted of Kidnaping,

STOLE LITTLE CHICAGO GIRL

William Jones Gets Thirty Years. Woman is Sentenced For Twenty-Five—Kidnaped Child Proved Important Witness in Case.

Chicago, Feb. 20.—William Jones, also known as William Birmingham, and his wife, Alzina Jones, have been found guilty by a jury in Judge Kersten's court of having kidnaped Lillian Wulff, a twelve-year-old girl, from her home, in Chicago, last December. The punishment of Jones was fixed at thirty years and that of his wife at twenty-five years in the penitentiary.

The Wulff girl was enticed from her home, in the southern portion of the city, by Alzina Jones, early in December, 1907, and forced into a covered wagon in which Jones was waiting. A week later, the Joneses and the girl were found near Momence, Ill.

Jones and his wife were arrested and brought back to Chicago with the child. Jones endeavored to shift the blame on his wife, asserting that it was to console her for the loss of a child, by death, and at her instance that he took the child. The woman testified at the trial that she was forced by Jones, under threats of death, to steal the child, that he might train her to beg for him.

The child testified that after being taken prisoner, her clothing was taken from her and burned by the roadside and that she was whipped by Jones on several occasions when she attempted to escape. When found, she was clothed in rags.

Mrs. Jones was at one time a member of the Salvation army in Evanston, Ill. Jones admitted having been convicted, several years ago in Kansas City, of horse stealing. Jones was also charged, by his wife, with having kidnaped a child in Kansas City. This child, Ella Cates, was recently found in an institution in Dubuque, Ia.

Dug Path for Priest's Funeral.

Battle Creek, Mich., Feb. 20.—Not until Street Commissioner Caldwell, with scrapers and an army of men, went on ahead and cleared South avenue of its drifts was the funeral procession of Father Sadlier able to reach Mt. Olive cemetery, Wednesday afternoon. Every public carriage in the city was used to convey the priests and friends who followed the hearse through the raging snow storm. In his sermon, Bishop Foley paid a tribute to Father Sadlier's persistency in fighting for improvements in the church and referred to the Saul and Jonathan friendship of Father Sadlier and Father Baart.

Dairymen at Battle Creek.

Battle Creek, Mich., Feb. 20.—A report by Secretary A. J. Wilson of Flint, condemning the use of oleomargarine, was adopted by the Michigan Dairymen's convention, in session here. Unfairness on the part of the state board is alleged, because the creameries were not invited to file bids to supply the institutions. The convention was opened by President Colon C. Lillie, but was later turned over to W. A. Betchel of Caro, the vice president, Lillie returning to the constitutional convention. The entire basement of the auditorium is devoted to a butter and cheese exposition, with 200 exhibitors.

Goes Back to Prison.

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 20.—Henry Ottersky, aged twenty-three, was arrested here by Detectives Downey and Fox, for violating his parole. Ottersky can blame his wife for his capture, the police say. Ottersky, whose home is in Saginaw, was sentenced from Lapeer county to five years in Jackson. After serving fourteen months, he was paroled, but failed to keep straight. His wife is said to be wealthy. The police say Mrs. Ottersky heard her husband courted other women and at once notified the authorities.

PRIEST ASSASSINATED

Denver Prelate Killed at the Communion Rail.

ITILIAN ANARCHIST DID IT.

Denver, Colo., Feb. 24.—Father Leo Heinrichs was shot and killed here, by Guiseppe Guarnaccto, avowed anarchist and priest hater, while the priest was administering the sacrament at early mass in St. Elizabeth's Roman Catholic church, Eleventh and Curtis streets. Kneeling at the altar rail, between two women, Guarnaccto pressed the muzzle of a revolver against the body of the priest, after receiving from him the consecrated water, and shot the priest through the heart. Exclaiming "My God, My God," Father Leo fell prone in front of the altar and died.

With an inarticulate scream, the assassin sprang into the aisle and, waving the smoking pistol above his head, dashed to the church door. For a moment, the hundred or more persons in the church were dazed. Then a woman shrieked, and the congregation became panic stricken. Several women fainted, and many others became hysterical. Several men, including Patrolman Cronin, overtook the fleeing Italian on the church steps. Guarnaccto attempted to shoot the policeman, but was foiled and overpowered after a desperate struggle, in which several men assisted the officer. The murderer was hurriedly removed to the city jail.

Bring in Candles.

Before the commotion caused by the tragedy subsided, the Franciscan brothers, connected with the church, silently brought candles for the dead and placed them beside the body of their superior, where he lay. By direction of Bishop Matz, the church was closed for the day. Deputy Coroner Daniel Hayes later took charge of Father Leo's body, which was removed to the city morgue. A single bullet hole in the white communion robes of the priest showed that the lead had gone straight to the heart. The bullets remaining in Guarnaccto's revolver had sharpened points.

Guarnaccto was placed in solitary confinement. He admitted to a policeman that the priest whom he had killed was a stranger to him and, in explanation of his crime, said:

"I just went over there because I have a grudge against all priests in general. They are all against the workingman. I went to the communion rail because I could get a better shot. I did not give a d—n whether he was a German priest or any other kind of a priest. They are all in the same class.

"I left Italy three months ago and went first to Central American and then came to Denver. I am an anarchist, and I am proud of it. I shot him, and my only regret is that I couldn't shoot the whole bunch of priests in the church. I am a shoemaker, but have not worked since coming to Denver."

Father Leo was born in Koeln, Germany, Aug. 15, 1867. He entered the Franciscan order on Dec. 4, 1885, and was ordained on July 26, 1891. He came to Denver last September, from Paterson, N. J. He was for three years in Oregon, N. Y.

COST MANY LIVES.

Hurricane That Swept British Isles Did Much Damage.

London, Feb. 24.—Heavy loss of life and much damage to property were wrought by a hurricane that swept the northwest portion of England and Ireland. The lives lost may total 100, while scores are known to have been injured.

The storm wrought havoc with shipping. The entire coast over which the hurricane raged is reported dotted with wrecks. Even in the protected harbors, considerable loss to shipping is reported, owing to the fierceness of the gale.

Blinding storms of hail and rain accompanied the terrific wind and added to the destruction. For miles into the interior, great damage was wrought.

Sailing vessels were the worst sufferers at sea, but even small steamers are reported in distress.

In the Mersey river, a schooner was capsized, and her crew of eight men was drowned. Near Donegal, a train was partly blown from the rails while crossing a viaduct and nearly went into the bog. Scores were injured by the shaking up.

It is known that several grandstands were blown down while they were packed with spectators watching local football contests.

SIX ARE KILLED.

Frightful Grade Crossing Accident In New York State.

TEAM CAME RUNNING HOME.

Dragged Splintered Wagon Pole, Which Indicated Accident Had Happened—Party of Nine Struck by Train While Returning Home.

Spring Valley, N. Y., Feb. 24.—A foam specked pair of horses that tore through the streets early in the day, dragging between them a splintered wagon pole, brought to the village the first news of a grade crossing accident, in which nine members of its most prominent families were either killed outright or frightfully injured.

The runaways brought up at the livery stables of George Young, from whom they had been hired the night before to take a party of men and girls to a basketball game at Nyack. Returning in the early hours, the wagonload of merrymakers was run down at a West Nyack crossing by an Ontario & Western express train. Four of the party were instantly killed, two died while being removed to the Hudson county hospital at Hoboken, N. J., and the other three lie in a serious condition at the institution. The dead:

NELSON MAY, aged nineteen, driver of team.

BERTHA SINGER, aged eighteen.

EDITH SINGER, aged twenty.

GEORGE SHINN, a basketball player.

JEANETTE PALMER, aged twenty-one.

The injured: Warren Palmer, twenty-two years old, condition serious; Henry Dieteren, twenty-three years, basketball player, will probably recover; Mary Edith Bird, aged eighteen years old, condition critical.

The responsibility for the accident is in dispute. The survivors cannot be questioned as yet, and the only other witness was the gate tender. He claims that the team was driven through the lowered gates. The gate on the side of approach was broken down, but the opposite gate was intact and, if previously lowered, must have been hurdled by the frightened horses, after the wagon had been struck and torn from its pole. The animals were uninjured.

WAS HE MURDERED?

Wealthy Italian Found Dead In His Warehouse.

New York, Feb. 24.—Gerolamo Cella, a wealthy Italian wine importer, a leading merchant of the Italian chamber of commerce and a thirty-second degree Mason, died within a few moments after he was found, early in the day, in the office of his warehouse, in West Broadway, with his skull fractured and suffering from the effects of a poison. His death is shrouded in mytery, according to the police, who are working on the theory that a murder has been committed.

Coroner Harburger declared that Cella was struck down by a hammer blow on the head, and that his assailants later poured a liquid poison down the throat, presumably to give an appearance of suicide. A letter signed with Cella's name, bidding good bye to his family, was found, and the coroner states that he believes the assailants forced Cella to write the letter under threat of death.

Cella was discovered by Dominice Cella, his brother, who has been detained as a suspicious person. Caesar Bianchi, a son-in-law of Cello, is held as a material witness.

Believed Ship and Crew Are Lost.

Dorchester, N. B., Feb. 24.—Relatives of Captain William Palmer, a vessel owner of this town, who was an officer on the British ship Alacrita, have abandoned hope that the vessel will be heard from again. The Alacrita sailed from Delagoa bay, South Africa, Aug. 5, 1907, for Hong Kong and Baltimore, and, according to advices received here, has not been reported. The ship was under command of Captain Thornton and carried a crew of probably twenty men. The Alacrita registered 1,323 tons. Last year she was chartered by the Standard Oil company.

Set Fire to Her Clothing.

Cleveland, O., Feb. 24.—Mrs. Augusta Strey, seventy-three years old, has committed suicide by setting fire to her clothing. The aged woman considered herself a burden upon her grandson, with whom she was living. He had lost his position and has a large family to support.

KEPT OPEN HOLIDAY.

Ypsilanti Saloon Keeper Will Probably Be Fined.

DETROIT PREACHER IS BUSY.

Special Invitations Sent Out to Saloon Proprietors, Asking Them to Hear Him Talk—Detroit Police Commissioner Lets Saloons Keep Open.

Ypsilanti, Mich., Feb. 24.—Two members of the Law and Order league, S. E. Crawford and E. L. Sanderson, Saturday, in an effort to determine whether or not the law was being obeyed and if the police was doing its duty, made an investigation of the saloons. They found practically all the saloons, with the exception of one now under $300 bonds for a former violation of the law, were open.

In two saloons, operated by aldermen of the city, Aldermen Max and Meier, drinks were purchased. Before they got much further, the tip was passed around by the barkeeps who had been caught, and other saloons were closed.

The committee will make complaints against these men and have notified Mayor Kirk of their intention. The committee found that Chief of Police Gage was at home sick and had not notified any of the officers to take his place or to close the saloons. The city furnishes a chief of police and two patrolmen, the latter not going on duty until noon. With the chief at home sick, there was no one in authority until midday.

Favoritism Shown.

The Law and Order league understands that favoritism has been shown those city officials in the saloon business and made the investigation to determine if this was true. They claim that this is but the beginning of a crusade which will keep things lively for awhile.

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 24.—Personal invitations issued to Detroit saloonkeepers by Wellington M. Logan, religious secretary of the Y. M. C. A., urging them to hear an address to be given especially for their benefit by Dr. E. H. Pence, pastor of the Fort Street Presbyterian church, served to pack the assembly hall Sunday afternoon.

Although Dr. Pence declared that he would not condemn any class of men or any business, the liquor dealers who anticipated an eulogy went home disappointed.

A corps of musicians preceded the speaker with selections and sought to prepare the audience for what was to follow. Then the singing of hymns commenced, but the majority of those present seemed to be unfamiliar with this particular variety of songs, so the leader suggested that they whistle the airs, and immediately all joined in.

His Subject.

The subject of the address was, "The Other Side of the Man."

"It is a fact that a great many men are judged by one act," said Dr. Pence. "Some of us are only too willing to look at a man's frailties and forget that he may have many good qualities, perhaps more than we ourselves. There is a good side even to those whose outside is bad. A man may have a vice; it may be his education that is to blame, or it may be that he has been able to strangulate his conscience, but, nevertheless, he may possess many good qualities.

"Again, I know that there are many here today who would give their last half dollar to a person, but that isn't the highest virtue in the world. I think that the most precious thing in this world of ours is a man's soul, and I tell you that any man who will deliberately continue in the business that trips a man's feet up and makes the way easier to hell than to heaven has got the argument against him.

Man Reaps What He Sows.

"What does a generous disposition amount to unless a man makes the best use of it? I may misjudge you; perhaps I am mistaken, but I tell you that the man against whom I would direct my javelins is the man who is responsible for the ruin of the souls of our sons and daughters. I will not judge any particular class of men as being good or bad. I will not usurp the place of God. But remember that whatsoever a man soweth so shall he reap.'"

On Washington's birthday, the great majority of the 1,780 saloons of Detroit were wide open, although it was a legal holiday and Commissioner Smith has repeatedly said the closing law would be enforced.

The saloons did not all force patrons to go to the back doors. Access was by the front entrances.

Police Commissioner Smith issued the following statement:

"Conditions that prevailed Saturday indicate the impracticability and impossibility of enforcing provisions of law that are patently unfair and unjust in attempting to close saloons on a day of this kind.

"With the commercial activity in all other lines practically the same on Washington's birthday as on any other business day, the temptation to the saloon keeper and the demand for his goods were both too great to be overcome. It illustrates that this present liquor laws, which was drawn a great many years ago to fit conditions then existing, contins provisions in some instances and omits them in other instances which makes it particularly difficult to enforce on a day of this kind and gives color to the claim of the unfairness and injustice of the law at this date.

"The law was drawn particularly for rural communities, or, at best, for not large cities, where merchant and laborer either had his noonday meal at home or carried it with him and did not depend on restaurants or cafes for his luncheon."

WORKS UNIQUE TRICK.

Stranger Got Thirty Dollars Out of Muskegon Business Man.

Muskegon, Mich., Feb. 24.—Muskegon business men have reported that a smooth confidence man victimized them, securing in all about $30. He appeared at Robert W. Christie's store, asking for a $5 bill in place of $5 in silver, and when Christie gave him the bill, he seemingly placed it in a registered letter. He "lost" twenty-five cents of the $5 in silver and went out to get an extra quarter, handing Christie the envelope, which, of course, was found to be empty. Others were worked the same way.

Grand Rapids and Holland report that the same game was worked there last week. The fellow is apparently thirty years old and well dressed.

Worth More In Prison Than Out.

Jackson, Mich., Feb. 24.—Julius Nieman of St. Joseph county is worth more to his dependent family in prison than out. Nieman, convicted of non-support, was sentenced to pay $3 a week for the support of his wife and six children, and to give $500 bond to do so, in default of which he was to go to prison for from one to three years. He defaulted and came to prison here. Now, it happens that a new state law provides that in a case like that of Nieman's, the states shall pay to the wife $1.50 a week, and for each dependent child fifty cents per week. So Mrs. Nieman, who would have gotten $3 a week had Nieman given bond, will get $4.50 because he didn't.

Prominent Lansing Doctor Dead.

Lansing, Mich., Feb. 24.—Dr. A. F. Ferguson, member of the city council and a prominent physician of this country for many years, is dead. Dr. Ferguson was a member of the legislature in 1889-91 and served the people in many other positions of trust. He is survived by a widow and two sons.

Two Pioneers Dead.

Bellevue, Mich., Feb. 24.—During the funeral services for the late Charles W. Beers, Mrs. Julia Birchard died. Both were pioneer residents, and both for many years active members of the Methodist church here. They were about the same age, seventy-six.

MICHIGAN BRIEFS.

Four pioneers of Hillsdale country have died within the past few days. They are: William Carter and wife of Adams, and Erastus Walworth and Nelson Ashley of Hillsdale. All were over seventy-five years of age.

Because Mrs. Reuben Zealand of Port Huron would not earn enough money to support her family, her husband, the police allege, punished her with a strap. Zealand and the strap are now in the custody of the sheriff, and he is awaiting arraignment on a charge of assault.

Robert R. Ray, an engineer on the Bay City branch of the Michigan Central railroad, was terribly scalded about the face, while oiling his engine at Bently. He was standing on the side of the engine when the rod running to the steam chest broke, and the scalding steam struck him full in the face.

Washington's birthday was chicken pie day in the prison, at Jackson. Chicken is not unfrequently served to convicts on special occasions, but chicken pie is a rarity. It took 740 pounds of the fowl to make the pies, and among those who sat down to the feast were 104 life prisoners.

Panic Results In Ten Deaths.

Teheran, Feb. 24.—Ten persons were killed and a score or more wounded, including several ecclesiastics, as a result of a panic in the main street here, during the passage of a religious procession celebrating the Mohammedan Muharram religious festival, held during the first month of the Mohammedan year.

Village Local

Fittingly Observed

Presbyterian Men's Class celebrate Washington's Birthday.

Chentin T. Wang of Shanghai, China, was a Guest of Honor.

The men of the Presbyterian church gave a Washington birthday banquet in the church parlors last Friday evening at 6 p. m. Fully 100 men gathered in the auditorium of the church for a social hour before the banquet was announced. Never did the church look more handsome in its tasteful and becoming decorations of flags, pictures of Washington and a small flag at each plate as a souvenir.

The guests were served to the following menu:

Oysters Wafers
Pickles
Chicken patties Mashed potatoes
Hot rolls
Jellies Cheese
Coffee Doughnuts
Ice cream Cake

by Dwight Clarkson, Seymour Boyd, Don Wright, Percy and Elmer Slayton, Jay Kenyon, Tom Elliott, Wade Frost, John Scarlett, Theo Higbee, Roger Waring. The tables being in charge of Richard Moilles, Bert Waring, Frank Hammond, John Belcher and J. H. Smith. Those in charge of the serving were Mesdames J. J. Orr, L I Bidwell, A. D. Lawrence, J. J. Freeman, S. W. Anderson and J. H Smith. Rev. Ward returned thanks. Frank R. Hurst as toastmaster received a decided ovation from those present

It has been said that a humorist can take a joke and trim and mow it and dress it in another cloak until the author of that joke would hardly know it. Mr. Hurst as humorist cannot be excelled. A violin duet was first on the program by Duaine Service and Lynn Rogers, but Mr. Service was unfortunately out of town and the toastmaster explained that it would be but half a duet, Mr. Rogers playing, accompanied by Mrs. J. Q. Look at the piano.

Mr. J. Q Look was introduced, his subject being "Any Old Thing." Mr. Look said he was told to sing, tell a story or speak a piece As he positively could not sing and didn't know any stories, he would speak an old piece entitled "St Peter at the Gate." This was thoroughly enjoyed. A duet by W. S. Dickinson and Floyd Slater was pleasingly rendered

Rev. M J. Sweet of Hudson, spoke upon the subject "Union not Unity." His idea was to divide the country into equal territories and each Christian denomination to have charge of one of these and not tread upon another's territory. Rev Sweet was formerly a teacher of physiology in the Blissfield schools and he closed his remarks with the boy's definition of a backbone. "The head sits on one end, with a hinge on the other you can use when you sit down." No one was ready for Mr. Sweet to use the hinge, however. Floyd Slater sang a solo.

Rev. Dunning made a few remarks about George Washington whose birthday they were celebrating. Mr. Chentin T. Wang of Shanghai, China, one of the most brilliant Chinamen in America today, spoke upon "American Impressions" Mr. Wang is a graduate of the Imperial University in China, and was dressed in native costume. He is attending the University of Michigan and is prominent in the Y. M. C. A. work. He spoke at length upon America's attitude toward China and of the good work the missionaries from this country are doing in China He said that the opium England had sent into their country was killing more of their men than war ever had.

Among the things that impressed him mostly when he came to this country was that the Americans were always in a hustle while in China they think that to walk slow is more becoming to a gentleman; their style of dress, the Chinese wearing the silk and satin robes; shoes, as both shoes will fit either foot of a Chinaman; the intercourse between young men and ladies, as Chinese women deem it immodest to be seen on the street with a gentlemen. Mr. Wang was enthusiastically received.

In closing "America" was sung by the company with addition of the stanzas which have been added by Henry Van Dyke to nationalize the hymn which before has been identified more particularly with New England. We copy the verses, which are inserted as the third and fourth stanzas of the national hymn:

I love thine inland seas,
Thy groves and giant trees,
Thy rolling plains:
Thy rivers' mighty sweep,
Thy mystic canyons deep,
Thy mountains wild and steep,
all thy domains.
Thy silver Eastern strands,
Thy Golden Gate that stands
Fronting the West:
Thy flowery Southland fair,
Thy sweet and crystal air—
O Land beyond compare,
Thee I love best!

Rev. Dunning pronounced the benediction. Those who had the banquet in charge spared no pains in making this the most successful event of the history of the men's class, and it should be an inspiration to all present.

WOMEN TAXPAYERS ALLOWED TO VOTE

CON-CON SO CONCEDES IN NEW HOME RULE CLAUSE.

Does away with property qualification for men.

Lansing, Mich., Feb. 20.—The convention, sitting in committee of the whole, yesterday adopted by a vote of yeas 62 the Milnes substitute for the section conferring power on cities and villages to acquire public utilities. It is the section which confined the votes on such matters "to electors who have property assessed for taxes in the cities and villages." The substitute as passed reads as follows:

No city or village shall have power to abridge the right of elective franchise to loan its credit, nor to assess, levy or collect any tax or assessment for other than a public purpose. Nor shall any city or village acquire any public utility or grant any public utility franchise which is not subject to revocation at the will of the city or village unless such proposition shall have received the affirmative vote of three fifths of the electors of such city or village, and upon such proposition women taxpayers having the qualifications of male electors shall be entitled to vote.—Detroit Journal.

Deafness cannot be cured

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the eustachian tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever, nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give one hundred dollars for any case of deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

Special announcement regarding the National pure food and drug law.

We are pleased to announce that Foley's honey and tar for coughs, colds and lung troubles is not affected by the National Pure Food and drug law as it contains no opiates or other harmful drugs and we recommend it as a safe remedy for children and adults. Sold by all druggists in Tecumseh.

There are countless roads on all sides to the grave.

At time when you don't feel just right when you have a bad stomach, take something right away that will assist digestion, not something that will stimulate for a time but something that will positively do the very work that the stomach performs under ordinary and normal conditions, something that will make the food digest. To do this you must take a natural digestant like Kodol for dyspepsia. Kodol is a scientific preparation of vegetable acids with natural digestants and contains the same juices found in a healthy stomach. Each dose will digest more than 3,000 grains of good food. It is sure to afford prompt relief; it digests what you eat and is pleasant to take. Sold by all druggists.

Do not make unjust gains, they are equal to a loss.

Suffering & Dollars Saved.

E. M. Loper of Marillo, N. Y., says "I am a carpenter and have had many severe cuts healed by Bucklen's arnica salve. It has saved me suffering and dollars. It is by far the best healing salve I ever found." Heals burns, sores ulcers, eczema and piles. 25c at C. A. Wright & Son's drug store.

The early riser is healthy, cheerful and industrious.

The trouble with most cough remedies is that they constipate. Kennedy's laxative cough syrup acts gently but promptly on the bowels and at the same time it stops the cough by soothing the throat and lung irritation. Children like it. Sold by all druggists.

The best swimmer is the first to drown himself.

The editor of the Memphis, Tenn., Times writes: "In my opinion of Foley's honey and tar is the best remedy for coughs, colds, lung trouble, and to my own personal knowledge Foley's honey and tar has accomplished many permanent cures that have been little short of marvellous." Refuse any but the genuine in a yellow package. For sale by all druggists in Tecumseh.

Neighborhood Favorite.

Mrs. E. C. Charles of Harbor, Me., speaking of Electric Bitters says: "It is a neighborhood favorite here with us." It deserves to be a favorite everywhere. It gives quick relief in dyspepsia, liver complaint, kidney derangement, malnutrition, nervousness and general debility. Its action on the blood as a purifier makes it especially useful as a spring medicine. This grand alterative tonic is sold under guarantee by C. A. Wright & Son. 50c.

Bert Barber of Elton, Wis., says: "I have only taken four doses of your kidney and bladder pills and they have done for me more than any other medicine has ever done. I am still taking the pills as I want a perfect cure." Mr. Barber refers to DeWitt's kidney and bladder pills. They are sold by all druggists.

PISO'S

Consuming Consumption

even in its most insidious form is not always incurable. The first intelligent step in the treatment of the disease is to stop the violent paroxysms of coughing which tear the lungs and enfeeble the system. Piso's Cure has permanently cured many consumptive coughs, as shown by court testimony, because its antiseptic, healing and soothing qualities act directly on the lungs and bronchial passages, stopping the coughing and gently healing the lacerated tissues. Even the most advanced consumptive coughs have responded quickly to Piso's Cure, which being absolutely free from opiates, or habit-forming drugs is the ideal remedy for every form of coughs, colds, bronchitis in young and old. For nearly half a century Piso's Cure has been demonstrating that the most advanced form of chest affections

Orson Austin, retired, living on Logan street, Tecumseh, Mich., says "I still hold the same high opinion of Doan's Kidney Pills today as when I gave my statement for publication some 5 years ago. Prior to that time I had kidney disease with distressing pains in my back at times almost unbearable. Rheumatism also settled in my limbs and hips adding much to my misery. I did not get my proper rest at night because of the frequent passages of the kidneys attended by a burning sensation. I knew Doan's Kidney Pills were good for such troubles, began using them and soon noticed their good effects. Thus encouraged I continued taking them until cured. I am always glad to recommend Doan's Kidney Pills."

Catherine, the baby daughter of Jay McConnell and wife, is still very low.

To the Courier's list of young old people we would add the names of Mrs. Pawson, who will be 94 in April, Henry Allen 83, E. C. Wisner 81, also Joseph Spaulding, Mr. and Mrs. Merrill Estabrooke.

Women as Well as Men Are Made Miserable by Kidney and Bladder Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition; beauty, vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased.

Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine scalds the flesh, or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy. The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold by druggists, in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also a pamphlet telling all about Swamp-Root, including many of the thousands of testimonial letters received from sufferers cured. In writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure and mention this paper. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

UNDER THE HUDSON

Opening of First Passenger Tunnel in New York Will Be Fittingly Celebrated Tuesday.

New York, Feb. 24.—The century-old task of overcoming the water barriers that have separated Manhattan Island from the country of which it is the metropolis has at last been accomplished. The first tunnel for passenger traffic under the North or Hudson river will be thrown open to the public at noon on Tuesday.

The event, which spells the eventual doom of the Hudson ferries and marks the completion of another stage of the vast projected system of underground and underwater transportation in the greater city, will be celebrated officially by the builders and by the highest officials of state and nation, and unofficially by tens of thousands of commuters, who now no longer will have their going and coming dependent upon fog or ice and ferry boat delays. President Roosevelt, at his desk in the executive offices at Washington, will press a button to signal the opening of the tube, and the governors of New York and New Jersey will participate in the ceremonies at the tunnel mouths.

With the exception of one line of railroad, which crosses the Hudson at Albany and then comes in a direct line south to the Harlem river and across that stream into the Grand Central station, all travel to New York from the south and west has been dependent upon ferry boat services. Now, after thirty-four years of almost constant effort, the problem of boring beneath the surface of the river has been solved, and New York has been inseparably joined to the outside world.

The first of the tunnels to be opened is a part of the so-called McAdoo system, thus named in honor of William G. McAdoo, president of the Hudson & Manhattan Railroad company, a young Tennesseean, whose pluck and energy secured the backing and made the tunnels an accomplished fact. The bore of this first completed means of under river transportation to the west leads from Morton street, on the lower west side of New York, to Hoboken, N. J. The tunnel consists of two tubes, in which shuttle trains of eight cars each, propelled by electricity, will be operated. Two more tubes of the McAdoo system are nearing completion. Their Manhattan terminus will be at Cortlandt street—now an important ferry center—and the New Jersey end will be in Jersey City.

The North river tunnel service is to be still further augmented later on by the opening of the Pennsylvania railroad tubes, to connect their lines with the magnificent station now under construction at Thirty-second street and Seventh avenue. The first of these bores was connected on Friday last.

The McAdoo tunnel system includes subway branches under New York city, leading from the downtown stations to the heart of the shopping district. The tunnels also will connect with the main subway routes of the city and with the Pennsylvania tunnels.

Naval Officer Threatened.

New York, Feb. 24.—In a letter signed "Black Hand" and addressed to Commander Braunstrueter, in charge of the United States naval magazine at Ionia island, the threat has been made that the enormous stores of smokeless powder on the island will be blown up, unless the married men, discharged from employment on the island Jan. 1, 1908, be put back to work at once. There are 3,000,000 pounds of smokeless powder and other explosives stored in the numerous magazines. Secret service men are working to discover the identity of the writer of the letter. The letter was mailed at the Haverstraw postoffice, two weeks ago. On Jan. 1, between thirty and forty men, civilians who had been employed on the island, were discharged, owing to delay in forwarding funds from Washington to continue work.

Keeping open house.

Everybody is welcome when we feel good, and we feel that way only when our digestive organs are working properly. Dr. King's new life pills regulate the action of stomach, liver and bowels so perfectly one can't help feeling good when he uses these pills. At C. A. Wright & Son's drug store. 25c.

That Little Brother of the Sun.

I mean Acetylene Light.
What is Acetylene made from?
Calcium Carbide and Water.
What is Calcium Carbide?

How is it used?

These drums are water-tight.

Carbide can't burn, can't explode, can't do anything till you bring it in contact with water and air,—the two cheapest of all elements.

When you drop Carbide into water its Carbon combines with the Hydrogen of the Water and forms Acetylene Gas.

Touch a match to that, at the burner, and it gives out a brilliant, white light, steady, cool and odorless which is nothing less than Sunlight.

Now, what does Carbide cost?

It costs 3½ cents per pound in most of the States.

At 4 cents per pound it produces white Sunlight (Acetylene), of 24 candle-power, for two-fifths of a cent per hour.

This is a full third less than the same candle-power light costs from regular Kerosene Lamps the expense of Chimneys and Wicks considered.

What does an Acetylene Lighting plant cost to install?

Write the the number of rooms in your House (or Hotel) or the size of your Store.

Then I can tell you which sort of Generator will best suit your purpose, and how little it would cost installed complete when you go the right way about it.

Drop me a line to-day.

Address me thus—Acetylene Jones, 8 Adams St., Chicago, Ill.

FISH GIVES UP.

Will No Longer Quarrel With Harriman Over Illinois Central.

New York, Feb. 24.—Stuyvesant Fish announced that the contest in the Chicago courts to prevent the voting of Illinois Central Railroad company stock, held by the Union Pacific Railroad company, was now closed. Mr. Fish made the following statement concerning the closing of the litigation in Chicago:

"I went into the contest at the solicitation of many stockholders who had for many years entrusted me with their proxies and on the advice of counsel, with great reluctance. My effort has been to protect the Illinois Central and my own large holdings therein of 12,432 shares from exploitation by men whose acts in other corporations have been denounced, after a full investigation by officers of the federal government and are involved in suits in the courts here in New York in Utah and elsewhere, and I have done my best to advise the stockholders of the situation. When Mr. Harriman and his associates shall at length be forced to answer the questions which they have been evading for a year past, my contention that the destiny of the Illinois Central and the interest of the state of Illinois therein should not be entrusted to him and those selected by him, will be justified.

"I take this opportunity of thanking the holders of more than 390,000 shares of the stock of the Illinois Central Railroad company for having honored me with their proxies and their confidence in this contest. Submitting to, and not acquescing in Judge Ball's decision, the contest in the courts is now closed."

BOOST OFFICERS' SALARIES.

Constitutional Convention Has Provided For Changes.

Lansing, Mich., Feb. 20.—At Wednesday's session of the constitutional convention, the following changes were provided for in the salaries paid to state officials: The governor, who now receives $4,000 per year, is to receive $5,000; the attorney general, the secretary of state, state treasurer, auditor general and land commissioner will receive $2,500. They now get $800 per year.

A provision was also made whereby the legislature has power, at any time, to abolish the office of land commissioner.

A clause was also adopted providing that before any change is made in the present system of drawing juries, the object being to establish a jury commission, the change shall be made on the majority vote of the electors of the county.

A committee of the convention has voted to submit a report substituting for a property qualification in the case of those voting on a public utility franchise question, a provision that a majority of three-fifths of the electors shall be required to effect a grant.

Attorney General Bird Goes South.

Adrian, Mich., Feb. 20.—Attorney General Bird has gone to Hot Springs, Ark., with a sister from Clayton, Mich. His sister has been ailing for some time, and when deciding to make the change of climate, Mr. Bird decided to accompany her. She will remain there the rest of the winter, while the attorney general will return in about a week.

William Bostwick Convicted.

Baldwin, Mich., Feb. 20.—William Bostwick, charged with misappropriation of school funds while acting as director, was found guilty in the circuit court. Judge Rose directed him to pay $30 costs and the $20 shortage found and then let him go on suspended sentence until the May term.

Wife Lay Dead by His Side.

Port Huron, Mich., Feb. 20.—John Simpson of this city did not realize that his wife was lying dead by his side, early in the morning, until their baby fell from the bed to the floor and began to cry. The sleeping father awoke to quiet the child, when he made the discovery. It is thought that Mrs. Simpson's death was due to heart failure. She was forty-four years old. The couple have six children.

'Varsity Gets Dr. Miller's Books.

Ann Arbor, Mich., Feb. 20.—It has been announced to the board of regents that Mrs. Miller, widow of the late Dr. Miller, dean elect of the dental department, whose death occurred before he assumed active duty here, had presented most of his books, slids and specimens to the university. A few were reserved for the family and others given to the University of Pennsylvania.

No One But Yourself if You Don't Get Well When Sick.

All we can do is give advice.
Of course that's easy.
But our advice is really worth a little more to you than most people's, for we offer to give you the first bottle of our medicine free, if it fails to help you.

We could not afford to do this unless our medicine was good. Such an offer, on the wrong kind of medicine, would put a merchant prince in the poor house.

Dr. Miles' Nervine, however, as years of experience have proved, is a medicine that cures the sick.

Those whom it cannot benefit—less than one in ten thousand—we prefer to refund their money.

All we ask of you is to try Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine for your complaint. If you suffer from sleeplessness, nervous exhaustion, dizziness, headache, muscular twitchings, melancholy, loss of memory, weak stomach, poor blood, bilious troubles, epilepsy, St. Vitus' Dance, etc., we will guarantee to benefit you or refund your money.

You are the doctor.

"My son Bert, when in his 17th year, became subject to attacks of epilepsy, so serious that we were compelled to take him out of school. After several physicians had failed to relieve him, we gave Dr. Miles' Nervine a trial. Ten months treatment with Nervine and Nerve Pills restored our boy to perfect health."—MR. JOHN S. VILLAGE LOCAL

Mrs. M. A. Freeman.

Mrs. M. A. Freeman, who died Jan. 24 at the home of her daughter in Detroit and was brought to Tecumseh for burial, is missed very much by all who knew her. Weeks have passed since her decease and the weeks will lengthen into years but the memory of her bright and helpful life will continue to live in the minds of all who were in any way associated with her. Her works do follow her and many people look back at the days of her earthly sojourn and remember her as one whose happy face and bright and cheerful disposition were a benediction to them and one whose strength of christian character stirred within them nobler impulses and higher ambitions.

Margaret Anna Hope was born in New York City March 11, 1838, and died in Detroit Jan. 24, 1908. When about six weeks old her parents came to Detroit and from Detroit they moved to Belleville, Mich., at which place she was united in marriage to James R. Freeman. Mr. and Mrs. Freeman moved from Belleville to Hudson, where Mrs. Freeman united with the Baptist church.

Tecumseh has been her home for about 42 years, during which time she endeared herself to multitudes of people. No where is she missed more than in the Baptist church by those with whom she had been for long years associated in christian work. Optimistic in spirit she had always been a source of encouragement to all who knew her. She is survived by one son, John J. Freeman, of this city; two daughters, Mrs. W. J. Kies, of Elkhart, Ind.; and Mrs. T. D. McKinney, of Detroit, six grandchildren and one great grandson.

Mrs. John Corry.

Helen Hoagland was born in the town of Lodi, Seneca county, N. Y., 1836, July 4th and came to Michigan with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Voorhees Hoagland, when she was six years of age. They settled in the township of Macon. At the age of 16 years she united with the Christian church of Britton, of which she has ever been a faithful member.

She was married to John Corry of Macon, on New Years eve, 1855, and was the mother of three children, Mrs. Charles Underwood of this place, Mrs. J. K. Cook of Adrian, and one son, who died at the age of six months. Mr. and Mrs. Corry purchased the Day place north of town five years ago, moving there in April 1903, from their farm in Macon. Mrs Corry had not been well all winter, but her parting from us was unexpected until a few moments before the call "come home" at 5 o'clock Tuesday evening Jan. 28th.

She leaves to mourn her loss, her aged husband, two daughters, three sisters, Mrs. Eliza Smith, Mrs. Henry Bachman of Britton, and Mrs. Emma Miller of Res, two brothers, Newell Hoagland, of Kalamazoo, and Frank Hoagland of Britton. The funeral was held from the residence Thursday, Jan. 30. Rev. Dunning officiating. The remains were laid at rest in the family lot at Ridgeway.

CARD OF THANKS.

We wish to thank the neighbors and friends for their assistance and kindness to us during the sickness and death our wife and mother.

MR. JOHN CORRY.
MRS. J. K. COOK.
MR. AND MRS. CHAS. UNDERWOOD.

Mrs. David Neely.

The death of Mrs. David Neely occurred Saturday after an illness of several weeks of heart trouble. Deeply respected and lovingly regarded by family and friends the loss of this estimable woman is keenly felt by the entire community. Mr. Neely, the bereaved husband, has lately been in ill health and to him is greatest sympathy directed. The funeral occurred Tuesday, Rev. C. W. Sidebotham speaking words of comfort. Burial was made at Highland cemetery.

Matilda Wilson, daughter of John and Sarah Elliott Wilson, was born at Springmount, Ireland, November 14, 1833, and died at Brooklyn, Michigan, February 15, 1908, aged 75 years. Coming to America in 1847, she resided in Tecumseh until December 26, 1853, when she was united in marriage to David Neely. They established a pioneer home in the township of Franklin and and in 1861 removed to Cambridge on the farm which Mr. Neely still owns. Retiring from farm life in 1894 they came to the present home in Brooklyn.

Thirteen children have been born to Mr. and Mrs. Neely, nine of whom are living. Wilson, Agnes, Sarah, Emery, Mattie, Frank and Jennie reside in and near Brooklyn, William and Samuel living at Gladwin.

Early in life Mrs. Neely became a member of the Presbyterian church at Tecumseh and an air of christianity and refinement pervaded her home. She was by birth and nature a gentlewoman, unpretentious and charitable in thought and act. An ideal wife and mother, she enshrined herself in the hearts of family and friends that now sorrow at her taking away.—Brooklyn Exponent.

DEBATE

Given at the High School LAST FRIDAY.

Resolved, That Unanimity should not be Required in Jury Verdicts.

To one who enjoyed listening to the program presented by the pupils of the public schools at the recent debate, it seems as if the public is unaware of the pleasure and benefit to be derived therefrom. The responsive happy faces appeal to the visitor and banish all sorrow and care.

A most excellent program appealing to the musical, humorous or reflective mind was presented before the question, Resolved, That unanimity should not be required in jury verdicts was discussed. Notwithstanding that custom and education of ages must be taken into consideration, the affirmative gave logical, forcible arguments, while the negative excelled in oratory. The question was decided in the negative by a majority instead of unanimity of votes.

The musical program was especially pleasing, the boys' quartette as well as a duet by Messrs. B. J. Pulver and Elmer Slayton kindly responded to insistent and vociferous applause.

The man who digs ditches gets spade well for his work.

FEDERATION

Town Federation of Women's Clubs met at the home of MRS. A. W. MILLS

Last Friday. Program given and Boulder discussed.

The February quarterly meeting of the Town Federation of Women's clubs was held at the home of Mrs. A. W. Mills, secretary of the county, last Friday afternoon with a very good attendance. After a short business meeting called to order by the president, Mrs. Howland, the program was given beginning with a musical number, Miss Edith Magers singing in her usual delightful manner with Mrs. Hodges at the piano.

Mrs. Andrew Wilson gave a very interesting paper on Jane Addams and the settlement work in Chicago and other cities. The different lines of work which the Federation is trying to accomplish were then taken up and discussed generally. This organization has several plans under consideration for town improvement and reports from each of these committees was called for.

Mrs. Shull, reporting for the committee on charities, stated that ten Thanksgiving baskets had been sent out providing ten families with a dinner on that day. Mrs. A. B. Smith reported for the committee on reforms, that the president of the village council had been interviewed in regard to petitioning that body to enforce the law relative to selling intoxicants to minors and also as to the advisability of passing a curfew ordinance. Work in this direction is being done.

Mrs. Howland reported that some preliminary steps had been taken toward the forming of night classes in which the tuition should be undertaken by club women and be free to all who wish to avail themselves of it. Some applications to join such classes have been made and a suitable place will be secured as soon as the list is large enough to warrant it. Mrs. Albert gave some personal observations on the work which other clubs are doing for the beautifying of back yards and parks.

Mrs. Shull reported the result so far of the movement to mark with a boulder or other suitable marker the place where the first home in the village was built. This seemed to be the project that is inlisting the energies of the greatest number at present. A donation toward a fund for this purpose was announced from Mrs. Harriett B. Snyder and the subscription list is now open to any of our old residents or others who wish to give toward this laudable purpose to preserve the honored memory of those worthy pioneers who made our beautiful village a possibility.

The ladies of the two clubs forming the Federation propose giving Saturday, Feb. 29, a dinner served by the Monday club and a supper served by the Research Circle to augment this fund. They hope to receive liberal patronage from the general public.

Mrs. Wm. Waldron was present by invitation of the boulder committee and gave some interesting extracts from the written history of the village and from personal recollections of her father who was at one time an occupant of the first log house, these statements showing where the boulder should be placed. After this general discussion refreshments were served by the hostess and the meeting adjourned to meet with Mrs. Tuft the first Friday in May.

REST ROOM

CAN WE COMPEL THE FARMER TO REST IF HE DOES NOT WISH TO.

The Adrian Telegram thinks we can.

WE AWAIT WITH INTEREST THE OUTCOME.

While Adrian is discussing the feasability of providing a "Rest room" in the basement of their new library for tired farmer folks who come to town to "spend a few hours or a half day on business" as a recent issue of the Telegram announces. It might be helpful to them to inquire into the experiences of their sister towns in that line of work. Tecumseh club women tried this sort of philanthropy four years ago and we found out some things that were hitherto unknown to us, the most interesting of which was that the women from the country who come into town to do some trading do not care to rest.

This really seems important! They refuse to be immured in a cellar and compelled to rest. Our farming environment may be composed of more active people than are found on the farms surrounding Adrian and it was not our new Carnegie library that we were offering them. It was some "nice quiet back room." Away from the bustle of the street (our streets certainly do bustle on Saturday afternoons) and we proposed having plenty of easy chairs and couches and toilet accommodations, reading matter, all the new magazines and hammocks and cradles for the babies and always lights and fires.

We were quite sure this was a much needed philanthropy. Our secretary sent out a hundred and fifty postal cards to all the principal farm homes within mailing distance, informing them of the good things in store for them and stating that if a sufficient number of farmer's wives were interested enough to send us a reply postal, work would be begun at once on this colossal scheme for the public good. That was four years ago and we are still waiting for replies, only one so far having been received.

It is the belief of the committee having this matter in charge that even if we had offered the basement of our new library for this purpose as Adrian proposes doing, that we should have been obliged to have offered a luncheon and a moving picture show with it, in order to have secured sufficient patronage to have warranted its continuance. The fact seems to be in this locality at least, that our farmer folks have plenty of these Rest room accommodations at home. No farmer's reading table but is supplied with all the books, papers and magazines which their town friends enjoy and there is no doubt but that they are more thoroughly read than are those numbers which fall into the hands of their city friends.

They can read and rest and rock the baby and wash their hands and smooth their hair at home and if they wish to visit with each other, why there is the Sunday school and the Grange, both good places for an exchange of ideas on spiritual and temporal affairs. When they come to town they want to see things just as we do when we go into Detroit or Toledo, and how would we feel if we had snatched a few hours from our busy week to run into a near city for a little shopping to be met at the station by a committee of sympathizing women and hustled off to the court house cellar and compelled to rest and read magazines that we had already seen.

There are good lights and fires and reading matter in all our farm homes. No need to "carry coals to Newcastle." If our sister city wants to do something real helpful and altruestic for the farmer's wives, let them run a good free vaudeville in the library basement which would afford a sort of relaxation to the women folks while the men folks and the hired men folks are exchanging jokes on the corner.

Of course when we look at this as an investment for the merchants as the Telegram suggests "by making it a more convenient and agreeable trading point." This lure seems a little misleading. The question, is do the merchants want the farmers' wives on their "few hours or half day" trips to town to rock their babies and read the magazines and rest in the library cellar or do they want them in the stores and on the streets making purchases which their husbands would probably forget to remember. It will be very interesting to Tecumseh to watch Adrian try the experiment.

Injunction

Asked for by James Wightman against the Village

A bill giving this village 10 days to show why an injunction should not be issued against it in the matter of the proposed establishment of a sewerage system, was issued yesterday at Adrian by Judge Chester, the suit having been brought by Attorney James Wightman.

This injunction is given because the council recently accepted the bid of A. P. Southworth of Adrian, when there were two bids below.

The jumping off place

"Consumption had me in its grasp, and I had almost reached the jumping off place when I was advised to try Dr. King's New Discovery, and I want to say right now, it saved my life. Improvement began with the first bottle and after taking one dozen bottles I was a well and happy man again" says Geo. Moore of Grimesland, N. C. As a remedy for coughs, colds, a healer of weak, sore lungs and for preventing pneumonia, New Discovery is supreme. 50c and $1 at C. A. Wright & Son's. Trial bottle free.

Missionary Meeting.

The annual meeting also the 25th anniversary of the Missionary society of the Presbyterian church will be held at the home of Miss Dingman Friday night. The mite barrels will be opened and a suitable program presented. A silver offering will be taken.

SAYS IT IS A FACT.

C. A. Wright & Son confirm guarantee on Hyomei, cure for catarrh.

The question having been raised as to whether or no C. A. Wright & Son will refund the money if a Hyomei outfit does not do all that is claimed for it in curing catarrh, they want to state positively that this guarantee is an absolute fact.

A guarantee like this is the best proof that can be offered as to the curative powers of Hyomei in all catarrhal troubles. You do not risk a cent in testing its healing virtues, C. A. Wright & Son take all the risk.

If you have catarrh, try this wonderful medicated air of Hyomei. It does not drug or derange the stomach, but is breathed through a neat pocket inhaler that comes with every outfit, so that its medication reaches the most remote air cells in the nose, throat and lungs, where any catarrhal germs may be lurking. It quickly destroys them, heals and soothes the irritated mucous membrane and vitalized the tissues so that catarrh is no longer possible. You can lose nothing by given Hyomei a trial, nothing but the catarrh and that is good riddance.

The price of the complete outfit is but $1.00; nothing if it fails to cure. Get an outfit from C. A. Wright & Son today and begin its use at once.

SHE WEDS AND GIVES.

America's Second Richest Woman Takes a Husband.

AND REMEMBERS RELATIVES.

Also Hands Over Thousands to Institutions—Mrs. Anna Weightman Walker of Philadelphia Marries Frederick Courtland Penfield.

New York, Feb. 27.—Mrs. Anna M. Weightman Walker of Philadelphia, the second richest woman in America, has just been married to Frederick Courtland Penfield, in St. Patrick's cathedral. Mr. and Mrs. Penfield sailed for Europe on the Carmania later.

Philadelphia, Feb. 27.—Within a few hours after the marriage of Mrs. Anna Weightman Walker to Frederick Courtland Penfield, in New York, her attorney in this city announced, on behalf of the bride, the following gifts to relatives and institutions:

A dead of trust under which $600,000 is set aside for the benefit of her five nieces and $200,000 for the benefit of four great nephews and nieces, in equal proportions.

Fifty thousand dollars to the College of Physicians in this city, as a memorial to her father, the late William Weightman.

Forty thousand dollars to the Franklin Institute in this city, to carry out a contract gift made as a memorial to her father.

Fifty thousand dollars to the Historical Society of Pennsylvania, as a memorial to her first husband, Robert J. C. Walker.

Five thousand dollars to the Professor George Allen memorial in the University of Pennsylvania and a similar amount to the library fund of the Perkiomen seminary of Pennsylvania.

Mrs. Penfield is the daughter of the late William Weightman, a wealthy manufacturing chemist of this city. As the only surviving child, she was made sole heir of Mr. Weightman's great fortune, and her wealth has been estimated at from $40,000,000 to $60,000,000. Mrs. Penfield's first husband was R. J. C. Walker, who was a Pennsylvania member of the forty-seventh congress and a well known lawyer of Williamsport, Pa. He died in 1903.

Mrs. Penfield had two brothers, who died leaving six children. After the death of Mr. Weightman, Mrs. Jones Wister, wife of one of the brothers, attempted to break the will in the interest of her daughter. In making her gifts, Mrs. Penfield says that but for the attempt to break her father's will, she would have previously made a deed of trust for the benefit of the nieces and nephews, similar to one which had been provided for by Mr. Weighman.

Revolt Imminent in India.

Boston, Feb. 27.—The officers of the German steamship Neuenfels, which has arrived here from India and Ceylon, report that the natives are openly defying the British. They have boycotted British goods and have refused to handle cargoes shipped by British merchants. In the interior they are on the verge of revolt, and in many places they are arming and preparing to combat British rule. Agitators are largely responsible for the present conditions. They are inciting the natives to acts of violence. They believe the Japanese will aid them if they engage in war with England, and they declare they will be victorious.

Farmer Kills His Wife.

Woodland, Mich., Feb. 27.—Walter Sackett, a farmer, aged seventy-three years, shot and killed his wife, aged seventy, at his home, four miles from Woodland. The wife was ill in bed when the aged husband entered her room and shot her twice, killing her. Chauncey Williams, the woman's brother, interfered, and Sackett tried to shoot him, but missed. Sackett escaped and went to the home of a neighbor, where he was afterwards captured. It is believed that Sackett was insane. He expresses no regret for his crime and declares that it was his intention to wipe out the whole family. He claimed that his wife's relatives "had it in for him."

Not a Lawyer.

"You are quite a legal gentleman, aren't you?" said a barrister to a witness at Westminster county court.

"No," replied the man; "I work for my living."—London Mail.

LET OUT OF PRISON.

One Man Is Paroled and Another Pardoned.

DOCTOR GETS THE PAROLE.

Scott F. Hodge of Detroit Was Model Prisoner—John Allison Is the Other Man Released—Board Believes He Has Completely Reformed.

Lansing, Mich., Feb. 27.—Governor Warner has ordered the release from the Ionia reformatory of Dr. Scott F. Hodge of Detroit, who was convicted of manslaughter, in connection with the death of Anna Lehmann. Dr. Hodge was sentenced Aug. 2, 1904, to a term of from six to nine years. His minimum sentence has been commuted to expire March 1, and his parole will take effect at the same time. The pardon board, in recommending the release of the prisoner, says the sentence of the prisoner was excessive. He had previously borne a good reputation. Warden Fuller reports that Hodge has been a model and most useful prisoner, giving his best services to the state.

John Allison, the Richland bank robber, is conditionally pardoned. Allison is in Jackson prison.

Allison is the man whose record as a criminal, a convict, a fugitive from prison and a man reformed during his period of stolen liberty is known by this time, without doubt, to every newspaper reader in Michigan. In reviewing his case, the pardon board, in its formal announcement of action taken, says:

"When out of bad company, Allison was always industrious and law abiding. His fault is that he is too easily led."

Wouldn't Return to Crime.

The board goes over the record of Allison's escape from Jackson prison, tells how he refused to go with his pals and return to a life of crime, how he sought work, losing positions two or three times; how finally he obtained a position in the plow works at Rock Island, Ill., and remained there, marrying and settling down, and how he was regarded as a good workman and a trusted employe at the time of his detection and recapture as an escaped prisoner.

The board says that it believes his reformation complete, but, nevertheless, his pardon is made conditional, the conditions being about the same as in the case of a paroled man. He is to have a first friend, who will see to it that he is given employment and keeps straight.

In Allison's case there is no difficulty on this score, as his employers at Rock Island have all along made it clear that they are only waiting for his return to give him his old job back. It is understood that Allison, his wife and their infant child will leave Jackson for the Illinois city as soon as he is released. His wife lives in a cottage near the prison walls, waiting to greet her husband at the gate when he comes out of the prison, free. This will be the first pardon ever signed by Governor Warner.

Liquor Interests Start Campaign.

Lansing, Mich., Feb. 27.—A campaign of education is the latest effort of the brewers of the state to defeat the wave of prohibition. Thousands of circulars are being sent to farmers and workingmen, pointing out alleged results if prohibition is adopted. These circulars are sent out in plain envelopes, and there is no intimation as to the direct source from which they come. This appeal is made to the farmers: "If the market for rye, barley and corn of several states is destroyed, those very same states will offer greater competition to the farmers who raise wheat and oats. It will mean a big struggle among yourselves for existence. Brewers, maltsters and distillers pay in license, revenue and other state, county and city taxes, one-third of all the taxes paid in the United States. They pay out every day more than $1,000,000 for running expenses."

Sloane to Fight Extradition.

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 27.—Dr. J. Byron Sloane, under arrest here on complaint of C. A. Dunbar of Detroit, who charges him with fraud in connection with the alleged salting of the Dos Cabezos gold mine in Arizona, has started his fight against extradition to Michigan. He has secured a writ of habeas corpus from the county court, returnable March 2. Chief of Detectives McDonnell of Detroit, who was armed with the requisition papers, duly honored by Acting Governor Porter of California, will consequently have to wait until the matter is determined.

SINGER TELLS ALL.

Giacia Calla Dramatically Relates Details of Tragedy.

WHEN BROTHER MET DEATH.

Declares She Will Never Let Up Until Husband, Who Deserted Her, Is Driven to Electric Chair—Denies Husband's Self Defense Statements.

New York, Feb. 27.—"The whole story," as she called it, has been told by Giacia Calla, the beautiful opera singer, who, in the tragic role of a deserted bride denouncing her husband as the murderer of her brother, has excited interest on two continents.

Her successes in Paris, her marriage to Paul Roy, in Boston; the quarrel at the New Hampshire summer home, followed by a duel; her flight, in the night, to her mother's home, and the ten agonizing hours she spent beside the corpse while the recital of suicide was being decided upon were given by the woman with all the dramatic art of which she is possessed.

She agreed to shield her husband, she explained, because— "Oh, when you love a man so!"

Now that her husband has left here and denied the legality of their marriage, and has even asserted that she is several years past her admitted age, the singer says that she has had time to realize "the horror of it all" and "will never let up until I drive him to the electric chair." Miss Calla, as she prefers to be called, closed the interview with the statement that she had already told her story to the authorities of New Hampshire and to her attorney here, by both of whom she had been forbidden to talk about the matter.

Gets Warrant For Husband.

Miss Calla, who in private life is Mrs. Paul E. Roy, came here several days ago and has since made her home with her cousin, George E. Hodgden, a dealer in automobile supplies. A few days before her husband sailed for France, she called at his apartments, but he was not in. She did not see him at any time here, and had not lived with him, she said, since the death of her brother, George A. Carkins, on Jan. 2. She engaged counsel in this city, and obtained a warrant for the arrest of her husband, which was afterwards sent to Rome. A statement by her husband, cabled from Paris, in which he asserts that his brother-in-law was killed in self defense, led Miss Calla to give her version of the tragedy.

"I'll tell you the whole story," said the singer. "I met my husband in Paris, where his father is a large dealer in horses. We were married in the city hall, in Boston, last October. We went to Newington, N. H., where my mother has a house a quarter of a mile from her own.

"On the night of Jan. 2, my brother, Mr. Roy and myself intended to go to a concert. My husband wanted me to wear an automobile veil, as we were going to the concert in our automobile. I said I'd wear a hat.

"'What, a large picture hat, so that you'll make a conquest?' said Mr. Roy.

"We then had some words. I glanced at my brother, and he glanced back at me. He slightly nodded his head. I knew he wanted me to leave the room, and so I stepped into the butler's panty.

"Immediately, I heard several shots. How many, I do not know. I cried to the two men. There was no answer. When I opened the door of the kitchen, where they had been, my brother staggered out toward me, extending his right hand and saying:

"'Peach, I'm shot!'

Goes to Mother's Home.

"Peach is my pet name. I cried for help. I cried for Paul; but he did not answer, and I ran from the home to my mother's house. Just as I was about to climb the porch steps, I was seized from behind. Turning, I saw it was my husband. He said:

"'Don't say anything. I did it in self defense. For God's sake, don't say anything.'

"I called him a coward and said he had murdered Sonny."

Miss Calla then related how she, her mother and stepfather, John Kelley, went back to the house where her brother's body lay.

"Following close behind came Paul," she said. "He several times ran up to me and told me not to say anything. He kept on repeating, 'I did it in self defence.'

"For ten hours we were with the dead body of my only brother, before the coroner arrived. My husband's very presence gave me the horrors. When the coroner said it was a suicide, I made no objection.

"When Mr. Kelley was taking the clothes off my dead brother, to the barn, Paul said to him:

"'Jack, be careful. Don't let any one see those.'

"That was because there was a bullet hole in the back."

Asked why she had not told the authorities her present story sooner, Miss Calla said:

"Mother and I were frightened out of our lives."

NO REGULARS.

Government Will Not Likely Furnish the Funds.

Washington, Feb. 27.—Neither Ludington nor Indianapolis is likely to get joint military maneuvers next summer. The army bill, now being considered by the house, contains no appropriation for that purpose, and Congressman McLaughlin sees no chance of getting the house to add the necessary $1,000,000. This also means that the Michigan troops will have no opportunity to maneuver with the regulars, even if they wish to.

The appropriation was purposely left out by the military committee, on the ground that the expense is not necessary, and consequently that this offers just the right opportunity for retrenchment. McLaughlin is disgusted that his efforts toward securing the maneuvers for Ludington must apparently come to nothing.

STORM IN NORTH.

Heavy Fall of Snow Has Blocked Traffic on Railroads.

Marquette, Mich., Feb. 27.—The worst blizzard in years has been experienced here. Huge drifts have piled up, traffic is demoralized and business practically suspended. Trains are hours late. The gale covers a wide area in upper Michigan.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Feb. 27.—A heavy snow storm has almost blocked the roads. The snow is now three feet deep on the level.

Ludington, Mich., Feb. 27.—A forty-four mile gale, accompanied by a snow storm, has raged here, and the harbor is about blockaded with ice. The car ferries are experiencing great difficulties.

In Flames, Goes to Mother's Bed.

Greenville, Mich., Feb. 27.—While she was lifting a hot stove cover with her apron, the clothing of Alice Delehanty, the eleven-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Delehanty, caught fire. With her clothing in flames, the girl ran screaming into the bedroom, where her mother was lying seriously ill. She threw herself on the bed and rolled in the blankets. The mother, hardly able to stand, did all in his power to put out the fire. A neighbor across the street came to the rescue in answer to the girl's screams. The woman threw water over both the daughter and the mother, whose clothing was ablaze by that time. Other neighbors came also, and in a few minutes the fire was extinguished. The girl is suffering great pain, and fears are entertained for the life of the mother, who is very low from the shock.

Sues Street Railway For $15,000.

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 27.—Miss Grace Louise Dickson has started suit against the Detroit United railway for $15,000 damages. She was injured on a Brush street car Feb. 7, being thrown to the floor by a sudden jar. She says that the lower bone of the spine was injured.

MICHIGAN BRIEFS.

A banquet, unique in that it was prepared and served entirely by Indians, was tendered Father Edwin Hudson, at Pahabatown, near Petoskey. Father Hudson is a mission priest at that place.

William Webster of Sault Ste Marie, for ten years postmaster and former mayor, has passed away, aged forty-seven years, after a brief illness, following a fall. He was one of the Soo's successful business men and worked his way up from the ranks.

Mary Strzalko, of Grand Rapids declared in court that she did not love Walenti Bronowski, whom she had come to this country to marry. Now Bronowski wants back the $57 he paid for her passage from Poland and the $100 he spent on her trousseau.

Billy McHale, Walter Ward and Mathew Dwyer, charged with stealing $5,000 worth of goods from the Babbitt-Taylor-Lane company, in Detroit, have all pleaded guilty to grand larceny, before Judge Phelan. The amount they admitted taking was $1,500 worth.

Necessity has separated Henry Mueller, aged ninety, of Bay City, from his wife. The old man was taken to the county house, and his wife has gone to live with her daughter. This is the first time the couple were separated since they were young people.

NEGRO BISHOPS PROTEST.

Want Better Accommodations From Railroads When Traveling.

Washington, Feb. 27.—Five bishops of the African Methodist Episcopal church have joined in a complaint to the interstate commerce commission of unjust, discriminatory and unlawful treatment at the hands of several interstate railroad companies of the south.

The complainants are; Bishops Wesley J. Gaines, H. M. Turner, Evans Tyree, C. S. Smith and E. W. Lampton, and their complaint was directed against the Sea Board All Line railway, the Richmond, Fredericksburg & Potomac railroad, the Southern railway, the Central of Georgia railway and the Pullman company.

The petitioners say they are members of the African race and are bishops of the African Methodist Episcopal church; that the passenger coaches furnished to them when they purchase first class transportation, "are dirty and filthy and are not of the first class quality or description, in consideration of the first class fare paid; that the coaches furnished white passengers are better in quality and decription; that the coaches for negro passengers are compartment cars, partitioned by a swing door, and are altogether unfit and unsuitable for the use of passengers who pay first class fares; that, in addition to being filthy and dirty, such cars are usually crowded with passengers of every description of character, who smoke, drink and curse in the presence of women and all others who possess decent breeding;" and that the defendants refuse to sell negroes sleeping car tickets or supply them with transportation on sleeping cars, or permit them to eat in the dining cars.

The commission is requested to issue an order putting an end to the alleged discrimination and to compel the defendants to provide first class accommodations for negro passengers.

PRESIDENT URGES THEM.

Joins In All Recommendtions Made by Waterways Commission.

Washington, Feb. 27.—President Roosevelt has transmitted to congress the preliminary report of the inland waterways commission. The members urge that immediate steps be taken to conserve the water interests of the country, and that the various rivers and other bodies be systematically improved. The co-operation of state, municipal and national governments and the railroads is urged, and the appointment of a national commission to supervise the work is advocated. Concerning the land carriers, the report says:

"While the decline of navigation in the inland waterways was largely due to legitimate competition attending railway extensions, it is also clear that railway interests have been successfully directed against the normal maintenance and development of water traffic, by control of water fronts and terminals, by acquisition or control of competing canals and vessels, by discriminating tariffs, by rebates and by adverse placement of tracks and structures."

The president joins in all of the recommendations and findings of the commission, especially that portion relating to the railroads.

Begin Ball Playing April 14.

New York, Feb. 27.—With the announcement of the American league's schedule of playing dates for the coming season, which has just been given out, the baseball season is brought close to the followers of baseball, who are always anxious to study possibilities. The schedule calls for 152 games, as arranged; the western teams open in the western territory, and the eastern clubs play in the east; the season begins on April 14 and ends on Oct. 8. The opening dates are so arranged that none of the games will be in conflict, either in New York, Washington, Detroit, Cleveland, Boston, Chicago or St. Louis. The opening games, on April 14, are as follows: Detroit at Chicago, St. Louis at Cleveland, Philadelphia at New York and Washington at Boston. During the coming season the conflicting dates have been reduced to fifteen, which shows a spirit of peace between the two major leagues.

Sent Him Dynamite Through Mails.

Easton, Pa., Feb. 27.—City Solicitor Turner of Easton received a package in the mails, from Italy, and when he opened it, he found it contained a stick of dynamite, to one end of which was attached an explosive cap. Fortunately, the cap burned a little in transit, destroying its power to explode the dynamite when the package was opened. Turner was formally assistant to the district attorney, and it is supposed the dynamite was sent him by one of a number of Italians he prosecuted who have since been released from jail and gone home.

There is no tyrant like custom and no freedom where its edicts are not resisted.—Bovee.

Fire at Milan.

Fire destroyed the union depot at Milan Wednesday morning. It originated from a defective chimney and makes a loss of $1500 The station agent, who went back after the records after turning in the alarm, slipped and fell upon the icy walk, breaking his right arm.

MUST COUNT ON MERKLE

New Yorkers in Camp expect him to hustle older Infielders.

Manager McGraw of the Giants arrived in Marlin Springs, Texas, last Tuesday and gives the following information regarding Merkle:

Fred Merkle will have to be reckoned with when McGraw solves his infield problem. Merkle has been doing most of his work down here at second and short, leaving first base to be covered by Fiyle and Evans. New York fans did not see Merkle in action last fall, as the Giants finished away from home, but in these few months McGraw worked a high opinion of the Toledo boy. Merkle is above the average size of infielders who work on the left side of the diamond, but he is not bigger than Doolin, the clever Quaker shortstop.

It is said that Fred Merkle is up to his old tricks, as he has put the ball over the fence in several games already.

New Marriage Law of Roman Catholic Church.

The new marriage law of the Roman Catholic church goes into effect April 19 '08, is now the subject of much discussion. The old rules are changed in many respects.

Under the new rules every nuptial engagement to be binding must be in writing and signed by either the parish priest or two witnesses. Another important change refers to marriages contracted before a justice of the peace or Protestant minister.

At present such marriages are valid but illicit—real marriages, but sinful. Under the new regulations such marriages will be regarded as invalid—not marriages at all.

The "good fellow" finally causes everyone to hate him by promising more than he can fulfill.

Few people are so selfish as to keep their troubles to themselves.

Deafness cannot be cured

By local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the eustachian tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever, nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give one hundred dollars for any case of deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

Special announcement regarding the National pure food and drug law.

We are pleased to announce that Foley's honey and tar for coughs, colds and lung troubles is not affected by the National Pure Food and drug law as it contains no opiates or other harmful drugs and we recommend it as a safe remedy for children and adults. Sold by all druggists in Tecumseh.

There are countless roads on all sides to the grave.

At time when you don't feel just right when you have a bad stomach, take something right away that will assist digestion, not something that will stimulate for a time but something that will positively do the very work that the stomach performs under ordinary and normal conditions, something that will make the food digest. To do this you must take a natural digestant like Kodol for dyspepsia. Kodol is a scientific preparation of vegetable acids with natural digestants and contains the same juices found in a healthy stomach. Each dose will digest more than 3,000 grains of good food. It is sure to afford prompt relief; it digests what you eat and is pleasant to take. Sold by all druggists.

Do not make unjust gains, they are equal to a loss.

Suffering & Dollars Saved.

E. M. Loper of Marillo, N. Y., says "I am a carpenter and have had many severe cuts healed by Bucklen's arnica salve. It has saved me suffering and dollars. It is by far the best healing salve I ever found." Heals burns, sores ulcers, eczema and piles. 25c at C. A. Wright & Son's drug store.

The early riser is healthy, cheerful and industrious.

The trouble with most cough remedies is that they constipate. Kennedy's laxative cough syrup acts gently but promptly on the bowels and at the same time it stops the cough by soothing the throat and lung irritation. Children like it. Sold by all druggists.

The best swimmer is the first to drown himself.

The editor of the Memphis, Tenn., Times writes: "In my opinion of Foley's honey and tar is the best remedy for coughs, colds, lung trouble, and to my own personal knowledge Foley's honey and tar has accomplished many permanent cures that have been little short of marvellous." Refuse any but the genuine in a yellow package. For sale by all druggists in Tecumseh.

Bucks

By FRANK H. SPEARMAN

Copyright, 1900, by Frank H. Spearman

"I SEE a good deal of stuff in print about the engineer," said Callahan dejectedly. "What's the matter with the dispatcher? What's the matter with the man who tells the engineer what to do—and just what to do, how to do it, and exactly how to do it; with the man who sits shut in brick walls and hung in Chinese puzzles, his ear glued to a receiver and his finger fast to a key and his eye riveted on a train chart. The man who orders and annuls and stops and starts everything within 500 miles of him and holds under his thumb more lives every minute than a brigadier does in a lifetime? For instance," asked Callahan, in his tired way, "what's the matter with Bucks?"

Now, I myself never knew Bucks. He left the West End before I went on. Bucks is second vice president—which means the boss of a transcontinental line now and a very great swell. But no man from the West End who calls on Bucks has to wait for an audience, though bigger men do. They talk of him out there yet. Not of General Superintendent Bucks, which he came to be, nor of General Manager Bucks. On the West End he is just plain Bucks, but Bucks on the West End means a whole lot.

"He saved the company $300,000 that night the Ogalalla train ran away," mused Callahan. Callahan himself is assistant superintendent now.

"Figure it out yourself. To begin with, fifty passengers' lives—that's $5,000 apiece, isn't it?" Callahan had a cold blooded way of figuring a passenger's life from the company standpoint. "It would have killed over fifty passengers if the runaway had ever struck 59. There wouldn't have been enough left of 59 to make a decent funeral. Then the equipment, at least $50,000. But there was a whole lot more than $300,000 in it for Bucks."

"How so?"

"He told me once that if he hadn't saved 59 that night he would never have signed another order anywhere on any road."

"Why?"

"Why? Because after it was all over he found out that his own mother was aboard 59. Didn't you ever hear that? Well, sir, it was Christmas eve, and the year was 1884."

Christmas eve everywhere, but on the West End it was just plain Dec. 24.

"High winds will prevail for ensuing twenty-four hours. Station agents will use extra care to secure cars on sidings. Brakemen must use care to avoid being blown from moving trains."

That is about all Bucks said in his bulletin that evening—not a word about Christmas or Merry Christmas. In fact, if Christmas had come to McCloud that night they couldn't have held it twenty-four minutes, much less twenty-four hours—the wind was too high. All the week, all the day, all the night, it had blown—a December wind, dry as an August noon, bitter as powdered ice. It was in the early days of our western railroading, when we had only one fast train on the schedule — the St. Louis-California express—and only one fast engine on the division—the 101—and only one man on the whole West End—Bucks.

Bucks was assistant superintendent and master mechanic and trainmaster and chief dispatcher and storekeeper—and a bully good fellow. There were some boys in the service, among them Callahan. Callahan was seventeen, with hair like a sunset and a mind quick as an air brake. It was his first year at the key, and he had a night trick under Bucks.

Callahan claims it blew so hard that night that it blew most of the color out of his hair. Sod houses had sprung up like dog towns in the buffalo grass during the fall. But that day homesteaders crept into dugouts and smothered over buffalo chip fires. Horses and cattle huddled into friendly pockets a little out of the worst of it or froze mutely in pitiless fence corners on the divides. Sand drove gritting down from the Cheyenne hills like a storm of snow. Streets of the raw prairie towns stared deserted at the sky. Even cowboys kept their ranches, and through the gloom of noon the sun cast a coward shadow. It was a wretched day, and the sun went down with the wind tuning into a gale and all the boys in bad humor, except Bucks. Not that Bucks couldn't get mad, but it took more than a cyclone to start him.

No. 59, the California express, was late that night. All the way up the valley the wind caught her quartering. Really, the marvel is that out there on the plains such storms didn't blow our toy engines clear off the rails. For that matter, they might as well have taken the rails, too, for none of them went over sixty pounds. Fifty-nine was due at 11 o'clock. It was half past 12 when she pulled in and on Callahan's trick. But Bucks hung around the office until she staggered up under the streaked moonlight, as frowsy a looking train as ever choked on alkali.

There was always a crowd down at the station to meet 59. She was the and burned. Jim, if it ever happens again, quit dispatching. Get into commercial work; mistakes don't cost life there; don't try to handle trains. If it ever happens with you, you'll kill yourself."

That was all he said. It was enough. And no wonder Callahan loved him.

The wind tore frantically around the station, but everything else was so still. It was 1 o'clock now and not a soul about but Callahan. D-i, D-i, J, clicked sharp and fast. "Twelve or fourteen cars passed here—just—now east—running a-a-a." Callahan sprang up like a flash—listened. What! Running away?

It was the Jackson operator calling. Callahan jumped to the key. "What's that?" he asked quick as lightning could date it.

"Twelve or fourteen cars coal passed here, fully forty miles an hour, headed east, driven by the wi"—

That was all J could send, for Ogalalla broke in. Ogalalla is the station big arrival of the day at McCloud even if she didn't get in until 11 o'clock at night. She brought the mail and the express and the landseekers and the traveling men and the strangers generally, so the McCloud livery men and hotel runners and prominent citizens and prominent loafers and the city marshal usually came down to meet her. But it was not so that night. The platform was bare. Not even the hardy chief of police, who was town watch and city marshal all combined, ventured out.

The engineer swung out of his cab with the silence of an abused man. His eyes were full of soda, his ears full of sand, his mustache full of burs and his whiskers full of tumbleweeds. The conductor and the brakemen climbed sullenly down, and the baggageman shoved open his door and slammed a trunk out on the platform without a pretense of sympathy. Then the outgoing crew climbed aboard and in a hurry. The conductor elect ran downstairs from the register and pulled his cap down hard before he pushed ahead against the wind to give the engineer his copy of the orders as the new engine was coupled up. The fireman pulled the canvas jealously around the cab end. The brakeman ran hurriedly back to examine the air connections and gave his signal to the conductor. The conductor gave his to the engineer. There were two short, choppy shorts from the 101, and 59 moved out stealthily, evenly, resistlessly into the teeth of the night. In another minute only her red lamps gleamed up the yard. One man still on the platform watched them recede. It was Bucks.

He poured bullets into the unlucky casement.

He came up to the dispatcher's office and sat down. Callahan wondered why he didn't go home and to bed, but Callahan was too good a railroad man to ask questions of a superior. Bucks might have stood on his head on the stove and it redhot without being pursued with inquiries from Callahan. If Bucks chose to sit up out there on the frozen prairies in a flimsy barn of a station and with the wind howling murder at 12 o'clock past and that on Chri—the 24th of December, it was Bucks' own business.

"I kind of looked for my mother tonight," said he after Callahan got his orders out of the way for a minute. "Wrote she was coming out pretty soon for a little visit."

"Where does your mother live?"

"Chicago. I sent her transportation two weeks ago. Reckon she thought she'd better stay home for Christmas. Back in God's country they have Christmas just about this time of year. Watch out tonight, Jim. I'm going home. It's a wind for your life."

Callahan was making a meeting point for two freights when the door closed behind Bucks. He didn't even sing out "Good night." And as for Merry Chri—well, that had no place on the West End anyhow.

"D-i, d-i, d-i, d-i," came clicking into the room. Callahan wasn't asleep. Once he did sleep over the key. When he told Bucks, he made sure of his time, only he thought Bucks ought to know.

Bucks shook his head pretty hard that time. "It's awful business, Jim. It's murder, you know. It's the penitentiary if they should convict you. But it's worse than that. If anything happened because you went to sleep over the key, you'd have them on your mind all your life, don't you know—forever. Men—and—and children. That's what I always think about—the children; maimed and scalded just west of Jackson. And with Callahan's copper hair raising higher at every letter, this came from Ogalalla. "Heavy gust caught twelve coal cars on side track; sent them out on main line off down the grade."

American Woman In German Eyes.

American girls, whether born or merely brought up in America, evidence the same independence of judgment and the same complete self reliance. It is hard to say whether this is the result of the education in the public schools and colleges or in their freedom from that condition of legal and social subserviency to which the gentler sex is doomed in older countries.—Max von Brandt in Berlin Deutsche Revue.

Big Bargain List of Pianos Free.

A list that is the biggest that has ever been compiled, comprising fine pianos, has just been issued by Lyon & Healy. This list contains many Steinways, Webers, Lyon & Healys, Washburns, Sterlings, Huntingtons and other well known piano. Moreover, the particulars of each instrument are given, so that the buyer may judge for himself whether or not the piano is a bargain.

This list will interest persons who want a very good piano, for the reason that many of these instruments are slightly used in name only, that is, they have had exhibition use in show windows or have been used for brief periods in artists' studios.

The prices quoted are phenomenally low. Lyon & Healy are making a determined effort to close out several hundred instruments of this description within the next 30 days and the prices have been reduced very materially.

Send for a copy of this list. If you do not wish to pay all cash for a piano, you can arrange for monthly payments on a portion of the price. Address Lyon & Healy, 10 Adams street, Chicago.

Lyon & Healy exhibit the largest and most varied stock of pianos in the world—over 1,000 instruments.

SERMON

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH

Last Sunday. Subject, Washington as a Man, as a Patriot, as a Child of God.

Time would fail me to tell of those who through faith subdued kingdoms, wrought righteousness, obtained promises, quenched the violence of fire, escaped the edge of the sword out of weakness, were made strong, waxed valiant in fight, turned to flight the armies of the aliens. Heb 11:27, 31, 33, 34.

It is said "Some men are born great, some achieve greatness, others have greatness thrust upon them." There are some characters in history that leave their impression on the hearts of men, simply because of a certain romantic charm and air of mystery they shed about them. Such was Mary, Queen of Scots. In spite of her sin and treachery she has been the most talked of woman in modern history. There are others that leave their mark because of the stupendous undertakings, vast conceptions and calloused ambitions that are theirs. Such were Alexander and Napoleon. In spite of their total failures they are always numbered among the great names of history.

Some names are great because they breathe the fragrance of chivalry over the records of men. Such were King Alfred of England and Bonnie Prince Charlie of the Scots. Other names win remembrance because of the hard, imperious, dominating will that is theirs. Such is Elizabeth of England. Cruel, vindictive and determined, she left a mark of brilliancy upon the earth, even if raddened by the memory of hatred and vengeance. Some are remembered because of their persistence. Gifted with no measure of brilliancy; quiet, untiring plodding has forced their names upon the records of men in largest letters. Such will be the verdict passed upon that greatest of inventors—our American Edison.

There is another way that names are made great and remembered forever by posterity. They are not distinguished for a romantic atmosphere, for mighty ambitions, for the fragrance of chivalry, for imperious intellect, nor plodding persistence. Their names are written large in the book of temporal as well as eternal life because of wonderful service they have wrought for others. Such was King David of Israel. His life was great because it was a life of great service. Paul speaks to some Jews of Antioch and he gives to the Great Shepherd King of Israel this ideal epitaph, "David after he had served his generation according to the will of God, fell asleep," and this might well be the inscription we write above the tombs of those two great Americans whose natal days mark this month with so great significance.

Our country boasts of many great souls like theirs. "Time would fail us to tell of the many who through faith have subdued kingdoms, wrought righteousness, waxed valient in battle and put to flight the armies of aliens." But when one would speak of the really great souls of America, those two souls rise like Matterhorns above the summits of Alpine peaks, around them.

They are the two surpassing examples of the aphorism of the Great Teacher. "He that would be great among you, let him become the servant of all." These are the only two of our country's heroes to whom we turn with the lofty, Godlike title "Father." One we lovingly term "Father Abraham," just as the boys of '61 sang, "We are coming Father Abraham 100,000 strong;" the other we delight to honor with that reverent title, "Father of his Country."

It is always a difficult task to estimate character. The task becomes doubly difficult when character is great. It would be no difficulty for an astronomer to measure the circumference of a laboratory globe; but it takes years of time to measure the circumference of the sun. "Who is the greater man of us?" said Themistocles to Aristides. "I will tell 100 years after we are dead." was the reply. A hundred years have come and gone and it is as hard as ever to estimate the great character of Washington, for his spirit has not yet ceased to breathe like a benediction on his children. We shall estimate him (1) as a man, (2) as a patriot, (3) as a child of God and will see what message he brings to his children of today.

1. As a man. A man's life is determined by the ideals he sets before him. The early training of a devout christian home, surrounded with the atmosphere of religion, preserved him pure in a day when vice ruled with high hand. Washington was a poor man when young and died rich and for this reason many have avowed him a selfish man. But the true test of men is not what they have. It is whether in acquiring it they have served their own interests alone or the interest of others, whether they have been honest or dishonest, greedy or generous. Washington's fortune was no discredit to him. Inheriting most of it, by careful industry and stern integrity his wealth grew under his control.

Washington took pains to succeed. He organized his business on a vast scale. His products were always the best and found the readiest market in England. A historian of the time tells us that so highly was he respected for his business worth and honor, that boxes coming to West Indian ports marked "George Washington, Mount Vernon," were never inspected by the customs officers at all. Graft had no place in Washington's career. His business and political creed was expressed in one of his favorite aphorisms, "There exists in the economy of nature an inseparable connection between duty and advantage." Duty was the watchword of his career. He is a living example of the "advantage" that comes from doing one's duty.

He bore the christian grace of kindness. Numberless instances are told of his dealings with children. He had himself the heart of a child and amid the stern visages of war little children found in him a friend. He learned the blessedness of giving. His diary shows an incredible amount of wool, corn, cotton, flour, clothes and money given to the poor. When the crops were gathered in the fall one full corn house was set aside for the poor and that even when corn was $3 a bushel. He had the joy himself of sharing with his Master that practical side of religion to visit the widows and the fatherless and the poor in their affliction.

But if his home life reveals him to us with the common virtues, his public life reveals the heroic. It shows us a man of undaunted energy. In the face of certain defeat he is planning future victories. When his enemies are resting for the night, thinking they have him trapped, they hear his cannons booming many miles away. Through trackless forests, barefoot on winter snows, across swollen rivers, he leads his men in person.

He knows no fear. With his army dwindled to 3500, and they naked and starving at Valley Forge and against him 30,000 trained soldiers, he is not discouraged. In the hour of defeat some daring move carries him victor! He has not alone physical courage, he is gifted with moral courage as well. His temper often led him to wrong men, or brought him to enmity, where the fault was not his own, but he was the one who plead forgiveness. To an enemy he once said, "Mr Payne to err is human, to rectify is glory. I was wrong in our dispute. Here's my hand, forgive me." He was devoted to his work. He was not laboring for power but with an eye to service. He was sincerity itself. "Honesty was his crowning glory," said Gen. Lee.

Lastly he was unselfish. Personal ambition was not his. Among the many petty rivalries and jealousies of his generals he himself rose above them. For defeat he was willing to bear the blame, for victory to share the glory. He set the unique example of a man in whom moral excellence overtopped genius and power. As a man and an American citizen here is one who served his generation well and whose example is a benediction to all his national children.

2. But Washington's service as a man to men was not greater than his service to his country. He was above all a patriot. If the spirit of self sacrifice was great in Washington's personal life it rose supreme in Washington the patriot. His love for his country was a dominating passion and on his part demanded untold sacrifice. He was a rich man and he loved the quiet ease of his Mount Vernon home. But at his country's call he went to lead a forlorn hope that involved hardship, hunger, poverty, death. For eight years he toiled without pay, amid the hardships and horrors of war, himself giving $64,000 to pay his own soldiers. He was an example of a rich man who was willing to sacrifice his riches to serve his country—a kind of patriotism all too scarce today.

From Valley Forge in that dismal winter there came his voice, "Oh that I could lay my life on my country's altar a living sacrifice and save her from this dread hour. I could ask no higher honor than to die for her." There were other patriots in those days. Robert Morris gave a fortune of several million to his country and died in poverty. John Adams with a large family, was elected to congress with no prospect of pay, but he said, and his gallant wife echoed his voice, "I am not too poor to serve my country."

Franklin in old age is chosen for the difficult mission to the court of France. It hardly seems that he can survive an ocean voyage yet he says, "If I can serve my country with the fag ends of my life she can have me all." That is real patriotism. But Washington gave his wealth, he gave his youth, he gave his genius, he gave his life, he gave his all. For her sake he bore bitter criticism. He endured defeat and retreat if it meant final victory. When the country was clamoring for the release of Andre the spy, he saw the folly of it and held to martial law, even though it broke his own heart and brought down on him a storm of abuse. One who had been his friend wrote:

"O Washington I thought thee great and good,
Nor knew they hero taste for guiltless blood,
Severe to use the power that fortune gave,
Thou cool determined murderer of the brave."

It was a rare patriotism that could serve its country in the face of sentiments like that. But here was a real patriot. "I have set" says he, "my country with good laws, free government and liberty as the ever favorite object of my heart." And the "ever favorite object" of his heart he never forgot.

3. You would like to know the secret of Washington's glory as a man and a patriot. It was in his recognition of himself as a child of God. One has defined him as "genius guided by religion.' Dominating his whole life there was his realization of the conscious presence of the Diety. He was a man of lofty faith in God. Reared in the church of England he was a devout God fearing, God loving man. He loved the teachings and forms and ceremonies of his church.

He was a member and vestryman in a church near Mt. Vernon. The rector of this church in his journal tells us of long and faithful service for God on the part of Washington. Hhe tells us that often he rode 20 miles to attend divine worship; that he was a reverent worshipper and true child of God. "Through his long campaigning" writes his secretary "the general never lost an opportunity to join in public worship of the Creator at some nearby church." How often in his troubled career he used to turn to the Father of His life for guidance. His soldiers used to tell how often in that dread winter at Valley Forge he would go off to some secluded thicket and pour out his heart to God for his struggling and distressed country.

Look at Washington's public utterances and see how religion was a part of his very life. In his first inaugural, "I shall always strive to prove faithful to vital religion." In that memorable farewell legacy of his "Of all the dispositions and habits that make to political prosperity, religion and morality are indispensible supports: and let us with caution indulge the supposition that morality can be obtained without religion. Religion and morality enjoin those virtues that, under providence, shall preserve this nation." No national morality can prevail to the exclusion of religion.

In his last hours religion was his comfort. Only a week before his death he wrote in his diary, "We Washington's are not a long lived people and when I shall be called to go is known only to the Giver of life. But I trust Him and I know I shall meet it with grace." Just before he dies he says to his weeping doctors about him "No, don't weep. Don't! I'm dying gentlemen but thank God, I am not afraid to die." Such was the glorious life of Washington. It is blessed to know that a life like this got its inspiration and help from the Holy One. But this is true of every grand and glorious life.

Washington's character was pure, manly, godlike; his patriotism, a passion of unselfish devotion. If ever there was a living example of Jesus' teaching "he that loseth his life shall find it"—it was in our country's father. A life like this ought to put to shame the present ideal. "Get all you can and keep all you can." Now men say, expediency is the great law of politics. Personal interests first. Rights of men are a fiction for any of us had rather be president than be right. To succeed means to get money. The age of ideals is past. There is no use in moral dreaming and Sunday school politics.

Behold where this black gospel has brought us. Cruel and bitter hatreds between the rich and poor, political parties that have retained their names and so mixed their principles, that it's all a lottery. Greedy privilege and sullen want, selfish luxury and envying poverty, rising palaces and vanishing homes; dog parties for the 400 and garbage box meals for babies; Stanford Whites and Harry Thaws by thousands; financial graft and thievery everywhere; blackmail at a premium, cities throttled by thieves and cutthroats; drunkenness and disorder rife, dive keepers and harlot, kings and queens! That's a terrible picture but it's a true one.

Happily it is not ours. No, my countrymen! The vision Washington gave us of what a real American ought to be, is still before us—a clean, moral man, an unselfish patriot, a worshipper of God. So long as this hangs before us like the palladium over Troy's walls, the land is safe.

It stood; and sun and moonshine rained their light
On the pure columns of its glen built hall,
Backward and forward rolled the waves of fight
Round Troy, but while this stood, Troy could not fall.

Come, ye heroes of the present conflict, the voice of Washington is calling and across the century, that has passed, it says, "the one life that is worth living, is the honest, pure unselfish life, devoted to country, inspired by a faith in the living God." This is the kind of life that hath "subdued kingdoms, wrought righteousness, obtained promises, quenched the violence of fire, hath made strength out of weakness, waxed valiant in battle and put to flight the armies of the alien."

CHURCH AFFAIRS

WORK BEING DONE IN OUR CHURCHES.

What is accomplished through the Social Life.

EPISCOPAL CHURCH.

Next Wednesday, March 4, is Ash Wednesday.

Mrs. E. C. Codling is a prisoner at present owing to a severe cold.

Mrs. Hannah Pocklington is confined to the house with rheumatism.

Mrs. C. C. Kemp of Clinton, attended afternoon service last Sunday.

Rev. and Mrs. Kemp of Clinton, were guests Saturday at the home of Vestryman Hicks.

Miss Edith Magers, charmingly rendered the sacred solo "He Passeth By" at last Sunday's service.

We are glad to welcome to our parish Miss Williams recently of Cleveland, O. now assistant at the Sunbeam studio.

Mrs. Harriett Kaiser, who had the misfortune to fall on an icy walk last Monday, is rapidly recovering from the effects.

Rev. Sweet of Adrian, who has been holding special meetings in town the past week, attended afternoon service last Sunday.

Miss Stella Zimmerman, a former member of the vested choir, is now organist at St. Pauls Episcopal church in Kalispell, Mont.

At a meeting held at Mrs. S. W. Temple's Thursday the ladies of the Guild discussed plans for an entertainment which will take place soon after Easter.

The Altar Guild will hold its monthly social at the home of Miss Josephine Hayden on Logan street Monday evening, March 2, at 7:30. A short musical program has been arranged. Good attendance is desired.

In a recent letter received from Mrs. Cora Sisson, formerly a member of our parish now of Boulder, Col., she gives a most glowing account of the early spring. She and Miss Bernice are quite enthusiastic over the delightful climate and both are enjoying good health.

METHODIST CHURCH.

Rev. W. M. Ward spent Tuesday in Detroit.

Remember the Epworth League business meeting and social next Tuesday night. The place of meeting will be announced Sunday.

The W. H. M. S. met with Mrs. B. Harry yesterday afternoon for their regular monthly meeting. A good program was given on "Our Work in the South."

The social given by the Queen Esther Circle last Friday evening was a decided success. The evening was spent with games and music and light refreshments served.

The mid-week service was well attended and a most pleasant and profitable hour spent in discussing "What is the dividing line between the Saved and the Unsaved."

Sunday morning the pastor will deliver the last in his series of sermons. Theme, "The Future of the Wicked." All who heard the sermon two weeks ago on "The Future of the Righteous" will wish to hear this too.

Monday afternoon the members of primary department enjoyed a sleighride to the home of Wm. Waldron. Ice cream and cake was served and a most happy time is reported by the children. The intermediate department had a sleigh ride yesterday afternoon.

BAPTIST CHURCH

Prof. Lagerquist will conduct the singing tonight.

Quite a number in the church are confined to their homes by severe colds that seem to be prevailing in the community.

Mr. Will Reckord of Portland, Ore., who has been the guest of his sister in law, Mrs. O. B. Finch, left for his home Wednesday morning.

Mrs A. C. Bryan, Mrs. Fannie Bry and Floyd Bryan will attend the funeral of their uncle, Geo. Bryan, in Macon tomorrow morning.

The monthly missionary meeting was held with Mrs. Bryan Wednesday afternoon. There was a good attendance and an especially interesting program on "Answered Prayers," conducted by Mrs. Pulver.

Mrs. Sweet of Adrian, accompanied her husband over to the meeting Wednesday evening. These meetings are being well attended and we wish that every one in town might avail themselves of the privilege of hearing the gospel preached by Rev. Sweet.

FRIENDS CHURCH.

Mr. Vincent Wood led the Wednesday evening service.

We are glad to welcome Mr. and Mrs. Crossman back again. Mr. Crossman's mother is much better.

During the past week the pastor has been suffering with a severe attack of tonsilitis. He is slowly gaining.

The regular Christian Endeavor business meeting will be held next Tuesday evening at Reuben VanWinkle's. Special business. Be sure and come.

The lesson of the Endeavor last Sunday evening was Foreign Mission of our own Denomination. Miss Beth Satterthwaite led and made a most interesting meeting.

The postponed sleighride of the Christian Endeavor was last Monday evening out to John Wilson's. After a merry ride we were most hospitably welcomed by Mr. and Mrs. Wilson. The evening was spent with music, games and refreshments. All had a good time but were disappointed that Mr. and Mrs Wollam were unable to go.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

At the C. E. and mid week service stereopticon pictures were shown of the life of the Chinese and the mission work in the Celestial empire. Both services were largely attended.

The annual district convention of the C. E is held in Jackson today and tomorrow. Misses Lowry and Cutting and the pastor are delegates.

The bible school held a patriotic service last Sunday and an offering of $10 was made to the Home Mission board.

The Messenger boys will hold their regular meeting at the church Monday evening.

Our Bible school has kept up a large attendance during the past two months in spite of bad weather. The music has made improvement under the leadership of Miss Wilbur, assisted by the choir.

UNIVERSALIST CHURCH.

The reporter for our society is still off duty on account of illness but is on the mend and will soon be on deck again.

No one in our church can afford to miss the interesting work that is being done in the Bible study class each Thursday night. Come and bring your Bible.

The people privileged to hear Miss Amanda Kidder Sunday morning enjoyed a rich treat in her sermon, recital of "The Other Wise Man" and other appropriate selections in her usual excellent manner and form. She is just returned from a recital tour in Wisconsin and Minnesota. She reads at Battle Creek Saturday night and at the Jackson penitentiary Sunday and will return here Monday for a visit with Miss Young. She will be glad to see as many of her friends as can make it convenient to call Monday evening from 7 to 9.

Preaching at the Friends church Sunday morning with Bible school following. Young people's meeting at six o'clock. Announcement regarding evening meeting given Sunday.

At the evening service the pastor will speak on "Jesus' Agnosticism and Ours." Special music by the men's choir.

PRINTED BY REQUEST.

Recipe is easily prepared at small cost and many swear by it.

Mix the following by shaking well in a bottle and take in teaspoonful doses after meals and at bedtime:

Fluid extract dandelion, ½ ounce; compound kargon, 1 ounce; compound syrup sarsaparilla, 3 ounces. A local druggist is the authority that these simple harmless ingredients can be obtained at nominal cost from our home druggists.

The mixture is said to cleanse and strengthen the clogged, inactive kidneys overcoming backache, bladder weakness and all urinary trouble if taken before the stage of Bright's disease.

Those who have tried this say it positively overcomes pain in the back, clears the urine of sediment and regulates urination especially at night, curing even the worst forms of bladder weakness.

Every man or woman here who feels that the kidneys are not strong or acting in a healthy manner should mix this prescription at home and give it a trial.

The Scranton (Pa.) Times was first to print this remarkable prescription in Oct. of 1906, since when all the leading newspapers of New York, Philadelphia, Boston, Pittsburg and other cities have made announcements of it to their readers.

When half the men become fond of doing a thing the other half prohibit it by law.

Keeping open house.

Everybody is welcome when we feel good, and we feel that way only when our digestive organs are working properly. Dr. King's new life pills regulate the action of stomach, liver and bowels so perfectly one can't help feeling good when he uses these pills. At C. A Wright & Son's drug store. 25c.

Blacksmits are not the only men who have their vices.

Foley's honey and tar cures the most obstinate coughs and expels the cold from the system as it is mildly laxative. It is guaranteed. The genuine is in a yellow package. Sold by all druggists in Tecumseh.

Is your baby thin, weak, fretful?

Make him a Scott's Emulsion baby.

Scott's Emulsion is Cod Liver Oil and Hypophosphites prepared so that it is easily digested by little folks.

The members of the Lady Maccabees held their regular meeting last evening with about 130 in attendance. Sixteen new members were initiated into the order. The contest for new members which has been running for the past four months closes Saturday night.

Each side in the contest gave their closing programs which consisted of an old fashioned spelling school, corn husking bee, recitations, songs, dialogues, a parade by the Damm family, Mother Goose and her family and tableaus. A recess meeting was called last evening to initiate members, at which time five more candidates were given the initiatory degrees. Again it was found necessary to call a recess meeting for Saturday night, which will close the contest.

NOTABLE MEDICAL DISCOVERY

Of special value to many here in Tecumseh.

The progress made in medicine during the last few years has been as a whole general rather than specific.

One of the most notable discoveries and one that undoubtedly appeals more than anything else ty many people here in Tecumseh is the combination of stomach remedies in the Mi-o-na treatment. This prescription has worked wonders, and there is now no excuse for anyone suffering with indigestion or weak stomach.

It acts specifically upon the muscles of the stomach and bowels, strengthening and stimulating them so that they readily take care of the food that is eaten. It also increases the flow of gastric juices, thus getting from the food the nourishment that is necessary for health and energy.

The symptoms of indigestion are numerous, such as distress after eating flatulence, heart-burn, sick headaches, dizziness and irritability. These are all dispelled by a few doses of Mi-o-na when the trouble is recent, but just as surely in long standing and chronic cases if the treatment is followed for a reasonable length of time.

So positive are the good effects following the use of Mi-o-na that the remedy is sold by C. A. Wright & Son under an absolute guarantee to refund the money if it should fail to cure. With an offer like this none can afford to suffer long from indigestion or stomach troubles.

Do not think because of the quick benefits derived from the use of Mi-o-na that it is merely a temporary agent. It is a remedy that cures by making over the weak stomach in a strong one.

Women as Well as Men Are Made Miserable by Kidney and Bladder Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind, discourages and lessens ambition; beauty, vigor and cheerfulness soon disappear when the kidneys are out of order or diseased.

Kidney trouble has become so prevalent that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine scalds the flesh, or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble, and both need the same great remedy, The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold by druggists, in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also a pamphlet telling all about Swamp-Root, including many of the thousands of testimonial letters received from sufferers cured. In writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure and mention this paper. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

DEEDS NOT WORDS.

Tecumseh people have absolute proof of deeds at home.

It's not words but deeds that prove true merit.

The deeds of Doan's Kidney Pills,
For Tecumseh kidney sufferers,
Have made their local reputation.

Proof lies in the testimony of Tecumseh who have been permanently cured

Orson Austin, retired, living on Logan street, Tecumseh, Mich., says "I still hold the same high opinion of Doan's Kidney Pills today as when I gave my statement for publication some 5 years ago. Prior to that time I had kidney disease with distressing pains in my back at times almost unbearable. Rheumatism also settled in my limbs and hips adding much to my misery. I did not get my proper rest at night because of the frequent passages of the kidneys attended by a burning sensation. I knew Doan's Kidney Pills were good for such troubles, began using them and soon noticed their good effects. Thus encouraged I continued taking them until cured. I am always glad to recommend Doan's Kidney Pills."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn company, Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States. Remember the name Doan's,—and take no other

Everything taken into the stomach should be digested fully within a certime. When you feel that your stomach is not in good order, that the food you have eaten is not being digested, take a good, natural digestant that will do the work the digestive juices are not doing. The best remedy known today for all stomach troubles is Kodol, which is guaranteed to give prompt relief. It is a natural digestant; it digests what you eat, it is pleasant to take and is sold here by all druggist.

A Memory of a Lost Delight.

A fireplace any one may have, and to me the [illegible] is that our civilization has abolished the very soul from our northern homes. Fire is no longer the joy of the household, but the slave, imprisoned in the cellar. Ah, but it was delicious when the old fashioned family sat together in the great kitchen around the huge fireplace. All the evening we told stories, ate doughnuts, drank cider, all the time paring apples and hanging the long festoons of quarters from the beams. But the dear little mother, she it was who told the best stories while she was knitting mufflers and socks or mending our well worn clothing. There were no parlors at all in those days, and as for thrummed pianos, we had not yet heard of them. At 9 o'clock, honest and drowsy, we knelt and thanked God for life and love and home. Our bunks and beds and trundle beds were all in close proximity, and from every one of them we could see the flames, still jumping up the chimney while the big firelog was slowly eaten through. There was not one millionaire in all the world, and, indeed, we were not worried over the affair.—E. P. Powell in Outing Magazine.

He Told the Reason.

"The aeronaut to get along must keep his wits about him," said an army official. "Under the most adverse circumstances he must not lose his head. Always he must be alert and ready, like—like—well, like a scientist I used to know.

"This scientist gave a scientific lecture in a church one night, and at the lecture's end he said, beaming on his audience condescendingly:

"'Now, if there is any scientific question that any of my friends would like to ask, I beg them not to hesitate. I shall be only too happy to answer any inquiry in my power.'

"An old lady in spectacles that gave her a severe, stern look rose and said:

"'Why do wet tea leaves kill roaches?'

"The scientist didn't know they did, let alone the cause of the phenomenon. But, never at a loss, he replied:

"'Because, madam, when a roach comes across a wet tea leaf he says, "Hello, here's a blanket!" and wraps himself up in it, catches cold and dies.'"—Los Angeles Times.

He Met Shorty.

Nicknames are sometimes deceptive things, and they are oftentimes extremely funny. I was in a small town not many miles south of Boston and, asking for a certain piece of information, I was informed by several that "Shorty" could give it to me, and he seemed to be the only man who could. Not knowing just who "Shorty" was, I made further inquiries and was told that he could be found in the store just across the square.

"Just ask for 'Shorty,'" I was told. "Any one will show him to you."

I went over to the store as directed and looked vainly about for some one who might answer the name. Only one man was present, and he was almost a seven footer. After looking about a moment I started to leave.

"Lookin' for some one, stranger?" he observed.

"Yes, I'm looking for 'Shorty,'" I told him.

A broad grin overspread his face.

"Guess you've got him," he murmured. "I'm your man."—Boston Traveler.

A Mean Trick.

In his home city they tell a sad story of a mean trick on a pawnbroker. He was enjoying a beauty sleep when a furious knocking at the street door brought him to the window with a jerk.

"What's the matter?" he shouted.

"Come down," demanded the knocker.

"But"—

"Come down."

The man of many nephews hastened downstairs and peeped around the door. "Now, sir," the pawnbroker demanded.

"I wan'sh know the time," said the reveler.

"Do you mean to say you knocked me up for that? How dare you?"

The midnight visitor looked injured. "Well, you've got my watch," he said.

Bluebeard.

"Bluebeard" originated in France and was called the "Romance of the Chevalier Raoul," the historic figure being a certain Giles de Laval, lord of Raiz. He was marshal of France in 1429 and though a brave and fearless soldier was addicted to vice and violence, and from this fact was charged with the wholesale murder of young women, whose blood he used for the purpose of diabolical incantations. From these circumstances the web of the story is spun.

A Fugitive Bit.

"Lend me a pencil," said the press humorist.

"Thought of something funny?"

"No, but I've thought of something that will pass muster as a joke."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Setting Him Right.

He—Tell me, confidentially, how much did the bonnet cost you?

She—George, there is but one way in which you can obtain the right to inspect my millinery bills.

He popped.

Children and Candy.

Give children plenty of pure sugar, taffy and butter scotch and they'll have little need of cod liver oil, says Dr. Woods Hutchinson in Woman's Home Companion. In short, sugar is, after meat, bread and butter, easily our next most important and necessary food. You can put the matter to a test very easily. Just leave off the pie, pudding or other desserts at your lunch or midday dinner. You'll be astonished to find how quickly you'll feel "empty" again and how "unfinished" the meal will seem. You can't get any workingman to accept a dinner pail without pie in it. And he's absolutely right. The only thing that can take the place of sugar here is beer or wine. It is a significant fact that the free lunch counters run in connection with bars furnish every imaginable thing except sweets. Even the restaurants and lunch grills attached to saloons or bars often refuse to serve desserts of any sort. They know their business! The more sugar and sweets a man takes at a meal the less alcohol he wants. Conversely, nearly every drinking man will tell you that he has lost his taste for sweets. The more candy a nation consumes, the less alcohol.

The Best Laxative for Children.

Parents should see to it that their children have one natural, easy movement of the bowels each day. Do not dose the child with salts or griping pills, as they are too powerful in effect, and literally tear their little insides to pieces, leaving the bowels weakened and less able to act naturally than before. Laxative Iron-ox Tablets tone and strengthen the bowels, and stimulate all the little organs to healthy activity. Chocolate coated tablets, easy to take, never gripe or nauseate. 10c, 25c and $1.00.

About 20 young people of South Macon gave Minnie Higdon a surprise last Monday. The time was spent with music and games. All report a fine time.

Will Biddle, who has been quite ill, is reported better.

It is reported that Spencer Morgan, who has been seriously ill at the home of his brother, Will, in Ann Arbor, has become unconscious, and can survive but a short time.

T. J. Hallock of Milan, is here working in the interest of the Cleaners.

About 195 attended the rag bee at Mrs. Wm. Gibson's last week Friday. They report a pleasant time.

An Ideal Laxative.

Physics and Cathartics which purge, unbend the bowels, and give temporary relief, bad irritants, and weaken the digestive and expulsive organs. Laxative Iron-ox Tablets are as different in effect as truth is from falsehood. They nourish the bowel muscles and nerves, giving them strength and vigor to do the work nature intended, thus effecting a permanent cure by perfectly safe and natural means. The best laxative for all from Chocolate coated tablets easy to take, never gripe or nauseate. 10c, 25c and $1.00 at all drug stores.

Fall From Roof Killed Him.

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 27.—Missing his footing on a slippery roof, David A. Roy, 777 Fourteenth avenue, a carpenter, fell a distance of twenty feet to the ground and when picked up had sustained a fractured skull, and a broken left arm. A city ambulance was called to take him to a hospital, but he died after the wagon had gone but a few blocks, so the course was changed to V. Giest & Sons' morgue, 290 Randolph street. Roy, who was twenty-three years old, and unmarried, was working with his brother, A. H. Roy, on a house on Gilbert street, when the accident happened.

Burned It Into Memory.

One of the most characteristically eccentric things ever done by Gelett Burgess (and one of the few true stories of him) was to spend three or four days in constructing of cardboard, mica and green velvet a little model of an old New England house, complete as to windows, curtains, lawn, garden, trees and even including a hammock with a tiny hat and summer novel and washing stretched out on a clothesline on the back stoop. This was for a dinner given to several literary friends in New York, and when the coffee was served he deliberately set fire to the whole farm. His explanation was that had it been spared his guests might have forgotten the affair, but they would always remember the destruction of the house. No one who ever saw the little house go up in smoke on its little hill of damp moss will ever forget it.

The Misplaced Comma.

"Some lawsuits of the highest importance have hinged upon the right placing of a comma," said a judge.

"When I first started to practice law a Missouri editor came to me in a peck of trouble to defend him against a threatened libel suit growing out of faulty punctuation. He had not meant to give some innocent young women the slightest offense when he wrote a story about 'two young men who went with their girls to attend a lecture and after they left, the girls got drunk.' Putting that miserable little comma out of its right place did the work, as it made the girls the ones who became inebriated instead of their escorts. I managed by proper diplomacy and the publication of a neat apology to stave off the damage suits, and afterward my editorial friend became an expert on punctuation."—Baltimore American.

Taunting.

"Where are you going?" asked Mrs. Noah.

"I am going to whale that boy Ham," replied Noah, with a frown.

"Yes, but it is the tune he is playing."

"And what is the tune?"

Kill Himself Before Trial.

Vladivostok, Feb. 27.—Captain Glitzan of the cruiser Askold has committed suicide. His trial by court martial for not energetically suppressing mutiny on his ship, last October, was to begin today.

Kaiser Plans Vacation.

Berlin, Feb. 27.—Emperor William will go to his beautiful new villa, on the island of Corfu, March 27, for a few weeks' rest. This announcement is taken to mean that the alleged crisis in the near east is not serious.

Thad S. Varnum, the Detroit newspaper writer who disappeared from Ann Arbor, where he was a patient in the psychopathic ward of the hospital, has not yet been located. Fifty dollars will be paid for information leading to the discovery of the whereabouts of Mr. Varnum, whether he be dead or alive. Such information may be sent to any Detroit newspaper office.

The license to preach, which Elder Henry Nicola of Battle Creek has held in the Adventist church for fifty years, has been denied this aged minister this year, until he agrees to follow Mrs. Ellen G. White's teachings and move away from Battle Creek. Nicola went to Battle Creek fourteen years ago; and, at the age of seventy-five, owns his own home, but is dependent on his preaching for a living. The blow is one of the severest yet dealt by the White faction, in control of church affairs.

Aldermen to Be Tried.

Ypsilanti, Mich., Feb. 27.—Joseph Meyers, the Ypsilanti aldermen arrested on a charge of keeping his saloon open on Washington's birthday, demanded an examination, and it was set for March 11. His sureties are signed by County Auditor Frank Stowell and Nicholas Max, father of Alderman Mat Max, who will also probably have to face the same charge.

Angry Adjectives.

RAILROADS SUBMIT.

Will Comply With New Nine-Hour Law March 4.

MORE OPERATORS NEEDED.

Means Employment For Several Thousand—Financial Depression Has Made Difficulties For Roads—Some Have Been on Verge of Failure.

Washington, March 2.—American railways have made arrangements to comply with the provisions of the "nine hour law." The operation of the law will mean the employment by railroad companies of several thousand additional operators and the closing of a large number of small stations on the fourth of March. The discontinuance of railway service at many points, it is realized, will induce at least temporary inconvenience to the traveling and shipping public, but, in order to reduce operating expenses, which now seems necessary, the operating officials of the railways believe that this is the only way they possibly can meet the situation.

Astonishing Statements.

During the hearing of applications for an extension of the "nine hour law" by the interstate commerce commission, some astonishing statements were made by the operating officials of important railways. A good many lines, owing to a reduction in their revenues and to their inability to command the cash necessary to meet their pay rolls, have been forced, during the past four months, almost to the point of asking for receivers.

In the opinion of railway officials, expressed at the hearing under oath and in private conversation, this condition does not seem to have been due to the enforcement of regulative laws or to the incapacity of railway management. Most of the officials attribute the difficulty to the unfortunate banking situation which developed last September. The railways did not feel the stringency in money until about the first of November. In fact, the month of October was one of the best in the history of the business of American railroading.

"Then, without the slightest warning," as H. U. Mudge, vice president and general manager of the Rock Island system, expressed it, "we were plunged from prosperity to adversity. A year ago our system could not handle the traffic offered us. Today we have 11,000 idle cars. Five months ago we suffered from a congestion of freight; now we suffer from a congestion of empty cars."

What is true of the Rock Island is true also of scores of other railroads. One railway official ventured the statement that in the country today there were 300,000 idle freight cars.

All Are Optimistic.

Not an official of a single railway line who appeared before the commission expressed the belief that the present depression would be lasting. They practically uniformly express confidence that the return of prosperity will be almost as sudden as was the coming of adversity, and in their arguments as to the enforcement of the "nine hour law" they pointed out to the commission that such a return of prosperity might seriously embarrass them in complying with the law, because it would render it difficult to command the services of competent operators in sufficent numbers to meet the needs of prosperous conditions.

Taft Praises Y. M. C. A. Work.

Springfield, Mass., March 2.—Secretary of War William H. Taft addressed an audience of more than 2,000 persons in the Court Square theater Sunday afternoon. He spoke under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. and took the work of the Y. M. C. A. as his subject, paying particular attention to the international aspect of that work and emphasizing the aid which the association has been to the government in the Philippines and in the Panama canal zone. Secretary Taft was in this city only a few hours.

Lengthen Summer School Term.

Ann Arbor, Mich., March 2.—As it has been decided to lengthen the summer school session from six to eight weeks, so also will a change be made in the maximum number of hours' credit which can be obtained from six to eight hours. In fact the chief reason for the change is to allow this increase of hours' credit. The instructors have complained that they have not had sufficient time during the summer session to teach their subjects thoroughly. Among those who have attended summer school there has been a feeling they could be allowed more hours' credit. This end could only be accomplished by lengthening the session, and this was done.

SURPRISE FOR EVANS

He May Be Made Vice Admiral Upon Reaching 'Frisco.

CONGRESS MUST ACT FIRST.

President Recommends That Such Office Be Created—British Have Outdone United States—Torpedo Flotilla Reaches Callao.

Washington, March 2.—Naval officers in Washington are endeavoring to arrange a most agreeable surprise for Admiral Evans when the battleship fleet under his command sails through the Golden Gate and completes the Pacific cruise. To signalize the appreciation of the government of the successful conduct of this undertaking, it is proposed to greet the rear admiral with a commission as vice admiral of the American navy.

The success of this undertaking depends upon congress, but the president has done his part in making a proper recommendation to that body for the re-establishment of that naval grade, and it is not doubted but that congress can be induced to act upon the recommendation in season to ensure the issue of Admiral Evans' commission before the completion of the cruise, so that he may bear the title of vice admiral for the few months that will intervene between his arrival at San Francisco and his retirement from active service.

British Ahead of Us.

The naval argument in support of the proposed re-establishment of the grade of vice admiral is strongly reenforced by a comparison, made at the navy department, between the British home fleet engaged in the maneuvers of last fall (of which a report has just reached here) and the splendid battleship fleet commanded by Rear Admiral Evans. The figures show that the British fleet, composed of twenty-six battleships, fifteen armored cruisers, nine protected cruisers and fifty-seven torpedo boats, was commanded by one admiral, three vice admirals, seven rear admirals and one commodore. The American fleet, when it is fully assembled in San Francisco harbor, will consist of nineteen battleships, eight armored cruisers, three protected cruisers, a large number of supply ships, colliers and repair ships, nine destroyers and five torpedo boats, commanded by only four rear admirals.

Callao, March 2.—The American torpedo boat flotilla, which left Talcahuan on Feb. 25, has arrived here. The commander, Lieutenant H. I. Cone, declared that throughout the voyage the weather was fine and conditions such that good time to the Peruvian port was possible, not a hitch having occurred to mar the passage.

Lieutenant Cone speaks highly of the hospitality received at the hands of the Chileans and was particularly pleased with the services rendered by Lieutenant Commander Rozas of the Chilean navy. It is expected that the flotilla will remain here until March 9, sailing on that date for Panama.

Some Sailors Missing.

The Panther did not leave with the battleships which sailed yesterday, being ordered to remain in port for a number of sailors who were missing at the time of the fleet's departure. It is expected that these will be rounded up, as measures have been taken to keep a careful watch for the men who failed to report for duty. These number few, and in all the number of deserters at the various ports at which the fleet touched is a minimum.

Prior to the departure of the battleships, 721 mail bags, which had just arrived, were put aboard the ships. President Pardo presented to each of the admirals a handsomely bound book, on Peru.

Sues Railway For Killing Dog.

Battle Creek, Mich., March 2.—Mrs E. B. Close, daughter of C. W. Post, Battle Creek's millionaire foodmaker, has began suit against the Michigan United railways. She claims damages to the extent of $500 for the death of her Pomeranian dog, which was run down by a trolley car. Carrol L. Post is acting as next friend, Mrs. Close being a minor.

Flees From Convent and Weds.

Council Bluffs, Ia., March 2.—Sister Elizabeth of the Sisters of Mercy, attached to St. Bernard's convent, Council Bluffs, eloped from that institution at night and married, in Omaha, to Raymond Dye of St. Joseph, Mo. The convent officials are maintaining the strictest secrecy about the affair, but all sorts of rumors are afloat concerning the escapade. Sister Elizabeth, who is only twenty-six years of age, was known to the world as Lizzie Welch, and her home is in Chicago. Neither the bride nor groom can be

MILLIONS IN SHIPS.

Many Vessels Just Built For Lake Transportation.

THIRTY BRAND NEW ONES.

Means Total Expenditure of $9,750,000—An Aggregate Carrying Capacity of 204,700 Tons—Nearly 300 Vessels Built Since 1902.

Detroit, Mich., March 2.—Optimistic over the coming season, the great lakes transportation companies are preparing to launch a fleet of thirty new vessels to meet the expected increase in traffic for 1908. The aggregate carrying capacity of these ships will be 204,700 tons per single trip, and their total cost will be about $9,750,000. This does not include, however, the magnificent passenger boat, the City of Cleveland, burned last year in Detroit, which is being rebuilt at a cost of $1,000,000.

The bulk freighter steamer McGean, launched at Cleveland Feb. 22, is one of the new vessels to enter the service after the opening of navigation in April. It is a 452-foot boat of 8,000 tons carrying capacity.

Twenty-six New Freight Ships.

In the new fleet will be twenty-six bulk freighters, two package freighters and two passenger boats. The largest of the freighters will be two great iron leviations of 10,500 tons capacity. These ships, both of which are being built for a Duluth company, will be 557 feet long, 52 feet beam and 31 feet deep.

There will also be four vessels of 10,000 tons capacity, eight of 9,000 tons, one of 8,500 tons, five of 8,000 tons, three of 7,500 tons and the remainder of from 7,000 tons to 2,200 tons.

The average cost of these vessels is about $325,000, the lowest being $280,000 and the highest $420,000, making a total of nearly $10,000,000. Adding this increase to the commercial valuation of the ships now in service on the great lakes, there is a grand total of $140,722,080 invested in the lake carriers.

Increases Capacity by 4,094,000 Tons.

The new vessels will add to the total carrying capacity of the lake fleet for their eight months' season 4,094,000 tons, averaging twenty trips for each ship. When all the new vessels are in commission, the total output for the remarkable lake ship building regime, which commenced in 1902, will be 265 vessels, of which 219 are large bulk freighters. This fleet, built in seven years, will carry 33,867,200 tons of the 75,000,000 tonnage on the great lakes.

ACCIDENT IN PRISON.

Woman Fatally Injured by Explosion in Laundry.

Detroit, Mich., March 2.—Lillian B. Page, a prisoner at the house of correction, is dead, as the result of the explosion of a steamer in the prison laundry.

The woman was twenty-five years old, and she was sent up from Kalamazoo to serve a term of from one to five years for larceny. She had been employed in the laundry and was told by the matron to take the clothes from the recently-arrived prisoners and put them into the disinfecting tank, a round cast iron vessel, about three feet in diameter. She was wraned not to turn the steam but to notify the matron and have her do it.

Instead of doing this, according to the prison authorities, she turned on the steam herself, throwing the full force into the steamer at once. The result was an almost instantaneous explosion that tore the top from the steamer and shattered it into a thousand pieces, broke the windows in the laundry and created a panic among the fifteen female prisoners in the room at the time. Out of this number, only the Page woman was hurt, a fragment of iron striking her in the hip. Her injury proved fatal a few hours later.

Has Husband Arrested.

Woodland, Mich., March 2.—D. J. Ober, one of the R. F. D. carriers of this place, has been arrested on a charge of non-support of his wife and infant child. About two years ago Ober went to Canton and married the young lady, bringing her to the village, whereo he remained for about six months. She then returned to her Ohio home. She came to the village, bringing the child, and remained for about six weeks, when Ober took her to the home of his parents, in Oklahoma, where he left her. She returned again to her Ohio home. She has now returned to the village and made complaint against Ober. Mrs. Ober has also filed a bill for divorce, asking alimony, maintenance and support of the child.

PRIEST BURIED.

Thousands View Remains of Father Leo Heinrichs.

Paterson, N. J., March 2.—Ten thousand persons looked upon the face of Rev. Father Leo Heinrichs, O. F. M., at St. Bonaventure's monastery, in which the murdered friest was for years the pastor. The body lay in state from noon until 11 o'clock at night, and during the nine hours an unbroken procession of mourners passed the bier. So great was the throng that a detail of fifty police was required to maintain the formation of two lines that extended for blocks. Through a succession of snow, sleet and rain storms, outside, the parishioners stood for hours, patiently waiting their turns. There was no untoward demonstration.

On account of failing health, last September Father Leo was transferred to Denver, where, at the chancel rail of St. Elizabeth's church, he was shot and killed by an avowed anarchist, known as Guisippi Allo.

The funeral is being held today. Solemn requiem mass being sung by Rev. Father Edward Blecke, assisted by the forty or more monks and lay brothers in St. Bonaventure monastery. Bishop John J. O'Connor of the Roman Catholic diocese of Newark and a number of other high church dignitaries are present. Interment will be in the plot of the Franciscan monks in Holy Sepulchre cemetery, on the outskirts of the city.

The casket was placed upon a raised catafalque, while the body lay in state, directly in front of the main altar, and it was surrounded by a guard of honor. The body rested in a white satin lined casket with silver trimmings. The martyred priest wore the plain brown garb of his order, the feet being enclosed in sandals, while about the neck was a purple and gold stole.

All creeds and nationalities were represented in the throng which sought admission to the church, but, impressed with the solemnity of the occasion, all were orderly, and the act of the assassin was vigorously condemned on all sides and anarchy itself bitterly denounced.

SEVEN HANG.

Russian Terrorists Are Put to Death, Calvino Among Them.

St. Petersburg, March 2.—The seven terrorists who were condemned to death by a court martial, for complicity in a plot against the lives of Grand Duke Nicholas Nicholaievitch and M. Chtcheglovitoff, minister of justice, and whose sentence was confirmed by General Hazenkampf, chief of the general staff, were hanged at daylight at Lissy Noss, opposite Kronstadt. Among those who suffered death were Calvino, the supposed Italian, who had in his possession when arrested a passport issued to the real Calvino, the St. Petersberg correspondent of two Italian papers, and three women, two of whom were eighteen and nineteen years of age, respectively.

FIRE IN TAMPA.

Flames Burned Over an Area of Fifty-five Acres.

Tampa, Fla., March 2.—The extreme northern portion of Tampa has been destroyed by a fire which raged for four hours. The area burned covered fifty-five acres of almost nineteen city blocks and, 308 buildings were destroyed, with a total damage of $600,000. One woman died of heart disease during the excitement.

Two Big Fires In New York.

New York, March 2.—Two fires that brought out all the fire apparatus in the upper section of the city and raged from midnight until dawn, burned down the car barns of the New York City Railway company in Second avenue, in Harlem, and the paint factory of George W. Grote & Co., only a few blocks away. There were 740 surface cars burned in the destruction of the barns, and the loss to the company is estimated at $2,500,000. The loss on the paint factory is given as $1,125,000. It was the railway people's second serious fire within a year, the former blaze having destroyed the Madison avenue car barns.

Prominent Man Dies Suddenly.

Albany, N. Y., March 2.—Andrew Hamilton, formerly counsel to the New York Life and other insurance companies, and in charge for many years of insurance litigation and legislative matters in all parts of this country and Canada, was found dead in bed, at his home in this city. His death was entirely unexpected, although he has been failing to some extent ever since the death of Mrs. Hamilton, last July. An autopsy disclosed an acute dilation of the heart, which must have caused practically instantaneous death at some time during the night.

It may be the census idea that a woman who is merely the mother of a family has no occupation, but the job keeps her pretty busy just the same.—Indianapolis News.

MARCH CAME LIKE LION.

Even Lightning and Thunder Came With the Ice Storm.

Detroit, Mich., March 2.—Giving full swing to the lion, the proverbial lamb did not venture from the fold Sunday, March 1, but awaited his turn at the passing of the month. And the royal beast got to the front with all four feet and ushered in the first thunder storms of the season.

Vivid flashes of lightening followed each other in rapid succession for upwards of half an hour about 7 o'clock in the morning, and several heavy claps of thunder rolled over the city.

The rain, falling on frozen ground and sidewalks, coated them deeply with a dangerous glare of ice. Ice on rails hampered all transportation companies. Wires, heavily coated, gave way in many places, putting out lights and cutting communication.

Battle Creek, Mich., March 2.—Battle Creek was hard hit by the sleet, the storm being so severe as to completely tie up street car service, local and interurban lines, and cripple the railroads considerably. Trains were from two to seven hours late. Trees and electric wires were so coated that many limbs of the former and liberal sections of the latter fell down under the weight.

Marshall, Mich., March 2.—The Michigan United railways' line from Jackson to Kalamazoo was completely tied up on account of sleet storm. A gang of section men cut away the ice ahead of one car, but it could only make its way by inches.

Muskegon, Mich., March 2.—The Pere Marquette sent out a snowplow to clear the track of sleet on several lines. The interurbans, however, suffered greatest, as wires are coated as well as rails, and it is almost impossible to obtain current.

WAKEFIELD SCORCHED.

Fireman Loses His Life in Northern Town Blaze.

Bessemer, Mich., March 2.—Herman Munschow, a fireman, lost his life in a blaze which nearly wiped out all of the business section of Wakefield. The fire destroyed two boarding houses, three saloons, a furniture store and a barber shop.

Bessemer sent part of its fire department over to fight the blaze, and it is undoubtedly due to this fact that the rest of the town was saved.

Munschow fell from the top of a ladder, and his back was broken. He was hurriedly started for hospital, but he died on the way.

The property loss is upwards of $30,000.

Has Touble With Students

Muskegon, Mich., March 2.—Word reached Muskegon Sunday from Montclair, N. J., that Herbert W. Dutch, a former well known Michigan educator, and, until 1906, principal of the Muskegon high school, is a central figure in a storm of protest from the student body of the high school, at which he is the head in that city. He made sweeping changes in school athletics, and members of the athletic teams caricatured his face and figure on the school flagstaff. He suspended four of the students.

While in Muskegon, Mr. Dutch created some disfavor among students by his innovations.

Crap Game Raided.

Detroit, Mich., March 2.—A crowd of negroes met in the rear of a barber shop at 189 Gratiot avenue and started a crap game. Just at the time when all were interested in the rolling of the bones, there came a pounding on the door, and a stern voice demanded admittance. A wild scramble for doors and windows ensued. But Patrolmen Raymond, Dwyer and Wagner had forced their way inside and cornered four players. When searched, a pair of loaded dice were found on one man, and plenty of confederate money with advertising on one side, which, when folded, would easily pass for the real thing, was gathered in.

Aged Preacher Is Dead.

Saginaw, Mich., March 2.—Rev. S. P. Warner, one of the oldest Methodist ministers in Michigan, who spent more than half a century in his chosen work in this state, is dead. Mr. Warner spent his early preaching days as a circuit rider, and later he occupied the pulpits of churches in nearly every part of the state, which he never left during his active career. He had been in remarkably good health to the last. Mr. Warner was preparing to shave himself, when he suddenly sank to the floor and was dead before assistance could reach him. He was eighty-seven years old.

Artless Daughter—Why, I said: "Don't! Stop!"

She did, only it sounded like, "Don't stop!"

WHY OUR BATTLE FLEET IS IN THE PACIFIC.

China has appealed to the United States against Japanese aggression in Manchuria. Just what the result will be it is impossible to say, but it will not tend to smooth the relations between this country and Japan. The United States was the first champion of the "open door" in China. It was the conception of the late Secretary of State, John Hay and saved the big jelly-fish empire from partition into "spheres of influence" among the European powers about the time of the Boxer uprising. It was a proposal that was not accepted with very good grace by the Powers and yet was a thing that none of them could openly turn down. Since then there has been the remission of part of the Boxer indemnity by the United States and these things have caused China to look on this country as the nearest approach she has to a real friend in the family of nations. Thus she has turned to the United States in the Japanese trouble.

It will be remembered that when Japan engaged in her war with Russia, she specifically disclaimed any intention of territorial aggrandizement. The war had scarcely started when she took actual and forcible possession of Korea on the plea of military necessity, which was sound enough at that time. But she has since clinched her hold on that country and has made it a Japanese province. As to Manchuria, she never had any business there except as a battle ground with Russia. She never even claimed to have But since the war is over she has stayed in Manchuria and has administered the country as though it actually belonged to her instead of to China.

Her only response to the timid appeals of China to vacate has been to discriminate in railroad rates, customs and every other way, not only against all Europeans, but against the Chinese themselves and has ignored the so-called open door policy in this important section of the Chinese Empire. It is against this aggression that China has appealed to the United States and Minister Wu, now on the way to Washington, is bringing a formal petition which he will lay before the State Department. The United States must either insist on Japan's respecting the international agreement to which she was a party or must wash her hands of the whole duty of leadership in the Orient. This would mean not only abandoning all of Manchurian trade and it is an immense trade, but probably it would encourage the European powers in their old design of partitioning the Chinese Empire. Of course our relations with Japan are nominall friendly now, but the situation calls for a speedy show down and one side or the other will have to give in.

There is no hesitancy in saying that the situation is more favorable for the United States than it would be were the battleships not in the Pacific for now they may turn the scale in the direction of acquiescence by Japan in the demands of the United States regarding Manchuria. Now that the battleships are safe in the Pacific it is almost frankly admitted that their going has been in the nature of a precautionary measure and it luckily was taken so far in advance that it could not reasonably be construed into a hostile act.

Some enthusiastic third termers declare that the relations of Japan and this country will lead to the renomination of the President with his consent or without. They argue that about convention time when the war ships reach San Francisco, a craftily engineered war scare will be enough to stampede the republican convention into the nomination of Roosevelt. And if the scare can be made to look real no doubt he would accept. This is only gossip but the fact that it is talked by serious men shows it is within the bounds of possibility.

The battleship fleet will not visit Japan even if it gets that far on its voyage around the world for there is another expedition planned that will make a show of American naval force in Chinese waters Several of the river gun boats have been assigned to take Minister Rockhill, the American minister to China, on a visit to two of the Chinese viceroys in the interior The minister will be taken on one of the warships and be escorted by the most formidable flotillas that has ever ascended a Chinese river.

The visit will be one of courtesy and amity. But Secretary Taft coined a phrase that fits the Chinese character admirably. He says that "the Oriental thinks chiefly with his eye." This is true and the presence of American warships in China will have an immense effect on the Chinese and the Japanese as well. It must be understood however that the Japanese has gone almost beyond the point of being impressed by mere outward show.

There is more catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together and until recently was supposed to be incurable. For many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional desease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer $100 for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

Bucks

By FRANK H. SPEARMAN

Copyright, 1900, by Frank H. Spearman

They were already past Jackson, eight miles away, headed east and running down hill. Callahan's eyes turned like hares to the train sheet. Fifty-nine, going west, was due that minute to leave Callendar. From Callendar to Griffin is a twenty miles' run. There is a station between, but in those days no night operator. The runaway coal train was then less than thirty miles west of Griffin, coming down a forty mile grade like a cannon ball. If 59 could be stopped at Callendar, she could be laid by in five minutes out of the way of the certain destruction ahead of her on the main line. Callahan seized the key and began calling "Cn." He pounded until the call burned into his fingers. It was an age before Callendar answered. Then Callahan's order fled:

"Hold 59. Answer quick."

And Callendar answered: "Fifty-nine just pulling out of upper yard. Too late to stop her. What's the matter?"

Callahan struck the table with his clinched fist, looked wildly about him, then sprang from the chair ran to the window and threw up the sash. The moon shone a bit through the storm of sand, but there was not a soul in sight. There were lights in the roundhouse a hundred yards across the track. He pulled a revolver—every railroad man out there carried one those days—and, covering one of the roundhouse windows, began firing. It was a risk. There was one chance, maybe, to a thousand of his killing a night man. But there were a thousand chances to one that a whole train load of men and women would be killed inside of thirty minutes if he couldn't get help. He chose a window in the machinists' section, where he knew no one usually went at night. He poured bullets into the unlucky casement as fast as powder could carry them. Reloading rapidly, he watched the roundhouse door, and, sure enough, almost at once, it was cautiously opened. Then he fired into the air—one, two, three, four, five, six—and he saw a man start for the station on the dead run. He knew, too, by the tremendous sweep of his legs that it was Ole Anderson, the night foreman, the man of all others he wanted.

"Ole," cried the dispatcher, waving his arms frantically as the giant Swede leaped across the track and looked up from the platform below, "go get Bucks. I've got a runaway train going against 59. For your life, Ole, run!"

The big fellow was into the wind with the word. Bucks boarded four blocks away. Callahan, slamming down the window, took the key and began calling Rowe. Rowe is the first station east of Jackson. It was now the first point at which the runaway coal train could be headed.

"R-o, R-o," he rattled. The operator must have been sitting on the wire, for he answered at once. As fast as Callahan's fingers could talk he told Rowe the story and gave him orders to get the night agent, who, he knew, must be down to sell tickets for 59, and pile all the ties they could gather across the track to derail the runaway train. Then he began thumping for Kolar, the next station east of Rowe and the second ahead of the runaways. He pounded and he pounded, and when the man at Kolar answered Callahan could have sworn he had been asleep just from the way he talked. Does it seem strange? There are many strange things about a dispatcher's senses. "Send your night man to west switch house track and open for runaway train. Set brakes hard on your empties on siding to spill runaways if possible. Do anything and everything to keep them from getting by you. Work quick."

Behind Kolar's O. K. came a frantic call from Rowe. "Runaways passed here like a streak. Knocked the ties into toothpicks. Couldn't head them."

Callahan didn't wait to hear any more. He only wiped the sweat from his face. It seemed forever before Kolar spoke again. Then it was only to say, "Runaways went by here before night man could get to switch and open it."

Would Bucks never come? And if he did come, what on earth could stop the runaway train now? They were heading into the worst grade on the West End. It averages 1 per cent from Kolar to Griffin, and there we get down off the Cheyenne hills with a long reverse curve and drop into the canyon of the Blackwood with a 3 per cent grade. Callahan, almost beside himself, threw open a north window to look for Bucks. Two men were flying down Main street toward the station. He knew them; it was Ole and Bucks.

But Bucks! Never before or since was seen on a street of McCloud such a figure as Bucks, in his trousers and slippers, with his nightshirt free as he sailed down the wind. In another instant he was bounding up the stairs.

"What have you done?" he panted, throwing himself into the chair. Callahan told him. Bucks held his head in his hands while the boy talked. He turned to the sheet—asked quick for 59.

"She's out of Callendar. I tried hard to stop her. I didn't lose a second; she was gone."

Barely an instant Bucks studied the sheet. Routed out of a sound sleep after an eight hour trick and on such a night by such a message, the marvel was he could think at all, much less set a trap which should save 59. In twenty minutes from the time Bucks took the key the two trains would be together. Could he save the passenger? Callahan didn't believe it.

A sharp, quick call brought Griffin. We had one of the brightest lads on the whole division at Griffin. Callahan, listening, heard Griffin answer. Bucks rattled a question. How the heart hangs on the faint, uncertain tick of a sounder when human lives hang on it!

"Where are your section men?" asked Bucks.

"In bed at the section house."

"Who's with you?"

"Night agent; sheriff with two cowboy prisoners waiting to take 59."

Before the last word came Bucks was back at him!

To Opr.:

Ask sheriff release his prisoners to save passenger train. Go together to west switch house track, open and set it. Smash in section tool house, get tools. Go to point of house track curve, cut the rails and point them to send runaway train from Ogalalla over the bluff into the river. BUCKS.

The words flew off his fingers like sparks, and another message crowded the wire behind it:

To agt.:

Go to east switch, open and set for passing track. Flag 59 and run her on siding. If can't get up help the men ditch the runaways. E. L. JAS.

They look old now. The ink is faded and the paper is smoked with the fire of the fifteen winters and bleached with the sun of fifteen summers, but to this day they hang there in their walnut frames, the original orders, just as Bucks scratched them off. They hang there in the dispatchers' offices in the new depot. But in their present swell surroundings Bucks wouldn't know them. It was Harvey Reynolds who took them off the other end of the wire—a boy in a thousand for that night and that minute. The instant the words flashed into the room he instructed the agent, grabbed an ax and dashed out into the waiting room, where the sheriff, Ed Banks, sat with his prisoners, the cowboys.

"Ed," cried Harvey, "there's a runaway train from Ogalalla coming down the line in the wind. If we can't trap it here it'll knock 59 into kindling wood. Turn the boys loose, Ed, and save the passenger train. Boys, show the man and square yourselves right now. I don't know what you're here for, but I believe it's to save 59. Will you help?"

The three men sprang to their feet. Ed Banks slipped the handcuffs off in a trice. "Never mind the rest of it. Save the passenger train first!" he roared. Everybody from Ogalalla to Omaha knew Ed Banks.

"Which way? How?" cried the cowboys, in a lather of excitement.

Harvey Reynolds, beckoning as he ran, rushed out the door and up the track, his posse at his heels, stumbling into the gale like lunatics.

"Smash in the tool house door!" panted Harvey as he neared it.

"Pick up that tie and ram her!" he cried, pointing to the door. "All together—now!"

Harvey and the cowboys splintered the panel in a twinkling, and Banks, with a few clean strokes, cut an opening. The cowboys, jumping together, ran in and began fishing for tools in the dark. One got hold of a wrench; the other, a pick. Harvey caught up a claw bar, and Banks grabbed a spike maul. In a bunch they ran for the point of the curve on the house track. It lies there close to the verge of a limestone bluff that looms up fifty feet above the river.

But it is one thing to order a contact opened and another and very different thing to open it at 2 in the morning on Dec. 25 by men who know no more about track cutting than about logarithms. Side by side and shoulder to shoulder the man of the law and the men out of the law, the rough riders and the railroad boy, pried and wrenched and clawed and struggled with the steel. While Harvey and Banks clawed at the spikes the cowboys wrestled with the nuts on the bolts of the fishplates. It was a battle. The nuts wouldn't twist; the spikes stuck like pies; sweat covered the assailants. Harvey went into a frenzy. "Boys, we must work faster!" he cried, tugging at the frosty spikes. But flesh and blood could do no more.

"There they come—there's the runaway train. Do you hear it? I'm going to open the switch anyhow," Harvey shouted, starting up the track. "Save yourselves."

Heedless of the warning, Bank struggled with the plate bolts in silent fury. Suddenly he sprang to his feet. "Give me the maul!" he cried.

Raising the heavy tool like a tacHammer, he landed heavily on the bo nuts once and again, and they flew in a stream like bullets over the bluff. The taller cowboy, bending close on his knees, raised a yell. The plates had given. Springing to the other rail, Banks stripped the bolts even after the mad train had shot into the gorge above them. They drove the pick under the loosened steel, and with a pry that bent the claw bar and a yell that reached Harvey, trembling at the switch, they tore away the stubborn contact and pointed the rails over the precipice.

The shriek of a locomotive whistle cut the wind. Looking east, Harvey had been watching 59's headlight. She was pulling in on the siding. He still held the switch open to send the runaways into the trap Bucks had set if the passenger train failed to get into the clear, but there was a minute yet—a bare sixty seconds—and Harvey had no idea of dumping $10,000 worth of equipment into the river unless he had to.

Suddenly up went the safety signals from the east end. The 101 was coughing noisily up the passing track—the line was clear. Banks and the cowboys, waiting breathless, saw Harvey with a determined lurch close the main line contact.

In the next breath the coalers, with the sweep of the gale in their frightful velocity, smashed over the switch and on. A rattling whirl of ballast and a dizzy clatter of noise, and before the frightened crew of 59 could see what was against them the runaway train was passed—gone!

"I wasn't going to stop here tonight," muttered the engineer as he stood with the conductor over Harvey's shoulder at the operator's desk a minute later and wiped the chill from his forehead with a piece of waste. "We'd have met them in the canyon."

Harvey was reporting to Bucks. Callahan heard it coming: Rails cut, but 59 safe. Runaways went by here fully seventy miles an hour."

It was easy after that. Griffin is the foot of the grade. From there on the runaway train had a hill to climb. Bucks had held 250, the local passenger, sidetracked at Davis, thirty miles farther east. Sped by the wind, the runaways passed Davis, though not at half their highest speed. An instant later 250's engine was cut loose and started after them like a scared collie. Three miles east of Davis they were overhauled by the light engine. The fireman, Donahue, crawled out of the cab window, along the foot rail and down on the pilot, caught the ladder of the first car and, running up, crept along to the leader and began setting brakes. Ten minutes later they were brought back in triumph to Davis.

When the multitude of orders was out of the way, Bucks wired Ed Banks to bring his cowboys down to McCloud on 60. Sixty was the eastbound passenger due at McCloud at 5:30 a. m. It turned out that the cowboys had been arrested for lassoing a Norwegian homesteader who had cut their wire. It was not a heinous offense, and after it was straightened out by the intervention of Bucks, who was the whole thing then—they were given jobs lassoing sugar barrels in the train service. One of them, the tall fellow, is a passenger conductor on the high line yet.

It was 3 o'clock that morning—the 25th of December in small letters on the West End—before they got things decently straightened out, there was so much to do—orders to make and reports to fake. Bucks, still on the key in his flowing robes and tumbling hair, sent and took them all. Then he turned the seat over to Callahan and, getting up for the first time in two hours, dropped into another chair.

The very first thing Callahan received was a personal from Pat Francis at Ogalalla, conductor of 59. It was for Bucks:

Your mother is aboard 59. She was carried by McCloud in the Denver sleeper. Sending her back to you on 60. Merry Christmas.

It came off the wire first. Callahan, taking it, didn't think Bucks heard, though it's probable that he did hear. Anyway, Callahan threw the clip over toward him, with a laugh.

"Look there, old man. There's your mother coming after all your kicking—carried by on 59."

As the boy turned he saw the big dispatcher's head sink between his arms on the table. Callahan sprang to his side, but Bucks had fainted.

The Fan.

The history of the fan is almost as old as the history of the world. One might almost imagine Eve flaunting a primitive fan of palm leaves or feathers in the garden of Eden. The Egyptians used fans of strange shapes made of parchment or plumes at their religious ceremonies. The Romans used a flabellum, a cort of circular fan, on occasions of state, and the early Greeks had fans made of the flat leaves of the lotus. The Chinese and Japanese have always been great fan lovers and lavish infinite care upon their decoration. Men and women use them alike. These fans are of painted and embroidered silk, gilded paper, ostrich or peacock feathers, with sticks of violet wood, sandal, ivory or pearl. Queen Elizabeth owned almost as many fans as dresses and had a mania for collecting them. Her subjects were in the habit of offering these trifles to their regal mistress. Mme. de Pompadour loved a fan and encouraged the art of fan painting. Her collection of fans was enormous. Greuze, Watteau and other renowned painters did not disdain to lend their art to fan painting. It was mostly executed on chicken skin or vellum.

What Did He Mean?

Mike Maloney's wife was an invalid, and the doctor had been doing all sorts of things for her, changing the medicine so often that poor Mike's income would scarcely reach and make both ends meet, and at last the doctor said that his wife must go to a warmer climate.

Mike listened to that advice for several months, and finally when October came the doctor told Mike one Saturday evening after all of his week's wages had been spent that his wife positively must be sent "to a warmer climate without delay."

Mike left the room for a few minutes, and when he returned he was wiping his eyes with his left hand, while with his right hand he brought an ax, which he gave to the physician, saying:

"I hate to do it, doc. You please do it for me."—Kansas City Independent.

Practical Help For Deafness.

Get a common pasteboard mailing tube such as pictures or music is mailed in and hold it to the ear closely. The result is wonderful. A very deaf person can hear distinctly everything that is said by any one sitting on the other side of the room. At first thought one is inclined to ridicule so simple a method. I bought a good long one, large enough to fit over the ear, for 10 cents. One can get them at any business stationer's. I tried it on grandmother, who is very deaf. She could hear well and, what was more remarkable, could also hear with her very deaf ear, with which she has not heard a sound for seven years. Try it! That's all I have to say.—Harper's Bazar.

He Always Remembered.

A smile lurked at the corners of Mrs. Lombard's mouth as she listened to the plaint of the school friend whom she had not seen for more than ten years. "I'm afraid, dear," she said, "you'll have to reconstruct some of your plans. You see, I married a forgetful man too."

"Why, you told me not ten minutes ago that your husband had never yet forgotten your birthday or your wedding anniversary," cried her friend, "and you told me you'd been married nearly eleven years! That's ever since the year after father took us all abroad."

"Yes," said Mrs. Lombard demurely, "I have. That's a long time, isn't it? But, you see, one thing was in my favor—I was born on the Fourth of July. Mr. Lombard couldn't very well forget the national holiday. And as soon as I'd found out how forgetful he was I decided to be married on another holiday.

"I suppose as you were abroad you didn't realize that the date of my wedding was unusual—people aren't often married on the 22d of February, I think. But, you see, by a little judicious planning I've been saved the necessity of reminding him about our anniversary."—Youth's Companion.

The Passing of the Lamp.

If country people would investigate Acetylene Lighting impartially, this is what they would find out about it. They would find that Acetylene Gaslight is not only the most brilliant, beautiful, coolest, steadiest and cleanest of all home lights, but the safest as well.

They would find that it's rays are precisely the same in color-balance, and chemical effect, as natural Sunlight,—so clear, pure, and healthful that Plants grow by night under Acetylene as they do by day under Sunlight.

They would find that the use of Acetylene Gaslight would cut out all the disagreeable daily cleaning, filling, snuffing, and chimney-wiping of Kerosene Lamps, with the inseparable soot, smell, heat, and air-destroying action, of such lamps.

Moreover, they would find that Acetylene Light, when once installed, costs a third less than Kerosene, for the same amount of light, while needing about thirty minutes per month attendance for 50 lights, as against 30 hours per month for the usual 8 to 10 Kerosene Lamps.

If they would consider that the proper care of even eight Kerosene Lamps spoils half an hour per day of somebody's time, instead of half an hour per month, they would begin to ask earnest questions about Acetylene Lighting from unprejudiced people who know Modern Acetylene through actual experience with it.

Then I could tell them something which would bring more leisure to the weary Housewife more comfort to the whole family, and more prestige to the Country Home generally.

And, I could tell them how little all this additional comfort, leisure, and home-prestige need cost, when they go the right way about installing Acetylene.

Just address me this way for the evidence—Acetyle:.. Jones, 4 Adams St., Chicago, Ill.

Her Visitor.

A young married man of extremely jealous disposition recently visited one of the most famous mediums in London. Being far from home, he wanted to know what his wife was doing.

"She is looking out of the window, evidently expecting some one."

"That is strange," said Benedict. "Whom can she expect?"

"Some one enters the door, and she caresses him fondly," went on the medium.

"It can't be!" cried the excited husband. "My wife is true to me."

"Now he lays his head on her lap and looks tenderly in her eyes."

"It's false! I'll make you pay dearly for this!" yelled the jealous husband.

"Now he wags his tail," said the medium.

The green eyed monster subsided, and the young husband cheerfully paid over his consulting fee. — London Scraps.

A Peer and His Patent.

After it is once issued the patent for the creation of a new peerage cannot be altered. Otherwise Lord Glerawly would be written Lord Glenawley, as Glerawly was written by a clerk in mistake for this word. Another interesting case of a similar nature is that of Charles Pawlet, afterward third Duke of Bolton, who died in 1754. In 1717, while his father, the second duke, was still alive, Pawlet was made a peer as Lord Pawlet of Basing, although the intention of the king and his advisers was to summon him to the house of lords under one of his father's junior titles—that of Baron St. John of Basing. However, the writ of summons had been made out to Lord Pawlet of Basing, and Pawlet bore this title until he became Duke of Bolton in 1722.—Westminster Gazette.

Simple Rules of Health.

Never pick your teeth with any hard substance. Bar the pick unless it is made of soft white pine. Repeated use of a hard pick drives the gums away from the teeth, and pretty soon you are a victim of Riggs disease. After the meal pick your teeth gently, then rinse out your buccal cavity with an antiseptic solution of tepid water. After rinsing use a gargle to clean out the throat—a solution of salt in water. Wash off your tongue as far back as you can reach and scrape the root of it once in awhile with an instrument of silver made for the purpose. And, above all, never put anything into your mouth that does not agree perfectly with your stomach, if it is expected to descend below the throatlatch.—New York Press.

Strange Uses For Churches.

There are cases innumerable of churches being used during England's civil war to accommodate the horses of one of another regiment of the opposing troops. Dedham church still shows traces of Puritan vandalism in the mutilated sculpture. The oak door, at one time elaborately decorated with small carved figures of saints, now shows the figures without their heads. And there is the famous case of Notre Dame at Paris, which during the days of the Revolution was converted into a "temple of reason," with its goddess, a ballet dancer, enthroned on a mound in the midst of the choir.—Strand Magazine.

No Landlubber.

Young Jack Tabbs has only been in the navy for a few months, but there is not a more enthusiastic sea dog in the whole of his majesty's service. He recently made application for and received the usual leave and proceeded to London and his mother's house.

Mrs. Tabbs lives on the third floor of a house in Camberwell, and when he arrived at her address he stood in the doorway and bawled up the stairs:

"Mother, aloft there! Jack's come home! Open the window!"

"Why, Jacky, my dear," cried the old lady from the landing, "whatever's wrong with the stairs?"

"Stairs!" cried the weather worn tar, with ineffable contempt. "What do I know about stairs? Just you open the window and lower a rope to the main deck, and be quick about it!"—London Express.

Good Ink, but No Bread.

Sweynheym and Pannartz, the two Germans who were the first to print books in Rome, used paper and types of excellent quality. Their ink on pages printed more than 400 years ago can vie in blackness with the best of the present day. Yet with all their labors they often lacked bread. In a petition to the pope they informed his holiness that their house was full of proof sheets, but that they had nothing to eat.—Argonaut.

Village Local

Mrs. James C. Winans.

Harriett Cheever Baxter was the eldest child and only daughter of Benjamin Levi and Adeline Francis Cheever Baxter. Her paternal grandfather Mr. Levi Baxter, came here from Sidney Plains, N. Y. with the pioneer band, who first settled our little town on the banks of the River Raisin. Her maternal grandfather, Rev. Ebenezer Cheever came from Newark, N. Y. and was for several years a pastor of the First Presbyterian church, Tecumseh. After the prayer service one Wednesday evening in 1847, Rev. Cheever very quietly and emphatically pronounced the words that gave his pretty daughgher, Fanny, to the long life care of Mr. Benjamin L. Baxter.

Hattie Baxter was born in Tecumseh, June 1848, and in her infancy became a "child of the Covenant." Her childhood and early girthood was spent in this village with the exception of the brief interval where her parents were residents of Milwaukee, Wis. Her education was commenced in the old West Branch school house. From there she entered the central building (before the day of grammar schools) and was a pupil in the Intermediate department. She was soon promoted to the high school, then under the supervision of the late Prof. Uriah P. Lawton.

Sometime during the period of the Civil war, Miss Baxter left the Tecumseh school for the Normal at Ypsilanti, Mich. When in that city she made her home with her grandparents, Rev. and Mrs. Cheever. In September 1865, she became a student of the Young Ladies Seminary, Monroe, Mich., (Rev. E. J. Boyd, principal) where she remained until May 1866. The sanitary condition of the buildings and grounds connected with that institution were at the time in very poor consumption, causing many typhold fever victims. Miss Baxter was very ill for many weeks with the disease after her return home. When her health was restored, she entered the J. B. Sill Seminary in Detroit, graduating from there with high honors.

Hattie Baxter united with the Presbyterian church under the pastorate of Rev. S. E. Wishard. She was a constant attendant at church services, also at social meetings of the church. Her Sunday school instructors were, Mrs. L. Drew, Miss Jane McCormiell, Mrs. B. J. Bidwell, Mr. L. Drew and Mr. John Stroughton Strong. In 1892 Miss Baxter made a tour of Europe with a party of young ladies, chaperoned by Mrs. Jas. Stone of Kalamazoo. Her letters home were published and were a course of education and enjoyment to her many home friends also proved her ability as a visitor. At that time such a journey was considered a very wonderful event and the Stone party attracted a great deal of attention, both in Europe and America.

She was ambitious, and desiring to make some practical use of her superior advantages was employed as a teacher in the Jonesville high school. Miss Baxter was of fine personality, attractive in feature and appearance. Though at times quite reticent she was a social favorite in her home town and in the city of her adoption.

There was a quiet wedding at the Baxter homestead in the year of 1877 when Miss Baxter married James C. Winans of Toledo, O., and where they resided until the past few years when they moved to Ottumna, Ia. Mrs. Winans was the mother of five children three dying in infancy. She was very lovely in her home life, being a most devoted wife and mother, always considering her home treasures far above anything this world can give.

Mrs. Winans passed away from her beautiful home in Ottumna after nine months of terrible torture from the effects of a cancer. The first month of the new year brought a rest calm to the frail body of the sufferer. Her remains were brought to Toledo where the burial occured one Sunday afternoon in January just at the close of day. She is survived by her husband and two daughters, Mrs. Florence Davis of Mobile, Ala., and Miss Frances Winans of Ottumna, also by a brother, W. Francis Baxter of Portland, Ore. H. B. S.

Good for Everybody.

Norman Coulter, a prominent architect in the Delbert building, San Francisco, says: "I fully endorse all that has been said of Electric Bitters as a tonic medicine. It is good for everybody. It corrects stomach, liver and kidney disorders in a prompt and efficient manner and builds up the system." Electric Bitters is the best spring medicine ever sold over a druggist's counter; as a blood purifier it is unequaled. 50c. at C. A. Wright & Son's drug store.

The Huntsman's Mass.

"Once every year, on St. Hubert's day, one may see hundreds of dogs in the Cathedral of Notre Dame at Brussels. At the huntsman's mass on that day the owners of hunting dogs take the animals to church with them, and for a short time the sacred edifice becomes a dog show place," says a writer in a Berlin paper. To heighten the effect all the worshipers attend in hunting costume and the bugle plays an important part in the musical service. When the last celebration took place a stranger in the city, who was staying at one of the large hotels near the place, strolled toward the cathedral and took with him a pet spaniel. "Every dog has his day," he said, "and this is it." At the church entrance two pointers growled at the little dog and did it so fiercely that the little fellow turned and ran. He was coaxed back, but again driven away by another large dog. "The owner took the hint," says the writer, "and returned to the hotel with his little pet, convinced that the big dogs looked upon the spaniel as an intruder, that he had no part in the St. Hubert's mass and that the day was not every dog's."

World's Finest Fruits.

An interesting discussion in the British Royal Horticultural society a few years ago as to what was the finest fruit in the world ended by giving the palm to a certain yellow nectarine raised from a peach by the late Francis Rivers. Next to this perhaps comes a properly ripened greengage, one of the best varieties of the plum. The greengage came into Europe by way of Italy and from Italy was brought to France early in the sixteenth century by the wife of Francis I., in whose honor it received the name of Reine Claude, by which it is still widely known. Soon afterward it was introduced into England from Italy under the old Italian name Verdoch and about the same time from France. The latter importation, however, came with lost labels to a family of prominent English amateur horticulturists of that day named Gage, from whom the fruit received its present name.—London Chronicle.

NICKLE THEATRE.

Mission for the young men in cities

The Exhibit, a journal published in Detroit in the interest of the moving picture shows contained an article in regard to the nickle theatres. In part the article said: "Cheap theatres as missions for the young of our city. The man who turns the crank operating the moving picture machine is a missionary to the young men of the city and the illustrated song artist a gospel singer in disguise. At least Chief of Police Farrington of Battle Creek has sized it up in that way. The five cent theatre has done more to discourage and diminish drinking and crime in Battle Creek than any institution in the city.

Before they had nickle theatres the young man had no place to go for amusement. There was the saloon or the billiard hall inviting him. Naturally he got to drinking just to pass away the time; he soon fell into the habit of hanging around saloons, meeting bad company and before long had gone wrong. Look at the difference now. For 10 or 15 cents he can get a whole evening's entertainment and go home with a level head. He can take a girl to these "cheap shows" and it won't cost him a week's pay either.

They all put on a show that will not offend the most fastidious. They also keep the farmer, who comes to town, out of the saloon. Mr. Farrington says that he would not be surprised to see several saloons in Battle Creek close this spring as a result of the inroads made on their income by the cheap theatres. Tecumseh has but one of these theatres and by the patronage given it, it looks as if the statement made by Mr. Farrington was very true. The young men of the village must have some place of amusement.

Electric Light.

Electric light may be burned in sleeping room or sick chamber without injurious result, the air remaining pure and sweet. Not so with other forms of illuminating. One open-flame light consumes as much oxygen as four grown persons, vitiates the air and makes perfect health under such conditions impossible. Use Electric Light that's pure, clean convenient and safe.

PATENT OFFICE

This week for the first time in 118 years, there was a case of official crookedness unearthed in the patent office at Washington. It had to do with electric lights and the inventor, the lawyer and one of the assistant examiners were all placed under arrest. It is stated that the patent application of the inventor had been altered and the prior application of another man substituted for it with the connivance of the examiner, making it appear that the later man had the prior claim to a valuable invention. The case will be threshed out in court, but the interesting point is that it is the first time in over a century that there has been even a hint of wrong doing in the greatest patent office of the world.

Annual Meeting of the Missionary Circle.

At the annual meeting of the Missionary Circle of the Presbyterian church held at the home of Miss Dingman the following officers were elected:

BOULDER.

A MOVEMENT IS ON FOOT TO SECURE A BOULDER

To Mark the Spot where the First Hearthstone was Established.

Town Federation of Women's Clubs are Promoting this Movement.

The dinner and supper to have been given by the Town Federation of Women's clubs for the Boulder project has been postponed, the date to be announced later. This is a movement which should appeal to all who have resided for any length of time here and especially to those born in this town or vicinity. Four years ago we celebrated with a pioneer picnic the eightieth anniversary of the coming of the first white settlers and at that time decided to keep alive the spirit of patriotism among us by remembering each year that on the 2nd of June was the date that the first white woman began making a home in this locality and to mark the spot where that first hearth stone was established with a boulder inscribed with names and dates of those first settlers.

A little fund is already on hand to be used for this purpose and it is the hope of the ladies in giving this dinner and some other entertainments which may follow to so increase the fund that when the 2nd of June comes on this year we may have turned over to our Pioneer Society, of which Dr. Howell is president, a sufficient amount to place this boulder properly inscribed on the spot which is still remembered by some of our older residents. We owe this small tribute to the people of that early time, that the story of their energies, privations and endurance should become a part of the written history of our state. We hope in this to have the encouragement and patronage of all our pioneer friends

All those persons who signed the Pioneer book are especially invited to help us accomplish this undertaking. Already some boulders have been offered to the committee which will very soon inspect and accept the one most suitable to the purpose. In the event of the boulder being given to us we will be at the expense only of the hauling, setting and inscribing of the stone. All of this work will be put into the hands of a committee of gentlemen competent to judge of the quality of the stone and the merits of the work so that no mistakes will be made

The little spot just beyond our new bridge in Brownville, where the log house which housed the Evans and Brown families stood, might be made into an attractive park which we could improve and beautify each year as our pioneer fund permitted. This is not a woman's club movement. It is an effort of the women's clubs to assist the Pioneer society to preserve a historical landmark.

We hope at the dinner we intend to give soon to offer in addition to the menu a little musical program and perhaps some pioneer reminiscences and any pioneer with anecdotes which he is willing to relate of the early time will be particularly welcomed by the committee. We hope to see you all.

Cornelia P. Howland,
Pres. Town Federation Women's Clubs.

No use to die.

"I have found out that there is no use to die of lung trouble as long as you can get Dr. King's New Discovery" says Mrs. T. P. White of Rushboro, Pa. "I would not be alive today only for that wonderful medicine. It loosens up a cough quicker than anything else and cures lung disease even after the case is pronounced hopeless." This most reliable remedy for coughs, colds, lagrippe asthma, bronchitis and hoarseness is sold under guarantee at C. A. Wright & Son's. 50c and $1. Trial bottle free.

Alexander Hamilton Merritt.

A News correspondent in Los Angeles sends the following notice of the death of Alex. H. Merritt, Lieutenant Colonel, 1st Michigan Infantry, who passed away at the Soldiers' home, Sawtelle, Cal., Feb. 22, 1906.

He was admitted to the home Aug. 13, 1892 aged 53, and to the hospital Aug. 5, 1905 aged 66, but transferred to Co. A. Aug. 25, 1905

It is understood that he was "raised" from the ranks and that he had a splendid record as a soldier. His disability consisted of gun-shot wounds in the right groin and left foot, which he received in the second battle of Bull Run and at Gettysburg. Death attributed to cardiac thrombosis. Burial was made Feb. 24 at the home, with the usual military honors.

A singular feature is the fact that Geo. H. Archbold, who was a captain in the famous Seventeenth Mich. Infy. and who has been at the home for a year past and who served with and knew Col. Merritt well during the war, was not aware of the presence of his old comrade here until he heard of his death.

There are said to be about 2,500 men at this home, besides about 1,500 who are away on furlough. If many of the latter were to return, the home would not have accommodations enough and additional quarters are now being prepared.

The home is most beautifully located some 15 miles from Los Angeles, of which city, the mountains and the ocean there are magnificent views from the home grounds.

Mr. Merritt, a brother of Mrs. Helen J. Clark of Detroit, who with one sister, Mrs. Marie Gululie of Kansas City, Mo., are left of the immediate family. He was an uncle of the Wilson brothers and Mrs. J. J. Freeman of this place.

Card of Thanks.

The family of the late Geo. H Bryan extend their heartfelt thanks to all the friends and neighbors for the sympathy shown in our bereavement, also to the choir and for the floral offering.

SOMETHING SHOULD BE DONE.

What is causing the increase of catarrh in Tecumseh?

In spite of the best efforts of medical men, catarrhal troubles are increasing not only in Tecumseh, but all over the country.

Catarrh is a germ disease and to cure it germ life in the breathing organs should be destroyed and to do this no other treatment has such positive and beneficial action as Hyomei.

When the mucous membrane is irritated and raw and the tissues weakened, there is an ideal lodging place for catarrhal germs. Breathe Hyomei and see how quickly it soothes the membranes, vitalizes the tissues and destroys all the disease germs, rendering catarrh no longer possible.

There is no dangerous stomach drugging when Hyomei is used; no tablets or liquid mixtures, whereby the digestion is often destroyed and intestinal troubles added to the horrors of catarrh.

Breathed through the neat pocket inhaler that comes with every Hyomei outfit, the healing balsams penetrate to the most remote air cells of the throat, nose and lungs, destroying the catarrhal germs so that quick recovery follows.

C. A. Wright & Son agree to refund the money to any purchaser of Hyomei who does not find that it does all that is claimed for it. The complete outfit costs but $1 00.

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Never Suspect it.

Prevalency of Kidney Disease.

Most people do not realize the alarming increase and remarkable prevalency of kidney disease. While kidney disorders are the most common diseases that prevail, they are almost the last recognized by patient and physicians, who continue to doctoring the effects, while the original disease undermines the system.

What To Do.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, fulfills every wish in curing rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. It corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes.

You may have a sample bottle and a book that tells all about it, both sent free by mail. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention this paper and don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y.

DEEDS NOT WORDS.

Tecumseh people have absolute proof of deeds at home.

It's not words but deeds that prove true merit.

The deeds of Doan's Kidney Pills, For Tecumseh kidney sufferers, Have made their local reputation.

Orson Austin, retired, living on Logan street, Tecumseh, Mich., says "I still hold the same high opinion of Doan's Kidney Pills today as when I gave my statement for publication some 5 years ago. Prior to that time I had kidney disease with distressing pains in my back at times almost unbearable. Rheumatism also settled in my limbs and hips adding much to my misery. I did not get my proper rest at night because of the frequent passages of the kidneys attended by a burning sensation. I knew Doan's Kidney Pills were good for such troubles, began using them and soon noticed their good effects. Thus encouraged I continued taking them until cured. I am always glad to recommend Doan's Kidney Pills."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn company, Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States. Remember the name Doan's,—and take no other.

Lockjaw.

The fearful tetanus, or lockjaw, was ascribed in all the books when I was a student to puncture or irritation of a nerve, and both hands and feet were sometimes cut off to stop the irritation going up the nerve to the spine. Now we know that it is due to a fatal poison in the blood which acts like strychnia, though more painfully, and which is produced by a bacillus lodged in a punctured wound made by some stick, nail or pistol wad on which this evil bacillus happened to be. It is a soil bacillus and swarms in rich garden earth, particularly where guano or fish manure is used. All wounds, therefore, into which earth has entered should be promptly cauterized.—Dr. William Hanna Thomson in Everybody's Magazine.

His Dance.

An organ grinder had been playing before the house of an irascible old gentleman, who furiously and amid wild gesticulations ordered him to move on. The Italian stolidly stood his ground and played on and at last was arrested for causing a disturbance. At the court the magistrate asked him why he did not leave when he was requested.

"Me no understan' mooch Inglese," was the reply.

"Well, but you must have understood by his motions that he wanted you to go," said the magistrate.

"I think he come to dance," was the rejoinder.—London Tatler.

Progress.

"My wife knew nothing of housekeeping to begin with, but she's learning fast."

"That's encouraging."

"Oh, she's a bright little woman, if I do say it! It has taken only two cooks to teach her to keep away from the kitchen, and I suppose that's at least half the battle."—Puck.

Mr John Riha of Vining, Ia., says "I have been selling DeWitt's kidney and bladder pills for about a year and they give better satisfaction than any pill I ever sold. There are a dozen people here who have used them and they give perfect satisfaction in every case. I have used them myself with fine results." Sold by all druggists

In politics a boom is often an abbreviated boomerang.

DeWitt's little early risers, small, safe, sure little liver pills. Sold by all druggists.

In the school of experience some of us never get beyond the kindergarten course.

This is worth remembering.

Whenever you have a cough or cold, just remember that Foley's honey and tar will cure it. Do not risk your health by taking any but the genuine. The genuine is in a yellow package. Sold by all druggists in Tecumseh.

Not As It Read.

A certain M. P., as proud and fond as a man should be of his beautiful young wife, was just about rising to speak in a debate when a telegram was put into his hands. He read it, left the house, jumped into a cab, drove to Charing Cross and took the train to Dover. Next day he returned home, rushed into his wife's bedroom and, finding her there, upbraided the astonished lady in no measured terms. She protested her ignorance of having done anything to offend him.

"Then what did you mean by your telegram?" he asked.

"Mean? What I said, of course! What are you talking about?"

"Read it for yourself," said he.

She read: "I flee with Mr. X. to Dover straight. Pray for me."

For the moment words would not come. Then, after a merry fit of laughter, the suspected wife quietly remarked:

"Oh, those dreadful telegraph people! No wonder you are out of your mind, dear. I telegraphed simply: 'I tea with Mrs. X. in Dover street. Stay for me.'"—Pearson's.

When Does Reason Dawn?

As there must be a point back along the line of our descent where consciousness began—consciousness in the animal and self consciousness in man—so there must be a point where reason began. If we had all the missing links in the chain no doubt we might approximately at least determine the point or the form in which it first dawned. The higher anthropoid apes, which are, no doubt, a lateral branch of the stem of the great biological tree that bore man, show occasional gleams of it, but reason, as we ascribe it to the lower orders, is more a kind of symptomatic reason, a vague foreshadowing of reason rather than the substance itself. For a long time the child is without reason or any mental concepts, and all its activities are reactions to stimuli, like those of an animal. It is merely a bundle of instincts, but by and by it begins to show something higher, and we hail the dawn of reason and its development from the animal plane into the human.—John Burroughs in Outing Magazine.

Percentages in Shopping.

"There goes one of the 5 per cent," said a conversational floorwalker in a big department store as he indicated a slender, active woman who was making rapidly for the street.

"You must be right, of course," remarked his visitor, "but what do you mean?"

"Why, I divide women shoppers into four classes—first, those who do not intend to buy; second, those who intend to buy, but don't know what they want; third, these who know what they want when they leave home, but become absolutely confused when they get among the goods, and, fourth, those who know all the time what they want, go direct and get it and get out as soon as possible.

"The fourth class, don't you know, constitute only about 5 per cent of the whole, and that woman's one of them. They are a blessing in a way, but unfortunately they don't turn in as much money as classes two and three."—New York Globe.

Attractive Show.

Here are a few selections from a circus poster recently displayed in Ambala, India:

"1. Some horses will make as very much better tricks.

"2. The clown will come and talk with that horses, therefore the audience will laugh itself very much.

"3. Boys will jump and roll in the mud.

"4. One man will walk on wire tight, he doing very nicely, because he is professor of that.

"5. Then will come the very much better dramatic.

"Notice.—No sticks will be allowed in the spectator, and he shall not making the smoke; also we don't make it only the fourth class.

"N. B.—The circus is the very much better; therefore he come to see that."

The Giraffe's Neck.

Lamarck thought that the giraffe obtained its long neck by transmission of parental stretching to reach the leaves of trees and that each new generation literally "began where the last left off." I say literally because the young giraffe was conceived, so to speak, as continuing at the branches which its parents could just reach and then stretching its neck to reach leaves inaccessible to the parents. So to say, it began eating where the parents left off.—Pall Mall Gazette.

Aiming and Hitting.

Mr. Kidder—I think a woman's club to be successful should aim at something far removed from female suffrage.

Miss Strong—I don't agree with you, sir. That should be its sole object.

Mr. Kidder—Yes, but it's more likely to hit that object if it aims at something else.—Philadelphia Press.

Worse.

"At least the audience didn't hiss," remarked the playwright after the unsuccessful first night.

"No," replied the manager sadly; "they were too sleepy."—Lippincott's Magazine.

Safe.

Eloper (in a loud whisper)—Are you sure the rope ladder is firmly attached? Eloperess—Oh, yes. I won't fall. Papa and mamma are at the top holding it.—Cleveland Leader.

As Bait.

Mrs. A. (over phone)—Can you send me up a cook today, Mr. Dwyer? Head of Intelligence Office—Sorry I can't accommodate you, Mrs. A., but we have only one in the office. Mrs. A.—But why mayn't I have her? Head of Intelligence Office—Oh, we have to keep her as a sample!—Harper's Weekly.

Trapped.

He was telling her about the members of his cricket team. "Now, there's Brown," said he; "in a few weeks' time he'll be our best man."

"Oh, Jack," she gushed, "what a nice way to ask me!"—London Judy.

Hopeless.

"He's no good at an argument, is he? Not at all convincing?"

"Well, I should say not. Why, that man couldn't convince a woman that she was pretty!"—Cleveland Leader.

Value of Humor.

The man who becomes a humorist is the man who contrives to retain a certain childlike zest and freshness of mind side by side with a large and tender tolerance.—Cornhill Magazine.

The greatest trust between man and man is the trust of giving counsel.—Bacon.

BRIEF DISPATCHES.

Dr. Eli Marsh Turner, formerly president of West Virginia university, is dead of apoplexy in Morgantown, W. Va. He had just consented to take nomination for mayor of the city on Citizens' party ticket.

While defending his mother in a bitter family quarrel, Constantine Pellegrino, seventeen years old, shot and killed his father, Angelo Pellegrino, at their home in Brooklyn, N. Y. The boy was arrested.

A book dealer in London has discovered a copy of a book by Desiderus Erasmus, "Christiani Matrimoni Institutio." It is a first edition and contains marginal notes believed to be in the handwriting of Henry VIII.

Antohony Schultz, fifty-five years old, and three of his children, Nellie, thirteen years old; Joseph, eleven years old, and May, eight years old, were burned to death in a fire in their home in Depew, ten miles from Buffalo, N. Y. Mrs Schultz and her four youngest children were rescued. A married son, who lived next door, risked his life twice in rescuing his mother and the younger children.

A Possibility.

Old Nancy Doane was noted for the striking originality of some of her expressions. One day she was talking about the utter inanity of another old woman in the neighborhood, and she said:

"I never see her beat! She'll lop down in a cheer, an' there she'll set an' set an' set, doin' absolutely nothin' fer hours an' hours, day after day. 'Pon my soul, I sh'd think she'd mildew!"

Slang of the Army.

In the army there are expressions peculiar to itself. Heard for the first time by outsiders, they need interpretation. Among the most common are "hike" for "march," "striker" for a soldier serving as bodyservant or house man for an officer, "C. O." for "commanding officer" and "O. D." for "officer of the day," "hop" and "hoproom" for "dance" and "dancing room," "citz clothes" for "civilian dress," "commissaries" for "groceries," "coffee cooler" for an officer who is always looking for an easy job in some staff position, "found" when an officer fails to pass his examinations and "shavetail" for a youngster just out of West Point. Among the soldiers the expressions have multiplied until quite a vocabulary of strange words has been established. "Bobtail" is a dishonorable discharge. "Orderly bucker" is a soldier who, when going on guard duty, strives by extra neatness of appearance to be appointed orderly to one of the officers. "Dog robber" is the soldier's contemptuous expression for "striker."—Leslie's Weekly.

MICHIGAN BRIEFS.

Andrew Carnegie will probably be asked to aid financially in securing a library for Hancock.

Miss Iva Bowers of Edwardsburg is dead from the effects of Paris green taken with suicidal intent. She was twenty-one years old. No cause can be assigned as a motive for the act.

Taking advantage of the usual winter dullness in industrial lines, farmers around Battle Creek are recruiting hired men for next summer's work, offering yearly contracts to all who will accept. The farmers will give $225 a year cash, in most instances, as well as providing a home, horse, other stock and fruit and vegetables for the help. For the past few years it has been almost impossible to supply the demand for farm hands.

Daggers, skulls and crossbones and fervent curses adorn a letter which Andrew Finucan, 739 Erskine street, Detroit, received through the mail. The missive, which breathes threats and curses, informs him that he is in the way, and this leads Mr. Finucan to believe that it was written by an admirer of his wife, from whom he is now separated. The police are now investigating.

Nerve Fag.

If You Waste Your Nerve Energy, After Awhile You Will Suffer For It.

You can waste nerve force by excess, over-work, worry, anxiety, etc.

You can weaken yourself by not eating proper food or securing sufficient rest to renew the nerve energy you use up.

The proper treatment, in addition to good phosphatic food, such as whole meal bread, prepared cereals, etc., is Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine.

This is as truly a brain and nerve food as any food you could eat, and besides, furnishes strength and tone of its own, which goes to the weakened nerve system, and sets it to rights.

Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine is a refreshing, revitalizing tonic food-medicine for the brain and nerves. It reconstructs worn-out nerve tissue, and fills your languid brain with new life and vigor.

Dr. Miles' Nervine has made so many marvelous cures, of people so sick the doctors thought they were incurable, that it is today the standard medicine in many thousands of American homes.

The first bottle is guaranteed to help you, or druggist returns your money.

"The extreme heat, close confinement and intense mental strain incident to the banking business, has caused me to suffer with nervousness and insomnia. It gives me pleasure to say that I have used Dr. Miles' Nervine with very satisfactory results in the treatment of these affections. I am now on my fifth bottle, and eat and sleep well, in fact have almost forgotten that I possess nerves."—R. L. DALBY, Asst. Cashier, State Bank, Texarcana, Ark.

No Change Necessary In Rexall Remedies

The new Pure Food Law requires every patent medicine manufacturer to tell just what dangerous drug is in his medicine. Certain periodicals interested in patent medicine reform have declared that the formulas of many patent medicines will have to be changed before the manufacturers will dare conform with this law. These periodicals also declare that the public will never know of these changes, and never know what these remedies formerly contained.

This suspicion, however, cannot rest upon Rexall Remedies. You have absolute proof that Rexall Remedies have not been changed to conform with the new Pure Food Law, because you knew the formulas of these remedies four years ago! The Rexall formulas were never secret. The thousand Rexall druggists have always known all the Rexall formulas and given them to every customer who asked for them.

No one Rexall Remedy was ever claimed to be a "cure-all"—each of the 300 remedies is designed to cure a certain human ill—and does it. These 300 remedies were selected from among thousands because they were the most reliable and successful cures in the world. Far from wishing to conceal the formulas of these remedies, we are proud to tell just what they are, and always have been.

That's where the Rexall plan goes further to safeguard you than does the Pure Food Law. Even now you'll only know the dangerous drugs in other patent medicines, while you have always been able to know the complete formulas of Rexall Remedies!

The Rexall guarantee has been the greatest evidence of the sincerity back of the Rexall Remedies. For four years Rexall druggists have offered to return the money to any one who brought back an empty Rexall bottle or package and said they were not satisfied.

We, as one of the Rexall druggists, feel a genuine satisfaction in having been able to supply this community for four years with one line of medicines which the United States Government by its new Pure Food Law shows were always made right and sold right, and have deserved every bit of the faith you have had in them.

The Pure Food Law may necessitate changes in other medicines, but it only endorses Rexall Remedies.

A few of the 300 famous REXALL Remedies, one for each human ill, are:

FOR CATARRH—MUCU-TONE

The chief ingredients of Mucu-Tone are Gentian, Cubebs, Cascara Sagrada, Glycerine and Sarsaparilla.

Gentian is recognized in medicine as one of the greatest tonics ever discovered. It combines the tonic powers of all known "bitters," with none of the disadvantages applying to any.

Cubebs have long been recognized as a specific in the treatment of all catarrhal conditions. Its action is prompt and its benefit almost invariable.

Cascara Sagrada is especially introduced for its unapproachable laxative properties. The combination of these with Glycerine and Sarsaparilla makes Mucu-Tone a remedy that attacks catarrh from every point and gradually restores the diseased tissues. Bottle, 50c.

FOR NERVES — AMERICANITIS ELIXIR

The Rexall Americanitis Elixir is a tonic nerve food composed chiefly of free Phosphorus, Glycophosphates, Iron Pyrophosphate and Calisaya.

The wonderful results of this remedy are due to the fact that it supplies Phosphorous to the nerve cells in a condition in which it can be immediately and easily taken up by them.

The Glycophosphates, actual nerve-tissue builders, are one of the most recent and valuable additions to this branch of medicine and unquestionably a more efficient remedy than the well-known Hypophosphites.

The Iron Pyrophosphates are the most easily assimilated form of iron which give tone and color, and the combined alkaloids of Calisaya Bark have a tonic effect on all the functions of the body. 75c. and $1.50 a bottle.

REXALL "93" HAIR TONIC

Resorcin is one of the latest and most effective germ-killers discovered by science, and in connection with Beta Naphthol, which is both germicidal and antiseptic, a combination is formed which not only destroys the germs which rob the hair of its nutriment, but creates a clean and healthy condition of the scalp, which prevents the development of new germs.

Pilocarpin is a well-known agent for restoring the hair to its natural color, where the loss of color has been due to a disease of the scalp. It is not a coloring matter or dye.

This combination of curatives mixed with alcohol as a stimulant, perfects the most effective remedy for hair and scalp troubles known today. Per bottle, 50c.

"REXALL" ORDERLIES
The New Laxative

If you suffer from constipation or a sluggish liver, we want you to try this newest member of the Rexall family. It has never failed.

"Rexall" Orderlies have all the virtues and none of the defects of those laxatives and cathartics already known. They are harmless vanilla-flavored tablets that effect a re-adjustment of Nature's functions—no griping, no nausea, no purging.

Pleasant to the taste—they give immediate relief.

A trial will prove to you that they are the best laxative and cathartic ever prescribed.

GUARD GLAZIER'S BED

May Be Necessary to Place Officer In His Home.

STILL UNABLE TO BE OUT.

Way May Be Found Whereby Bail Can Be Accepted Without His Appearance at Mason—Governor and Others Before Jury.

Mason, Mich., March 5.—If ex-State Treasurer Glazier is too sick at his Chelsea home to be brought to Mason on a warrant to plead to the indictments against him charging the embezzlement of state funds, there is, in the opinion of the court authorities here, apparently no other course but to leave an officer in charge of him at his home until he is able to come. Judge Wiest says that the law seems pretty clear that a respondent must appear at the place where the circuit court, that issued the process against him is required by law to hold its regular sessions.

Bail might be accepted for a sick respondent at his home if a process was issued from a justice court, but for a process issued by a court of record it is different. However, it is possible yet that some way may be found to bail the sick ex-treasurer at his home.

Gordon Before Jury.

Representative John Gordon of Marquette arrived here Wednesday, having come all the way from Salt Lake City to give testimony before the grand jury.

When they were through with him, Gordon said that he guessed that somebody ad greatly exaggerated in advance his importance as a witness. He assured the jury categorically that he did not know of anybody, particularly members of the legislature, ever having done anything for which they could be even censured, let alone indicted.

During the afternoon's session State Land Commissioner Rose, Deputy Commissioner Collister and State Game Warden Pierce were witnesses. They were questioned only about state tax lands and the methods of the land department in advertising and selling these lands. None of the three gave any testimony of importance that the jury had not already received from other witnesses.

May Wind Up This Week.

The grand jury may finish its work this week. Whether any besides the Glazier indictments will be returned is a matter of speculation. It is not unlikely, however, that the jury will make a number of recommendations for stricter enforcement of present laws or for new statutes, which will reach political and official practices in a number of matters of state interest and concern.

Governor Warner reported here Wednesday morning, to again give testimony to the jury. He was before the jury two weeks ago on senatorial matters. This time he was quizzed about the state tax land matters.

Governor Warner's appearance before the grand jury Wednesday was at his own request.

NEGRO SURRENDERS.

Defiantly Held Posse at Bay For Hours.

Clarksburg, W. Va., March 5.—With drawn rifles, a company of deputy sheriffs, around Frank Johnson, negro murderer, in charge of Sheriff Flanagan, forced a way through a mob of 2,000 people who surrounded the county jail, and the prisoner was safely taken through the parlor of the sheriff's residence into the prison. So quickly was the prisoner hurried through the crowd that there was little opportunity for demonstration or the violence that had been feared. Johnson had surrendered to Sheriff Flanagan by voluntarily coming out of a log barn on the Yates farm, on Sycamore creek, nine miles from here, and giving himelf up to the big posse that had surrounded the place and held the negro in siege for many hours, exchanging many shots with him. Three members of the posse were shot during attacks on the barn. They will recover.

Johnson yelled defiantly to the posse at intervals that he would not surrender and that he would die first, but when the sheriff and his deputies began making preparations to blow the barn to pieces with dynamite, the negro came out and gave himself up. The Harrison county jail is the strongest in the state, and it is not thought an attempt will be made to storm it.

Frozen to Death.

Cadillac, Mich., March 5.—The body of Tom Riska, aged forty-five, a Pole, was found frozen to death at Harriett, a few miles from here. There is no clue as to his place of residence.

AGED SENATOR DEAD

Senator Proctor of Vermont Has Passed Away.

AFTER A SHORT ILLNESS.

Succumbs to Attack of Grippe—He Was Seventy-Seven Years Old. House and Senate Adjourn as Mark of Respect—Was Civil War Veteran.

Washington, March 5.—United States Senator Redfield Proctor of Vermont is dead at his apartments, at the Champlain here, after a short illness following an attack of grippe. The senator's son, Governor Fletcher Proctor of Vermont, who was summoned to the city, was at the bedside when the senator passed away. Beside his son, the governor's wife and several intimate friends were also at the bedside when death occurred.

He is survived by his wife, two sons, Fletcher D. Proctor, governor of Vermont, and Redfield Proctor, Jr., and a daughter, Miss Emily D. Proctor. Senator Proctor was seventy-seven years old.

While definite funeral arrangements have not been announced, Senator Proctor's body probably will be sent this evening to Proctor, Vt., for interment on Friday. When the two houses of congress met this noon, official announcement was made of Senator Proctor's death and adjournment taken as a mark of respect. The vice president and the speaker of the house of representatives will appoint committees to accompany the body to Vermont.

Senator Proctor had been a conspicuous factor in the politics and business interests of Vermont for many years, and he was reputed to be one of the wealthiest members of the United States senate.

He was largely interested in the marble industry, was identified with other commercial pursuits, was a civil was veteran on the staff of General William A. ("Baldy") Smith, was secretary of war during President Harrison's administration and had been in the senate since 1891, when he left the cabinet to succeed George F. Edmunds. The senator was born in Proctorsville, June 1, 1831, and before his entrance into public life in this city had served his state as a member of each house of the legislature in turn and as governor and lieutenant governor.

Proctor, Vt. March 5.—News of Senator Proctor's death in Washington received in this town, where the senator resided, called forth many expressions of regret.

LEAPED IN TIME.

Train Struck Landslide, and Engine Went Over Embankment.

Benton Harbor, Mich., March 5.—Having presence of mind enough to make a quick jump undoubtedly saved the lives of the engineer and fireman of a Pere Marquette passenger train running between here and Buchanan, which was wrecked two miles south of Berrien Springs.

The accident was due to a landslide carrying away part of the track and roadbed. The landslide occurred at the bend of the track, where it was concealed from the view of the engineer until he was almost on the spot. The engine broke away from the passenger coach and tumbled down a twenty-foot embankment, the occupants of the cab jumping as the engine went over.

Mighty Mean Thief.

Port Huron, Mich., March 5.—When Joseph Loberdoe was brought up for sentence in the circuit court, Judge Tappan characterized him as the meanest thief he had ever had before him. The prisoner, who was sentenced to Ionia for not less than five years for burglary, was convicted of stealing money from his sister. Mrs. Agnes Miller, who had, the day before, taken $25 from her earnings and paid it to her brother's lawyer. The lawyer was to defend him on another charge, on which he was at that time out on bail. Labordee went to his sister's house, broke in and stole the remainder of her savings, amounting to about $10.

Didn't Burn Barns, Jury Says.

Adrian, Mich., March 5.—Mrs. Myrtle O'Toole has won her suit here against the Ohio Farmers' Insurance company of Toledo, recovering $2,000 insurance on her barns in Madison township. The insurance company charged that the woman burned her barns. The suit, which has been on for twelve days, has attracted considerable attention.

MANY CHILDREN ARE CREMATED

Perish In Burning School Near Cleveland.

OVER 160 ARE DEAD.

Fire Started From Overheated Furnace.

BUILDING WAS OVERCROWDED.

Flames Shot Up From Basement and Cut Off Egress—Fleeing Little Ones Fell In Mass When Safety Was Near at Hand—Frightful Catastrophe Occurred at North Collingwood. Several Investigations, Including One by Governor, Already Begun.

Cleveland, March 5.—Death in one of its most terrible forms claimed between 160 and 170 school children of the North Collingwood school, in the village of Collinwood, an eastern suburb, Wednesday, when the school building, catching fire from a defective furnace in the basement, was gutted in the space of half an hour.

The building being inadequately protected by fire escapes, the children were unable to make their way to the lower floors in time to escape the flames as they shot up from the basement and cut off egress. Starting about 9:30 o'clock in the basement, supposedly from the overheated furnace, the fire gained tremendous headway before its presence was noted. The fire drill was inaugurated at once, and those in the rooms on the lower floors quickly moved out of the building. But when the panic stricken little ones in the upper rooms attempted to make their way to the stairway, the jam of uncontrolled and fear stricken children grew until few were able to extricate themselves, and they perished almost within reach of safety.

Janitor Says Doors Were Open.

Various and unconfirmed statements are made as to the cause of the fire. It is said that the doors of the building had been locked at the front entrance, while but one door of the rear entry was unfastened. The janitor, Fritz Herter, himself bereaved of three children, says the doors were open, according to custom. At any rate, the congestion of fleeing children in the hallway effectually barred the way, and the little ones went to their death totally unable to evade the flames.

Within three hours after the start of the fire, it had burned itself out, and the work of rescuing the bodies proceeded. The village fire department had only two engines, and neither, upon arrival after the alarm was given, was at all effective in stemming the flames.

The school was a two story and attic brick building, constructed about six years ago. It was overcrowded with pupils, and it was found necessary to utilize the attic for those of the ages between six and eight. Nearly all the children were killed in the mass at the first floor door, which finally was opened by a man from the Lake Shore railway shops, who hurried to the scene. A wall of flames had formed across it, however, and most of the children already were dead by the time the doors were swung.

Approximately 300 children attended the school, which had nine rooms.

Janitor Describes Fire.

Janitor Herter could remember little of what happened after the fire started.

"I was sweeping in the basement," he said, "when I looked up and saw a wisp of smoke curling out from beneath the front stairway. I ran to the fire alarm and pulled the gong that sounded throughout the building. Then I ran first to the front and then to the rear doors. I can't remember what happened next, except that I saw the flames shooting all about and the little children running down through them, screaming. Some fell at the rear entrance, and others stumbled over them. I saw my little Helen among them. I tried to pull her out, but the flames drove me back. I had to leave my little child to die."

Herter was badly burned about the head.

Teacher Perished.

Miss Catherine Weller, one of the nine teachers in the school, lost her life in a vain effort to marshal the pupils of her class and lead them to safety. She died in the crush at the rear door. Her room was on the second floor, and when the fire alarm sounded, she marched her pupils out into the hall, thinking it was only a fire drill. There, the truth dawned upon both teacher and pupils, and control was lost. The children, in their frenzy, plunged into the struggling mass ahead of them. Miss Weller attempted to stem the rush, but she went down under it, and her body was found an hour later, piled high with those of her pupils. Miss Weller formerly lived in Detroit and was educated in Toledo. Miss Fish, another teacher, was taken out alive, but she cannot live.

After the fire had practically burned itself out, the work of rescuing the bodies was begun by firemen and railroad employes from the Lake Shore shops. The railroad company turned over one of its buildings nearby to be used as a temporary morgue, and thither the charred and broken little bodies were removed as fast as they could be dug from the ruins. Within five hours practically all had been recovered.

Heartrending Sight at Morgue.

They were placed in rows in the Lake Shore shop. Identifications were made only by means of clothing or trinkets. The fire had swept away all semblance to human features in the majority of cases. Distracted parents soon began to gather, and the work of identifying the blackened and mangled corpses began. The scenes became four-fold in the intensity of human suffering as fathers, mothers, brothers and sisters passed up and down the lines formed of 160 corpes. To facilitate identification, the bodies were numbered as they were received at the morgue.

About the burned school house there are but few residences. In one of these Mrs. Clark Sprung lived. Her little boy, Alvin, aged seven, was a pupil in the second grade. When the fire started, the mother ran over to the school and arrived when the first floor was a mass of flames. At a window on that floor she saw the face of her boy. He recognized her and pleaded for help. Rushing across the street, Mrs. Sprung secured a step ladder and placed it against the window. Climbing up, she reached for her boy. She caught him by the hair. It burned off in her hands, and the lad fell back into the flames.

Desolation unspeakable hangs over the whole village.

Besides the children who were killed inside the building, three little girls, Mary Ridgeway, Anna Roth and Gertrude Davis, were instantly killed by leaping from the attic to the ground.

Word has been received that Governor Harris has ordered the state officers to make a prompt and searching investigation into the cause of the fire. He also directed that the examination extend to public schools generally.

The Collingwood council has begun an investigation.

The coroner has impaneled a jury and also begun an investigation.

SIMS EXPLAINS.

Declares Navy In State of Inefficiency in Matter of Training Gunners.

Washington, March 5.—Commander Sims has made this explanation regarding his testimony before the senate naval committee:

"The impression I intended to convey was that the navy was in a state of inefficiency and not prepared for war, and that, owing to this state of inefficiency, there was no proper system of training for the gunners. This was not the fault of the personnel, who are the best in the world, but simply because the training established by the department was incomplete and did not develop the ability of the gunners or of the material.

"Our men are the superiors of any others in the world, and they have shown, since the present system of gunnery training has been established, that they can equal or beat any other navy in the world."

Tired of White House.

Washington, March 5.—Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt is unalterably opposed to a third term as president for her husband. She has said as much to a close friend within the past few days. She gives as her reasons that she is tired of the formal official social round imposed on her as the first lady of the land, that she is tired of Washington society and that she wants to see her husband in a private capacity, so he will not only have time enough to get acquainted with his family but opportunity to travel.

Indians Were Starving.

Pontiac, Mich., March 5.—Mrs. Sarah Sturgem, a full blooded Indian squaw, and her two children are being cared for by the Guiding Star Rescue mission of this city. The woman and children came here from the Walpole Indian reservation, where she claims they were starving. The woman will make baskets for a living.

There is more catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together and until recently was supposed to be incurable. For many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer $100 for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

Take Hall's Family Pills for constipation.

There are mighty few people who don't occasionally tell stories.

Notice to our Customers.

We are pleased to announce that Foley's honey and tar for coughs, colds and lung troubles is not affected by the National Pure Food and drug law as it contains no opiates or other harmful drugs and we recommend it as a safe remedy for children and adults. Sold by all druggists in Tecumseh.

There are countless roads on all sides to the grave.

This is what Hon. Jake Moore, State Warden of Georgia, says of Kodol for dyspepsia: "E. C. DeWitt & Co., Chicago, Ill.—Dear Sirs—I have suffered more than twenty years from indigestion. About eighteen months ago I had grown so much worse that I could not digest a crust of corn bread and could not retain anything on my stomach. I lost 25 lbs.; in fact I made up my mind that I could not live but a short time, when a friend of mine recommended Kodol. I consented to try it to please him and I was better in one day. I now weigh more than I ever did in my life and am in better health than for many years. Kodol did it. I keep a bottle constantly and write this hoping that humanity will be benefitted. Yours very truly, Jake C. Moore, Atlanta, Aug. 10, 1904." Sold by all druggists.

Do not make unjust gains, they are equal to a loss.

Given up to die.

B. Spiegel, 1204 N. Virginia street, Evansville, Ind., writes: "For over five years I was troubled with kidney and bladder affections which caused me much pain and worry. I lost flesh and was all run down, and a year ago had to abandon work entirely. I had three of the best physicians who did me no good and I was given up to die. Foley's Kidney Cure was recommended and the first bottle gave me great relief, and after taking the second bottle I was entirely cured." Why not let it help you? Sold by all druggists in Tecumseh.

The early riser is healthy, cheerful and industrious.

Be careful about that little cough. Get something right away; some good, reliable remedy that will move the bowels. Kennedy's laxative cough syrup acts gently yet promptly on the bowels and allays inflammation at the same time. It is pleasant to take and it is especially recommended for children, as it tastes nearly as good as maple sugar. Sold by all druggists.

The best swimmer is the first to drown himself.

No case on record.

There is no case on record of a cough or cold resulting in pneumonia or consumption after Foley's honey and tar has been taken as it will stop your cough and break up your cold quickly. Refuse any but the genuine Foley's honey and tar in the yellow package. Contains no opiates and is safe and sure. Sold by all druggists in Tecumseh.

It is not sheer madness to live poor to die rich.

Orino Laxative Fruit Syrup is a new remedy, an improvement on the laxatives of former years, as it does not gripe or nauseate and is pleasant to take. It is guaranteed. For sale by all druggists in Tecumseh.

It is not easy to sting a bear with a straw.

A severe cold that may develope into pneumonia over night, can be cured quickly by taking Foley's honey and tar. It will cure the most obstinate racking cough and strengthen your lungs. The genuine is in the yellow package. For sale by all druggists in Tecumseh.

There is nothing ill said that is not ill taken.

Timeliness characterizes the March Century. Mr. Andrew Carnegie goes back to the beginning of his experiences with railway rates and rebates, in 1856, when he was secretary and telegraph operator under Thomas A. Scott, general superintend of the Pittsburg divison of the Pennsylvania Railway, and his presentation of present day conditions and next comes with unquestioned authority. The story is interestingly, even dramatically, told.

How to be happy and prosperous on a "One-Acre Ranch"—prosperous in the sense of a comfortable living and a growing bank account—the actual experience of one city man in the Northwest is told by W. H. Kirkbride.

VILLAGE CAUCUS

HELD IN THE COUNCIL ROOMS LAST TUESDAY.

Officers Nominated Unanimously.

At the caucus held in the Council rooms last Tuesday evening, the People's party put up the following ticket There is no opposition.

Pres.—John Combs.
Treas.—Robt. M. Boyd.
Clerk—Wade Jones
Trustees—A. S. VanWinkle, B. J. Slater, John Sherman.
Assessor—B. J. Garlinghouse.

Henry Keyser.

Henry Keyser died at his home in Tecumseh at 5:30 Wednesday evening, aged 87 years, 11 months, 5 days He had been poorly for about three weeks. The funeral will be held from the house Saturday at 2 o'clock, Rev. Dunning officiating. Burial at Brookside.

The March McClure's leads off with an article on Governor Hugh ea by Burt on J. Hendrick. "People know so little about him," has been the universal complaint, and Mr. Hendrick's article is a timely turning on of the light. Ellen Terry's monthly contribution is a chapter called "Memories of Booth and Sarah Bernhardt," in which many other famous ones figure besides the great American actor and the ethereal "Miss Sarah."

The chief contribution to The Ladies' World for March is an article called The Human Side of the Millionaire, which tells of what is being done by some of our rich men for the benefit of their fellow creatures—the other side to that so often brought to our notice. The particular efforts of Mr Rockefeller, Mr. Phipps and Mr. Harriman are told in an interesting way, and the information given will certainly be new to many people. The general contents of the magazine are up to its usual high standard, with stories by Zona Gale, Rose Stahl (who tells an experience of her newspaper days) Wood Levette Wilson, Roy Norton and others; while the household, fashion and personal departments seem to us to be even better than usual.

LEARN TO EAT.

Few people in Tecumseh really know how.

This is not an essay on table manners. It is simply a little good advice about one of the great American defects—too rapid eating.

Nothing makes life so miserable, or interferes so widely with the usefulness of the average American, as indigestion.

The quick lunch counters and the majority of restaurants, even the home dining-rooms, are simply manufactories of stomach troubles.

Slow eating will solve one-half the problem of ill health. Those who suffer already with indigestion and weak stomach can with care and the use of Mi-o-na stomach tablets restore their digestion to a healthy condition, so that they can eat what they want at any time without fear of distress or suffering.

After a few days' use of Mi-o-na stomach tablets, the headache, dizzy feeling, drowsiness, bad taste in the mouth, coated tongue, nervousness, sleeplessness, distress after eating—all these symptoms of a weak stomach—will disappear and perfect digestion and a good skin will show that the vital machinery is once more running smoothly.

Take a little Mi-o-na tablet before each meal so that it will stimulate the digestive juices and give strength to the stomach and then it will take care of the food that is eaten, without indigestion and the unpleasant full feeling with which so many suffer after meals.

C. A. Wright & Son have so much confidence in the power of Mi-o-na to cure indigestion and all stomach ills that they give a guarantee with every 50 cent box to refund the money if the remedy fails to give satisfaction.

COME IN AND SEE THE SEPARATOR THAT SEPARATES

The Improved Frictionless Empire

Your cream—all of it—from the milk. That separates you from the most work. That separates you from the least money. That separates you from all worry.

Selection of cream separators for this store was made only after a careful consideration of all lines. It was determined to have nothing but the best.

That's Why You Find the Empire Here.

You do not buy a separator as a straw hat to throw away at the end of the season. It is a permanent investment. You want returns. The guarantee of the makers and the guarantee of the store go with the Empire Separator. You will get returns in all the cream, in the best cream—no taint—no odor—in easy running, in easy cleaning, in simple operation—no complicated machinery to get out of order and worry the life out of you. But you are not asked to believe all this without seeing.

Come in and See How the Empire Works.

It almost runs itself. The bowl revolves with so little friction that it runs a full half hour after you stop turning the crank. And it is just as simple as it is easy. Nothing to get out of order, and no complicated parts to wash. Come in and see it.

Get also a supply of the sensible, interesting dairy literature free to you, waiting for you at this store. It doesn't take up much space and it's good reading. You'll be convinced.

Thousands Have Kidney Trouble and Never Suspect it.

Prevalency of Kidney Disease.

Most people do not realize the alarming increase and remarkable prevalency of kidney disease. While kidney disorders are the most common diseases that prevail, they are almost the last recognized by patient and physicians, who content themselves with doctoring the effects, while the original disease undermines the system.

What To Do.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, fulfills every wish in curing rheumatism, pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passage. It corrects inability to hold water and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often during the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar sizes.

You may have a sample bottle and a book that tells all about it, both sent free by mail. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention this paper and don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y.

DEEDS NOT WORDS.

Tecumseh people have absolute proof of deeds at home.

It's not words but deeds that prove true merit.

The deeds of Doan's Kidney Pills,
For Tecumseh kidney sufferers,
Have made their local reputation.

Proof lies in the testimony of Tecumseh who have been permanently cured

Orson Austin, retired, living on Logan street, Tecumseh, Mich., says "I still hold the same high opinion of Doan's Kidney Pills today as when I gave my statement for publication some 5 years ago. Prior to that time I had kidney disease with distressing pains in my back at times almost unbearable. Rheumatism also settled in my limbs and hips adding much to my misery. I did not get my proper rest at night because of the frequent passages of the kidneys attended by a burning sensation. I knew Doan's Kidney Pills were good for such troubles, began using them and soon noticed their good effects. Thus encouraged I continued taking them until cured. I am always glad to recommend Doan's Kidney Pills."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn company, Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States. Remember the name Doan's,—and take no other.

Several Incenlary Fires.

New York, March 5.—An incendiary, who kindled fires in six crowded tenement buildings in the borough of the Bronx, endangered the lives of hundreds of persons and kept policemen on the run for many hours. Anthony Barber, aged fifteen, was arrested and was recognized by several witnesses as having been seen running from two of the tenements shortly before the fires. All the fires were set in wood bins in the basements. Firemen rescued numerous tenants from fire escapes. Two women and four children were found in different apartments, unconscious from smoke, but were revived. There were panics in some tenements fired, but no loss of life is reported. The financial loss was small.

Ancient Tomb Goes to Museum.

Chicago, March. 5.—An ancient Egyptian tomb, weighing 250 tons, situated near the pyramids, twenty miles from Cairo, may be removed to Chicago for exhibition in the Field Museum of Natural History. A representative of the museum is making preparations for the transportation of the relic, according to reports from Cairo. The tomb is near the pyramids Sakkara and is one of the objects of interest most frequently visited by tourists in Egypt. A great task is before the museum authorities in removing the relic bodily from Egypt to Chicago. The tomb is many miles from a railroad. It will be taken apart and shipped to America in sections.

Prince of Wales Coming.

Ottawa, Ont., March 5.—The Prince of Wales will visit Quebec in connection with the tercentenary celebration, July 22-29, Sir Wilfrid Laurier has announced. He will come with the Atlantic fleet and will be unable to visit any other place.

Important to Him.

An old lady was telling her grandchildren about some trouble in Scotland in the course of which the chief of her clan was beheaded. "It was nae great thing of a head, to be sure," said the good old lady, "but it was a sad loss to him."

MICHIGAN BRIEFS.

One little saloon at Perry is causing a whole lot of trouble. The "wets" and "drys" have taken opsides in the coming village election, and the fight will be to determine whether or not the saloon will remain.

Jacob Schumacher is in jail for an alleged assault on his aged father, Jacob Schumacher, Sr. He is alleged to have made his way to the home of his father while on a spree and to have severely beaten the old man before he was interfered with and the police summoned.

For months the Indians in the vicinity of Traverse City have dreamed of gold that the government was to send them, and now word has been received by Congressman McLaughlin that the court of claims has rendered a judgment in their favor and they are due them about $150,000.

Benjamin Hofmaster, an inmate of the St. Clair county house, has completed four miniature full rigged ships. They are pronounced unusually clever efforts. He has disposed of three of them to friends, and one is on exhibition in the office of the superintendent of the poor.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Millard of Port Huron are preparing to celebrate the sixty-seventh anniversary of their wedding March 28. The husband is ninety years of age and the wife three years his junior, and both are hale and hearty. Mr. Millard served sixteen years in the British army, and is very proud of both his honorable discharge and a medal that he received with it.

Detroiter Robbed in Chicago.

Chicago, March 5.—Albert Long, who said he lived in Detroit, was beaten and robbed of his watch and $170 during the night by four men, who attacked him in an alley off North State street, near Kinzie street.

Fraternity Determined to Fight.

Muskegon, Mich., March 5.—Members of the Sigma Omicron Sigma fraternity have held a meeting and decided to fight the action of the school board, which rendered them helpless as an active high school fraternity. The board expelled five members of the fraternity and decreed that all students of the high school, who are members, must drop the fraternity before March 10, or leave school. The fraternity will engage legal counsel. Considerable indignation on the part of the members is felt, because the two other fraternities in the high school were not blacklisted.

Wins Rhodes Scholarship.

Bay City, Mich., March 5.—James K. Watson, a son of Rev. Amos Watkins, pastor of Trinity Episcopal church, has passed the Cecil Rhodes examination, entitling him to a Cambridge or Oxford scholarship. Watkins is a student in Ann Arbor and played fullback in part of the Pennsylvania game last fall.

The True Mechanic.

After a man has worked in shops for ten or fifteen years there is a great desire for a change. Some want to go out on a farm, others think that the invention of something that can be patented will solve the problem, while others want to own and run a shop themselves. The latter is really the true mechanic, but not necessarily the man who will get out the most or even the best work while working for a boss, says Charles Henry in the Workers' Magazine. On the contrary, he will often be considered the lazy man by the foreman when the work is of an ever recurring character. Let, however, some difficulty arise in connection with a job or have some hard proposition to meet and he will always have a suggestion to offer that will help to solve the problem, while the ordinary man and the hustler will stand around helpless and often disinterested. He will have the elementary laws of mechanics and physics at his finger tips, will know enough of electricity to allow him to discourse upon the subject in an intelligent manner, and he will be well posted upon the mechanical progress of the day.

MILK CONTAMINATED.

Bacteria In It Cause of High Infantile Mortality.

Washington, March 5.—Surgeon General Walter Wyman of the public health service has submitted to Secretary Cortelyou a report of "milk in its relation to public health." The report is the result of an investigation ordered by President Roosevelt and conducted by federal experts under the direction of Prof. M. J. Rosenau of the hygienic laboratory. It fills 750 printed pages and is one of the most thorough studies of the milk problem yet made.

In his introduction to the twenty-two treatises of the experts, Dr. Wyman says:

"The steady decrease in general mortality does not apply to the infants. It is recognized that gastro-intestinal disease is the largest single factor determining infant mortality. This enormous loss of potential wealth is of grave concern to the state and worthy of the most careful consideration. It has been the object of this work to include all available data showing the influence of milk as a carrier of infection and the measures necessary in consequence."

Dr. Wyman declares that the ideal milk, drawn from a cow with healthy udder and preserved from contamination, is not the milk of commerce, and he cites the fact that samples of market milk in New York showed 35,200,000 bacteria to the cubic centimeter; London, 31,888,000; Washington, 22,134,000. He calls attention to the evidence presented in the report as proof that 500 epidemics of typhoid fever, scarlet fever and diphtheria were caused by infected milk. He also refers to the evidence adduced that 11 per cent of the samples of Washington milk contained tuberculosis germs.

Dr. Eager, he says, gives figures to prove that the high infantile mortality may be attributed almost entirely of impure milk.

Empress Visits Queen.

London, March 4.—The dowager empress of Russia has arrived here on a visit to her sister, Queen Alexandra. Extraordinary precautions were taken by the police, the entire railroad line from Dover to London being closely guarded. During her stay in England, the dowager will visit the residence of J. Pierpont Morgan with Queen Alexandra to inspect his unique collection of art treasures. Mr. Morgan is expected here shortly from New York.

Save One Hundred Dollars on a Piano.

The $100 that it ordinarily takes to sell a piano by means of local canvassers can be saved by getting your piano direct from the world's largest music house, Lyon & Healey, Chicago.

Lyon & Healey often sell from 20 to 30 pianos direct in a single day. And the cost of handling this immense business is very little greater than that of a smaller concern selling only a few pianos a month hence the great advantage of dealing with them.

The freight on a piano from Chicago to this city is only a few dollars and you run absolutely no risk in ordering from Lyon & Healey for if the piano they send you is not satisfactory they agree to pay freight both ways.

Write today for a copy of "A Piano Book" which is the most beautiful piano catalogue ever printed. It offers a choice of 4 different plans under which you can secure an instrument. A copy will be sent free by Lyon & Healey, 10 Adams St., Chicago.

In its first-of-the-year announcements Lippincott's Magazine promised some big thing for the coming twelvemonth, and no time is being lost in making good these promises. The March number contains an unusually fine novelette called "Lady Thoroughbred, Kentucklan," by will Levington Comfort, who seems destined to become one of the few really great latter-day American authors. The story—an unusual one—is replete with action vivid and intense from the start yet no touch of melodrama is permitted to cheapen it—a fact for which the author is to be congratulated.

The Best Laxative for Children. Parents should see to it that their children have one natural, easy movement of the bowels each day. Do not dose the child with salts or crying pills, as they are too powerful in effect, and literally lash their little bodies to pieces, leaving the system weakened and less able to act naturally than before. Laxative Iron-ox Tablets act gently and strengthen the bowels, and strengthen all the little organs to healthy activity. Chocolate coated tablets, easy to take, never gripe or nauseate. 10c, 25c and $1.00.

Pale, Thin, Nervous?

Then your blood must be in a very bad condition. You certainly know what to take, then take it—Ayer's Sarsaparilla. If you doubt, then consult your doctor. We know what he will say about this grand old family medicine.

This is the first question your doctor would ask: "Are your bowels regular?" He knows that daily action of the bowels is absolutely essential to recovery. Keep your liver active and your bowels regular by using Ayer's Pills.

A Dressmaker of Yarmouth.

In the churchyard of Caister, close to Yarmouth, is the grave of the "quiet, little, gentle voiced dressmaker," of whom at her death in October, 1843, the then bishop of Norwich said, "I would canonize Sarah Martin if I could." Yarmouth reveres her to this day. A stained glass window has been placed to her memory in the parish church, where her prayer book is still preserved, while her journal is one of the treasures of the public library in the tollhouse. Underneath this building was the miserable dungeon which served as the borough prison, and it was to the amelioration of the lot of the wretched prisoners that Sarah Martin devoted her life. Earning a bare subsistence of fifteen pence a day by toiling from early morning till far on into the night, she yet managed to give up one day in the week to her labor of love. She died in poverty, but the result of her life's work was the reform of the prison system of Yarmouth.—London Chronicle.

CHINA REGRETS IT.

Apologizes to Japan For Hauling Down Ship's Flag.

VESSEL HAD BEEN SEIZED.

Celestials Believed Vessel's Cargo of Firearms Had No Right to Go to Macao—Japs Claim Ship Had Obeyed the Laws.

London, March 9.—A special dispatch received here states that China has apologized to Japan for hauling down the Japanese flag when the steamship Tatsu Maru was seized. The dispatch further states that China later will reply to the Japanese government regarding the seizure of the steamer and its cargo. The statement was confirmed at the Japanese embassy here.

Tokio, March 9.—Chinese warships seized a Japanese merchant steamer—the Tatsu Maru—in Chinese territorial waters, just outside Macao harbor, and escorted her to Canton on the charge that she was engaged in an attempt to smuggle arms and ammunition into China.

To add to the irritation, the Chinese commander hauled down the Japanese flag enroute and ran up the Chinese dragon ensign in its stead. The Japanese foreign office demanded the immediate release of the Tatsu Maru and the punishment of the officials responsible for her seizure. Quite irrespective of the merits of the case, the Japanese minister maintained that the action of the Chinese authorities in seizing the steamer and hauling down the Japanese flag was an insult to Japan.

The Japanese contention was that the vessel left Kobe on Jan. 26, with ninety-four cases of rifles and forty cases of ammunition, consigned by the Ataka Shokai of Osaka to Messrs. Kwong Yo and company of Macao, who are licensed by the Macao government to deal in arms.

Inquiry elicited the information that the seizure of the Tatsu Maru was brought about through a report sent from Kobe or Osaka to the Chinese authorities to the effect that although the rifles and ammunition were consigned to a firm in Macao, they were really to be smuggled into the hands of insurgents in the interior of China.

Big Fleet Heard From.

Sandiego, Cal., March 9.—Point Loma wireless station has received a dispatch for the navy department from Admiral Evans, on board his flagship, the Connecticut, which, with the remainder of the battleships comprising the Atlantic squadron, left Callao, Peru, for Magdalena bay Feb. 29. The Point Loma operator was unable to determine the position of the Connecticut, he said. The signals, which, doubtless, would have indicated the whereabouts of the fleet, were indistinguishable. Nothing could be learned as to the contents of the message. Naval officers do not look for Evans' battleships to reach Magdalena bay before next Sunday. From reports, the men of the fleet are likely to find an unexpected welcome waiting them at the bay, where, it is said, Mexican traders have established tent bazaars of all descriptions. Amusement managers also have seized the opportunity that the shore line offers. When the ships left Hampton Roads, Magdalena bay was looked forward to as an uninterrupted waste of sand, with an occasional Indian hut far inland as the only sign of human habitation.

Wu Ting Fang Reaches Washington.

Washington, March 9.—Wu Ting Fang, as bubbling, refreshing, democratic, inquisitive and energetic as ever, is back to Washington. He arrived surrounded by an extensive entourage and went from the railroad station to the Chinese legation, which was built throug ...s efforts but was not completed when he was recalled to China. With him Mr. Wu brought a long roll of parchment covered with Chinese characters which meant that he was again credited to the government of the United States as envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary. It was like getting home to the Chinese diplomat.

Tunnel Gas Kills Four.

Baltimore, March 9.—Four men are dead and ten others were taken to a hospital, suffering from the effects of gas which overcome them while at work in the Pennsylvania railroad tunnel, near the John street entrance. A number of others were affected, but they managed to reach the entrance before they were overcome. The accumulation of gas is said to have been due to the fact that the exhaust fan, depended upon to carry off the gas and smoke from the trains using the tunnel, was out of order.

ARE LAID TO REST.

Unidentified Are the Last to Be Buried.

THOUSANDS OF MOURNERS.

Monster Funeral Takes Place—Memorial Services in Eight Collinwood Churches — School Board Blames No One.

Cleveland, March 9.—This morning, in Collinwood, memorial services for the nineteen unidentified dead children who perished in the Lakeview school fire were held in the six Protestant and two Catholic churches of Collinwood. A cortege of twenty funeral cars afterwards started for burying ground. A band met the procession near the gates and led the way, playing Chopin's funeral march. Commander Eva Booth of the Salvation army assisted in the services at the graves. Thousands of people witnessed these final services, and 100 policemen were on duty to preserve order.

Collinwoods' school board, meeting daily since the fire, held another session Sunday.

"We hold no one responsible for the fire and its attendant loss of life," is said to be the board's decision. Meanwhile, the town council has ordered all schools closed until measures of safety have been adopted.

In Cleveland thirty-four rooms in public school buildings summarily were closed today and will remain closed until repairs have been made. Fifteen hundred children are affected by the order.

Cleveland preachers Sunday drew a lesson from the fire horror in Collinwood, and many urged no hasty condemnation of any officials.

In a storm of snow and sleet, Collinwood, Sunday, buried more victims of the school fire. In all, seventy funerals were conducted. As there were not enough hearses to go around, street cars were pressed into service to carry the dead to the cemeteries.

AFTER FORTY YEARS

Responsibility For Loss of Ship, in Collision, Will Be Determined.

Portland, Me., March 9.—By a special act of congress responsibility for the loss of the American brig Olive Francis, off the Nova Scotia coast, after a collision with the United States gunboat Winooski, will be determined at a hearing to commence before the United States district court March 16, after a period of nearly forty-two years since the disaster occurred.

The case comes to the court on petition of Sarah A. Pennell of Machias, administrator, and others, who were given permission by special act of congress to bring the suit in accordance with regular admiralty proceedings. For over a year attorneys for the petitioners and the government have been taking depositions of the surviving members of the crews of both vessels.

Among those who have given depositions are: Admiral Casey, retired, who was the executive officer on the gunboat at the time of the collision; Nathan P. Tinne, now chief engineer for the Cramp Shipbuilding works at Philadelphia and then assistant engineer on the Winooski, and Captain Ulmer, who was an officer on the gunboat at the time.

The Olive Francis, while bound from Boston to Little Glace bay, was ran into by the Winooski about thirty miles northeast of Halifax, during a heavy fog, early on the morning of July 1, 1866. The brig filled rapidly, and two cutters from the gunboat took off the crew and three women passengers. The Winooski stood by until daylight in an effort to save the brig, but after several vain attempts to tow her to port she was abandoned.

Mammoth Warship For Germany.

Wilhelmshaven, March 9.—Germany's first mammoth warship has been successfully launched here and christened Nassau by the grand duchess of Baden. Emperor William, the grand duke of Baden, Prince Henry of Prussia and Prince Henry of the Netherlands, as well as a brilliant assemblage of prominent officials were present. The Nassau displaces 17,960 tons and is built entirely of hardened steel. Her dimensions and the thickness of her armor are not exactly known, as everything connected with her construction has been kept strictly secret by order of the marine minister.

BUILDINGS GO DOWN.

Raging Floods Undermine Five Stores In Albion.

BATTLE CREEK GETS SCARE.

Union City, on St. Joseph River, Badly Crippled—Melting Snow Results in Enormous Amount of Damage Being Done.

Albion, Mich., March 9.—Five Albion stores, two of which were in the new postoffice building, have caved in as the result of the flood's ravages. The stores are peculiarly situated on or the Kalamazoo river, and the foundations were undermined by the river, where it crosses Superior streets, the city's main thoroughfare. Another wooden block is fast settling into the river on the other side of the street. Two bridges also went out.

The stores were occupied by R. F. Church, jeweler; Robert Coscorilla, fruits; E. C. Doyoo, grocer; Morse Clothing company, and the Temple theater, a five-cent moving picture show. All stocks were moved to safety. The Masonic lodge had rooms over two of the stores, and they will lose considerably by the disaster. The owners of the building were Kesler & Parker, two stores; Fred Young, two stores, and R. F. Church owned the place he occupied. The total loss is estimated at over $100,000.

The two bridges carried away, one of which was in front of the stores, spanned the river at Superior and at Porter and Erie streets.

Tenants Fled.

At the time of the cave-in, some of the buildings were occupied, but the tenants, warned by the cracking of glass, escaped in safety. The gas main is broken and will remain so for some time to come. The gas supply had been turned off for thirty-six hours, so no danger followed the breaking.

The Lake Shore railroad tracks for three-quarters of a mile to the south are washed out.

To a great extent, the trouble here is due to the washing away of dams at Homer and at Concord. The water has begun to recede, and the danger is now believed to be over.

Battle Creek, Mich., March 9.—Experiencing the worst flood that has struck the city in many years, Battle Creek is terror-stricken. The Kalamazoo river has apparently reached its full height, but the Battle creek is coming up rapidly.

The Rathbun & Kraft planing mill, on McCamly street, has collapsed. This was a brick building, which was erected on filled-in land, and all except the front crashed into the Kalamazoo river. The water immediately crossed Jackson street into a district which it did not reach four years ago.

Within the new flood boundaries are three hotels, the American, the Saratoga and the Jefferson, all of which have from two to four feet of water on their first floors, and two churches, Immanuel Holiness and the Free Methodist.

Fire broke out in the storehouse of the Battle Creek Lumber company. Engine companies could get no nearer than a quarter of a mile, but firemen in rowboats worked for two hours in the center of the flood current. The fire started again later and was only extinguished after barrels of lime had been ejected and sent down stream.

The Grand Trunk has abandoned its service through the city, placing carloads of coal on its several bridges to prevent their going out.

William Laberdeaux and Thomas Youngs, while rowing on Fountain street, received the force of the current so strongly that their boat was smashed. Both grabbed limbs of trees, where they hung until the police arrived, threw them ropes and dragged them ashore.

Dozens of families were rescued from upstairs windows and taken to dry land. Two theaters and one church were placed at the disposal of the police for homeless families.

Union City, Mich., March 9.—The Broadway bridge, the principal span over the St. Joseph river, has gone down, the raging torrent washing away the foundation. The bridge over the Coldwater river, emptying into the St. Joseph, and another across the bigger river, are expected to go at any moment.

The mill race bridge, leading from the dam across the Coldwater river, has been washed away, and fears are entertained for the dam.

The lowlands surrounding the town are inundated to a depth of from two to five feet. The electric lighting plant closed down. There is danger of having the water supply cut off. The flood water is now within six inches of the fire under the boilers.

Niles, Mich., March 9.—The big dam in the St. Joseph river, which furnishes motive power for the Niles Board and Paper company and the French Paper company, which concerns employ about 350 men, is threatened with destruction. The river is on the biggest rampage ever known here. The paper mills have shut down, and the employes are hard at work placing stone and sandbags about the end of the dam.

The immense dam at Hen island, six miles south of South Bend, owned by the St. Joseph & Elkhart Power company, is also expected to go out, as is the dam in the St. Joseph river at South Bend. If either of these dams go out, the Niles dam would be lost, as would be the dam at Buchanan, five miles below here, and the one which is partially built in the river at Berrien Springs. These dams represent an investment of millions of dollars, and, aside from the loss to the owners, should they go out, irreparable damage would be done to manufacturing in the St. Joseph valley, as the dams furnish very cheap power for the cities in this section.

Ashley, Mich., March 9.—The Maple river is over its banks and has washed out the track of the Ann Arbor railroad about two miles south of Ashley. Between 700 and 800 feet of ballast has been washed out, and freight trains are tied up at stations each side of the washout. Passengers are being transferred across the washout.

Jackson, Mich., March 9.—Two dams have gone out on the south fork of the Grand river, between Jackson and Vandercook lake, and the lake water is rushing through the city. The water is not yet over the banks of the river, but it is the hignest in four years, and considerable damage is resulting in the basements of the business districts of the city.

Judge Wolcott Dies Suddenly.

Grand Rapids, Mich., March 9.—Judge Alfred Wolcott of the Kent county circuit court died suddenly at his home here, from hemorrhage of the brain. Judge Wolcott was born in Ohio, in 1858, and was graduated from the Western Reserve university, at Hudson, O., in 1880. He studied again in Cincinnati, where he remained a year. Then he came to Grand Rapids, where he was admitted to the bar in 1885 with United States Senator William Alden Smith. In 1888, he was elected circuit court commissioner and served one term. In 1892, he was elected prosecuting attorney, and he served two terms in this capacity. In 1900, he was chosen judge of the circuit court and was re-elected in 1906.

Employes Share Profits.

Bay City, Mich., March 9.—The C. B. Chatfield Milling company has distributed a portion of its profits among its employes. The smallest amount given to one person was $88 and the largest $160. The amounts given were in proportion to the salaries drawn by the employes. Thirty-five men were entertained by President Chatfield at a banquet given at his residence.

Whirled to His Death.

Decatur, Mich., March 9.—Caught in a revolving shaft, Edward Retting, proprietor of the Decatur Hoop Lumber company, was whirled around and received terrible injuries that caused his death two hours later. His clothing was torn from his body. Retting was thirty-six years old and is survived by a widow, three children and an aged father.

Judge Kelley Is Dead.

Battle Creek, Mich., March 9.—Judge Robert J. Kelley, corporation lawyer and former legislator, is dead, after a long illness, from numerous causes.

Boy Wins a Hero Medal.

Middletown, N. Y., March 9.—Frederick H. Hanker, a sixteen-year-old boy of Ellenville, N. Y., has just received a Carnegie hero medal for having saved the life of Emmons T. Gray, May 27, 1905. Gray was about twelve years old and nearly drowned in a pond. Two thousand dollars has also been set aside by the trustees of the Carnegie fund to give young Hanker a college education.

Killed by Auto Crank.

East Brewster, Mass., March 9.—Isaac Small was killed here in a strange manner while at work on an automobile. His body was discovered in the shed, beside the machine. It is supposed that Small was killed while "cranking" the automobile. The handle presumably flew up, striking him on the temple, and death followed.

There is more catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together and until recently was supposed to be incurable. For many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer $100 for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

There are countless roads on all sides to the grave.

This is what Hon. Jake Moore, State Warden of Georgia, says of Kodol for dyspepsia: "E. C. DeWitt & Co., Chicago, Ill.—Dear Sirs—I have suffered more than twenty years from indigestion. About eighteen months ago I had grown so much worse that I could not digest a crust of corn bread and could not retain anything on my stomach, I lost 25 lbs.; in fact I made up my mind that I could not live but a short time, when a friend of mine recommended Kodol. I consented to try it to please him and I was better in one day. I now weigh more than I ever did in my life and am in better health than for many years. Kodol did it. I keep a bottle constantly and write this hoping that humanity will be benefitted. Yours very truly, Jake C. Moore, Atlanta, Aug. 10, 1904." Sold by all druggists.

Do not make unjust gains, they are equal to a loss.

Given up to die.

B. Spiegel, 1204 N. Virginia street, Evansville, Ind., writes: "For over five years I was troubled with kidney and bladder affections which caused me much pain and worry. I lost flesh and was all run down, and a year ago had to abandon work entirely. I had three of the best physicians who did me no good and I was given up to die. Foley's Kidney Cure was recommended and the first bottle gave me great relief, and after taking the second bottle I was entirely cured." Why not let it help you? Sold by all druggists in Tecumseh.

The Million Dollar Freight Train

By FRANK H. SPEARMAN

Copyright, 1900, by Frank H. Spearman

IT was the second month of the strike and not a pound of freight had been moved. Things looked smoky on the West End.

The general superintendent happened to be with us when the news came.

"You can't handle it, boys," said he nervously. "What you'd better do is to turn it over to the Columbian Pacific."

Our contracting freight agent on the coast at that time was a fellow so erratic that he was nicknamed Crazyhorse. Right in the midst of the strike Crazyhorse wired that he had secured a big silk shipment for New York. We were paralyzed.

We had no engineers, no firemen and no motive power to speak of. The strikers were pounding our men, wrecking our trains and giving us the worst of it generally—that is, when we couldn't give it to them. Why the fellow displayed his activity at that particular juncture still remains a mystery. Perhaps he had a grudge against the road. If so, he took an artful revenge. Everybody on the system with ordinary railroad sense knew that our struggle was to keep clear of freight business until we got rid of our strike. Anything valuable or perishable was especially unwelcome.

But the stuff was docked and loaded and consigned in our care before we knew it. After that a refusal to carry it would be like hoisting the white flag, and that is something which never yet flew on the West End.

"Turn it over to the Columbian," said the general superintendent. But the general superintendent was not looked up to on our division. He hadn't enough sand. Our head was a fighter, and he gave tone to every man under him.

"No," he thundered, bringing down his fist, "not in a thousand years! We'll move it ourselves. Wire Montgomery, the general manager, that we will take care of it. And wire him to fire Crazyhorse—and to do it right off." And before the silk was turned over to us Crazyhorse was looking for another job. It is the only case on record where a freight hustler was discharged for getting business.

There were twelve car loads. It was insured for $85,000 a car. You can figure how far the title is wrong, but you can never estimate the worry that stuff gave us. It looked as big as $12,000,000 worth. In fact, one scrub car tink, with the glory of the West End at heart, had a fight over the amount with a skeptical hostler. He maintained that the actual money value was a hundred and twenty millions, but I gave you the figures just as they went over the wire, and they are right.

What bothered us most was that the strikers had the tip almost as soon as we had it. Having friends on every road in the country, they knew as much about our business as we ourselves. The minute it was announced that we should move the silk they were after us. It was a defiance, a last one. If we could move freight—for we were already moving passengers after a fashion—the strike might be well accounted beaten.

Stewart, the leader of the local contingent, together with his followers, got after me at once.

"You don't show much sense, Reed," said he. "You fellows here are breaking your necks to get things moving, and when this strike's over if our boys ask for your discharge they'll get it. This road can't run without our engineers. We're going to beat you. If you dare try to move this stuff we'll have your scalp when it's over. You'll never get your silk to Zanesville, I'll promise you that. And if you ditch it and make a million dollar loss, you'll get let out anyway, my buck."

"I'm here to obey orders, Stewart," I retorted. What was the use of more? I felt uncomfortable, but we had determined to move the silk. There was nothing more to be said.

When I went over to the roundhouse and told Neighbor the decision he said never a word, but he looked a great deal. Neighbor's task was to supply the motive power. All that we had, uncrippled, was in the passenger service, because passengers must be moved—must be taken care of first of all. In order to win a strike you must have public opinion on your side.

"Nevertheless, Neighbor," said I, after we had talked awhile, "we must move the silk also."

Neighbor studied, then he roared at his foreman.

"Send Bartholomew Mullen here." He spoke with a decision that made me think the business was done. I had never happened, it is true, to hear of Bartholomew Mullen in the department of motive power, but the impression the name gave me was of a monstrous fellow, big as Neighbor of old man Sankey or Dad Hamilton.

"I'll put Bartholomew ahead of it," muttered Neighbor tightly. A boy walked into the office.

"Mr. Garten said you wanted to see me, sir," said he, addressing the master mechanic.

"I do, Bartholomew," responded Neighbor.

The figure in my mind's eye shrunk in a twinkling. Then it occurred to me that it must be this boy's father who was wanted.

"You have been begging for a chance to take out an engine, Bartholomew," began Neighbor coldly. And I knew it was on.

"Yes, sir."

"You want to get killed, Bartholomew."

Bartholomew smiled as if the idea was not altogether displeasing.

"How would you like to go pilot tomorrow for McCurdy? You to take the 44 and run as first 78. McCurdy will run as second 78."

"I know I could run an engine all right," ventured Bartholomew, as if Neighbor were the only one taking the chances in giving him an engine. "I know the track from here to Zanesville. I helped McNeff fire one week."

"Then go home and go to bed and be over here at 6 o'clock tomorrow morning. And sleep sound, for it may be your last chance."

It was plain that the master mechanic hated to do it. It was simply sheer necessity.

"He's a wiper," mused Neighbor as Bartholomew walked springily away. "I took him in here sweeping two years ago. He ought to be firing now, but the union held him back. That's why he hates them. He knows more about an engine now than half the lodge. They'd better have let him in," said the master mechanic grimly. "He may be the means of breaking their backs yet. If I give him an engine and he runs it, I'll never take him off, union or no union, strike or no strike."

"How old is that boy?" I asked.

"Eighteen, and never a kith or a kin that I know of. Bartholomew Mullen," mused Neighbor as the slight figure moved across the flat, "big name—small boy. Well, Bartholomew, you'll know something more by tomorrow night about running an engine or a whole lot less. That's as it happens. If he gets killed, it's your fault, Reed."

He meant that I was calling on him for men when he absolutely couldn't produce them.

"I heard once," he went on, "about a fellow named Bartholomew being mixed up in a massacre. But I take it he must have been an older man than our Bartholomew. Nor his other name wasn't Mullen, neither. I disremember just what it was, but it wasn't Mullen."

"Well, don't say I want to get the boy killed, Neighbor," I protested. "I've plenty to answer for. I'm here to run trains—when there are any to run. That's murder enough for me. You needn't send Bartholomew out on my account."

"Give him a slow schedule, and I'll give him orders to jump early. That's all we can do. If the strikers don't ditch him, he'll get through somehow."

It stuck in my crop—the idea of putting the boy on a pilot engine to take all the dangers ahead of that particular train. But I had a good deal else to think of besides. From the minute the silk got into the McCloud yards we posted double guards around. About 12 o'clock that night we held a council of war, which ended in our running the train into the out freight house. The result was that by morning we had a new train made up. It consisted of fourteen refrigerator cars loaded with oranges which had come in mysteriously the night before. It was announced that the silk would be held for the present and the oranges rushed through. Bright and early the refrigerator train was run down to the ice houses, and twenty men were put to work icing the oranges. At 7 o'clock McCurdy pulled in the local passenger with engine 105. Our plan was to cancel the local and run him right out with the oranges. When he got in he reported the 105 had sprung a tire. It knocked our scheme into a cocked hat.

There was a lantern jawed conference in the roundhouse.

"What can you do?" asked the superintendent in desperation.

"There's only one thing I can do. Put Bartholomew Mullen on it with the 44 and put McCurdy to bed for No. 2 tonight," responded Neighbor.

We were running first in, first out, but we took care to always have somebody for 1 and 2 who at least knew an injector from an air pump.

It was 8 o'clock. I looked into the locomotive stalls. The first—the only—man in sight was Bartholomew Mullen. He was very busy polishing the 44. He had good steam on her, and the old tub was wheezing as if she had the asthma. The 44 was old, she was homely, she was rickety, but Bartholomew Mullen wiped her battered nose as deferentially as if she had been a spick-span, spider driver, tail truck mail racer.

She wasn't much—the 44. But in those days Bartholomew wasn't much, and the 44 was Bartholomew's.

"How is she steaming, Bartholomew?" I sung out. He was right in the middle of her. Looking up, he fingered his waste modestly and blushed through a dab of crude petroleum over his eye.

"Hundred and thirty, sir. She's a terrible free steamer, the old 44. I'm all ready to run her out."

"Who's marked up to fire for you, Bartholomew?"

Bartholomew Mullen looked at me fraternally.

"Neighbor couldn't give me anybody but a wiper," said Bartholomew in a sort of wouldn't-that-kill-you tone.

The unconscious arrogance of the boy quite knocked me, so soon had honors changed his point of view—last night a despised wiper, at daybreak an engineer, and his nose in the air at the idea of taking on a wiper for fireman, and all so innocent.

"Would you object, Bartholomew," I suggested gently, "to a train master for fireman?"

"I don't think so, sir."

"Thank you, because I am going down to Zanesville this morning myself, and I thought I'd ride with you. Is it all right?"

"Oh, yes, sir, if Neighbor doesn't care."

I smiled. He didn't know who Neighbor took orders from, but he thought evidently not from me.

"Then run her down to the oranges, Bartholomew, and couple on, and we'll order ourselves out. See?"

The 44 really looked like a baby carriage when we got her in front of the refrigerators. However, after the necessary preliminaries we gave a very sporty toot and pulled out. In a few minutes we were sailing down the valley.

For fifty miles we bobbed along with our cargo of iced silk as easy as old shoes, for I need hardly explain that we had packed the silk into the refrigerators to confuse the strikers. The great risk was that they would try to ditch us.

I was watching the track as a mouse would a cat, looking every minute for trouble. We cleared the gumbo cut west of the Beaver at a pretty good clip in order to make the grade on the other side. The bridge there is hidden in summer by a grove of hackberries. I had just pulled open to cool her a bit when I noticed how high the backwater was on each side of the track. Suddenly I felt the fill going soft under the drivers—felt the 44 wabble and slew. Bartholomew shut off hard and threw the air as I sprang to the window. The peaceful little creek ahead looked as angry as the Platte in April water, and the bottoms were a lake.

Somewhere up the valley there had been a cloudburst, for overhead the sun was bright. The Beaver was roaring over its banks, and the bridge was out. Bartholomew screamed for brakes. It looked as if we were against it, and hard.

A soft track to stop on, a torrent of storm water ahead and $1,000,000 worth of silk behind, not to mention equipment!

I yelled at Bartholomew and motioned for him to jump. My conscience is clear on that point. The 44 was stumbling along, trying, like a drunken man, to hang to the rotten track.

"Bartholomew!" I yelled. But he was head out and looking back at his train, while he jerked frantically at the air lever. I understood. The air wouldn't work. It never will on those old tubs when you need it. The sweat pushed out on me. I was thinking of how much the silk would bring us after a bath in the Beaver. Bartholomew stuck to his levers like a man in a signal tower, but every second brought us closer to open water. Watching him, intent only on saving his first train, heedless of saving his life, I was really a bit ashamed to jump. While I hesitated he somehow got the brakes to set. The old 44 bucked like a broncho.

It wasn't too soon. She checked her train nobly at the last, but I saw nothing could keep her from the drink. I caught Bartholomew a terrific slap, and again I yelled; then, turning to the gangway, I dropped into the soft mud on my side. The 44 hung low, and it was easy lighting.

Bartholomew sprang from his seat a second later, but his blouse caught in the teeth of the quadrant. He stooped quick as thought and peeled the thing over his head. But then he was caught with his hands in the wristbands, and the ponies of 44 tipped over the broken abutment.

Pull as he would, he couldn't get free. The pilot dipped into the torrent slowly; but, losing her balance, the Kicked her heels into the air and shot plump into the creek.

44 kicked her heels into the air like lightning and shot with a frightened wheeze plump into the creek, dragging her engineer after her.

The head car stopped on the brink. Running across the track, I looked for Bartholomew. He wasn't there. I knew he must have gone down with his engine.

Throwing off my gloves, I dived just as I stood, close to the tender, which hung half submerged. I am a good bit of a fish under water, but no self respecting fish would be caught in that yellow mud. I realized, too, the instant I struck the water that I should have dived on the upstream side. The current took me away whirling. When I came up for air I was fifty feet below the pier. I felt it was all up with Bartholomew as I scrambled out, but to my amazement as I shook my eyes open the train crew were running forward, and there stood Bartholomew on the track above me looking at the refrigerators. When I got to him he explained to me how he was dragged in and had to tear the sleeves out of his blouse under water to get free.

The surprise is how little fuss men make about such things when they are busy. It took only five minutes for the conductor to hunt up a coil of wire and a sounder for me, and by the time he got forward with it Bartholomew was halfway up a telegraph pole to help me cut in on a live wire. Fast as I could I rigged a pony and began calling the McCloud dispatcher. It was a rocky send, but after no end of pounding I got him and gave orders for the wrecking gang and for one more of Neighbor's rapidly decreasing supply of locomotives.

Bartholomew, sitting on a strip of fence which still rose above water, looked forlorn. To lose the first engine he ever handled in the Beaver was tough, and he was evidently speculating on his chances of ever getting another. If there weren't tears in his eyes, there was storm water certainly. But after the relief engine had pulled what was left of us back six miles to a siding I made it my first business to explain to Neighbor, nearly beside himself, that Bartholomew was not only not at fault, but that he had actually saved the train by his nerve.

"I'll tell you, Neighbor," I suggested when we got straightened around, "give us the 109 to go ahead as pilot and run the stuff around the river division with Foley and the 216."

"What'll you do with No. 6?" growled Neighbor. Six was the local passenger west.

"Annul it west of McCloud," said I instantly. "We've got this silk on our hands now, and I'd move it if it tied up every passenger train on the division. If we can get the infernal stuff through, it will practically beat the strike; if we fail, it will beat the company."

By the time we backed to Newhall Junction Neighbor had made up his mind my way. Mullen and I climbed into the 109, and Foley with the 216 and none too good a grace coupled on to the silk, and, flying red signals, we started again for Zanesville over the river division.

Foley was always full of mischief. He had a better engine than ours, anyway, and he took satisfaction the rest of the afternoon in crowding us. Every mile of the way he was on our heels. I was throwing the coal and distinctly remember.

It was after dark when we reached the Beverly hill, and we took it at a lively pace. [illegible] strikers were not on our minds then. It was Foley who bothered.

When the long parallel steel lines of the upper yards spread before us, flashing under the arc lights, we were away above yard speed. Running a locomotive into one of those big yards is like shooting a rapid in a canoe. There is a bewildering maze of tracks lighted by red and green lamps to be watched the closest. The hazards are multiplied the minute you pass the throat, and a yard wreck is a dreadful tangle. It makes everybody, from roadmaster to flagmen, furious, and not even Bartholomew wanted to face an inquiry on a yard wreck. On the other hand, he couldn't afford to be caught by Foley, who was chasing him out of pure caprice.

I saw the boy holding the throttle at a half and fingering the air anxiously as we jumped through the frogs, but the roughest riding on track so far beats the ties as a cushion that when the 109 suddenly stuck her paws through an open switch we bounced against the roof of the cab like footballs. I grabbed a brace with one hand and with the other reached instinctively across to Bartholomew's side to seize the throttle he held, but as I tried to shut him off he jerked it wide open in spite of me and turned with lightning in his eye.

"No!" he cried, and his voice rang hard. The 109 took the tremendous shove at her back and leaped like a frightened horse. Away we went across the yard, through the cinders and over the ties. My teeth have never been the same since. I don't belong on an engine anyway, and since then I have kept off. At the moment I was convinced that the strain had been too much, that Bartholomew was stark crazy. He sat bouncing clear to the roof and clinging to his levers like a lobster.

But his strategy was dawning on me. In fact, he was pounding it into me. Even the shock and scare of leaving the track and tearing up the yard had not driven from Bartholomew's noddle the most important feature of our situation, which was, above everything, to keep out of the way of the silk train.

I felt every moment more mortified at my attempt to shut him off. I had done the trick of the woman who grabs the reins. It was even better to tear up the yard than to stop for Foley to smash into and scatter the silk over the coal chutes. Bartholomew's decision was one of the traits which make the runner—instant perception coupled to instant resolve. The ordinary dub thinks what he should have done to avoid disaster after it is all over. Bartholomew thought before.

On we bumped, across frogs, through switches, over splits and into target rods, when—and this is the miracle of it all—the 109 got her fore feet on a split switch, made a contact, and, after a slew or two like a bogged horse, she swung up sweet on the rails again, tender and all. Bartholomew shut off with an under cut that brought us up double and nailed her feet, with the air, right where she stood.

We had left the track, plowed a hundred feet across the yards and jumped on to another track. It is the only time I ever heard of its happening anywhere, but I was on the engine with Bartholomew Mullen when it was done.

Foley choked his train the instant he saw our hind lights bobbing. We climbed down and ran back. He had stopped just where we should have stood if I had shut off. Bartholomew ran to the switch to examine it. The contact light, green, still burned like a false beacon, and lucky it did, for it showed the switch had been tampered with and exonerated Bartholomew Mullen completely. The attempt of the strikers to spill the silk right in the yards had only made the reputation of a new engineer. Thirty minutes later the million dollar train was turned over to the eastern division to wrestle with, and we breathed, all of us, a good bit easier.

Bartholomew Mullen, now a passenger runner, who ranks with Kennedy and Jack Moore and Foley and George Away we went across the yard and over the ties.

Sinclair himself, got a personal letter from the general manager complimenting him on his pretty wit, and he was good enough to say nothing whatever about mine.

We registered that night and went to supper together—Foley, Jackson, Bartholomew and I. Afterward we dropped into the dispatcher's office. Something was coming from McCloud, but the operators, to save their lives, couldn't catch it. I listened a minute. It was Neighbor. Now, Neighbor isn't great on dispatching trains. He can make himself understood over the poles, but his sending is like a boy's sawing wood—sort of uneven.

However, though I am not much on running yards, I claim to be able to take the wildest ball that was ever thrown along the wire, and the chair was tendered me at once to catch Neighbor's extraordinary passes at the McCloud key. They came something like this:

To Opr.:

Tell Massacree (that was the word that stuck them all, and I could perceive Neighbor was talking emphatically. He had apparently forgotten Bartholomew's last name and was trying to connect with the one he had disremembered the night before)—tell Massacree (repeated Neighbor) that he is al-l-l right. Tell hi-m I give im double mileage for today all the way through. And tomorrow he gets the 109 to keep. NEIGHB-B-OR.

Filtered Gaslight for Rural Homes.

ACETYLENE Gaslight is a natural Light.

It is plain, every-day, world-old, Sunlight in fact. But it is Sunlight muzzled so that you can use it as "soft" or as brilliant as you choose, by the mere turning of a tap on the chandeliers, or by the use of plain white-glass globes.

Moreover, Acetylene is practically filtered Light from which all useless or injurious color, soot, or excessive heat factors are eliminated.

On this account an Acetylene flame one-tenth the size of that from Kerosene, Gasolene, or City Gas, gives as much reading Light as ten-tenths of these other illuminants.

Which means, that Acetylene produces only a fraction of the heat, air-consumption, and Carbonic Acid Gas poisoning which other Lights produce.

It also explains why Acetylene Gaslight costs a full third less than Kerosene Light for the same identical candle-power, when once installed in a Country Home, Hotel, or Store.

About two days labor will so install it, and forever dispense with the disagreeable, lamp-cleaning, filling, wick-snuffing and chimney-wiping needed 365 days per year with Kerosene Lamps.

Write me to-day how many rooms you've got, or how large your store.

Then I will tell you how little it need cost you to install a suitable Acetylene Lighting Plant which will be good for 40 years' steady use afterwards, and pay for itself in the labor it saves.

Address me thus—Acetylene Jones—6 Adams St., Chicago, Ill.

A Lesson In Honesty.

There is a restaurant in Broad street in which nearly a thousand persons eat during the noon hour. Each person eats what he pleases and when he goes to the cashier's desk announces the amount of his indebtedness. The proprietors figure that to trust to the honesty of their patrons is a saving of precious Wall street minutes and, besides, is good business. Once in awhile keen eyed employees capture a cheat. One of these, a youth, was "caught with the goods on" a few days ago and taken to the office of the proprietors. Given the choice of being arrested or going into the kitchen and washing dishes, the young man nearly collapsed of shame and fright. He begged not to be arrested and reluctantly agreed to wash dishes. For an hour or so the culprit struggled with a pile of dishes in a tub of steaming water. Then he was told he might depart. Now he brings his lunch from home.—New York Press.

Village Local

February 29th.

John Julius, of Mr. and Mrs. Gustave Wellnitz, the elder son,
Tho' four years old, of birthdays has enjoyed only one.
So between the hours of eleven and four last Saturday
Sixteen of his friends with him, came to play.
After an hour of jolly fun, each appetite
Was ready to sample everything in sight
Many dainties were prepared for John's own sake,
The principle of which was a most wonderful cake
Resplendent with five little candles, for you see
Such a very long time before another birthday would be.
One thro' all the long years upon which to grow
To be a good big boy,—a school boy you know.
With bowed heads, closed eyes, each one in his place,
Master John, in reverent tones, asked the following grace:
"Heavenly Father, kind and good,
Bless to us our daily food;
Help us to be good and true
In everything we say or do."
The dinner all enjoyed, 'till it would seem
There was scarcely room for the ice cream.
The repast over, games of which all were fond Came next in order, even the old fashioned fishing pond
Each fish a cute little gift proved to be,
Some laughed until they could hardly see.
A grab-bag, too, was lots of fun,
Containing most everything under the sun
Each guest, a beautiful remembrance to John did bring,
To make him happy; their praises he will sing
The young host, in return, to each friend dear
Presented a gift of bonbons as a souvenir
Of his first birthday party that he and his brother did so much enjoy,
That they will remember, 'till each one is a tall boy.
The only regret expressed by the small guests so dear,
Was that "February 29th ought, at least, to come once a year.

ANOTHER LETTER

W. P. Stocking writes of California.

Editor HERALD:—In my last letter is a clause which makes me think of the old saying, "take a Dutchman as he means not as he says." Reading it as it appears in print I find that my thoughts must have become badly mixed up. What I meant to say was "the Michigan association holds two picnics a year, the business meeting and a picnic is held on Jan. 26. Admission day each year at East Lake park, Los Angeles." What I did say was, well, no matter.

In that letter I stated that we were sadly in need of rain, also that I was staying away from the picnic because of rains which proved to be the forerunner of several others from which this section received a good soaking just what we need to carry us through the coming season; more if we have it, will be better for us but the country can stand it and prosper without any more. I want to tell our readers something of this picnic which was held at the above named place the next Saturday.

The day was as perfect as the most perfect day in a Michigan June; the park is one of the most beautiful spots of southern California, a place where a large majority of the different state associations hold their annual winter gatherings; a place abounding in a great variety flowers and shrubs from different climes, threaded with wide drives, with rustic bridges spanning the narrow expanse of a little lake where float the graceful and beautiful swan; a safe place for boating on a small scale of course.

In one part of the park is located a hot house of the most rare and beautiful flowers and ferns to be obtained from many different parts of this and foreign countries, a place where one can spend many hours of pleasure, a place once seen never to be forgotten. A short distance from here are a number of cages of wild animals and birds, quite a menagerie and all free to any who visit the park. Fourteen years ago when we first came to Los Angeles this popular pleasure resort was in embryo, a splendid example of the rapid growth of vegetation in southern California soil and climate.

After the rains the trees, flowers and shrubs, washed of the accumulated dust of months, were a bright picture of nature on which it was a delight to look. Under the trees in this delightful place gathered on Saturday, Feb. 1st, there registered 1763 Michigan people. The list of names was 150 feet in length and the receipts from the sale of 10c badges amounted to $150. The purchase of a badge entitled one to one coffee which was furnished by the official board. There was quite a representation from Lenawee county. Adrian was quite well represented, while Tecumseh was represented by Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Graves. We were sorry not to meet them. We know of many other Michigan people here in Los Angeles county who were not there.

When we read of the great snow storms you are having in Michigan we cannot help rejoicing that our lot is cast in a country where we do not have to plow and dig our way through drifts of snow, with cold winds prevailing to our discomfort. We have not forgotten the years when we engaged in shoveling our way through drifts of snow which did not then seem such an unpleasant task as we fear that it would seem now.

Neither do we forget the fun we used to have in the snow and on the snow, but then as now too much of a good thing was not enjoyable or desirable. How well I remember the old town pump which stood in Chicago street in front of Snell's tavern and what a mound of ice gathered around it every winter until it got so high it had to be chopped away to get a pail under the spout!

We who have come to this summery winter climate must not be censured too severely for contrasting the climatic conditions of your winters and ours. Yesterday, Feb. 23, we saw several sporting in the surf while many others were reclining on the warm dry sand.

For fear of making this letter too long I must leave our friends standing on the corner in Brownville, where I left them in my last letter until our next letter.

LITERARY NOTES.

It is safe to say that a more striking story than "Simeon Tetlow's Shadow" which Jeannette Lee contributes to the March number of the Smart Set has not appeared in any recent magazine. It grips the reader's attention from the very first sentence and in quite a remarkable manner retains the interest to the very end.

The principal contribution to the March number of Everybody's is an appreciation of Governor Hughes by Erman J. Ridgway. It is a sketch of the personal side of the Governor, told in direct, conversational language. No less timely, and of widespread importance, is an article by Lieut. Hugh Johnson, U. S. A., entitled "The Lamb Rampant," pointing out in powerful terms the stagnation of the American Army system. Owen Wister writes "The Freezing of Washington," in his usual brilliant style.

If you are the girl who adores pink cheeks and has been in hopeless pursuit of them, cheerful up, because now you can obtain them with little effort. They are waiting at the grocery store for you, says The Designer for March. Walk right over and ask for their best carrots, then go home and eat them in peace and quietude, knowing that your heart's desire is to be granted.

PRETTY WEDDING

Rev. Nicholas Zilk and Miss Pearl Holt married at Lyons, O.

Promptly at noon Thursday occurred the wedding at Lyons, O., of Miss Pearl Holt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Holt, niece of Sheriff and Mrs. O. H. Holt of this city, to Rev. Nicholas Zilk. The Church of Christ was beautifully decorated by F. A. Gussenbauer, of this city. Prof. Ott of Angola, and Miss Mabel Holt, sister to the bride, attended the couple. After the wedding a delicious dinner was served to about sixty guests. Many beautiful presents were received. The young couple will leave shortly for Cheney, Wash., where Mr. Zilk has had a call. Among those who attended the wedding were Sheriff and Mrs O. H. Holt and daughter, Miss Nellie, of Adrian, Mr. and Mrs. James Holt and daughters of Blissfield, Mrs. George Caton of Fairfield.

Mrs. Holt while in Lyons visited her sister, Mrs. Walter Meaker, and asked that we publish the good news of how one of Adrian's physicians saved Mrs. Meaker's life. Six weeks ago Mrs. Meaker had a third stroke of paralysis, was speechless and unable to move a muscle—in fact, was kept alive for hours by oxygen gas and artificial respiration. The Adrian doctor, when called in consultation, immediately took charge and for three days and nights never left the bedside for more than five minutes at a time. Mr. Holt, with other members of the family, were in another room, momentarily expecting the end, but the patient was declared out of danger and in a few days could move her lips, later her hand and continued to make rapid recovery,

Yesterday Mrs. Holt was more than surprised to find Mrs. Meaker sitting up feeding herself and able to talk—in fact could take a few steps about the room. Mrs. Holt thinks the cure miraculous and suggested that the Times call upon Dr. Jones and get the details of the treatment given by him in the case. Later when we called upon the doctor at the sanitarium we found he was in Blissfield and would not be back before we went to press; but Dr. Gertrude Jones corroborated the statement given by Mrs. Holt, but declared it was not a new treatment at all, they having used the same methods with scores of paralysis cases, including several which the city papers have written up heretofore, for instance, the O. D. Fairbanks case. He lay at the point of death for weeks at the Rogers home on State street suffering with locomotor ataxia and paralysis. He entirely regained his health through this treatment. Mrs. A. M. Clarke at the Colonial Home was another paralysis case cured. Miss Pearl Johnson, telephone exchange manager at Blissfield was hopelessly paralyzed, following a Toledo & Western railway mishap. The company paid her $600 but this treatment cured her.

Why we could tell you of no end of such cases but I don't want to be quoted in the paper. Wait until the doctor comes and get the particulars about Mrs. Meaker's case from him. F. P. Deuel, who was sitting in the office said. "Mr. Reporter, look at me. I was paralyzed, had two strokes in my time, when I was brought here I was that helpless it took three men to carry me in this place from the ambulance. You would not think it now, would you? Just jot down for me that this treatment saved my life—haven't had any treatments for two years now but you bet I hang around Adrian so I can be handy to this place in case I ever have another stroke. Come on Floss" said he to his dog. Away they went out of the office and down the street, the reporter following along behind.—Adrian Times.

DR. HAL C. WYMAN

Died at his home in Detroit yesterday.

PNEUMONIA, CONTRACTED WHILE VISITING PATIENTS, CAUSED HIS DEATH.

Numerous Friends in this Vicinity.

Dr. Hal C. Wyman of Detroit, died at his home yesterday of pneumonia which he contracted while visiting a patient. He was one of Detroit's foremost surgeons. Dr. Wyman was the son of Dr. Henry Wyman and was born in Indiana. His parents moved to Blissfield in 1864. He graduated from the U. of M. medical department and was successful in his practice at Blissfield. He also studied abroad in Berlin and the old country for two years.

He was married in Detroit in 1879 to Miss Jennie Barnum also of Detroit and continued to reside there. Three children were born to them and with the wife and mother have passed away, the youngest one dying 8 years to a day before her father. Dr. Wyman was married again two years ago and Mrs. Wyman is left to mourn her loss with numerous relatives and friends. The funeral will urobably be held Thursday.

Mrs. Frank Hammond of this place is a relative.

STORM

Severe Storms have Caused Floods in Tecumseh.

The severe storms of last Thursday night with the melting snow and ice caused one of the greatest floods here that Tecumseh has known for several years. The residence of John Smith, who resides opposite the Globe mill, perhaps suffered the greatest loss. His family sought refuge on the upper floor, having been driven there by the rising waters of the River Raisin. They were moved out Friday with boats into a house on the hill.

All along the River Raisin the ice and water have been doing great damage, the dam at the Gratz mill and the bridge near the Comfort brick yard having gone out, also. Back of Abner Wilson's residence the waters of the Evans Creek were so high Friday that they came within a rod or so of his barn. The foot bridge is entirely gone. Several men worked Friday and Saturday keeping the drift wood and ice away from the red bridge opposite Stacyhome. The ice and water has ruined the bridge at the cemetery, the cement foundation having given away.

All day Sunday the Lake Shore people worked on their bridge east of Bidwell's, the water and ice having washed the earth away from the abutments. They drew nine car loads of stone and unloaded them, placing them under the bridge to hold it. The Lake Shore people have suffered a great loss along the entire Jackson branch. Two washouts this side of Manchester delayed traffic so much that it was 5 o'clock Saturday afternoon before a mail train passed through Tecumseh. No mail left Tecumseh Saturday except by rural routes

Trains are running about on time today. The D. T. & I. people have also suffered between Tecumseh and Adrian. The water is fast going down.

Bowling Alley Sold.

Orson Peters, who has owned and conducted the bowling alley on Railroad street the past year, sold out the business to Fred Miller last Friday. Mr. Miller took possession on Saturday.

GEORGE TIFFANY

Of Weare, Alaska, writes his Father this week

EXTRACTS

Of which we are allowed to print.

Geo. Tiffany is in receipt of a letter from his son, George, who is in Weare, Alaska. With the permission of Mr. Tiffany we are delighted to publish the following extract:

"Some crazy guy is going to try and run through Alaska on an automobile and the New York Journal has wired different points reserving gasoline. He had better bring a gang or regiment of cowboys along to cut the forests and bridge the streams for thousands of miles that he will have to travel. It is impossible for an automobile so go any route in Alaska unless it would be into Fairbanks over the Valdez trail and probably down to Weare.

This would have to be done in the winter and I do not think Mr. Auto would work when it is sixty below. Our coal oil froze up for five or six days a week ago. When the denatured alcohol comes into use it would be all right for this country."

Mr. Tiffany wrote Feb. 7th and said that "Mrs. Tiffany and daughter took a long ride with friends this afternoon in a dog sled and visited some fish traps. The fresh caught fish which very quickly freezes is delicious. They catch mostly white fish weighing three or four pounds."

Lady Maccbees.

The regular meeting of the L. O. T. M. M. was held last evening with over 100 members in attendance. Initiation of several new members, balloting and electing delegates to the county convention was the work of the evening. The delegates are Mesdames Guy Belding, Jas. Rendereon, Joseph Hiens, S. W. Anderson. Alternates, Mesdames Geo Ziehr, Mrs. Chas. Smith, Geo. Church, Miss Anna Cutting. They will represent the Tecumseh lodge at the convention to be held in Adrian in April

The results of the contest which closed last week were listened to with interest. Mrs. Belding, captain of the Whites, won out with several hundred points Mrs, Bert Lawrence, captain of the Reds, and her followers are planning a banquet to be given in a few weeks in honor of the Whites and the new members. Refreshments were served at the close of the meeting.

WHO USES HYOMEI?

The best people in Tecumseh say C. A. Wright & Son. Guaranteed in catarrhal troubles.

No other remedy or medicinal treatment has ever been as popular or made so many remarkable cures in Tecumseh as Hyomei.

The best people attest its curative virtues, say C. A. Wright & Son, who are the local agents. The fair way in which Hyomei was sold, to refund the money unless it gave satisfaction, was the best proof when it was introduced that it possessed unusual curative powers. C. A. Wright & Son took all the risk of the treatment giving satisfaction and left it to the purchasers to be the judge.

Later, when Hyomei was used and recommended by our well-known physicians and business men and their wives as a treatment that absolutely cured catarrh, no matter how serious or long standing, the sales rapidly grew and today there is no other remedy in C. A. Wright & Son's large stock that has such a large and staple sale.

The first breath of Hyomei's healing air kills all catarrhal poison.

Try Hyomei today on C. A. Wright & Son's offer to refund the money if the treatment does not give you satisfaction and you will soon become its friend and recommend it to others. There's nothing else that gives such quick curative results in catarrhal conditions.

Often The Kidneys Are Weakened by Over-Work.

Unhealthy Kidneys Make Impure Blood.

It used to be considered that only urinary and bladder troubles were to be traced to the kidneys but now modern science proves that nearly all diseases have their beginning in the disorder of these most important organs.

The kidneys filter and purify the blood—that is their work.

Therefore, when your kidneys are weak or out of order, you can understand how quickly your entire body is affected and how every organ seems to fail to do its duty.

If you are sick or "feel badly," begin taking the great kidney remedy, Dr Kilmer's Swamp-Root, because as soon as your kidneys are well they will help all the other organs to health. A trial will convince anyone.

If you are sick you can make no mistake by first doctoring your kidneys. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases, and is sold on its merits by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also a pamphlet telling you how to find out if your kidney or bladder trouble. Mention this paper when writing to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root Dr Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

We are attracted by our opposites, which is why a woman likes a man who is a good listener.

HIDDEN DANGERS.

Nature gives timely warnings that no Tecumseh citizen should ignore.

Danger signal No. 1 comes from the kidney secretions. They will warn you when the kidneys are sick by sending out a thin, pale or thick, red ill-smelling urine, full of sediment Well kidneys excrete a clear, amber fluid.

Danger signal No. 2 comes from the back. Pains dull, heavy, sharp or acute tell of sick kidneys and warn you of the approach of dropsy, diabetes or Bright's disease Doan's Kidney Pills will cure sick kidneys permanently. Here's Tecumseh proof.

J. H. Welch living on Union street, Tecumseh, Mich., says: "I can heartily recommend Doan's Kidney Pills as they proved very beneficial to me Years ago I strained myself and injured one of my kidneys began treatment at once but was not helped. At night my rest was disturbed by the frequent action of the kidney secretions, causing me to arise in the morning tired and unrefreshed. Finally I began using Doan's Kidney Pills procured at Wright & Son's drug store and now feel better than for several years. I have recommended Doan's Kidney Pills to my friends who have used them with the same satisfactory results."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents Foster-Milburn company, Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States Remember the name Doan's,—and take no other.

The greatness that is thrust upon a man is apt to grate on his neighbors.

Heavy, impure blood makes a muddy, pimply complexion, headaches, nausea, indigestion. This blood makes you pale and sickly. Burdock Blood Bitters makes the blood rich, red, pure—restores health.

The plainer a woman is the higher are her ideals. There are exceptions.

"Dr. Thomas' Eclectric oil is the best remedy for that so often fatal disease—croup. Has been used with success in our family for 8 years."—Mrs. Whiteacre, Buffalo, N. Y.

Gambling.

The supreme objection to gambling in all its forms, whether in sport or in speculative business, is that it works harm and loss to society. As soon as any practice or conduct is found to be socially hurtful it thereby becomes wrong, whatever men may have thought of it before. Does not all morality rise to consciousness through the fact of social advantage or injury? Now the long and costly experience of mankind bears uniform testimony against gambling till at last the verdict of civilization has become as nearly unanimous as human judgment can be that it is an intolerable nuisance. It is a dangerous or unsocial form of excitement. It hurts character, demoralizes industry, breeds quarrels, tempts men to self destruction, and it works special injustice to women and children. We may not know precisely why morphine preys upon the nervous system and has to be labeled "poisonous." The fact is the main consideration. So with the stimulus or excitation of gambling. Grant that I profess myself willing to pay for my fun. The fun is degrading, like the prize fight or bear baiting.—Charles F. Dole in Atlantic.

Waltz Is Not Modern.

Many people labor under the impression that the waltz is of modern origin, owing to the fact that it was comparatively unknown in America or in England until the early part of the nineteenth century. But it was brought originally from Provence to the court of Henry II. of France, at Fontainebleau, by the Comte de Saulte. Mary, queen of Scots, imported it into Scotland, for history records her as having incurred the bitter wrath and fierce denunciation of John Knox and of other divines of the "land of cakes" for dancing it on one memorable occasion at the palace of Holyrood. Toward the end of the seventeenth century it was danced throughout southern Germany and Austria, the celebrated waltz tune and popular song, "O, Du Lieber Augustin," dating from 1670. But, as already stated, it was not until the first two decades of the nineteenth century that it made its first appearance in England and the United States, when it was alternately denounced and lauded by the poets of the epoch.

A Case of Luck.

Benevolent Lady—But, my poor man, if you have been looking for work all these years, why is it that you have never found it? Tramp (confidentially)—It's luck, mum—Just sheer good luck.

Proving His Motto.

"Well, sir," exclaimed the millionaire, "what do you want this morning?"

"I've come again to ask for your daughter," said the poor but ambitious young man.

"Haven't I told you six times over on as many different days that it is out of the question? What do you mean by bothering me in this way? You are making a nuisance of yourself!"

"If I seem to be more persistent than circumstances warrant, I must insist that you, sir, are to blame."

"Me!" shouted the indignant old man. "I don't understand you."

"There," said the man who loved his daughter as he pointed to a motto over the banker's desk, "is my excuse for coming here day after day. 'If at first you don't succeed, try, try, try again.' Do you believe in that sentiment, or have you put it up there simply to deceive people?"

After he had scratched his head awhile the mean old plutocrat said:

"Yes, I believe in that. I haven't succeeded yet in making you understand that my daughter shall not become the wife of a fool, but I am going to keep on trying till I do! Good morning!"

And that time he did it.—Strand Magazine.

What the Cat Had.

The teacher of the Sunday school class was telling the little boys about temptation and showing how it sometimes came in the most attractive form. She used as an illustration the paw of a cat.

"Now," said she, "you have all seen the paw of a cat. It is as soft as velvet, isn't it?"

"Yessum," from the class.

"And you have seen the paw of a dog?"

"Yessum."

"Well, although the cat's paw seems like velvet, there is nevertheless concealed in it something that hurts. What is it?"

No answer.

"The dog bites," said the teacher, "when he is in anger. But what does the cat do?"

"Scratches," said a boy.

"Correct," said the teacher, nodding her head approvingly. "Now, what has the cat got that the dog hasn't?"

"Whiskers!" said a boy on the back seat.—Home Magazine.

Bible Blunders.

Some curious errors have crept into the Bible at various times, giving names to the editions containing them. Here are some instances: The "Unrighteous" Bible, from the misprint "the 'unrighteous' shall inherit the kingdom; the "Placemakers'" Bible, "blessed are the placemakers'" (peacemakers); the "Printers'" Bible, "the 'printers' (for princes) have persecuted me;" the "Treacle" Bible, "Is there no 'treacle' (balm) in Gilead?" the "Vinegar" Bible, "the parable of the 'vinegar'" (vineyard); the "Bug" Bible, "thou shalt not be afraid of 'bugs' (bogies) by night;" the "Breeches" Bible, "they sewed fig leaves together and made themselves 'breeches;'" the "Idle" Bible, "woe to the 'idle'" (idol), and finally the "Wooden Leg" Testament, so called from the frontispiece depicting Satan limping with a wooden leg.

Just a Fish Story.

We cannot refrain from recording the most curious capture of a fish that has come to our notice. The circumstance was retailed many years ago by Mr. Heathcote, one of the great authorities on the fens. A Mr. Richardson of Peterborough was skating on the dikes when the ice was very clear, and he noticed a large pike swimming in front of him. The fish was terrified by the apparition and swam in front of the skater until it stopped from sheer exhaustion. The skater broke the ice and took out the fish with his hand, which proved to be a pike weighing twelve pounds. It is a story difficult even for a fisherman or a local historian to cap.—London Outlook.

Not Disturbed.

Nassau William Senior, the English political economist, was a frequent guest of Lord Lansdowne at Lansdowne House and on one occasion was busily writing, quite abstracted as usual, in a room full of company when Tom Moore was singing. The scratch of his pen was not an agreeable accompaniment, and at last one of the company asked very politely, "You are not fond of music, Mr. Senior?" "No," he replied, "but it does not disturb me in the least. Pray go on."

Careful About Worry.

A physician was recently attending a patient whose husband came to see him concerning her condition and greeted him with the words, "Mr. Irving, do you think there is any need for any unnecessary anxiety about my wife?"—Argonaut.

Guessed It.

Guest (suspiciously eying the flattened pillows and the crimpled sheets)—Look here, landlord, this bed has been slept in! Landlord (triumphantly)—That's what it's meant for!

Renovated.

Puffer—What's happened to my meerschaum pipe? Mrs. Puffer—Why, dear, I noticed it was getting awfully brown and discolored, so I put a coat of that white enamel on it.

Variety.

Visitor—Why do you make some of your pies round and some of them square? Wife—Because my husband has been complaining of sameness of his diet lately.

Jesters must be content to taste of their broth.—Latin Proverb.

Where Beggars Have Trades Unions.

Begging is a vocation in China and beggary an institution. In every province there is an organized beggars' trade union or guild—in some districts several. These guilds have presidents and officials and are in every respect thoroughly well organized. There is a membership fee of about $4, and all members swear to abide by the rules. The chiefs, or "kings," as they are called, are under the protection of the magistrates, and their power is considerable.—Wide World Magazine.

The Age of Artificial Beauty.

Writers on topics concerning women's matters would fain have us believe that the present is the age of beauty. The fact is that never before have the arts of artificiality been so widely adopted among all classes as they are today.—London Opinion.

Has to Take Them.

"I can take 100 words a minute," said one shorthand writer to another.

"I often take more than that," remarked the other in sorrowful accents, "but then I have to. I'm married."

ALIA'S TRIAL BEGINS.

Man Who Shot Father Leo Has Made Many Confessions.

Denver, Colo., March 9.—The trial of Guiseppe Alia for the murder of Father Leo Heinricks, who was shot to death at the altar of St. Elizabeth's Roman Catholic church, Sunday morning, Feb. 23, while administering the sacrement to Alia, began today.

Much speculation has been indulged in as to whether Alia is one of several conspirators angered against priests or whether he is insane. Four expert brain specialists, appointed by the district attorney, have given it as their opinion that Alia is perfectly sane. They examined Alia thoroughly after he had recovered from fear of summary vengeance. Notwithstanding the results of the observations of the specialtists, the defense has engaged three alienists to be present during the trial. On the other hand, the prosecution has summoned eight alienists to be present, whose expert knowledge will be used to offset any claim of insanity that may be raised by Alia's attorney.

As to the alleged plot to destroy Roman priests, no evidence has been found; or, at least, it has not transpired. Alia has made so many conflicting statements since the assassination of Father Leo that the district attorney cannot determine which one, if any, to believe.

In his first confession, Alia averred that he was an anarchist, that he hated priests because they kept the people poor by extractions, while they themselves lived in luxury, and that he killed Father Leo simply because he was a priest.

Another statement made by Alia was to the effect that he sought vengeance on an Italian priest who had been instrumental in putting down anti-clerical riots in Alia's old home, Sicily. He thought he recognized a sworn enemy in Father Leo, he said. When told that he had murdered a German, he professed to be very remorseful and fell on his knees and wept.

BIG MISSIONARY MEET.

Pittsburg Will Entertain 2,500 Delegates From All Denominations.

Pittsburg, March 9.—The first international convention under direction of the Young People's missionary movement of the United States and Canada opens Tuesday morning, in Exposition music hall, and will continue three days. At least 2,500 delegates from all parts of the world are expected. Nearly half that number are now here.

While the convention will be a gathering of secretaries of home and foreign missionary movements, members of such boards, representatives of national, state and county Sunday school and young people's organizations and many others who are interested in mission work. The Young Men's and Young Women's Christian associations, representatives of the students in theological seminaries and colleges, and many leaders in work among young people will be among the delegates.

No such gathering of the whole missionary movements of the various churches of North America, it is said, has ever been attempted, and every Protestant denomination will be represented.

Some of the best speakers in the country will be present, among them Robert E. Speer, secretary of the Presbyterian board of foreign missions, and John R. Mott, chairman of the World's Student Christian federation. The presiding officer will be John Willis Baer of the United Society of Christian Endeavor and president of Occident college, Los Angeles. Other speakers will be Prof. O. E. Brown of Vanderbilt university; Dr. William D. McKenzie of Hartford Theological seminary; Dr. Lemuel C. Brown, an authority on the history of missions, and Dr. James I. Vance of Newark, N. J.

Representatives of similar movements in Great Britain, India, Egypt, China, France, Germany, Japan and other foreign lands will be present.

Three Men Are Drowned.

Pittsburg, March 9.—Three lives were lost when the towboat Stella Morch, with three flats of coal, went over dam No. 2 on the Monongahela river, at Port Perry, Pa., and sank in twenty feet of water. The Moren was about to enter the lock when the strong current, due to the high water, swung it around, and, before it could be controlled, the vessel and flats were swept over the dam and completely wrecked. The rest of a crew numbering ten men were thrown into the river, but all were rescued.

BRIEF DISPATCHES.

Frederick Warren Freer, a painter of international reputation, is dead in Chicago, of heart disease. He was born fifty-nine years ago, in Chicago.

David Waldo, a wealthy horseman, who formerly owned a race track in Kansas City, Mo., has met death near Independence, Mo., in a runaway accident.

King Victor Emmanuel of Italy has just received in private audience William Dean Howells, the American novelist, entertaining him in a most cordial manner for half an hour. The king was deeply interested in the presidential campaign in the United States and the cruise of the American fleet to the Pacific.

Animals Are Not Proud.

Professor Schuster asserts that animals lack moral feeling entirely, none of their acts being immoral or moral in the broad sense, and that they have no trace of a sense of shame or of honor. Their courage, he declares, is "a mere impulse of nature," and of moral courage they know nothing. He continues: "And animals have no pride in the sense of man's conception of that quality. They are not proud of their kind, at their kindred, of their individuality. They neither have an individuality nor are individual. Animals are not proud because they have no consciousness of the scope of the value of their kind, of their enterprise or of any other form of their capability. They are neither supercilious, proud nor the contrary—that is, grieved, wounded or depressed in regard to a possible pride."

Social Duty.

The idea of social duty dominates our time. We are impregnated with it. It is the most urgent aspiration of the modern conscience and in the midst of our controversies defies all our ironies.—Georges Touchard in La

"It beats the Dutch," said a young broker, "how much trouble a fellow's wife's most charming girl friend can make for a fellow—or for a fellow's wife." Then he explained what appeared to be greatly in need of explanation. "I went home for dinner the other night," he continued, "with a friend who was married recently. The wife's old chum was there and met the husband for the first time.

"'Really,' she said on presentation, 'I quite feel that I have known you. You see, that picture of yours in football costume that Jennie always kept on her dresser so long was very familiar to me.'

"Say, you ought to have seen the face of that friend of mine. But he finally found his voice.

"'But, my dear Miss Smith,' he replied, 'I never was a football player and never had on a football costume.'

"Then you should have seen Miss

Dr. E. H. Lathrop, the oldest practicing homeopathic physician in Barry county, is dead of Bright's disease.

Mrs. William M. Jones, a sister of C. B. Lewis, formerly of the Detroit Free Press, who is known to the literary world as "M. Quad," is dead, at Lansing, of paralysis. She was sixty-nine years old.

Judge Parkinson of Jackson has sentenced a saloon keeper to imprisonment in the county jail. Stephen Wolcensky pleaded guilty to having his saloon open on Sunday and was sentenced to ten days in jail and to pay a fine of $25 and costs.

Gaylord Wasson, billing clerk for the J. E. Bartlett company, at Jackson, handed a bunch of invoices to his boss and then, without a word, fell dead to the floor. He had just recovered from an attack of grip, which, it is believed, affected his heart. He was twenty years of age.

Arthur J. Oldfield of Detroit has been given a judgment of $1,000 against George Cotharin in the circuit court at Flint. The plaintiff sued for personal injuries sustained by being run down by the defendant while driving a touring car in Detroit, a year ago last October.

Customs Officer Henry Isbiter of Port Huron risked his life to save that of an aged woman, bewildered, who stood in front of a rapidly approaching interurban car. When the officer snatched the woman from in front of the car, the side of it touched him.

Mrs. Rose M. Collier of Muskegon petitioned for a divorce from John Collier, on the ground of alleged cruelty. She testified that in the last two years they had 400 fights, and that she could kick as hard as her husband. Judge Sessions refused a decree, declaring that a woman who can fight with her husband that many times should be made to live with him until death.

A Little Card Trick.

A Russian priest was so devoted to the amusement of card playing that he played up to the last moment before commencing the church services. On one occasion, having a particularly good hand dealt him, he thrust the cards into his pocket, intending to return and finish the game after the service. Unluckily the cards fell out on the church floor, to the extreme scandal of the congregation. The witty priest, however, was fully equal to the occasion. At the conclusion of the service he beckoned up one of the choristers and asked him the names of several of the cards, which the boy knew correctly. He then suddenly asked the lad the name of the next saint's day, which the child could not tell.

"See!" cried the priest, turning to the congregation. "You teach your children the names of every card in the pack and leave them ignorant of their religion. Let this be the last time I am compelled to bring playing cards into the church to shame you." And picking up his hand he made an

My Breath.

Shortness of Breath Is One of the Commonest Signs of Heart Disease.

Notwithstanding what many physicians say, heart disease can be cured.

Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure has permanently restored to health many thousands who had found no relief in the medicines (allopathic or homoeopathic) of regular practicing physicians.

It has proved itself unique in the history of medicine, by being so uniformly successful in curing those diseases.

Nearly always, one of the first signs of trouble is shortness of breath. Whether it comes as a result of walking or running up stairs, or of other exercises, if the heart is unable to meet this extra demand upon its pumping powers—there is something wrong with it.

The very best thing you can do, is to take Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure. It will go to the foundation of the trouble, and make a permanent cure by strengthening and renewing the nerves.

"I know that Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure is a great remedy. For a number of years I suffered from shortness of breath, smothering spells, and pains in my left side. For months at a time I would be unable to lie on my left side, and if I lay flat on my back would nearly smother. A friend advised using Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure, which I did with good results. I began to improve at once, and after taking several bottles of the Heart Cure I was free from my side and other symptoms complained of, and now entirely well. All those dreadful smothering spells vanished as if by magic. C. E. LAMBERT, Middletown, O.

SENATE COMMITTEE REPORTS

President Also Sends Over Special Message, Showing That His Contentions Had Been Sustained—Four Reports Received.

Washington, March 12.—Reports from the committee on military affairs were presented to the senate Wednesday, in regard to the investigation of the affray at Brownsville, Tex., which resulted in the discharge, without honor, of three companies of negro soldiers of the Twenty-fifth infantry. At the same time a message was received from the president, calling attention to the fact that the testimony taken by the committee sustains his position in discharging the negro soldiers.

The president recommends the extension of the time for re-enlistment of the discharged men who might be found not to fall within the terms of the order. There were four reports from the committee, the majority being signed by Senatos Warren, Lodge, Warner, Dupont, Taliaferro, Foster, Overman, Frazier and McCreary. A minority report was signed by Senators Foraker, Scott, Bulkeley and Hemenway. The majority report found as follows:

That, in the opinion of the committee, the shooting was done by some of the soldiers belonging to the Twenty-fifth infantry; that the testimony fails to identify the particular soldier, or soldiers, who participated in the affray. It is stated that there is considerable contradiction in the testimony, but that, taken as a whole and reconciling wherever possible, it proves the case outlined in the majority's decision.

Minority Report.

The principal minority report was presented by Senator Scott and takes the position that it has been impossible to ascertain who did the shooting and makes the recommendation that the negro soldiers be restored. In addition to this minority report, Senator Foraker and Bulkeley joined in a supplemental report, which was presented by Senator Foraker.

Senator Foraker's report declared that the testimony of the eye-witnesses against the negro soldiers is not reliable and that no motive for their alleged connection with the affray had been shown. He summed up the testimony taken by the senate committee by saying:

That it wholly fails to identify the particular individuals or any of them who participated in the shooting, and that the weight of the evidence shows that none of the negro soldiers participated in the affray.

A supplemental report signed by Senators Warren, Lodge, Warner and Dupont declares that under the evidence it is shown that the assault was perpetrated by members of the battalion, but that it is reasonable to believe that all of the soldiers were not concerned in the commission of the crime, either as principals or accessories. They recommend that it would be justice to restore to all of the innocent men the rights and privileges which had accrued to them by reason of their previous service in the army. A bill is presented authorizing the president within one year after the passage of the act to authorize the enlistment of any of the men whom he may be satisfied had no connection with the shooting. Senator Foraker included in his report a bill, previously introduced, which provides for the same general purpose.

The reading of the president's message and the several reports called for the undivided attention of the senate.

The senate agreed to print the several reports and the president's message in a single volume, as suggested by Mr. Tillman.

Clare Dems. Have a Party.

Clare, Mich., March 12.—United States Senator Gore of Oklahoma was the principal speaker at the sixth annual banquet of the Lewis Cass club here Wednesday night. Senator Gore was in a happy mood, and his remarks were warmly received. C. T. Russell, prosecuting attorney of Mt. Pleasant, was toastmaster, and among the speakers were: Charles S. Hampton of Detroit, F. O. Gaffney of Cadillac and John T. Winship of Saginaw.

SHE WILL NEVER TELL

Evelyn Thaw Determined to Keep Her Secret.

WHY SHE AND HARRY QUIT.

Thaws' Mother Co-Defendant In Proceedings to Have Marriage Annulled. Matter of Cash Settlement on Evelyn Not Taken Up.

New York, March 12.—Harry K. Thaw has been served with a copy of the summons and complaint in the proceedings brought by his wife, Evelyn Nesbit Thaw, to annul their marriage. A messenger delivered the papers to Thaw at the Matteawan insane asylum, and about the same time Mrs. William Coffey Thaw, who is made a co-defendant, was served at the Hotel Lorraine, in this city.

Daniel O'Reilly, counsel for Evelyn Nesbit Thaw, explained that Thaw's mother was made a co-defendant because, being the next of kin, she is technically the real defendant. The law presumes her son to be insane and, therefore, legally dead. Mrs. Evelyn Nesbit Thaw called at Mr. O'Reilly's office and attached her signature to the papers in the case. As she left the office, she was asked whether she would subsequently make public the cause of the estrangement which led to the suit. She replied:

"The public will never know."

The papers briefly recite the fact of the marriage at Pittsburg, on April 4, 1906, and set forth "that at the time of the marriage of the plaintiff to the defendant, the defendant was a lunatic and of unsound mind and was incapable of making a valid contract of marriage. The cause for annulling the marriage, to wit; the lunacy of Harry Kendall Thaw, existed at the time of such marriage."

Lawyer O'Reilly said he did not anticipate any trouble in obtaining from the defendants counsel fees and alimony.

A. Russell Peabody, counsel for Thaw, said:

"It will not be necessary for Mrs. Evelyn Thaw to go to the courts in order to get counsel fees and alimony while the suit is pending. She has been getting money from me to pay her expenses while Harry is confined, and this will be continued during the trial of the annulment suit. I shall fight the case upon instructions from my client and shall represent him personally in the defense."

The matter of a cash settlement upon the plaintiff has not been taken up, Mr. Peabody said.

President Receives Minister Wu.

Washington, March 12.—President Roosevelt has officially received Wu Ting Fang, the newly appointed Chinese minister. Minister Wu was brought to the White House in the carriage of Secretary Root, who accompanied him. The secretaries and attaches of the legation also were present at the reception, all being arrayed in the native costume of their rank. The presentation took place in the blue parlor, which is the state room of the executive mansion. Speeches were made by the president and by Minister Wu.

Alfonso Leaves Barcelona.

Barcelona, March 12.—After two days' visit to this city, King Alfonso has left for Madrid. No untoward incident marked the king's stay in Barcelona. The police, however, had somewhat of a scare on account of the explosion of a small bomb, which had been placed in a water pipe at Atarazanas quay, a very lonely spot. The pipe was shattered, and the sidewalk damaged, but no one was injured.

Smothered in Shavings Bin.

Saginaw, Mich., March 12.—Patrick Barry, fifty years old, was smothered in a shavings bin at the Mershon, Schuette & Parker company planing mill, dying nearly an hour after he had been removed from the opening into the fire room. He had climbed down in the bin to clear away a stoppage, and the shavings, giving way, he was precipitated under the mass, where he was smothered into unconsciousness.

Pope Honors Him.

Chicago, March 12.—Archbishop Quigley has received a papal decree creating Ambrose Petry of this city a Knight of St. Gregory the Great. The order is one of the oldest in the Catholic church. Mr. Petry was the founder of the chapel car idea in Catholic missionary work. The car goes from place to place, and the priests in charge conduct missions for weeks at a time, organizing parishes and arranging for the building of chapels. The car recently has had great success in Kansas and is now operating

PAD EXPENSE BILLS.

Grand Jury Investigates Alleged Doings of Officials.

INDICTMENTS MAY FOLLOW.

Alleged State Treasury Is Heavily Drawn Upon by Illegal Methods. Warner Praises Work Being Done by Grand Jury.

Mason, Mich., March 12.—The grand jury Wednesday afternoon continued the probing in a case which may result in indictments against one or more state officials for the alleged practice of swearing to an expense account when they are at Lansing on official business that is much larger than the amount that they are actually entitled to.

A particular case that the grand jury is investigating is this: A state official, but not the head of a state department, went from Lansing to another city in the state to attend a state convention. The state official put in a bill for $3 a day for hotel expenses. It is rumored that testimony is before the grand jury that $3 a day is the highest rate charged by the hotel that the state official had visited when attending the convention. Also, that this hotel bill during the convention was paid by another person, who was not supposed to know that the bill would also be collected from the state treasury by the state official.

Amount Involved Is Small.

While the amount involved is small yet the method has, so it is alleged, been the means of getting tens of thousands of dollars on which the state officials drawing it had no legal claim.

Deputy State Dairy and Food Commissioner Lillie, who is also president of the State Dairymen's association, was before the grand jury Wednesday. He had nothing to say as to what he was quizzed about. The secretary of the association, F. J. Wilson of Flint, was a witness on Tuesday. Deputy Auditor General Wilkinson produced some vouchers before the grand jury Wednesday afternoon, which are said to cover the expense accounts of state officials which the grand jury is investigating.

Representative Jerry Anderson, who was for five terms a member of the legislature from Grand Rapids, was also a witness Wednesday afternoon.

The grand jury being unable to get satisfactory answers to certain questions put to the Wayne county stenographers relating to the raising of their salaries by the legislature a year ago the matter was Wednesday brought by the jury to the notice of Circuit Judge Wiest. The court intimated that unless the answers are refused for constitutional reasons some drastic measures may be taken.

The stenographers' bill raised their salaries from $2,000 to $3,500. The grand jury particularly wants to know if they had to pay any money or whether anyone demanded money of them to have the bill passed. The stenographers, Edward and George Carlisle, Edward Daniel, Thomas Davies and W. S. Jones, were here last week on subpoenaes. Jones is still here. Davies was here again Tuesday.

Judge Is Asked Question.

Just before the noon recess, the grand jury appeared before Judge Wiest, and Foreman Brittain asked this question:

"In case we strongly suspect from evidence before us that a crime has been committed, but that such evidence does not go to the extent of establishing the crime, may we legally test the person suspected to be guilty when he is on the stand as a witness before the grand jury and claims his privilege not to incriminate himself."

Judge Wiest gave instructions to the jury, in part, thus:

"In answer, you are instructed that under the constitution and the rules of evidence, no witness can be compelled to give testimony which might tend to incriminate himself or expose him to a criminal prosecution.

"If the answer may or may not incriminate the witness any you are unable to know whether it will or not until you hear the answer, then the right to answer or not rests with the witness, for were it otherwise the protection would be less than worthless.

"If, on the other hand, you are satisfied that the witness refuses to give testimony in order to shield someone else and that the testimony, if given, would not incriminate him, you may report to this court, and the court will take such measures as will expedite the disclosures sought."

Lansing, Mich., March 12.—Governor Warner was asked what he thought of the work of the Ingham grand jury, and he replied:

"It would be unbecoming in me at this time to do more than to express my satisfaction with the thoroughness of the jury's work. The prosecuting officers and the jury are evidently patiently and thoroughly investigating all the rumors, stories and pointers that have come to their notice."

TWO DROWN.

Lives Lost In Floods at Grand Rapids and Battle Creek.

Grand Rapids, Mich., March 12.—Somewhere between this city and Grand Haven, in the Grand River, floats the body of Harry McMaster, twenty-two years old, of this city, who sank from sight in the turbulent flood waters after being overturned in a rowboat, just below the Wealthy avenue bridge.

McMaster had borrowed an air tank rowboat from his brother-in-law, Rob Bailey, intending to row about the shore of the river. Soon after, a number of boys saw him stand up in the boat and push with a boathook at a piece of drift ice. When the boys turned again, the boat was overturned and rapidly floating down stream.

The police were notified, but no effort at recovery of the body will be made, owing to the flooded condition of the river.

Battle Creek, Mich., March 12.—John Carey, twenty-one years old, is another flood victim. He was leaving the home of his brother, Volney Carey, who lives on Sycamore street, which is located in the heart of the flooded district, when his boat was carried out from under him, and he was drowned. Carey lived in Lawrence, Mich., and was visiting his brother.

Corunna, Mich., March 12.—An ice gorge has formed between the high banks of the Shiawassee river of McCurdy park. On land, in a "U" shaped bend of the stream above the gorge, are twenty-five to thirty horses, and a second gorge has formed above the "U." The water is up to the windows of the houses on the lowlands, and the residents are in terror lest the gorge above give way. Shiawassee avenue, one of the city's main streets, and the park are flooded.

May Follow Husband to Asylum.

St. Johns, Mich., March 12.—Mrs. Ernest Motz, thirty-three years of age, has been brought to this place from her home near Fowler and is now in the county jail, awaiting examination as to her mental condition. For a few weeks past Mrs. Motz has given evidence of insanity, talking much about killing herself and her three young children. Neighbors, considering it unsafe to longer leave her in charge of her family, made application, through the supervisor of the township, to have her removed to this city. Two years ago, Mr. Motz was taken to the asylum, at Kalamazoo, where he still remains violently insane.

Save Him For the Officers.

Grand Rapids, Mich., March 12.—Despondency, brought on by money troubles, caused Clare Hancock, aged nineteen, to take carbolic acid. He was discovered while taking the poison and removed to a hospital. The doctors worked over him for some time and then pronounced him out of danger. Hardly had they made the statement than an officer served a warrant, charging him with stealing $15. The warrant was sworn to by the boy's grandfather, George Robinson of Grand Haven, with whom the boy had been living up to a short time ago.

Train Wreck Smashes Restaurant.

Plymouth, Mich., March 12.—An extra Pere Marquette train ran into an open switch here, and fifteen cars piled up in two places on the main line to Grand Rapids. The only man hurt was Brakeman Willischefski, whose back is injured and arm sprained. When the train left the track, the caboose crashed into Dan Smith's restaurant and wrecked the entire corner. The train was running at from six to eight miles an hour and was backing out when the accident occurred.

Jackson Will Keep Shops.

Jackson, Mich., March 12.—A report sent out from Kalamazoo that the shops of the Michigan Central railroad at Jackson would be moved to Kalamazoo is positively denied by M. T. Wright, division superintendent at this point.

Nearly 500 Killed.

Rome, March 12.—News has been received here from Italian Somaliland to the effect that a local tribe, helped by soldiers of the Mullah, attacked another tribe under the protection of Italy and killed thirty Italian troops sent to punish the raiders, killed 400 of the tribesmen and sixty of the Mullah's soldiers. The Italians had one man killed and two wounded, all

There is more catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together and until recently was supposed to be incurable. For many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer $100 for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

There are countless roads on all sides to the grave.

This is what Hon. Jake Moore, State Warden of Georgia, says of Kodol for dyspepsia: "E. C. DeWitt & Co., Chicago, Ill.—Dear Sirs—I have suffered more than twenty years from indigestion. About eighteen months ago I had grown so much worse that I could not digest a crust of corn bread and could not retain anything on my stomach. I lost 25 lbs; in fact I made up my mind that I could not live but a short time, when a friend of mine recommended Kodol. I consented to try it to please him and I was better in one day. I now weigh more than I ever did in my life and am in better health than for many years. Kodol did it. I keep a bottle constantly and write this hoping that humanity will be benefitted. Yours very truly, Jake C. Moore, Atlanta, Aug. 10, 1904." Sold by all druggists

Given up to die.

B. Spiegel, 1204 N. Virginia street, Evansville, Ind., writes: "For over five years I was troubled with kidney and bladder affections which caused me much pain and worry. I lost flesh and was all run down, and a year ago had to abandon work entirely. I had three of the best physicians who did me no good and I was given up to die. Foley's Kidney Cure was recommended and the first bottle gave me great relief, and after taking the second bottle I was entirely cured." Why not let it help you? Sold by all druggists in Tecumseh.

How He Did It.

"When I was connected with a certain western railway," says a prominent official of an eastern line, "we had in our employ a brakeman who, for special service rendered to the road, was granted a month's vacation.

"He decided to spend his time in a trip over the Rockies. We furnished him with passes.

"He went to Denver and there met a number of his friends at work on one of the Colorado roads. They gave him a good time and when he went away made him a present of a mountain goat.

"Evidently our brakeman was at a loss to get the animal home with him, as the express charges were very heavy at that time. Finally, however, hitting upon a happy expedient, he made out a shipping tag and tied it to the horns of the goat. Then he presented the beast to the office of the stock car line.

"Well, that tag created no end of amusement, but it served to accomplish the end of the brakeman. It was inscribed as follows:

"'Please pass the butter. Thomas J. Meechin, brakeman, S. S. and T. Ry.'" —Harper's Weekly.

Ant Merchants.

Ant merchants, clad in leather underwear, are to be found in Paris, London and several other European cities. Wherever phearnuts are preserved the ant merchant is in demand.

It is not, however, ants, but the eggs of ants, that the man chiefly deals in. From every part of Europe ants are shipped to him, and he keeps them in ant runs—places similar in their nature to chicken runs—and he feeds and tends them carefully, so that their health will keep fine and they will lay generously.

The eggs he packs in wooden boxes and ships to various earls, dukes, counts and other game preserves in different parts of the world. And the ants themselves he slays as soon as they cease to lay, pressing them and selling them in black blocks similar to plug tobacco to dealers in birds and bird food.

It is interesting to be an ant merchant, but leather underwear is essential to the business, as the little creatures bite unmercifully.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Coincidence.

The strange story told by a defaulting debtor of his being recognized after he had been for six years trying to live down the past is not so strange a story as one which came within the ken of Professor Jowett. A good man went wrong, was caught and sentenced at Liverpool to imprisonment. After the sinner had served his term Jowett and others helped him, and he obtained a colonial editorship where his past was unknown. He did well; was a new man. One day a tornado swept off the roof of his office. Under the roof was discovered a batch of old English papers which had been placed there and forgotten after the mail had brought them. He set members of his staff to work to get out of the derelicts anything which might be interesting enough to print. The first thing that they found was a full report of the trial and conviction of the man himself, their editor, at Liverpool all those years before.—St. James' Gazette.

Pants and Trousers.

Everybody talks well when he talks in the way he likes, the way he can't help, the way he never thinks of. The rest is effort and pretense. The man who says "trousers" because he likes to say it and the man who says "pants" because he likes to say it are both good fellows with whom a frank soul could fraternize, but the man who says "trousers" when he wants to say "pants" is a craven and a truckler, equally hateful to honest culture and wholesome ignorance. He belongs in the same sordid category with the man who wears tight shoes and high collars that are a torment to the flesh, who eats olives that he doesn't relish and drinks uncongenial clarets in imitation of his genteel neighbor in the brownstone front.—Atlantic.

Book Evolution.

"Books" have progressed from the days when they were only wooden rods or bits of bark. For the derivation which connects "book" directly with "beech," both having been "boc" in Anglo-Saxon, is the favorite one. "Buchstaben," the German word for letters of the alphabet, means literally "beech staves." Many book words go back to such vegetable origin. The Latin "liber," a book, whence comes our "library," was properly the inner bark or rind of a tree, especially of papyrus. The Greek "biblion," whence "Bible" and "bibliophile," meant much the same thing. A "codex" was a block of wood, and "leaf" is obvious.

A Compromise.

A private soldier was taken to the guardroom for being intoxicated. He became excited. "Sergeant, am I drunk?" he asked of the "noncom" in charge.

"Yes—take off your boots," was the reply.

"But excuse me, sergeant," the delinquent continued, "I am only half drunk."

"Very well, then—take one boot off!" said his superior.—London Scraps.

Peculiarity of Madness.

Who can tell why it is that in madhouses the idea of subordination is very seldom to be found? Bedlam is inhabited only by kings, poets and philosophers.—Medora Messenger.

A Remarkable Hat.

A woman wants a divorce because her husband has purchased her only hat in twenty-five years.

It would be interesting to know if there is enough of the hat left to get on straight.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Relics.

A tooth alleged to have been drawn from Napoleon's head at St. Helena was sold for $37.50. For Kant's wig only $40 could be obtained, but Sterne's wig was valued at $1,000. Two hundred dollars is said to have been given for Descartes' skull, whereas $3,400 was given for one of Sir Isaac Newton's teeth, and $20,000 was offered for one of the teeth of Heloise at the time when her body was exhumed. The waistcoat worn by Rousseau has been priced at $190, his watch at $100. Not all the relics, however, in which there has been traffic have been genuine. Voltaire cannot have owned more than a fraction of the walking sticks that have been sold as his, and a tradesman in France used to boast that he had disposed of 132 "last walking sticks" carried by Jean Jacques Rousseau. A Paris tradesman for a long time did an equally lucrative business in "the last pair of trousers worn by Victor Hugo."

A Lesson in Grammar.

In a certain mountainous region the teachers are appointed with little question concerning their grammatical orthodoxy. Occasionally, however, a wave of school reform sweeps through the valleys, and undesired examinations are thrust upon embarrassed pedagogues.

It was during one of these periods of intellectual discomfort that the following sentence was given: "The bird flew over the house." Accompanying it was the query, "Is 'flew' a regular or an irregular verb?"

One teacher after another shook his head hopelessly despite the slow, thought inspiring fashion in which the examiner repeated the perplexing fact that "The—bird—flew—over—the—house."

Finally a man rose in the rear, and, with the assurance of one who puts his trust in logic and a practical knowledge of natural history, he volunteered a solution. Said he:

"If that bird which flew over the house was a wild goose, it went in a straight, regular line, so the verb is regular. But if it was a peckwood that flew over the house, then it went in a crooked, zigzag line, and so the verb is irregular."

All but the grammar bound examiner were satisfied with this sensible and rational explanation. — Youth's Companion.

Artistic Slips.

It is a frequent matter of lamentation on the part of artists that one of their number may spend genius and time on a piece of work, only to fail conspicuously in small detail.

There is a story that one Royal academician gave a hand five fingers and a thumb and that another painted a live lobster bright red.

The clever Goodall had been engaged in painting a number of laborers dragging a huge stone across the desert when a man of science entering the studio said to him: "I say, Goodall, if you want those fellows to pull that stone you must double their number. It would require just twice as many for the task."

But it is not modern painters alone who slip up on points of accuracy. Even Albrecht Durer in a scene representing Peter denying Christ painted one of the Roman soldiers in the act of smoking. Turner put a rainbow beside the sun, and in another picture he got fearfully tangled in the ship's rigging.—Chicago Record-Herald.

Fixing a Photografter.

Senator Stone of Missouri once made himself unpopular with a certain photographer. The latter individual appeared at the senator's room at the capitol and announced that he was there to take a picture. Stone expostulated, but in vain. A few days later the photographer again appeared and presented the pictures and also a bill for $10. Remembering how hopeless was his argument against having the picture taken, Senator Stone decided it would be still more useless for him to decline to pay for them. So he wrote a check. After the man's name was on the check he wrote the word "Photografter."

When the man presented the check at the senate disbursing office for payment, he was required to indorse the check and write after his name, just as it was written on the face of the check, the word "Photo-grafter."—St. Louis Republic.

A Limit to His Power.

A curious historical anecdote is handed down from the time of James I. James, being in want of £20,000, applied to the corporation for a loan. The corporation refused. The king insisted. "But, sire, you cannot compel us," said the lord mayor. "No," exclaimed James, "but I'll ruin you and the city forever. I'll remove my courts of law, my court itself and my parliament to Winchester or to Oxford and make a desert of Westminster, and then think what will become of you!" "May it please your majesty," replied the lord mayor, "you are at liberty to remove yourself and your courts to wherever you please; but, sire, there will always be one consolation to the merchants of London—your majesty cannot take the Thames along with you!"

Marital Troubles.

Most of the people who write about troubles of married life are single. If they were married they would be so busy with their troubles they would not have time to write.—Moorhead Independent.

Forced Out.

She—Mr. Bloom does not pay his wife much attention, does he? He—No. The only time I ever knew of his going out with her was once when the gas exploded.

Lowest Chicago Price on a Piano.

Everyone in Chicago knows that the way to secure a piano at the lowest price is to call on Lyon & Healey. This firm exhibits the largest and most varied stock of pianos in the world. Over 1,000 instruments are displayed side by side under their roof. All of these pianos are sold at low, fixed prices, which are the same to everyone.

The foundation stone of Lyon & Healey's success is to have every piano they sell act as a missionary, that is, to be instrumental in selling many other pianos for them.

Lyon & Healey now offer to ship pianos to to persons at a distance at precisely the same prices they ask for the goods in Chicago. Furthermore they make a specialty of selecting instruments for persons at a distance.

The advantage of buying a piano from the great Chicago music house is self-evident. There is nothing to equal the pianos that Lyon & Healey offer. In the 20 great makes they sell you will of course find Steinways, Webers, Lyon & Healeys, Washburns, and all the most desirable instruments of the day.

Write for their new and beautiful catalogue entitled "A Piano Book." Address Lyon & Healey, 10 Adams, St., Chicago.

CHURCH AFFAIRS

WORK BEING DONE IN OUR CHURCHES.

What is accomplished through the Social Life.

EPISCOPAL CHURCH.

Miss Alice Combs has been ill for a few days past.

New Easter music was ordered for the choir last week.

Mrs. R. N. Lowe will teach the young ladies in the future.

We are glad to welcome Mr. and Mrs. Whayler to our parish.

The Missionary meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Harris today.

Vestryman Eugene Harris was absent from church Sunday on account of illness.

Mr. and Mrs. Kemp took 6 o'clock dinner with Mr. and Mrs. R. N. Lowe Tuesday.

Miss Eolah Brown of Marshall, will spend the spring vacation with Vestryman and Mrs. E. C. Brown.

Sunday afternoon service was well attended. Mr. Dickinson sang through the offatory "Radiant Morn."

Mrs. Peter F. Blosser, mother of M. D. Blosser, editor of the Manchester Enterprise, died at the home of Mr. Blosser Tuesday, Mar. 3, aged 83 years. Mrs. Blosser has been totally b'ind for a number of years. Her husband and two sons, M. D., of Manchester, and Thomas, of Lansing, survive her. Mr. and Mrs. Blosser were married in 1844 at Lockport, N. Y., coming to Tecumseh where they resided about 13 years, then moving to Manchester which has since been their home. Mrs. Blosser became a member of St. Peters Episcopal church while here and has ever been a faithful member to the church. The funeral services were conducted last Friday morning by Rev. Kemp.

The last of the famous Washington elms in old St. Paul's church yard was laid low this week. In colonial days a line of these trees extended along the northern boundary of the churchyard from Broadway almost to the river. President Washington on arriving at church from the executive mansion at 1 Cherry street, on Sunday mornings, invariably tied his horse to one or the other of the trees, hence they were always known as the Washington elms. They were cherished by generation after generation of sextons, but in spite of care bestowed they died, one after the other, until two were left. Six years ago one of the pair showed signs of inward decay and in 1903 the safety of pedestrians demanded that it come down. The following year the last remaining elm began to decay which has resulted in its removal.

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

The spring communion will be held the first Sunday in April. New members will be received.

Chentin Wang, who spoke at the men's banquet, addressed the Chicago Y. M. C. A. yesterday.

Word has been received from Mr. Fox, former pastor, that his work at Covington, Ind., is growing and prospering.

Under the auspices of the ladies society, the production Parsifal with moving pictures will be given in April.

Milton W. Brown, the lecturer who spoke Tuesday evening, is pastor of the Central Presbyterian church of Cincinnati.

At the mid-week service Wednesday the pastor gave the sixth Bible study, a book an evening, the study being "Revelation."

The fine day last Sunday brought out an unusually large attendance at Sunday school. The school is preparing for its Easter exercises.

The ladies missionary circle closed its year last month with all its obligations met and money in the treasury for the new year.

Basket ball was played by the Messenger boys at their meeting Monday night. Two teams will be organized as soon as the boys can get out of doors.

Last night the session arranged for the disbursement of the benevolent fund. Further announcement later. Reports from the different departments showed everything flourishing.

There will be a musical entertainment in the church next Friday night under the auspices of the men's class. Local soloists, assisted by Mr. Pratt of Pittsburg, basso; Mr. Webster of Detroit, tenor; and Miss Ward of Adrian, will furnish the program.

METHODIST CHURCH.

Remember the concert at the church tonight given by the Southland Sextette for the benefit of the Sunday school.

The paper given by Mrs. J. O. Eaton last Sunday morning on the work of the Bible society was most interesting and instructive. Next Sunday Miss Harriett Hurrey will present a short paper on "Home Missions and Church Extension."

The W. F. M. S. held their regular monthly meeting in the church parlors yesterday afternoon. A good program was given and business of importance transacted relative to the annual thank offering service to be held March 29. Mrs. J. P. Varner of Bay City, is expected here at that time to give the annual address.

James Roscoe Day, Chancellor of the Syracuse University since 1849, must face church trial for attacks on President Roosevelt, charges having been filed by the authorities of the M. E church. He referred to Pres. Roosevelt's recent message to Congress as reading "like the ravings of a disordered mind" and is recognized as an earnest pleader for corporate interests.

BAPTIST CHURCH.

Will Osborn is laid up with rheumatism this week.

The B. Y. P. U. are planning for an eggletaire next month.

The pins for the Sunday school will be ready for distribution next Sunday.

Geo. Doran of Philadelphia, is spending the week with Mrs. Fanny Bryan and family.

Rev. Kamm gave out literature relating to foreign missions last Sunday and next Sunday the yearly collection will be taken.

In the absence of the pastor who is conducting religious meetings in the country, Dr. Steinhoff had charge of the prayer meeting.

The annual meeting and election of officers of the ladies missionary society will be held at Mrs. A. C. Bryan's next Wednesday at 2:30 p. m.

FRIENDS CHURCH.

Mr. Vincent Wood led the Wednesday evening service.

Mrs. Albert Comfort entertains a company of relatives and friends in honor of Miss Olive Comfort tomorrow afternoon.

Monday evening Mrs. Wollam gave a dinner in honor of Miss Olive Comfort, a bride of this month. Covers were laid for eight.

The pastor is attending the international convention of young people's missionary movement held in Pittsburg, Pa. He is one of the delegates of Ohio yearly meeting.

Last Sunday evening every one heartily cooperated in making the Christian Endeavor service interesting and helpful. The subject was "The Wise Use of Time." Mrs. Avery led and Mrs. Wollam sang a solo, "There is work for each of us."

Episcopal church, C. C. Kemp rector. Services Sunday 10 a. m. Sunday school at 11:30. Afternoon service at 4 p. m. Subject "The Religion of Fasting." Special music. Service on Tuesday and Friday nights at 7 o'clock followed by choir practice.

Methodist Episcopal church, Sunday Rev. Ward pastor. Morning worship at 10 o'clock. Theme "The Church." Topic for business mens class "What is Saving Faith?" Leader A. H. Hall. Boys' class topic "Prayer and its Value." Class meeting at 5:30. Epworth League at 6:00 o'clock. Evening service at 7.

Presbyterian church John Wirt Dunning, minister. Morning worship at 10 a. m. The pastor will preach on "Elijah and the Battle of the Gods." Bible school at 11:15. At the Men's class the subject is "Recent scientific light on the Bible." Young people's meeting at 6. At the evening service the pastor will speak on "The Vitality of Vision." Special music.

BASE BALL

ASSOCIATION FORMED AT ADRIAN

Tecumseh's Suburb will have a Team of their own.

A base ball association was formed at Adrian Wednesday evening 35 enthusiastic fans meeting for this purpose. The officers elected were:

Pres.—Leland Bean.
Sec.—Arch Seager.
Treas.—P. R. Spielman.

Board of directors—Leland Bean, Arch Seager, P. R. Spielman, R. L. Taylor and Geo. W. Tietz

They have decided to raise $2,000 as a guarantee fund and 10 men were appointed to the soliciting committee for this purpose. Bill Garrick has been appointed for manager and Cuppy Gruesehow with his knowledge of fast players and with the wise old heads on the board of directors, Adrian thinks they will be able to put up a team that will make Tecumseh and the other Southern Michigan League teams "go some."

By this plan Tecumseh will loose their little suburb that has helped so much to eke out the expenses of the team, but we feel sure that although Adrian may have a good independent team their fans will be glad to come over and witness a fast, snappy and a real base ball game, which they know can be seen in Tecumseh.

CLUB NOTES.

Next Monday afternoon the ladies of the Monday club will celebrate St. Patrick's day in the club room at the library.

The Research Circle will give the following program at their meeting Tuesday afternoon:

Holland.
Leader, Mrs. Hurry.
Brave Little Holland—Mrs. Holdridge.
Haarlem and the Tulip Craze—Miss Whitelock.
Conversation—Holland.
Display of Potted Plants.
Roll call—Facts about Holland.

At a recent meeting of the Adrian Woman's club a paper upon Landscape Gardening cited the lawn of P. W. A. Fitzsimmons as a fine example of artistic grouping but the writer of the paper felt that there were others worthy of commendation also and that Tecumseh as a whole was second to none in its well arranged and well cared for lawns and gardens.

CLASS OF 1908.

W. F. KING

Mayor of Adrian, invited to attend Ceremonies at San Francisco

TO WELCOME THE AMERICAN FLEET

Appoints W. D. Perkins represent him.

Mayor W. F. King of Adrian, received an invitation the first of the week from San Francisco, in which he was requested to attend the festivities to be held in that city during the month of May upon the arrival of the American fleet.

The invitation was signed by Edward Robeson Taylor, mayor of the city and county of San Francisco, and Jas. D. Phelan, chairman of the committee for the reception of the fleet. Mayor King states that he will be unable to attend in person but has appointed W. D. Perkins, a former Adrianite to represent him. Mr. Perkins is a merchant in San Francisco.

G. A. R. Program.

A very interesting program will be given by the March committee of the T. B. A. ladies and committee from the G. A. R. Monday night. Every member of the Post should be present and we invite those who have dropped their names from the G. A. R. and those who never have joined. Come and listen to the program at the G. A. RECIPE FOR RHEUMATISM.

Directions to prepare simple yet remarkable home mixture.

There is so much rheumatism here in our neighborhood that the following advice by an eminent authority who writes for readers of a large Eastern daily paper, will be highly appreciated by those who suffer:

Get from any good pharmacy ¼ ounce fluid extract dandelion, 1 ounce compound kargon, 3 ounces of compound sarsaparilla. Shake these well in a bottle and take in teaspoonful doses after each meal at bedtime; also drink plenty of good water.

It is claimed that there are few victims of this dread and torturous disease who will find ready relief in this simple home made mixture and in most cases a permanent cure is the result.

This simple receipt is said to strengthen and cleanse the eliminative tissues of the kidneys so they can filter from the blood and system the poisons, acids and waste matter which cause not only rheumatism but numerous other diseases. Every man or woman here who feels that their kidneys are not healthy and active or who suffer from any urinary trouble whatever should not hesitate to make up this mixture as it is certain to do much good and may save you from much misery and suffering after awhile.

Our home druggists say they will either supply the ingredients or mix the prescription ready to take if our readers ask them.

Most people know that if they have been sick they need Scott's Emulsion to bring back health and strength.

But the strongest point about Scott's Emulsion is that you don't have to be sick to get results from it.

It keeps up the athlete's strength, puts fat on thin people, makes a fretful baby happy, brings color to a pale girl's cheeks, and prevents coughs, colds and consumption.

Food in concentrated form for sick and well, young and old, rich and poor.

And it contains no drugs and no alcohol.

ALL DRUGGISTS: 50c. AND $1.00.

High School Debate.

The high school debate for March was held at the Central building this afternoon and was under the direction of Miss Mingay and Mr. Stewart. The following program was given:

Rec., Afraid of a Gal—Henry Raymond.

Vocal solo, The Bandolero—Floyd Slater.

Essay, The Tobacco War—Marion Hall.

Scene from "A School for Scandal"—Leota Aten, Dwight Clarkson.

Violin solo, La Cinquintaine—Lynn Rogers.

Debate, Resolved that high school athletics should not be encouraged. Affirmative—Lydia Babcock, leader, Kirby Wilson, Iva Waldron. Negative—Caroline Stearns, leader, Henry Hand, Addie Lanning.

Piano solo, Silver Stars—Vesta Wilson.

City Bakery Sold.

Wednesday Don Reid, proprietor of the City bakery, sold the entire business to Fred Aldrich of this place, Mr. Aldrich taking possession yesterday morning. Mr. Aldrich is not a stranger to the business portion of the village, having successfully conducted a bowling alley here a few years ago.

Although much regret is expressed in the loss of Mr. Reid, who has been in business here the past four years, from the business circle, Mr. Aldrich's success in this line is assured. The HERALD joins with his numerous friends in wishing him a pleasant business. Mr. Reid is not contemplating any business project at present.

C. W. OLDS.

Frank Davidson, Auc.

Good for Everybody.

Norman Coulter, a prominent architect in the Delbert building, San Francisco, says: "I fully endorse all that has been said of Electric Bitters as a tonic medicine. It is good for everybody. It corrects stomach, liver and kidney disorders in a prompt and efficient manner and builds up the system." Electric Bitters is the best spring medicine ever sold over a druggist's counter; as a blood purifier it is unequaled. 50c. at C. A. Wright & Son's drug store.

EGG PRODUCING POULTRY FEED

"As ye sow so also shall ye reap." This applies to human life. Applying the same principal to the farm we might say, as ye feed so also shall your results be measured.

The question of poultry feeding is a great one. Every poultry raiser is naturally interested in getting the maximum quantity of eggs possible from every fowl. To do this you must use the best feeds procurable. Every farmer who is not satisfied with present conditions should send us an order for PRIME BEEF SCRAPS, $2.75 per cwt., and we'll guarantee there will be something doing in the egg line.

We list below other brands, every one of which has its special field and produces results—results are what makes business for us and creates satisfied customers, hence we put out only good products.

Poultry Supplies

"Globe" Scratch Feed	$1.60
"Crescent" Baby Chick Feed	1.85
Beef Scraps	2.75
Meat Meal or Beef Meal	2.30
Dry Ground Bone	1.60
Dicester Tankage	1.50
"Queen" Poultry Mash	2.00
Green Alfalfa Meal	1.75
Charcoal	2.00
"Perfices" Oyster Shells, 20 sack lots	50
" " " 10 " "	55
" " " 5 " "	60
Mica Spar Cubical Grit, 20 " "	50
" " " 10 " "	55
" " " 5 " "	60

Remember, we have the largest and most complete feed establishment in Michigan. Every article we sell is guaranteed, and our price is the lowest obtainable anywhere.

It pays to buy of us. We treat you right

Send us your order today before you forget. You will be glad you did when you get your shipment. On account of close prices we have to ask for cash with order—but money back if not satisfied. Did you get in on our offer of last week for Cotton Seed Meal?

$1.45 per cwt. and worth it.

Regular meeting of the I. O. O. F. lodge was held last Tuesday evening. The local lodge had invited the Blissfield lodge to come here and confer the second degree upon a class of candidates, but owing to the high water which has washed out a bridge on the D. T. & I. between Tecumseh and Adrian they were unable to make the trip. The Tecumseh staff worked the first degree and a banquet followed. In two weeks the Blissfield lodge will visit here and will confer the second degree.

CIRCUIT JUDGE

NOMINATION MARCH 24 BY PRIMARY ELECTION

Attorney J. H. Baker a Democratic Aspirant for the Honor.

March 24, the democratic voters of the county will have a chance to vote their preference for a candidate for circuit judge. On that date both political parties will select their candidates. What is your judgement?

Attorney J. H. Baker of Adrian, is an earnest and able aspirant for the nomination. He appreciates the high honor a nomination would confer and also the responsibilities it would involve and especially if he is successful at both the primary and the polls.

Mr. Baker is a young and active attorney, yet withal of sufficient experience to make an excellent judge, one who would conduct business expeditiously and satisfactorily to the legal profession as well as laity. He has many attributes that constitute a "born" judge and has qualified himself for the important place by studious application in the various phases of his profession.

The friends of Mr. Baker feel that they owe him the nomination and a fighting chance to win the election. At a time when no other democrat would consider the proposition, Mr. Baker was persuaded by his friends to announce himself as a candidate and is therefore entitled to the loyal support of his party workers.

A careful consideration of the situation will doubtless result in the nomination of Mr. Baker. He will make an aggressive candidate and will stand an excellent chance of winning at the polls as he has the assurance of support of a general nature from the ranks of the enemy if nominated at the primaries.

FIRE ESCAPES

Women's Clubs Petitioned School Board Four Years Ago.

Better to Buy Safety for Children than Caskets.

The school board of Collingwood after its investigation of the recent horror has announced "We hold no one responsible for the fire and its attendant loss of life." This wise decision is small consolation to those friends who are trying to identify remains at the morgues and possesses little interest for them in their bereavement. Four years ago the club women of Tecumseh, circulated a petition to which they secured a long list of signatures asking our school board to furnish the Central building and the East branch with fire escapes, to restore the fire drill which they were told had been discontinued, and to replace or remove the matting from the stairs.

The board very courteously replied to the ladies' appeal that they were not in a financial condition to incur the involved expense and laid the matter on the table. The table being already somewhat ever burdened with divers suggestions this reasonable request which involved public safety has been over looked for nearly four years. It is sincerely to be hoped that the treasury has been so replenished that they will now be able in view of the Cleveland affair to take the matter from the table and dispose of it as the ladies requested.

Within the last week fires have been reported in school buildings at St. Johns and Kalamazoo, and as it is the unexpected which usually happens it may be our turn next. In which case our school board would undoubtedly follow the example of Collingwood and decide "we hold no one responsible for the fire and its attendant loss of life." Fixing the responsibility does not mitigate the grief and loss.

Saturday's Detroit Journal publishes a cartoon in which Nero is fiddling while Rome burns—with the school board in the role of Nero, playing a Political March during a school house fire. These are parallel cases only in the matter of the main actors. We know there are no politics in this delay, and the sheet music from which our board are playing. It should be labelled economy (?) and Procrastination instead of a Political March.

The picture shows however that Detroit and all our other cities are very much stirred up over the possible danger and the State Labor Commissioner is sending out inspectors to all the smaller towns of the state compelling proper fire protection or a closing of buildings. There are doubtless many things which have been suggested and are actually needed to make our schools what the board and the teachers would like to have them be, but there is nothing which is for a moment to be compared with immunity from such a holocaust as Cleveland is suffering.

The chief of our fire department at the time the ladies were circulating this petition told some of them that there was not a ladder in town which would reach to the third story windows of the central building and no fire extinguishers were there and at that time they were also informed that the fire drill had been discontinued for various reasons, one of which was a protest from some parents who objected to the additional exercise it imposed upon their children. We are informed the drill has been resumed.

At Collingwood we read that generous subscriptions are pouring in to aid in the burial and other expenses incurred by the accident. No doubt we should find the same generosity prevail here, but is it not better for us to buy safety for the pupils than to buy caskets? The clubs would no doubt be willing to assist in this matter if it is otherwise impossible to accomplish it.

Not wishing to criticise the board for their seeming indifference at the same time we are insisting that this a danger which cannot be ignored. We are trying for a sewer for sanitation, we have a "speed way" for recreation, a base ball park for athletics, drinking fountains for our animals and a fire trap for our children. Is not this like one of the mistakes that Kipling tells us of in "Go make them with your living and mark them with your dead." Surely we do not need to be compelled by the State Labor Commissioner to protect our pupils or close our schools.

WATCH YOUR TONGUE

If furred and coated, it is a warning of trouble to come.

When it is the morning after the night before, you do not have to look at your tongue to know that the stomach is upset, the head is aching, with a dull rhythm and that all the world looks black and dreary.

It may have been lobster Newburgh, Welsh rarebit or some other tasty dish that looked much better at night than the morning after. There is no need to look at the tongue thermometer then for symptoms of trouble. You naturally go to your box of Mi-o-na stomach tablets and with one of the little relievers bring joy and gladness to the physical system.

The real time to watch the tongue is all the time. If it is coated with a white fur, or possibly with dark trimmings, even though the stomach does not tell you by the acute pains of indigestion that it needs help, yet the coating shows that you are getting into a bad way and that there is need of Mi-o-na.

Used at the first symptom of a coated tongue, distress after eating, flatulence, or any other of the early symptoms of indigestion, Mi-o-na will strengthen the stomach muscles so that they will take care of all the food that is eaten without the slightest pain or discomfort. It will increase the flow of gastric juice so that the food digests as Nature intended it should, extracting the nourishment and strength and expelling the waste fram the system without further aid.

Mi-o-na is so positive, so sure, so reliable in its curative action upon the stomach that C. A. Wright & Son, the local agents, give an absolute guarantee with every 50-cent box they sell to refund the money unless the remedy gives absolute and complete satisfaction.

Often The Kidneys Are Weakened by Over-Work.

Unhealthy Kidneys Make Impure Blood.

It used to be considered that only urinary and bladder troubles were to be traced to the kidneys. but now modern science proves that nearly all diseases have their beginning in the disorder of these most important organs.

The kidneys filter and purify the blood—that is their work.

Therefore, when your kidneys are weak or out of order, you can understand how quickly your entire body is affected and how every organ seems to fail to do its duty.

If you are sick or "feel badly," begin taking the great kidney remedy, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, because as soon as your kidneys are well they will help all the other organs to health. A trial will convince anyone.

If you are sick you can make no mistake by first doctoring your kidneys. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy, is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases, and is sold on its merits by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also a pamphlet telling you how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. Mention this paper when writing to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle

HIDDEN DANGERS.

Nature gives timely warnings that no Tecumseh citizen should ignore.

Danger signal No. 1 comes from the kidney secretions. They will warn you when the kidneys are sick by sending out a thin, pale or thick, red ill-smelling urine, full of sediment Well kidneys excrete a clear, amber fluid.

Danger signal No 2 comes from the back. Pains dull, heavy, sharp or acute tell of sick kidneys and warn you of the approach of dropsy, diabetes or Bright's disease. Doan's Kidney Pills will cure sick kidneys permanently. Here's Tecumseh proof.

J. H. Welch living on Union street, Tecumseh, Mich, says: "I can heartily recommend Doan's Kidney Pills as they proved very beneficial to me Years ago I strained myself and injured one of my kidneys began treatment at once but was not helped At night my rest was disturbed by the frequent action of the kidney secretions, causing me to arise in the morning tired and unrefreshed. Finally I began using Doan's Kidney Pills procured at Wright & Son's drug store and now feel better than for several years. I have recommended Doan's Kidney Pills to my friends who have used them with the same satisfactory results."

French Superstitions.

The French superstitions regarding deaths and funerals are all but numberless. "If you meet a funeral while driving, you will have an accident before your drive is over unless you turn back," they say. Many a gambler en route for Monte Carlo will not gamble that day if he meets a funeral. Others will bet only at rouge et noir and persistently on the black. The peasants have at least a hundred superstitions about bees. They believe (and did not Virgil, too, or did he but chronicle it of his contemporaries?) that bees are bred of dead men's bones and flesh. This seems to be one of the oldest of the current French superstitions, for on a very old tomb at Arles (found in the world famous Alyscamp) is this inscription: "This Has Become the Home of Unhallowed Bees."—London Answers.

A Wasted Motion.

"Ladies," called the president of the afternoon whist club—"ladies, it has been moved and seconded that there shall be no conversation at the card tables. What shall we do with the motion?"

"I suggest that we discuss it while we play," piped a shrill voice from Table A, and the suggestion was adopted.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Holme and Philadelphia.

The gridiron pattern upon which Philadelphia was laid out was the work of Thomas Holme, the surveyor general of Pennsylvania. The design, however, was Penn's own. Little seems to be popularly known of Thomas Holme, although some of his descendants still live in the city and bear his name, but it is said that all of his vast tract of land and his city lots have long since passed out of the possession of his family.

Human deeds and human lives are never understood until they are finished. You can no more tell in advance how manhood will turn out than how a young child will grow up.

MICHIGAN BRIEFS.

The new plant of the Washtenaw Power company, at Lowell, has just been completed, and it is said to be one of the finest in the country.

Wilson Smith, one of the oldest residents of Laingsburg, was probably fatally injured in a runaway, which occurred in his home town.

The thirty-sixth annual state convention of the Young Men's Christian association of Michigan will be held March 27., at Bay City. The meeting will be at the new Young Men's Christian association building that has just been completed at a cost of $65,000.

The Lansing high school building has been pronounced unsuitable for use, and a proposition to invest $125,000 in a new building was directed to be submitted to the voters of the city on March 24. If the project is approved, the present building will be torn down.

John Schemish, the Westphalia farmer who last week pulled a revolver from his pocket intending to frighten his wife thereby and accidentally discharged the weapon in a tussel with a neighbor who happened in at the time, has been sentenced to sixty-five days in the Detroit house of correction for carrying concealed weapons.

The Buckboard.

"There are few persons who know how the name of 'buckboard' came to be applied to a vehicle," says a writer. "It was away back in the twenties, when the transportation of goods, wares and merchandise was almost entirely by wagon. A Dr. Buck was then in charge of military stores en route to army posts in the southwest. In east Tennessee much difficulty was experienced by reason of the rough roads, and there were frequent mishaps, mostly from wagons overturning. Dr. Buck overhauled the outfit, and, abandoning the wagon bodies, long boards were set directly on the axles or hung below, and the stores were loaded in such a manner that there were no further delays from breakdowns, and the stores safely reached their destinations. In special emergency, too, the load could be shifted or taken off in a hurry. Dr. Buck's example was followed, especially when roads were rough, and soon much hauling was done by the use of wheels, axles and boards only. Now we have the buckboard, both in carriage and automobile forms, conforming closely to the original idea, though few suspect the source of it."—Chicago News.

Technical Swearing.

The late Sir John Millais was a very keen fisherman. He used to tell a story of an old man who was his attendant during a day's sport in the north of England. The old man was full of local gossip and small scandal, and where the natural supply failed him he was clearly able to manufacture enough of his own to go on with. "I were out with the bishop yesterday," said the old man, referring to a popular church dignitary, who is also a good fisherman. "Ah," replied Millais, "he's a good man!" "Well," continued the old fellow, "'e may be, but 'e do swear a bit when 'e's fishin'." "Oh, nonsense!" replied Millais. "I don't believe that." The old man insisted that he was right, however. "I'll give you an instance," he said. "I was standin' 'longside o' the bishop, same as I might be aside o' you, and 'e'd got a big fellow at the end of 'is line that was pretty nigh pullin' 'im off 'is feet, and I turns to 'is lordship and I says, "'E pulls — 'ard, don't he?' and the bishop says, 'Yes, 'e do.' Well, now, ain't that swearin'?"—London M. A. P.

St. Patrick and the Roosters.

St. Patrick's reputation as a snake charmer is known all the world over, but what he did to the roosters is a bit of history less disseminated. There is a small district in the heart of County Sligo, it seems, which strenuously resented the intrusion of the Scotchman. Succat (St. Patrick) had become exceedingly domineering, and it was decided to put a damper on his progress. He said to his hostess, "Wake me when the cock crows." When he had gone to bed she whispered this command to the neighbors, and all the populace concealed their roosters under small creels so they could not lift their heads high enough to crow. In consequence thereof the saint overslept himself and was furious when he discovered the trick that had been played on him. He laid his everlasting curse on the roosters of that district, and they have never crowed since.—Exchange.

The Number Fourteen in France.

So far as France is concerned, it is the number fourteen that has played a conspicuous and generally portentous part in her history. On May 14, 1554, the Rue de la Ferronnerie was enlarged by order of Henri II., and four times fourteen years later Henri IV. was assassinated there by Ravaillac—namely, on May 14, 1610. Henri had lived four times fourteen years, fourteen weeks and four times fourteen days—i. e., fifty-six years and five months. Then Henri's son, Louis XIII., died May 14, 1643 (the same day and month as his fathers). And 1643 added together equals fourteen, just as 1553 (the year of the birth of Henri IV.) equals fourteen. Louis XIV ascended the throne 1643, which added together equals fourteen and similarly the year of his death (1715) equals.

The Doctor at Sea.

A veteran naval surgeon, speaking of the odd things that crop out in the service, said that one of the younger medical cranks in the navy discovered much virtue in sea water, and no matter what disease came on his first action was to throw down the patient's throat a large dose of the nauseating liquid. The crew soon learned to hate him thoroughly. In process of time he fell overboard in a choppy sea, and a great bustle ensued. In the midst of it the captain came up and anxiously inquired the cause. "Oh, nothing, sir," replied a tar, "only the doctor has fell into his medicine chest!"

Fooling the Youngster.

"Mother," said Mr. Popley guardedly to his wife, "why not take the y-o-u-n-g-s-t-e-r to the m-a-t-i-n-e-e tomorrow?"

"Pa," chimed in the youngster quietly, "there's only one 't' in 'matinee.'"

Garrick's Wit.

David Garrick on one occasion passed Eyburn as a huge crowd was assembling to witness the execution of a criminal. "Who is he?" asked the great actor of a friend who accompanied him.

"I believe his name is Vowel," was the reply.

"Ah," said Garrick, "I wonder which of the vowels he is, for there are several. At all events it is certain that it is neither U nor I!"—London Saturday

Mr. Ellis has rented the Will Fowler farm in Saline township and moved his household effects there last week but remained here for a few days visited with Mr. Gibson and family where Mrs. Ellis was taken ill Friday night. Mr. Ellis is also on the sick list.

What's the matter at Macon? Dissatisfaction spreading. Detroit man stirring up souls and hearts being searched to see if lives are right. A soul stirring sermon by Evangelist Weaver leads both christians and indifferent to step on higher ground and plead forgiveness. When the call was given both the altar and the front of the church were filled with christians and 5 unsaved, joined the number. Sunday night the sermon on "Excuses" knocked the last prop from under the man who was holding off for hypocrites and 9 persons decided not to spend eternity with that crowd, a total of 14 enlisting in the grand army.

In its first-of-the-year announcements Lippincott's Magazine promised some big thing for the coming twelvemonth, and no time is being lost in making good these promises. The March number contains an unusually fine novelette called "Lady Thoroughbred, Kentuckian," by will Levington Comfort, who seems destined to become one of the few really great latter-day American authors The story—an unusual one—is replete with action vivid and intense from the start yet no touch of melodrama is permitted to cheapen it—a fact for which the author is to be congratulated.

The Best Laxative for Children.

Parents should see to it that their children have one natural, easy movement of the bowels each day. Do not force the child with salts or griping pills, as they are too powerful in effect and literally tear their little insides to pieces, leaving the bowels weakened and less able to act naturally than before. Laxative Fruit-ox Tablets tone and strengthen the bowels, and stimulate all the little organs to healthy activity. Chocolate coated tablets, easy to take, never gripe or nauseate. 10c, 25c and $1.00.

WITHOUT AUTHORITY

President Is Governing Panama, Declares Representative Harrison.

Washington, March 12.—President Roosevelt is asked by what authority of law he has exercised the functions of government in the Panama canal zone since the date of the expiration of the fifty-eighth congress, in a resolution introduced in the house by Mr. Harrison (N. Y.).

Mr. Harrison called attention to Sec. II of the act to provide for the temporary government of the canal zone, approved April 28, 1904, which reads as follows:

"That until the expiration of the fifty-eighth congress, unless provision for the temporary government of the canal zone be sooner made by congress, all the military, civil and judicial powers, as well as the power to make all rules and regulations necessary for the government of the canal zone and all rights, powers and authority granted by the terms of said treaty to the United States, shall be vested in such person or persons and shall be exercised in such manner as the president shall direct for the government of said zone and maintaining and protecting the inhabitants thereof in the free enjoyment of their liberty, property and religion."

"The fifty-eighth congress," said Mr. Harrison, "closed March 4, 1905, without having conferred upon the president any authority to continue to exercise the government of the zone. The fifty-ninth congress similarly failed to empower him, a bill for that purpose, introduced by Representative Wanger, having died in the committee on interstate and foreign commerce. Notwithstanding these omissions, the president has continued to direct the government of the canal zone, just the same as if in him had been vested by congress the authority so to do. I think the president's course is open to criticism, without malice.

"It should be said, in the president's behalf, that the administration did call the attention of the fifty-ninth congress to the fact that no empowering act had been passed. Why this hint was not heeded, I do not know, for I was not here. In my judgment, it is highly necessary that congress take account of this peculiar situation and remedy it at once."

Louisiana Senator Shot Dead.

Amite, La., March 12.—The strained political situation in Louisiana was responsible for the killing of State Senator Elect D. S. Kemp by C. F. Hyde, a young political and business leader of this section. The men quarreled about the recent Democratic primary for lieutenant governor, in which J. A. Bailey and Paul Lambremont competed. Bailey, the defeated candidate, filed a protest, charging fraud. Hyde is alleged to have called Kemp a liar. The incident had apparently been forgotten until later, when Senator Kemp, with a drawn revolver, walked into Hyde's place of business. Hyde also drew his pistol. The two approached each other, and Hyde opened fire, two shots fatally wounding the senator, who died thirty minutes after the shooting.

Dam to Cost $1,000,000.

Brattleboro, Vt., March 12.—The construction of a big dam across the Connecticut here is now well under way, with the expectation of turning waters of New England's greatest river into New England's biggest electric plant. The cost of the dam will be more than a million dollars. The electric power developed will be 16,500 horsepower. While it is expected that the new plant will benefit mainly the towns of Brattleboro and Vernon, Vt., Hinsdale, N. H., and Northfield, Mass., more distant points, are also included within the marketable radius of fifty or sixty miles.

Tragedy in Girls' School.

Boston, March 12.—Suffering from melancholia, due to overwork, Miss Sarah Chamberlin Weed of Philadelphia shot and killed her friend, Miss Elizabeth Bailey Hardee of East Savannah, Ga., and then committed suicide at the Laurens school, a fashionable boarding school for girls in the Fenway district here. The bodies of the two women were found by Mrs. Page, the matron of the school.

Fire Burns Shacks of Natives.

Manila, March 12.—Fire destroyed 2,000 native shacks in the Samploute district of Manila. The damage is estimated at $100,000 in gold. Fire started when a spark from a railroad locomotive landed on a thatched roof. Fifteen thousand homeless natives are being cared for in the churches and by the police.

Owosso in Darkness.

Owosso, Mich., March 12.—The engine used to furnish the street lighting for the city blew up, damaging the building and putting the engine completely out of commission. The loss is about $5,000, partially covered by insurance. No one was hurt.

BRIEF DISPATCHES.

Members of Greek letter fraternities and sororities will not be allowed to attend high school in Chicago after the end of the present school year, according to a rule adopted by the Chicago board of education.

The farm home of John Donthitt, near Medford, Wis., was destroyed by fire, while Mrs. Donthitt was outside. The stove exploded, and her three small children were burned to death.

Mrs. Sigrud Thompson, living in the southern part of Barnes county, North Dakota, during a fit of temporary insanity, cut the throats of her two children, aged six months and three years, and then slashed her own throat with a razor. The youngest child died almost instantly, but the older one may live. Mrs. Thompson is in a critical condition. Her husband was away from the house at the time.

VALLEY IS INUNDATED

Saginaw District Now In the Throes of Flood.

RIVERS ARE STEADILY RISING

Much Farm Land Covered With Water—People Forced to Live in Second Stories—Grand Trunk Has Washout—Other Roads in Danger.

Bay City, Mich., March 16.—The Saginaw valley is in the throes of a flood.

The Saginaw river is steadily rising, though the honeycombed ice still holds. Up above the ice jams in the Tittabawasse, the principal tributary to the Saginaw, the country is reported inundated as it never has been before. The wide valley drained by the Tittabawassee is what is feared just now. As in the Saginaw, the ice of this tributary holds below Midland, but is liable to give way at any time now.

The Flint river, the Saginaw's other tributary, is about all open now, and a swift, swollen torrent is pouring in. Before many hours it is expected that the Saginaw will be fully eight feet above its normal height.

Between Bay City and Saginaw, for over a mile and a half on either side of the river, the water has spread until the stretch has become one vast lake, and farms are completely covered. In some instances, only the tops of the fence posts are visible.

Nearly all the farmers on both sides of the river, between the stream and either the Pere Marquette or Michigan Central tracks, have been forced to move to the second stories of their houses.

The Grand Trunk had a washout at Dutch creek, three miles south of the interurban bridge, and all trains over the line were cancelled. The Michigan Central is also now in danger. The Pere Marquette tracks, on the east side, are still about a foot above water.

The great danger in this city lies in the backing up of sewers. So far there has been little trouble. The city is some fifteen feet higher than the river, and the water has never yet come up to the streets. Profiting by the experiences of three years ago, however, provision has been made for combating the flood.

So far there have been no accidents reported as a result of conditions.

Saginaw, Mich., March 16.—The river is rising and has now reached a level of 7 feet 6 inches above the normal. The lowlands in the city are flooded, and in the small towns south the residents have taken to the second floors of their houses, the lower ones being under water. In the Twelfth ward, forty houses are surrounded, and at the pumping station furnishing the east side with water, the water is so high that the building has to be reached by boat. As yet, the fires have been kept burning, but these are now threatened.

Port Huron, Mich., March 16.—The ice in Black river at Wadham's bridge, about six miles north of this city, has been dynamited, as the land above the bridge was flooded, and many people living along the banks of the river were compelled to desert their homes. The conditions have been somewhat relieved by the clearing away of a portion of the ice.

Inspect Ludington Camp.

Ludington, Mich., March 16.—Colonel George S. Dodd, chief of the staff of the department of the great lakes, and General McGurran of the Michigan national guard have just been in this city, inspecting the camp where the state militia has been located for several years. Colonel Dodd was sent here by the war department to make an inspection of the place as to the desirability of this location for a camp for the federal troops and the military training school for this summer, similar to that conducted at Camp Ben Hur, at Indianapolis. The general, as is already known, is favorable to the Ludington camp, and his attitude during the trip was a confirmation of his former opinion.

Blames Catholic Priest.

Grand Rapids, Mich., March 16.—Rev. Earnest Willoughby Jewell, who has been rector of Episcopal churches at Manistee and Calumet, has joined the Roman Catholic church; has become a priest and changed his name to Father Edward Joseph Jewell. He received the minor orders of the priesthood at St. Andrew's cathedral, in this city, during the past week from Bishop Richter, on Thursday next he will be elevated to the priesthood. [illegible]

HOLD UP TRAFFIC.

Lake Transportation Will Not Open Until Late.

DUE TO FINANCIAL SETBACK.

Blast Furnaces Are Well Stocked With Iron Ore—Vesselmen Not Discouraged—Anticipate Normal Business in Another Season.

Cleveland, March 16.—In view of a prospective light business in the iron ore carrying trade on the great lakes this summer, it is said in marine circles, that an effort will be made to retard the general opening of navigation until near the latter part of June. This will be done to prevent, if possible, the cutting of rates for hauling ore. The curtailment of business, brought about by the panic of last October, left most of the blast furnaces with a large stock of ore on hand, and, for this reason, it is thought not so much ore will be required this year.

About 42,000,000 tons of ore were brought down the lakes last year. Only about 25,000,000 tons, it is now estimated, will be delivered this summer. By holding the boats back until June, tonnage will be handled without a great loss in operating expenses by the vessel owners. While other industries have lost from four to six months' business as a result of the business depression, the marine interests will lose but two or three months, if the present plans of big vessels owners are carried out.

Notwithstanding this situation, vesselmen are not in the least discouraged, and preparations for an expected normal business the following season are going forward. This will, to a large extent, offset the late start as affecting the employes. During the next month or two, thirty new boats will be launched. They will have a total carrying capacity of over 204,000 tons, with a total approximate cost of $9,750,000.

While the ore carrying trade will begin a couple of months late this year, the lakes will, however, it is expected, be ready for navigation much earlier than in past years. The ice is disappearing rapidly. No more serious freezes are expected. Some boats now are running on Lake Erie, handling local trade. The City of Cleveland, a $1,000,000 passenger steamer and one of the best on the lakes, will be added to the passenger carrying traffic in a few weeks, running between Cleveland and Detroit. This vessel will be able to carry 4,000 passengers.

Bold Train Robbery.

Spokane, Wash., March 16.—A bandit boarded a mail car on the westbound Oriental limited of the Great Northern railway at Bonner's Ferry, Ida., before daylight, bound the two mail clerks, robbed the mail car and delivered way station mail for 100 miles. Then he dropped off the train and made his escape. The robbery was not discovered until the train reached Sokane, five hours after the bandit boarded the train. The train carried the through mail, and much of it was registered. The amount stolen will not be known until the registered mail has been checked up. When the train arrived at Sokane, the mail car was closed. Employes at the station opened the car and found one of the mail clerks, lying bound, on the mail sacks. The other was locked in a closet.

Famine Kills Hundreds.

London, March 16.—Shocking descriptions of the famine that is ravaging the Tieherktchy and Yakutsk tribes in southern Siberia have reached St. Petersburg. Hundreds have died and the distress has been intensified by a recent epidemic which caused 300,000 reindeer to perish. A writer in the Novoe Vremya charges the government with completely neglecting enormous tracts in Siberia, and the inhabitants in consequence are robbed by dishonest traders.

China Concedes to Japan's Demands.

Tokio, March 16.—A satisfactory settlement of the Tatsu affair has been announced. China has conceded all the Japanese demands. She will purchase the arms and ammunition on board the Tatsu and will hoist the Jap flag over the vessel. While the flag is rehoisted, a Chinese warship will fire a salute. There is a general feeling of relief in consequence of the settlement of the incident.

CITIZENS CHEER THE NEWS.

Australia Has Great Liking For United States—Entertainment at Sidney Will Be Largely Naval in Nature—Melbourne Is Gay Place.

Sydney, New South Wales, March 16.—There was a dramatic scene here at a great gathering of citizens, when, at the conclusion of an address on the subject of national defense, the premier, Alfred Deakin, read a cablegram announcing that the American fleet of battleships would visit Sydney and Melbourne. He called for three cheers for the United States, and the audience rose en masse and responded with deafening hurrahs.

The prime minister said that he was sure that such a welcome as an American fleet has never known outside of its own country would be accorded it by Australia, and the cheering that followed this statement seemed evidence of the fact that the Australians, one and all, have a feeling stronger than mere friendship for the American people and their navy.

Melbourne, Australia, March 16.—The Australian commonwealth, officially and generally, hails with pleasure the announcement from Washington that the American battleship fleet will visit the Antipodes next July or August. The federal ministers are delighted beyond measure. the minister of defense, Thomas Ewing, saying that the presence of the American fleet would be most gratifying to all Australians.

"We feel that our future in the Pacific," he said, "is bound up with that of the United States."

Admire Americans.

Australians have a decided liking and admiration for Americans, due to sentimental, commercial and even political causes. In brief, the United States is the only foreign power with territory in the Pacific for which Australia has a distinct liking. The commonwealth's whole scheme of government is patterned after that of the United States; there are strong commercial and other ties.

The Americans will not have left their country's smiling, little land locked harbor at Pago Pago far behind before they will be greeted, doubtless, by British warships and escorted to Sydney. Sydney is the headquarters of Great Britain's South Pacific fleet and a naval base of much importance, and the welcome the visitors from the United States will have will be overwhelming.

Sydney offers natural advantages for entertainment much beyond those of Melbourne, but the latter will not allow her constant rival to surpass her in warmth of greeting or feeling.

While plans are not yet made, it can be said that the functions and pleasures in Sydney will be rather more on the naval side than those here will be. Sydney is fond of jack tars, and the American sailormen will not have cause to complain of their stay. Melbourne's round of enjoyments will be somewhat more circumscribed, but this city is still the federal capital and in the season is one of the gayest of places. It is more than probable that sports of all kinds—for Australia is devoted to out-of-door life—will play an important part in the entertainment to be arranged for the Americans.

Three Drown.

Stratford, Conn., March 16.—By the overturning of a rowboat during a sudden squall, Peter and Andrew Lacroix, father and son, aged fifty and sixteen years old, respectively, and Henry, W. Ellison, all of Bridgeport, were drowned.

Double Tragedy.

Fort Williams, Ont., March 16.—William Garton, an elderly resident of this place, quarreled with his wife and, pulling out a revolver, shot her through the head. He then shot himself dead. Mrs. Garton will die.

Two Scalded by Explosion.

Detroit, Mich., March 16.—By the explosion of a section of a tubular boiler in the basement of J. L. Hudson's department store, Andrew Wright, the engineer, and Charles Cook, the fireman, were scalded and burned. Wright's injuries are so serious that he will probably die.

Whenever I find a great deal of gratitude in a poor man I take it for granted there would be as much generosity if he were a rich man.—Pope.

TWO MORE INDICTMENTS.

Grand Jury at Mason Winds Up Its Work.

Lansing, Mich., March 16.—After handing down two more indictments, and submitting a report which was intended as a resume of its investigations, the grand jury at Mason adjourned. As usual, the indictments were held secret and will be until the persons named in them are arrested. This probably will be today.

It is surmised that the indictments have some connection with the investigation made concerning the legislative fish junket made last season, the allegations being that certain legislators did not make the trip, but collected expenses just the same. A number of the legislators made only part of the trip, yet they charged full fare and per diem, but the grand jury only went far enough to fix on one or two solons whom they had reason to believe did not make the trip at all.

In all, the grand jury handed down seven indictments—three against former State Treasurer Glazier, one against Judge Dunn of Arenac and one against City Comptroller Barnett of Bay City. The jury spent twenty-eight days in actual work.

The report submitted to Judge Wiest deals very largely with the Glazier case, with a closing reference against the practice of candidates for the United States senate paying the election expenses of candidates for the legislature.

Young Wife Gets Damages.

Adrian, Mich., March 16.—Mrs. Fannie McWilliams of Detroit, after years of fighting, has won against the man and woman she charged alienated the affections of her husband and sent him away where she can no longer see him. After being out less than two hours, the jury returned a verdict of $1,500 against Lloyd McWilliams, Sr., of Deerfield and his wife. Mrs. McWilliams alleged that Lloyd drugged her while attending college at Ann Arbor and later married her, taking her to his father's home, in Deerfield. She charged that after the birth of her child, she was turned out of the house in the middle of the night, and that tuberculosis developed as a result of the exposure. If the missing husband, alleged to have been spirited away by the parents, can be located, suit for divorce and support of the child will be pressed.

Shoots Wife Three Times.

Lansing, Mich., March 16.—Frank Roberts, a cement walk contractor, shot his wife three times, on the street here, early in the evening. They have lived apart for some time, and the separation is said to have caused Roberts to act strangely for several days. One of the bullets entered the right arm of Mrs. Roberts', above the elbow, and the others took effect in the left arm. George H. Belson, who had been watching the actions of Roberts from across the street, overpowered the husband and, with the assistance of neighbors, held him until the police arrived. Roberts is forty-nine years old and a heavy drinker.

MICHIGAN BRIEFS.

Fifty young women of Muskegon, with State Secretary Strong of the Young Women's Christian association, have laid plans for the organization of a Y. W. C. A. home in Muskegon.

J. J. Franklin, aged seventy-five years, of Caro, is dead. He was a prominent resident of the village for over thirty years, retiring from business five years ago.

While listening to her hostess play the piano, Mrs. William Curra, fifty-five years old, a member of a card party which met at the home of Mrs. Bahan of Jackson suddenly expired of heart failure.

John Blessed of the firm of John Blessed & Son, grocers of Detroit, is dead, after an illness of only two days. Mr. Blessed had been in business in Detroit since 1872. He was born in Whittlesea, near Cambridge, England, Sept. 20, 1834.

Several more Memekaunne fishermen, who have been disregarding the game laws, have had their possessions practically wiped out. Fish and Game Warden A. B. Bedell, with a corps of assistants, seized eighty-seven 20-foot gill nets that were set in thirty-five fathoms of water. The value of the confiscated nets is almost $900, and in addition the warden seized 800 pounds of immature trout, which brings the value of the haul to over $1,000.

Senator Whyte Is Ill.

Baltimore, Md., March 16.—United States Senator William Pinckney Whyte is ill at his home in this city, suffering from erysipelas and bladder disorder. His physicians say that while his condition is not critical, it is somewhat alarming. Senator Whyte was taken ill in Washington on Thursday and has since grown worse. His advanced age—he is eighty-two years

There is more catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together and until recently was supposed to be incurable. For many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer $100 for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

There are countless roads on all sides to the grave.

This is what Hon. Jake Moore, State Warden of Georgia, says of Kodol for dyspepsia: "E. C. DeWitt & Co., Chicago, Ill.—Dear Sirs—I have suffered more than twenty years from indigestion. About eighteen months ago I had grown so much worse that I could not digest a crust of corn bread and could not retain anything on my stomach. I lost 25 lbs; in fact I made up my mind that I could not live but a short time, when a friend of mine recommended Kodol. I consented to try it to please him and I was better in one day. I now weigh more than I ever did in my life and am in better health than for many years. Kodol did it. I keep a bottle constantly and write this hoping that humanity will be benefitted. Yours very truly, Jake C. Moore, Atlanta, Aug. 10, 1904." Sold by all druggists.

Do not make unjust gains, they are equal to a loss.

Given up to die.

B. Spiegel, 1204 N. Virginia street, Evansville, Ind., writes: "For over five years I was troubled with kidney and bladder affections which caused me much pain and worry. I lost flesh and was all run down, and a year ago had to abandon work entirely. I had three of the best physicians who did me no good and I was given up to die. Foley's Kidney Cure was recommended and the first bottle gave me great relief, and after taking the second bottle was entirely cured." Why not let it help you? Sold by all druggists in Tecumseh.

The Kid Engineer

By FRANK H. SPEARMAN

Copyright, 1900, by Frank H. Spearman

WHEN the big strike caught us at Zanesville we had 180 engineers and firemen on the payroll. One hundred and seventy-nine of these men walked out. One fireman—just one—stayed with the company; that was Dad Hamilton.

"Yes," growled Dad, combating the protests of the strikers' committee, "I know it. I belong to your lodge. But I'll tell you now—an' I've told you afore—I ain't goin' to strike on the company so long as Neighbor is master mechanic on this division; ain't a-goin' to do it, an' you might as well quit. If you jaw here from now t' Christmas, 'twon't change my mind nar a bit."

And they didn't change it. Through the calm and through the storm, and it stormed hard for awhile, Dad Hamilton, whenever we could supply him with an engineer, fired religiously.

No other man in the service could have done it without getting killed, but Dad was old enough to father any man among the strikers. Moreover, he was a giant physically and eccentric enough to move along through the heat of the crisis indifferent to the abuse of the other men. His gray hairs and his tremendous physical strength saved him from personal violence.

Our master mechanic, Neighbor, was another big man, six feet an inch in his stockings, and strong as a drawbar. Between Neighbor and the old fireman there existed some sort of a bond—a liking, an affinity. Dad Hamilton had fired on our division ten years. There was no promotion for Dad; he could never be an engineer, though only Neighbor knew why. But his job of firing on the river division was sure as long as Neighbor signed the payrolls at the roundhouse.

Hence there was no surprise when the superintendent offered him an engine, just after the strike, that Dad refused to take it.

"I'm a fireman, and Neighbor knows it. I ain't no engineer. I'll make steam for any man you put in the cab with me, but I won't touch a throttle for no man. I laid it down, and I'll never pinch it again—an' no offense t' you, Neighbor, neither."

Thus ended the negotiations with Dad on that subject; threats and entreaties were useless. Then, too, in spite of his professed willingness to throw coal for any man we put on his engine, he was continually rowing about the green runners we gave him. From the standpoint of a railroad man they were a tough assortment; for a fellow may be a good painter, or a handy man with a jack plane, or an expert machinest even and yet a failure as an engine runner.

After we got hold of Foley, Neighbor put him on awhile with Dad, and the grizzled fireman quickly declared that Foley was the only man on the payroll who knew how to move a train.

The little chap proved such a remarkable find that I tried hard to get some of his eastern chums to come out and join him. After a good bit of hustling we did get half a dozen more Reading boys for our new corps of engine men, but the East End officials kept all but one of them on their own divisions. That one we got because nobody on the East End wanted him.

"They've crimped the whole bunch, Foley," said I, answering his inquiries. "There's just one fellow reported here—he came in on 5 this morning. Neighbor's had a little talk with him, but he doesn't think much of him. I guess we're out the transportation on that fellow."

"What's his name?" asked Foley. "Is he off the Reading?"

"Claims he is; his name is McNeal"—

"McNeal?" echoed Foley, surprised. "Not Georgie McNeal?"

"I don't know what his first name is. He's nothing but a boy."

"Dark complexioned fellow?"

"Perhaps you'd call him that; sort of soft spoken."

"Georgie McNeal, sure's you're born. If you've got him you've got a bird. He ran opposite me between New York and Philadelphia on the limited. I want to see him right off. If it's Georgie, you're all right."

Foley's talk went a good way with me any time. When I told Neighbor about it he pricked up his ears. While we were debating in rushed Foley with the kid, as he called him.

As luck would have it, Neighbor put the boy on the 244 with Dad Hamilton, and Dad proceeded at once to make what Foley termed "a great roar."

"What's the matter?" demanded Neighbor roughly when the old fireman complained.

"If you're goin' to pull these trains with boys, I guess it's time for me to quit. I'm gettin' pretty old, anyhow."

"What's the matter?" growled Neighbor, still surlier, knowing full well that if the old fellow had a good reason he would have blurted it out at the start.

"Nothin's the matter, only I'd like my time."

"You won't get it," said Neighbor roughly. "Go back on your run. If McNeal don't behave, report him to me, and he'll get his time."

It was a favorite trick of Neighbor's. Whenever the old fireman got to "buckling" about his engineer the master mechanic threatened to discharge the engineer. That settled it. Dad Hamilton wouldn't for the world be the cause of throwing another man out of a job, no matter how little he liked him.

The old fellow went back to work mollified, but it was evident that he and McNeal didn't half get on together. The boy was not much of a talker. Yet he did his work well, and Neighbor said next to Foley he was the best man we had.

About a week later Foley came into the office one morning very much excited.

"Did you hear about the boy's getting pounded last night—Georgie McNeal? It's a shame the way these fellows act. Three of the strikers piled on him while he was going into the postoffice and thumped the life out of him. The cowardly hounds, to jump on a man's back that way!"

"Foley," said I, "that's the first time they've tackled one of Dad Hamilton's engineers."

"They'd never have done it if they thought there was any danger of Dad's getting after them. They know he doesn't like the boy."

"It's an outrage, but we can't do anything. You know that. Tell McNeal to keep away from the postoffice. We'll get his mail for him."

"I told him that this morning. He's in bed and looks pretty hard, but he won't dodge those fellows. He claims it's a free country," grinned Foley. "But I told him he'd get over that idea if he stuck out this trouble."

It was three days before McNeal was able to report for work, though he received full time just the same. Even then he wasn't fit for duty, but he begged Neighbor for his run until he got it. The strikers were jubilant while the boy was laid up, but jubilant what Dad thought no one could find out. I wanted to tell the old growler what I thought of him, but Foley said it wouldn't do any good and might do harm, so I held my peace.

One might have thought that the injustice and brutality of the thing would have roused him, but men who have repressed themselves till they are gray headed don't rise in a hurry to resent a wrong. Dad kept as mute as the sphinx. When McNeal was ready to go out the old fireman had the 244 shining, but if the pale face of his engineer had any effect on him he kept it to himself.

As they rattled down the line with a long stock train that night neither of them referred to the break in their run. Coming back next night, the same silence hung over the cab. The only words that passed over the boiler head were "strickly business," as Dad would say.

At Oxford they were laid out by a Pullman special. It was 3 o'clock in the morning and raining hard. Under such circumstances an hour seems all night. At last Dad himself broke the unsupportable silence.

"He'd have waited a good bit longer if he had waited for me to talk," said the boy, telling Foley afterward.

"Heard you got licked," growled Dad after tinkering with the fire for the twentieth time.

"I didn't get licked," retorted Georgie; "I got clubbed. I never had a chance to fight."

"These fellows hate to see a boy come out and take a man's job. Can't blame 'em much neither."

"Whose job did I take?" demanded Georgie angrily. "Was any one of those cowards that jumped on me in the dark looking for work on this engine?"

There was nothing to say to that. Dad kept still.

"You talk about men," continued the young fellow. "If I am not more of a man than to slug a fellow from behind, the way they slugged me, I'll get off this engine and stay off. If that's what you call men out here, I don't want to be a man. I'll go back to Pennsylvania."

"Why didn't you stay there?" growled Dad.

"Why didn't you?"

Without attempting to return the shot Dad pulled nervously at the chain.

"If I hadn't been fool enough to go out on a strike, I might have been running there yet," continued Georgie.

"Ought to have kept away from the postoffice," grumbled Dad after a pause.

"I get a letter twice a week that I think more of than I do of this whole road, and I propose to go to the postoffice and get it without asking anybody's permission."

"They'll pound you again."

Georgie looked out into the storm. "Well, why shouldn't they? I've got no friends."

"Got a girl back in Pennsylvania?"

"Yes, I've got a girl there," replied the boy as the rain tore at the cab window. "I've had a girl there a good while. She's gray headed and sixty years old—that's my girl—and if she can write letters to me I can get them out of the postoffice without a guardian."

"There she comes," said Dad as the headlight of the Pullman special shone faint ahead through the mist.

"I'm mighty glad of it," said Georgie, looking at his watch. "Give me steam now, Dad, and I'll get you home in time for a nap before breakfast."

A minute later the special shot over the switch, and the young runner, crowding the pistons a bit, started off the siding. When Dad, looking back for the hind end brakeman to lock the switch and swing on, called all clear, Georgie pulled her out another notch, and the long train slowly gathered headway up the slippery track.

As the speed increased the young man and the old relapsed into their usual silence. The 244 was always a free steamer, but Georgie put her through her paces without any apology, and it took lots of coal to square the account.

In a few minutes they were pounding along up through the Narrows. The track there follows the high bench between the bluffs, which sheer up on one side, and the river bed, thirty feet below the grade, on the other.

It is not an inviting stretch at any time with a big string of gondolas behind. But on a wet night it is the last place on the division where an engineer would want a side rod to go wrong, and just there and then Georgie's rod went very wrong indeed.

Halfway between centers the big steel bar on his side, dipping then so fast you couldn't have seen it even in daylight, snapped like a stick of licorice. The hind end ripped up into the cab like the nose of a swordfish, tearing and smashing with appalling force and fury.

Georgie McNeal's seat burst under him as if a stick of giant powder had exploded. He was jammed against the cab roof like a link pin and fell sprawling, while the monster steel flail thrashed and tore through the cab with every lightning revolution of the great driver from which it swung.

It was a frightful moment. Anything thought or done must be thought and done at once. It was either to stop that train, and quickly, or to pound along until the 244 jumped the track and lit in the river, with thirty cars of coal to cover it.

Instantly—so Dad Hamilton afterward told me—instantly the boy, scrambling to his feet, reached for his throttle—reached for it through a rain of iron blows, and staggered back with his right arm hanging like a broken wing from his shoulder. And back again after it—after the throttle with his left; slipping and creeping carefully this time up the throttle lever until, straining and twisting and dodging, he caught the latch and pushed it tightly home, Dad whistling vigorously the while for brakes.

Relieved of the tremendous head on the cylinder, the old engine calmed down enough to let the two men collect themselves. Rapidly as the brakes could do it, the long train was brought up standing, and Georgie, helped by his fireman, dropped out of the cab, and they set about disconnecting—the engineer with his one arm—the formidable ends of the broken rod.

It was a slow, difficult piece of work to do. In spite of their most active efforts the rain chilled them to the marrow. The train crew gave them as much help as willing hands could, which wasn't much, but by every man doing something they got things fixed, called in their flagmen just before daybreak and started home. When the sun rose Georgie, grim and silent, the throttle in his left hand, was urging the old engine along on a dogtrot across the Blackwood flats, and so, limping in on one side, the kid brought his train into the Zanesville yards, with Dad Hamilton unable to make himself helpful enough, unable to show his appreciation of the skill and the grit that the night had disclosed in the kid engineer.

The hostler waiting in the yard sprang into the cab with amazement on his face and was just in time to lift a limp boy out of the old fireman's arms and help Dad get him to the ground, for Georgie had fainted.

When the 244 reached the shops a few minutes later they photographed that cab. It was the worst case of rod smashing we had ever seen, and the West End shops have caught some pretty tough looking cabs in their day.

The boy who stopped the cyclone and saved his train and crew lay stretched on the lounge in my office waiting for the company surgeon. And old Dad Hamilton—crabbed, irascible old Dad Hamilton—flew around that boy exactly like an excited old rooster, first bringing ice and then water and then hot coffee and then fanning him with a time table. It was worth a small smashup to see it.

The one sweep of the rod which caught Georgie's arm had broken it in two places, and he was off duty three months. But it was a novelty to see that boy walk down to the postoffice and hear the strikers step up and ask how his arm was, and to see old Dad Hamilton tag around Zanesville after him was refreshing. The kid engineer had won his spurs.

A Dog Story.

A Columbus man who likes to hunt quail, who is handy with the gun and has a fine bird dog whose work as a retriever is remarkable loaned him to a friend who was only an amateur at the business. About the middle of the forenoon of the first day the dog returned to his master's home. The latter, not knowing what had happened, took his gun in the afternoon to try the dog. He worked all right, and a number of birds were secured. The next day he met the friend who had borrowed the dog. "What is the matter with that dog?" he asked. "We got up a covey of quail and shot at them, but missed. We afterward got up a number of the scattered birds and took a dozen shots or more, but got nothing, and the dog put his tail between his legs and struck across the fields in the direction of his home."

It is evident that the dog, disgusted at the poor shooting, decided that the men with the guns were not in his class and decided to cut it out.—Columbus (O.) Dispatch.

Breathing Lampblack in the Country.

A careful glance at white lace curtains that have been hanging for some time in a room where Kerosene or Gasolene Light has been used will tell its own story.

Another look at the wall-paper on ceiling and walls will also tell the tale, if that paper be light colored and in use for a year or so.

The Lampblack will be found deposited in very fine, closely-packed layers upon everything in the rooms where Kerosene or Gasolene Lamp Light is constantly used.

Being all Light, instead of only one-tenth Light like that of Kerosene and Gasolene, only one-tenth as much flame is needed from Acetylene to produce as much Light as nine-tenths from Kerosene or Gasolene.

This means, with Acetylene, only a small fraction of the heat, soot, Oxygen-consumption, and Carbonic Acid Gas production of Kerosene, Gasolene or City Gaslight.

A 24 candle-power Kerosene Lamp used 10 hours will cost about 6 cents for Kerosene, Chimneys and Wicks.

A 24 candle-power Acetylene Gas Light used 10 hours will consume nothing but one pound of Carbide at 3¾ cents in most of the States.

Thus Kerosene Light costs 6 cents against the same volume of Acetylene Light for 3¾ cents when once installed.

Because, with Kerosene or Gasoline Light we are paying for one-tenth Light and nine-tenths soot, heat, color-fog, and other useless or injurious things besides.

Drop me a line to-day for further particulars. State how many rooms you have to light or how large your store.

Address me thus—Acetylene Jones, 5 Adams St., Chicago, Ill.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our regular correspondent.)

Washington, D. C., Mar. 14, 1908.

At last it has been officially settled how the American battleship squadron is to return to the Atlantic coast. The program was announced in an official order issued by Secretary Metcalf after one of the cabinet meetings this week. The fleet will come home by way of the Suez Canal. This had been the general understanding, but it has been decided also that it shall visit the principal ports of Australia in response to a specific invitation from the British government conveyed to the President by Ambassador Bryce. The British Foreign Office on the suggestion of King Edward sent a courteous note to the President seconding the invitation that had already been issued by the Commonwealth of Australia for the fleet to visit the island continent.

So the program has been arranged. The battleships will remain on the Pacific Coast, visiting the various seaboard cities till July 6th, when they will wind up for the carnival at San Francisco. Then they will shape their course east. Admiral Evans will retire for age in August, so there will be another commander chosen to bring the squadron home. The vessels will first stop at Hawaii, go thence to Samoa and then to Australia. At what ports they will touch has not yet been determined, but there will certainly be a round of visits and entertainments. From Australia they will go to the Philippines, touching first at Manilla and then at some of the other ports. After leaving the Philippines the voyage will be strictly a business one. No more entertainments will be scheduled and the squadron will make only such brief stops as will be necessary for coal. This, as has before been intimated, will be to avoid the risk of trouble if any exchange of hospitalities should be attempted with Japan and the social feature of the visit at other points will be omitted so that there will not be too marked discrimination against the Mikados country.

The fleet has made a great record so far. The ships reached Magdalena bay on the coast of Mexico four days ahead of schedule time. Admiral Evans reported to the Navy department on arrival that the squadron was "ready for service anywhere at an hour's notice." This was a great achievement, for before the squadron started there were dire predictions that all the vessels would limp into their last port in need of immediate and extensive repairs before they would be fit for any service of any sort.

Such prophets might have saved their predictions, remembering the cruise of the Oregon during the Spanish war when she made the run from San Francisco to Key West, coaled, then went on blockade at Santiago and lastly into battle without looking at a machine shop—a phenominal record up to that date. But now the same thing has been done with a squadron of 16 battleships they have reported at Magdalena bay ahead of time and are now at target practice.

The political aspects of the voyage have been no less satisfactory. The ships have been welcomed, the officers and men entertained in all South American ports they have touched. There has not been a single regrettable incident to report and it is truly said that the officers and men have left a nation of good friends wherever they have visited. There is no denying that they cannot hope to better this record in Australia and they may find it hard to live up to but it is hoped for the honor of the American navy and of the American people that they will try and will succeed.

ROUND ABOUT US.

Mrs. Frank Wood of Ann Arbor, has fed 18 bushels of nuts this winter to the squirrels that have taken their residence in the trees surrounding her home.—Chelsea Standard.

A calf born absolutely without a tail is anxiously awaiting the possibilities of fly time on the Elliott farm, on the Napoleon road. The animal is cheerful in other respects and quite normal.—Jackson Patriot.

Miss Malissa Osmun, who for a long time resided with her sister, Mrs. L. Mincer, west of this city, was found dead in bed Wednesday morning. She was in usual health the previous evening. She was restless during the night, and was spoken to by a member of the family, when she became quiet. In the morning she failed to arise as usual, and her lifeless form was found as above stated. Her age was 49 years.—Hudson Post.

Somebody who wants to explain what the editorial "we" signifies says its meaning varies to suit the circumstances. For instance, when you read that "we expected our wife home today," we refers to the editor-in-chief when it is "we are a little late with our work" it includes the whole office force even the devil and the towel. If "we are having a boom," the town is meant; "we received over 700,000 immigrants last year," and it embraces the nation, but "we have hog cholera in our midst" only refers to the illness of the man who takes the paper two or three years and refuses to pay for it.—Ex.

INNOCENT MAN LYNCHED

ANOTHER CONFESSED CRIME

Former Tecumseh Boy got Drink Confession in Grace Hospital, Detroit from the real Culprit.

Coldwater, Mich., March 14.—Dr. E. F. Gamble, a former Detroit physician, has in his office a gruesome souvenir of his student days in shape of a tobacco box fashioned from a human skull. In 1880 a white woman at Port Huron was attacked by a negro. A crowd at once scoured the country and finally captured a negro who was a stranger and he was taken to the woman, who identified him as her assailant. The unfortunate man was placed in jail but a mob broke into the building, took him to a telegraph pole, strung him up and shot the struggling body full of holes.

The corpse was afterwards sent to the U. of M. for dissection and 39 bullets were found imbedded. The students partitioned relics from the body among the members of the class, and Dr. Gamble received the skull. Another student took sufficient gold from the teeth to have a gold ring made.

The sequel occurred in 1892 while Dr. Gamble was at Grace hospital, Detroit. He received an ambulance call one night to a retreat frequented by colored people and found a negro horribly cut and nearly dead from loss of blood. He died soon after at the hospital but before he passed away he confessed to Dr. Gamble that he was the one who had committed the attack upon the Port Huron woman.

The above sketch accompanied by Dr. Gamble's picture appeared the Detroit Journal last Saturday.

Catherine McConnell.

Catherine McConnell, the 16 months old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jay McConnell of Tipton, died at their home Sunday of consumption of skin after an illness of eight months. Beside the parents one sister, Naomi Derby, is left to mourn. The funeral was held from the house at 2 o'clock this afternoon, Rev. Blanch Young of this place officiating.

Milo W. Conlin.

Milo W., the 11 months old baby of Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Conlin died at their home in Tipton yesterday morning of inflammation of the bowels. The funeral will be held from the residence Wednesday at 1 o'clock. Beside the parents a sister and brother are left to mourn.

W. C. T. U. Officers.

At the W. C. T. U. meeting last Friday the following officers were elected for the coming year:

Pres.—Mrs. Sylvia Davidson.
Cor. Sec.—Mrs. Annie B. Smith.
Rec. Sec.—Mrs. Nettie Barnes.
Treas.—Mrs. Mary C. Wood.
Vice Pres. from the churches—

A canvass of the shoe stores of Ann Arbor shows that during the high water freshet 1,600 pairs of rubbers and 1,200 pairs of rubber boots, aggregating a sum of $4,000 paid out for foot protection.—Saline Observer.

The little steamboat Russel Hallit had on the streets at the time of the recent flood attracted lots of attention. He built the boat and put in a small engine he had borrowed and when he set it running across the street it looked like a steamer, especially when one noticed the escaping steam as it plowed its way through the waters. It attracted quite a crowd of people.—Clinton Local.

The local paper in a Mississippi town recently had occasion to describe a wedding. On the same day an article was written concerning two tramps who had visited the town. The new office boy managed to get the slugs mixed, with the following results:

The bride entered at the right escorted by her brother who knocked at the door demanding something to eat. She was beautifully gowned in gray traveling costume. The groom wore the conventional suit usually worn at such affairs, a ragged brown corduroy suit, a soiled shirt and a battered derby hat and was accompanied by a fierce looking bull dog. Both were dirty and unkempt. They left town in a side-door sleeper of a local freight train followed by showers of rice, old shoes and good wishes. If they should be caught here again they are likely to be roughly handled by indignant citizens.

Rapid changes of temperature are hard on the toughest constitution.

The conductor passing from the heated inside of a trolley car to the icy temperature of the platform—the canvasser spending an hour or so in a heated building and then walking against a biting wind—know the difficulty of avoiding cold.

Scott's Emulsion strengthens the body so that it can better withstand the danger of cold from changes of temperature.

It will help you to avoid taking cold.

HOSPITAL

Adrian's long felt want to be furnished

Eva M. Smith expects to purchase a residence on College Ave.

Mrs. Eva M. Smith of Adrian, intends to furnish Adrian's long felt want in regard to a city hospital. She will either purchase a residence on College Avenue or remodel thoroughly her present quarters on Budlong street. Mrs. Smith was formerly Eva Camburn of Tipton, and received her school education in this village, where her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Camburn now reside.

She was trained for a nurse at the University hospital in Ann Arbor and since residing in Adrian the past year or so her home has been full nearly all the time with patients.

Curry S. Hicks Quits the Ypsi Normal.

Ypsilanti, Mich., March 13.—Curry S. Hicks, track manager at the Normal college, has resigned to become state manager of the Success Publishing Co. Frank Bates of Nettle Lake, O., succeeds him as manager. Hicks has three times made the foot ball team and has also been a reliable base ball player. His last work as track manager was to land the M. A. C. dual meet for March 21.—Detroit Journal.

Messrs. Hicks and Bates are well known here, the former having taught in the high school and the latter having visited here several times. Their friends wish them both success.

Froth gets to the top and some men are a good bit like froth.

When F. E. Storms answered the telephone call at his lumber office one day last week and a feminine voice floated over the wire and said to "send up a No. 3 shirt for the baby" he was a little disconcerted for a moment but finally gathered himself together enough to ask which kind she wanted, pine or oak.—Chelsea Standard.

No use to die.

"I have found out that there is no use to die of lung trouble as long as you can get Dr. King's New Discovery" says Mrs. T. P. White of Rushboro, Pa. "I would not be alive today only for that wonderful medicine. It loosens up a cough quicker than anything else and cures lung disease even after the case is pronounced hopeless." This most reliable remedy for coughs, colds, lagrippe, asthma, bronchitis and hoarseness is sold under guarantee at C. A. Wright & Son's. 50c and $1. Trial bottle free.

Good for Everybody.

Norman Coulter, a prominent architect in the Delbert building, San Francisco, says: "I fully endorse all that has been said of Electric Bitters as a tonic medicine. It is good for everybody. It corrects stomach, liver and kidney disorders in a prompt and efficient manner and builds up the system." Electric Bitters is the best spring medicine ever sold over a druggist's counter; as a blood purifier it is unequaled. 50c. at C. A. Wright & Son's drug store.

WRITES ABOUT THE NEW 39th JUDICIAL CIRCUIT.

Good Business Policy to provide Relief.

Candidates should be Judged Solely on Merits.

While the new 39th judicial circuit—Lenawee county—is an established fact and while the necessity of nominations for the judgeship is before the people of the county, yet there is still heard in various quarters the question, "Is it not too expensive—is it really desirable?"

The writer has been doing some investigating on his own account and believes that the information he has secured deserves publicity.

The recent experience in the circuit court, with an absent judge from an outside county, who had every incentive to rush business and indeed did rush the cases, indicates the impossibility under the present conditions of relieving the Lenawee congestion, with another county in the same circuit receiving as much attention as Hillsdale has received.

We find the average number of inhabitants in each circuit in this state, outside of Wayne and Kent counties, is approximately 47,000. The Hillsdale-Lenawee circuit embraced over 82,000 population. Of this number Lenawee has over 49,000. It will thus be seen that this is nearly double the number of inhabitants of the average circuit. Herewith is a list of counties which constitute a separate circuit having a less population than Lenawee county, Jackson, Monroe, Genessee, Macomb, Washtenaw, Ingham, Berrien and Kalamazoo have one judge and less than one thousand more population than Lenawee

Now the number of judges in the state in 1906 was 46. The amount paid by the state for circuit judges' salary at $2,500 each was $115,000. Lenawee paid 2¼ per cent of the state taxes. Last year it paid for circuit judges' salary in such taxes the sum of $2,587.50. The salary of the new judge will be $2,500 to be paid by the state, of which Lenawee county will pay two and a quarter per cent. or $56.25.

Last year Lenawee county paid of the stenographer's salary for the first judicial circuit the sum of $1,166.66—the salary in full being $1,600 The balance or $433.33, was paid by Hillsdale. The law creating the 39th judicial circuit fixes the stenographer's salary at $1,200 per year—only a slight increase in that particular.

The number of days in court in Lenawee were 131.

Judge Chester has drawn for expenses while holding court in this county since the act of 1905 went into effect $632.98.

Judge North drew the sum of $5.49; Judge Lockwood, $28 50; Judge Shepherd, $22.11.

Hillsdale county paid into the state treasury as tax for circuit judges $1,524.90, while Lenawee paid $2.587.50.

The only counties in the lower peninsula that pay more state tax than Lenawee are Wayne, Kent, Saginaw and Calhoun. Wayne has six circuit judges Kent county two. Saginaw two, Calhoun one, while St. Clair, paying less tax than Lenawee to the amount of $15,000, has two circuit judges.

An important fact in this connection is this: No county in the state outside of Wayne and Kent, has as many miles of railroad as Lenawee; and railways as everyone knows, occasion much and prolonged litigation.

Judged by these facts in consideration of the condition of other counties, Lenawee, standing near the front in population, wealth, industry and agriculture is receiving only that which she is justly entitled to—that which taxpayers deserve—in their relation to the taxpayers of other sections of the state; that which general business interests require, in having a judge of her own who will be able to relieve the present pressure, do justice to litigants who may now needs wait an indefinite time for the adjudication of their cases, thereby suffering heavy expense as well as unpleasant uncertainties and dispatch public matters too often and seriously delayed.

These facts, carefully studied, show taxpayers and citizens generally that it was a case of good business, judgement and public policy to provide the needed relief and give Lenawee her deserts according to her real importance.

The candidates are before the people and they should be judged solely on the ground of merit—their ability to care for the business that will devolve upon them and perform the duties of the office impartially with clear knowledge of the law and so subserve the highest and best interests of the whole county.

TECUMSEH ON TRIAL

The City Dads in Adrian yesterday Fighting Injunction.

ATTY. WIGHTMAN CLAIMS COUNCIL HAD NO RIGHT

To Accept so Large a Bid for Sewer.

Tecumseh was well represented in court at Adrian yesterday, with Atty. John E. Bird of the firm Bird & Sampson, and F. B. Wood of Tecumseh, appearing for the council to argue against the injunction asked for by James Wightman, preventing the village from going on with the establishment of the sewerage system as is the present intention. Atty. Wallace Westerman of the firm of Westerman & Westerman, with Atty. Wightman represent the people's side of the case. Judge Lockwood of Monroe, heard the arguments.

A bill granting the village of Tecumseh ten days to show why an injunction should not be issued against it in the matter of the proposed establishment of a sewerage system was issued on Feb. 24th by Judge Chester. Later this was adjourned by mutual consent of the attorneys until the present day. The case will be continued today.

"Lena Rivers."

A noted divine who saw the production of "Lena Rivers" that Burt & Nicolai bring to the New Bradley Thursday night with beautiful Rose Lubonn in the leading role, rather shocked some of the more prudish ones when he advised them to see this play. He said "I had never gone to the theatre and like so many others had an idea that it could serve no good purpose. When persuaded to see the portrayal of this beautiful love story, my opinion was changed. I left the theatre with a firmer conviction that love after all is the greatest thing in the world. I saw a vast audience moved to tears in one moment and to laughter the next."

BEST OF PROOF

That Hyomei will cure all forms of catarrhal diseases.

Testimonials could be printed by the thousands, many of them from Tecumseh and nearby towns, that Hyomei is an absolute cure for all catarrhal troubles, but the best proof of its unusual curative powers is the guarantee that C. A. Wright & Son give with every outfit that they sell, "Money back if Hyomei does not do all that is claimed for it"

Hyomei is not a secret remedy. Its formula is given freely to physicians who want to know what they use when they prescribe Hyomei. It is guaranteed under the Pure Food and Drug Law by serial No. 1418.

By breathing Hyomei, the healing medication goes directly to every nook and corner of the air passages where the catarrhal germs may lurk, and disinfects and heals. To be convincodd of this you have only to give it a trial, remembering that if it does not cure C. A. Wright and Son will refund your money

There is no dangerous stomach drugging when Hyomei is used. Its healing medication is breathed through a little pocket inhaler a few times daily and almost immediately a great improvement is noticed and quick recovery follows.

The complete Hyomei outfit costs but $1.00, and in most cases is sufficient to cure the disease, making it not only a scientific treatment but one that is highly economical. Get an outfit today from C. A. Wright and Son if you have any symptoms of catarrh, and see how quickly the remedy relieves and cures.

Make no haste to be rich if you would prosper.

The Cause of Many Sudden Deaths.

There is a disease prevailing in this country most dangerous because so deceptive. Many sudden deaths are caused by it—heart disease, pneumonia, heart failure or apoplexy are often the result of kidney disease. If kidney trouble is allowed to advance the kidney-poisoned blood will attack the vital organs, causing catarrh of the bladder, or the kidneys themselves break down and waste away cell by cell.

Bladder troubles almost always result from a derangement of the kidneys and a cure is obtained quickest by a proper treatment of the kidneys. If you are feeling badly you can make no mistake by taking Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy.

It corrects inability to hold urine and scalding pain in passing it, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often through the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases.

Swamp-Root is pleasant to take and is sold by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle of this wonderful new discovery and a book that tells all about it, both sent free by mail. Address, Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper. Don't make a mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

We are attracted by our opposites, which is why a woman likes a man who is a good listener.

HIDDEN DANGERS.

Nature gives timely warnings that no Tecumseh citizen should ignore.

Danger signal No. 1 comes from the kidney secretions. They will warn you when the kidneys are sick by sending out a thin, pale or thick, red ill-smelling urine, full of sediment. Well kidneys excrete a clear, amber fluid.

Danger signal No. 2 comes from the back. Pains dull, heavy, sharp or acute tell of sick kidneys and warn you of the approach of dropsy, diabetes or Bright's disease. Doan's Kidney Pills will cure sick kidneys permanently. Here's Tecumseh proof.

J. H. Welch living on Union street, Tecumseh, Mich., says: "I can heartily recommend Doan's Kidney Pills as they proved very beneficial to me. Years ago I strained myself and injured one of my kidneys began treatment at once but was not helped. At night my rest was disturbed by the frequent action of the kidney secretions, causing me to arise in the morning tired and unrefreshed. Finally I began using Doan's Kidney Pills procured at Wright & Son's drug store and now feel better than for several years. I have recommended Doan's Kidney Pills to my friends who have used them with the same satisfactory results."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn company, Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States. Remember the name Doan's,—and take no other.

A BIT TOO SHREWD.

One Venture In Which the Captain Overreached Himself.

One of Uncle Sam's customs officials, noted for his success in unmasking smugglers, said the other day in a discussion of a customs officer's duties:

"One must be shrewd, but not too shrewd; otherwise one overreaches oneself, like Captain Harrow of Islesborough.

"Captain Harrow of Islesborough was trading at Key West in a small vessel. Business took him up the coast to Tampa bay, and he bought twenty dozen chickens from a farmer at $4 a dozen.

"The chickens were all sizes—some a few days old and no bigger than canary birds; some fat and large, like turkey gobblers. The captain expected to make a lot of money out of them. He was very shrewd at a trade.

"Well, at Key West a hotel man came aboard and looked the chickens over.

"'They are fine birds,' he said. 'How much?'

"'If you pick them out yourself,' said Captain Harrow shrewdly, 'I'll have to charge you $6 a dozen. If I pick them out, I can let you have them for $3.'

"'All right. You pick them out,' said the hotel man.

"Captain Harrow picked out a dozen chickens of the canary bird size.

"'Here you are, twelve prime broilers,' he said, with a leer.

"'Go ahead,' said the hotel man calmly; 'another dozen.'

"The next dozen was of necessity larger.

"'Go on,' said the hotel man. 'Keep on picking them out.'

"And the third dozen was larger still. The captain looked at his patron anxiously.

"'Keep right on.'

"The next dozen was fine and plump, and the next comprised the biggest and fattest of the chickens.

"'Keep right on picking them out, captain.'

"Then at last Captain Harrow saw how he had overreached himself. The hotel man bought his whole lot of chickens at $3, and thus the captain lost on the speculation $20 in cash, to say nothing of feed and labor."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

MANY MARRIAGES INVALID.

English Clergy In Japan Discover They Have Made Grave Mistake.

Tokio, March 16.—The question of Anglican religious marriages in Japan is just now exciting considerable attention among foreign residents in general and English residents in particular. The admission of the Right Rev. Bishop Awdry, head of the Anglican church in Japan, leaves little room for doubt that some thirty or forty marriages contracted in conformity with the rites of the English church are in the eyes of the English law invalid and that the offsprings of such unions are illegitimate.

This tardy realization on the part of the Anglican clergy in Japan of a grave error for which they must be held morally responsible is the outcome of certain divorce proceedings which have been instituted in England by parties who were married by Bishop Awdry himself in Tokio. The judge declared that he was unable to grant a divorce, on the ground that he was not satisfied that in the eyes of English law a legal marriage had been contracted.

The supposed fact of the invalidity of these English religious marriages arises from an act of parliament, passed after the days of extra territoriality in Japan, in which the validity of marriages already contracted was recognized, but which said nothing with regard to future unions.

The clergy, in the person of their head, having frankly avowed their mistake, the futility of further recrimination is generally recognized, and the only point now worthy of consideration is a remedy. The only feasible one would seem to be another act of parliament to legalize these irregular marriages.

ON HIS BIRTHDAY

Judge Wood Will Pass Sentence on Harry Orchard.

Boise, Ida., March 16.—On the morning of his forty-second birthday—next Wednesday—in the district court of Canyon county, Harry Orchard, confessed murderer of former Governor Frank Steunenberg, who was killed by the explosion of a bomb at the gate to his residence, in Caldwell, on the evening of Dec. 30, 1905, will face Judge Wood, prepared to hear the death sentence meted out to him.

Harry Orchard, of his own volition and against the urgent pleadings of his attorney and others, refused when arraigned, on March 10, to let his previous plea of "not guilty" stand. He also refused to plead to a lesser degree of murder than first degree. He said:

"I am guilty and am ready to take my punishment. I have told the truth. I understand fully what must be the consequences."

Those who have been in close communication with Orchard, prison officers and spiritual advisers, all express the opinion that should an effort be made to commute his sentence or pardon him, Orchard will refuse to accept the same. Orchard refuses to make any statement for publication. He spends much time with books, especially the bible and religious works.

Lightning Explodes Magazines.

Boston, March 16.—Two powder magazines in South Acton, belonging to the American Powder company, were exploded by lightning during a severe thunder storm. The buildings were in an isolated spot, and no one was near them.

Another Glass.

The seventeenth century puritan preachers talked for two hours or more not "by the clock," but by the hour glass. At least one of them turned the glass to humorous account. He found himself no further than the middle of the sermon when the sands had run out. "Drunkenness" was his subject, and, reversing the horologe, "Let's have another glass," said he. Sir Roger L'Estrange tells of a parish clerk who sat patiently until the preacher was three-quarters through his second glass and the majority of his hearers had quietly left the church. Rising at a convenient pause, he asked the minister to close the church door when he had done, "and push the key under it, as he and the few that remained were about to retire."

A FINE SIGN LANGUAGE

Droll Incident In the Reign of James I. of England.

A TRICK ON AN AMBASSADOR

The Different Interpretations of the Same Acts Performed by a Crotchety Spaniard and a Hard Headed and Canny Old Scotch Butcher.

It is said that King James I. on removing to London was waited upon by the Spanish ambassador, a man of erudition, but who had a crotchet in his head that every country should have a professor of signs to teach him and the like of him to understand one another.

The ambassador was lamenting one day before the king this great desiderata throughout all Europe, when the king said to him: "Why, I have a professor of signs in the northernmost college in my dominions—viz, at Aberdeen—but it is a great way off, perhaps 100 miles."

"Were it 10,000 leagues off I shall see him," said the ambassador, "and am determined to set out in two or three days." The king saw he had committed himself and wrote, or caused to be written, to the University of Aberdeen, stating the case and desiring the professors to put him off some way or make the best of him. The ambassador arrived, was received with great solemnity, but soon began to inquire which of them had the honor to be professor of signs.

Being told that the professor was absent in the highlands and would return nobody knew when, the ambassador said, "I will wait his return, though it were twelve months."

Seeing that this would not do and that they had to entertain him at a great expense all the while, they contrived a stratagem. There was one Geordy, a butcher, blind of an eye, a droll fellow, with much wit and roguery about him. He was got instructed to be professor of signs, but not to speak on pain of death. Geordy cheerfully undertook the role. The ambassador was told that the professor of signs would be at home next day, at which he rejoiced greatly.

Next day Geordy was gowned, wigged and placed in a chair of state in a room in the college, all the professors and the ambassador being in an adjoining room. The ambassador was shown into Geordy's room and left to converse with him as well as he could, the professors awaiting the issue with fear and trembling.

The ambassador held up one of his fingers to Geordy; Geordy held up two of his. The ambassador held up three; Geordy clinched his fist and looked stern. The ambassador then took an orange from his pocket and held it up; Geordy took a piece of barley cake from his pocket and held that up. After which the ambassador bowed to him and retired to the other professor, who anxiously inquired his opinion of their brother.

"He is a perfect miracle," said the ambassador. "I would not give him for the wealth of the Indies."

"Well," said the professors, "to descend to particulars."

"Why," said the ambassador, "I first held up one finger, denoting that there is one God; he held up two, signifying that these are the Father and Son. I held up three, meaning the Father, the Son and Holy Ghost; he clinched his fist, to say that these three are one. I then took out an orange, signifying the goodness of God, who gives his creatures not only the necessaries, but the luxuries, of life, upon which the wonderful man presented a piece of bread, showing that it was the staff of life and preferable to every luxury."

The professors were glad that matters had turned out so well; so, having got quit of the ambassador, they next got Geordy to hear his version of the signs.

"Well, Geordy, how have you come on and what do you think of yon man?"

"The rascal!" says Geordy. "What did he do first, think ye? He held up one finger, as much as to say, You have only one eye. Then I held up two, meaning that my one eye was perhaps as good as both his. Then the fellow held up three of his fingers, to say that there were but three eyes between us, and then I was so mad at the scoundrel that I steeked my neive and was to come a whack on the side of his head and would ha' done it, too, but for your sakes. Then the rascal did not stop with his provocation here, but, forsooth, takes out an orange, as much as to say, Your poor, beggarly, cold country cannot produce that. I showed him a whang of a bear bannock, meaning that I did na' care a farthing for him nor his trash neither as lang's I ha' this. But, by a' that's guid," concluded Geordy, "I'm angry yet that I didn't thrash the hide o' the scoundrel!"—London T. P.'s Weekly.

The Wily Owl.

A party of horsemen were traveling along Bridge creek, a tributary of Bad Water river, Wyoming, when their horses suddenly shied off the track at the sound of a "rattle." Search was made for the snake, but it was finally found that the sound proceeded from the burrowing owl, which lives in the burrows of the prairie dog, often, it is said, in company with the rattlesnake. Seated on a post the party heard the owl give a third rattle. And whenever they passed the spot it gave warning by its rattle, and the horses always shied off the track in alarm.—American Naturalist.

The Raven.

Writing on "Birds in Christian Legend and Symbol" in the National Review, Rev. R. L. Giles says:

The raven is looked upon with divided feelings. He is the "bird of ill omen" par excellence. "Corvo di mal augurio" is indeed the Italian equivalent of the phrase and "Unglucksrabe" the German one. According to the fathers, he is the emblem of procrastination, with his cry of "Cras, cras"—"Tomorrow, tomorrow." His not having returned to the ark has always been remembered against him. Yet he, too, is a pious bird. He played his part in the Christmas mystery. It was said that at the hour of the great birth the crock crowed "Christus natus est," the raven croaked "Quando?" the rook rawed "Hac nocte," the ox mooed "Ubi?" the sheep bleated "Bethlehem," and the ass brayed "Eamus." This is found as early as the fourth century.

PISO'S
Conquers That Cough
Don't go around with a mortgage on your chest. Every day that you let it remain, the tighter its hold becomes. The cough becomes more violent and consequently the delicate bronchial passages get inflamed under the continual hacking; the lungs become lacerated under the constantly recurring paroxysms.
With Piso's Cure
there is a soothing and healing effect upon the entire respiratory system. It stops the tickling in the throat, stops the cough, relieves the lungs, and makes the test for nearly half a century as the one reliable remedy for consumption, colds and all chest affections. It goes right to the seat of the trouble, supplies the healing balsam, and nature is restored to healthful conditions. Piso's Cure is absolutely free from all objectionable ingredients. Its perfect safety, pleasant taste and unequalled efficacy make it the ideal remedy for man, woman and child. If you have a cough, try it out today.

TARGET PRACTICE BEGINS.

Magdalena Bay Will Splash Under Rain of Shot and Shell.

San Diego, Cal., March 16.—The American battleship fleet, now at anchor in Magdalena bay, Lower California, began the serious work of record target practice this morning, according to official wireless dispatches received here, and for the next two or three weeks the usually quiet waters of that harbor will splash and dance under the rain of shot and shell.

The fleet is anchored in the north end of the bay, which is the most sheltered part of this natural haven. Looking to the south, there is a broad expanse of water, nearly twenty miles long, while the width of the bay at the entrance is nearly twelve miles. The targets will be set and ranges established at the lower end of the bay.

The ranges are to be first set at 3,000 yards. They will be next extended to 2,000 yards and then to a maximum of 3,000 yards for the smaller target, which is 12 by 21 feet in size. For the great turret guns—the twelve and thirteen inch rifles—the ranges are lengthened from 6,000 to 9,000 yards, and the targets are increased to 30 by 60 feet. As one ordnance officer on the battleships expressed it, it is absolutely essential that the gunners should be able to see the target before they can train the sights upon it. At 9,000 yards, the white canvas object to be shot at appears as only a tiny speck upon the water.

THE QUADRANT.

How the Idea of the Device Came to Thomas Godfrey.

Concerning Thomas Godfrey, a famous American mathematician, there is an interesting account in the "Literary History of Philadelphia."

Thomas Godfrey was a glazier. He seemed to be one of the most singular phenomena that ever appeared in the learned world.

One day while at work at his trade a young girl came to a pump and filled a pail with water, which was left upon the sidewalk. The sun's rays were reflected from Godfrey's glass to the pail of water and then to his eye, thus completing a triangle. This is said to have suggested to the glazier's mind the idea which in 1730 became the basis for the double reflecting sea quadrant.

Prior to this time English mariners had been using Davis' bow to ascertain their latitude at sea, but it could not be adjusted in a storm. Godfrey gave the subject careful study, taught himself Latin in order to read Newton's "Principia" and endeavored to have the value of his invention recognized in England. While thus engaged he determined to have the device tested on a ship bound for the West Indies. In Jamaica the quadrant was exhibited, or presented, to an English sea captain. Thus the important discovery came into the possession of Hadley, a mathematical instrument maker in London, whose name it usually bears in spite of the long assertions of influential Americans of the eighteenth century to have Godfrey's claims es-

Wakeful?

Sleeplessness Is a Sign of Nerve Trouble and Should Be Looked To.

There are three different manifestations of sleeplessness.

First, hardly to sleep a wink all night, second, to lie awake a long time before falling asleep; third, to fall asleep soon, waking up after several hours and then find it hard to sleep again.

They mean that somewhere in the nerve fibres, somewhere in the brain cells, somewhere in the blood vessels that carry blood to the brain, something is radically wrong, and must be righted, or the end may be worse than death.

To right it, take Dr. Miles' Nervine.

They indicate diseases which may lead to Epilepsy, Fits, St. Vitus' Dance, Nervous Prostration, Paralysis, Insanity. Nothing will give such quick and lasting relief as Dr. Miles' Nervine.

"My husband had been sick for weeks, could not sit up to have his bed made, with all the medical help we could get he continued to grow worse. He could neither sleep nor eat. Our baby girl was sent AWAY, and all callers turned away because he could not stand a bit of talking. I read of a case of nervous prostration cured by Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine. We began giving it to him, and in a few days he was able to be dressed. From that time he steadily improved. Nervine saved his life."—MRS. A. G. HASKIN, Stryville, N. Y.

There is more catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together and until recently was supposed to be incurable. For many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer $100 for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

Notice to our Customers.

We are pleased to announce that Foley's honey and tar for coughs, colds and lung troubles is not affected by the National Pure Food and drug law as it contains no opiates or other harmful drugs and we recommend it as a safe remedy for children and adults. Sold by all druggists in Tecumseh.

There are countless roads on all sides to the grave.

This is what Hon. Jake Moore, State Warden of Georgia, says of Kodol for dyspepsia: "E. C. DeWitt & Co., Chicago, Ill.—Dear Sirs—I have suffered more than twenty years from indigestion. About eighteen months ago I had grown so much worse that I could not digest a crust of corn bread and could not retain anything on my stomach. I lost 25 lbs.; in fact I made up my mind that I could not live but a short time, when a friend of mine recommended Kodol. I consented to try it to please him and I was better in one day. I now weigh more than I ever did in my life and am in better health than for many years. Kodol did it. I keep a bottle constantly and write this hoping that humanity will be benefitted. Yours very truly, Jake C. Moore, Atlanta, Aug. 10, 1904." Sold by all druggists.

Do not make unjust gains, they are equal to a loss.

Given up to die.

B. Spiegel, 1204 N. Virginia street, Evansville, Ind., writes: "For over five years I was troubled with kidney and bladder affections which caused me much pain and worry. I lost flesh and was all run down, and a year ago had to abandon work entirely. I had three of the best physicians who did me no good and I was given up to die. Foley's Kidney Cure was recommended and the first bottle gave me great relief, and after taking the second bottle was entirely cured." Why not let it help you? Sold by all druggists in Tecumseh.

The early riser is healthy, cheerful and industrious.

Be careful about that little cough. Get something right away; some good, reliable remedy that will move the bowels. Kennedy's laxative cough syrup acts gently yet promptly on the bowels and allays inflammation at the same time. It is pleasant to take and it is especially recommended for children, as it tastes nearly as good as maple sugar. Sold by all druggists.

The best swimmer is the first to drown himself.

No case on record.

There is no case on record of a cough or cold resulting in pneumonia or consumption after Foley's honey and tar has been taken as it will stop your cough and break up your cold quickly. Refuse any but the genuine Foley's honey and tar in the yellow package. Contains no opiates and is safe and sure. Sold by all druggists in Tecumseh.

Is it not sheer madness to live poor to die rich.

Orino Laxative Fruit Syrup is a new remedy, an improvement on the laxatives of former years, as it does not gripe or nauseate and is pleasant to take. It is guaranteed. For sale by all druggists in Tecumseh.

It is not easy to sting a bear with a straw.

A severe cold that may develope into pneumonia over night, can be cured quickly by taking Foley's honey and tar. It will cure the most obstinate racking cough and strengthen your lungs. The genuine is in the yellow package. For sale by all druggists in Tecumseh.

There is nothing ill said that is not ill taken.

Stops itching instantly. Cures piles, eczema, tetter, itch, hives, herpies—Doan's Ointment. At any drug store.

Second Seventy-seven

By FRANK H. SPEARMAN

Copyright, 1900, by Frank H. Spearman

IT is a bad grade yet. But before the new work was done on the river division Beverly hill was a terror to trainmen.

On rainy Sundays old switchmen in the Zanesville yards still fell in their shanties of the night the Blackwood bridge went out and Cameron's stock train got away on the hill, with the Denver flier caught at the foot like a rat in a trap.

Ben Buckley was only a big boy then, braking on freights. I was dispatching under Alex Campbell on the West End. Ben was a tall, loose jointed fellow, but gentle as a kitten; legs as long as pinch bars, yet none too long running for the Beverly switch that night. His great chum in those days was Andy Cameron. Andy was the youngest engineer on the line. The first time I ever saw them together Andy, short and chubby as a duck, was dancing around, half dressed, on the roof of the bath house, trying to get away from Ben, who had the fire hose below, playing on him with a two inch stream of ice water. They were up to some sort of a prank all the time.

June was usually a rush month with us. From the coast we caught the new crop Japan teas and the fall importations of China silks. California still sent her fruits, and Colorado was beginning cattle shipments. From Wyoming came sheep and from Oregon steers, and all these not merely in carloads, but in solid trains. At times we were swamped. The overland traffic alone was enough to keep us busy. On top of it came a great movement of grain from Nebraska that summer, and to crown our troubles a rate war sprang up. Every man, woman and child east of the Mississippi appeared to have but one object in life—that was to get to California and to go over our road. The passenger traffic burdened our resources to the last degree.

I was putting on new men every day then. We start them at braking on freights. Usually they work for years at that before they get a train, but when a train dispatcher is short on crews he must have them and can only press the best material within reach. Ben Buckley had not been braking three months when I called him up one day and asked him if he wanted a train.

"Yes, sir, I'd like one first rate, but you know I haven't been braking very long, Mr. Reed," said he frankly.

"How long have you been in the train service?"

I spoke brusquely, though I knew without even looking at my service card just how long it was.

"Three months, Mr. Reed."

It was right to a day.

"I'll probably have to send you out on 77 this afternoon." I saw him stiffen like a ramrod. "You know we're pretty short," I continued.

"Yes, sir."

"But do you know enough to keep your head on your shoulders and your train on your orders?"

Ben laughed a little. "I think I do. Will there be two sections today?"

"They're loading eighteen cars of stock at Ogalalla. If we get any hogs off the Beaver there will be two big sections. I shall mark you up for the first one anyway and send you out right behind the flier. Get your badge and your punch from Carpenter, and, whatever you do, Buckley, don't get rattled."

"No, sir. Thank you, Mr. Reed."

But his "thank you" was so pleasant I couldn't altogether ignore it. I compromised with a cough. Perfect courtesy even in the hands of the awkwardest boy that ever wore his trousers short is a surprisingly handy thing to disarm gruff people with. Ben was undeniably awkward, his legs were too long and his trousers decidedly out of touch with his feet, but I turned away with the conviction that in spite of his gawkiness there was something to the boy. That night proved it.

When the flier pulled in from the west in the afternoon it carried two extra sleepers. In all eight Pullmans, and every one of them loaded to the ventilators. While the train was changing engines and crews the excursionists swarmed out of the hot cars to walk up and down the platform. They were from New York and had a band with them—as jolly a crowd as we ever hauled—and I noticed many boys and girls sprinkled among the grown folks.

As the heavy train pulled slowly out the band played, the women waved handkerchiefs and the boys shouted themselves hoarse.

Half an hour after the flier left, 77, the fast stock freight, wound like a great snake around the bluff after it. Ben Buckley, tall and straight as a pine, stood on the caboose. It was his first train, and he looked as if he felt it.

In the evening I got reports of heavy rains east of us; and after 77 reported "out" of Turner Junction and pulled over the divide toward Beverly it was storming hard all along the line. By the time they reached the hill Ben had his men out setting brakes—tough work on that kind of a night, but when the big engine struck the bluff the heavy train was well in hand, and it rolled down the long grade as gently as a curtain.

Ben was none too careful, for halfway down the hill they exploded torpedoes. Through the driving storm the tail lights of the flier were presently seen. As they pulled carefully ahead Ben made his way through the mud and rain to the head end and found the passenger train stalled. Just before them was Blackwood creek, bank full, and the bridge swinging over the swollen stream like a grapevine.

At the foot of Beverly hill there is a siding—a long siding, once used as a sort of cutoff to the upper Zanesville yards. This side track parallels the main track for half a mile, and on this siding Ben, as soon as he saw the situation, drew in with his train so that it lay beside the passenger train and left the main line clear behind. It then became his duty to guard the track to the rear, where the second section of the stock train would soon be due.

It was pouring rain and as dark as a pocket. He started his hind and brakeman back on the run with red lights and torpedoes to warn the second section well up the hill. Then walking across from his caboose, he got under the lee of the hind Pullman sleeper to watch for the expected headlight.

The storm increased in violence. It was not the rain driving in torrents, not the lightning blazing nor the deafening crashes of thunder that worried him, but the wind. It blew a gale. In the glare of the lightning he could see the oaks which crowned the bluffs whip like willows in the storm. It swept quartering down the Beverly cut as if it would tear the ties from under the steel. Suddenly he saw far up in the black sky a star blazing. It was the headlight of Second Seventy-seven.

A whistle cut the wind, then another. It was the signal for brakes. The second section was coming down the steep grade. He wondered how far back his man had got with the bombs. Even as he wondered he saw a yellow flash below the headlight. It was the first torpedo. The second section was already well down the top of the hill. Could they hold it to the bottom?

Like an answer came shorter and sharper the whistle for brakes. Ben thought he knew who was on that engine; thought he knew that whistle, for engineers whistle as differently as they talk. He still hoped and believed—knowing who was on the engine—that the brakes would hold the heavy load, but he feared—

A man running up in the rain passed him. Ben shouted and held up his lantern. It was his brakeman.

"Who's pulling Second Seventy-seven?" he cried.

"Andy Cameron."

"How many air cars has he got?"

"Six or eight," shouted Ben. "It's the wind, Daly—the wind. Andy can hold her if anybody can. But the wind; did you ever see such a blow?"

Even while he spoke the cry for brakes came a third time on the storm.

A frightened Pullman porter opened the rear door of the sleeper. Five hundred people lay in the excursion train, unconscious of this avalanche rolling down upon them.

The conductor of the flier ran up to Ben in a panic.

"Buckley, they'll telescope us."

"Can you pull ahead any?"

"The bridge is out."

"Get out your passengers," said Ben's brakeman.

"There's no time," cried the passenger conductor wildly, running off. He was panic stricken. The porter tried to speak. He took hold of the brakeman's arm, but his voice died in his throat. Fear paralyzed him. Down the wind came Cameron's whistle clamoring now in alarm. It meant the worst, and Ben knew it. The stock train was running away.

There were plenty of things to do if there was only time, but there was hardly time to think. The passenger crew were running about like men distracted, trying to get the sleeping travelers out. Ben knew they could not possibly reach a tenth of them. In the thought of what it meant an inspiration came like a flash.

He seized his brakeman by the shoulder. For two weeks the man carried the marks of his hand.

"Daley," he cried in a voice like a pistol crack, "get those two stockmen out of our caboose! Quick, man! I'm going to throw Cameron into the cattle."

It was a chance—single, desperate, but yet a chance—the only chance that offered to save the helpless passengers in his charge.

If he could reach the siding switch ahead of the runaway train he could throw the deadly catapult on the siding and into his own train and so save the unconscious travelers. Before the words were out of his mouth he started up the track at topmost speed.

The angry wind staggered him. It blew out his lantern, but he flung it away, for he could throw the switch in the dark. A sharp gust tore half his rain coat from his back. Ripping off the rest, he ran on. When the wind took his breath he turned his back and fought for another. Blinding sheets of rain poured on him. Water streaming down the track caught his feet. A slivered tie tripped him, and, falling headlong, the sharp ballast cut his wrists and knees like broken glass. In desperate haste he dashed ahead again. The headlight loomed before him like a mountain of flame. There was light enough now through the sheets of rain that swept down on him, and there ahead, the train almost on it, was the switch.

Could he make it?

A cry from the sleeping children rose in his heart. Another breath, an instant floundering, a slipping leap, and he had it. He pushed the key into the lock, threw the switch and snapped it and, to make deadly sure, braced himself against the target rod. Then he looked.

No whistling now. It was past that. He knew the fireman would have jumped. Cameron too? No, not Andy, not if the pit yawned in front of his pilot.

He saw streams of fire flying from many wheels, he felt the glare of a dazzling light, and, with a rattling crash, the ponies shot into the switch. The bar in his hands rattled as if it would jump from the socket, and, lurching frightfully, the monster took the siding. A flare of lightning lit the cab as it shot past, and he saw Cameron leaning from the cab window with face of stone, his eyes riveted on the gigantic drivers that threw a sheet of fire from the sanded rails.

"Jump!" screamed Ben, useless as he knew it was. What voice could live in that hell of noise? What man escape from that cab now?

One, two, three, four cars pounded over the split rails in half as many seconds. Ben, running dizzily for life to the right, heard above the roar of the storm and screech of the sliding wheels a ripping, tearing crash, the harsh scrape of escaping steam, the hoarse cries of the wounded cattle. And through the dreadful dark and the fury of the babel the wind howled in a gale and the heavens poured a flood.

Trembling from excitement and exhaustion, Ben staggered down the main track. A man with a lantern ran against him. It was the brakeman who had been back with the torpedoes. He was crying hysterically.

They stumbled over a body. Seizing the lantern, Ben turned the prostrate man over and wiped the mud from his face. Then he held the lantern close and gave a great cry. It was Andy Cameron—unconscious, true, but soon very much alive and no worse than badly bruised. How the good God who watches over plucky engineers had thrown him out from the horrible wreckage only he knew. But there Andy lay, and with a lighter heart Ben headed a wrecking crew to begin the task of searching for any who might by fatal chance have been caught in the crash.

And while the trainmen of the freights worked at the wreck the passenger train was backed slowly—so slowly and so smoothly—up over the switch and past, over the hill and past and so to Turner Junction and around by Oxford to Zanesville.

When the sun rose the earth glowed in the freshness of its June shower bath. The flier, now many miles from Beverly hill, was speeding in toward Omaha, and mothers, waking their little ones in the berths, told them how close death had passed while they slept. The little girls did not quite understand it, though they tried very hard, and were very grateful to that man, whom they never saw and whom they would never see. But the little boys—never mind the little boys—they understood it, to the youngest urchin on the train, and fifty times their papas had to tell them how far Ben ran and how fast to save their lives. And one little boy—I wish I knew his name—went with his papa to the depot master at Omaha when the flier stopped and gave him his toy watch and asked him please to give it to that man who had saved his mamma's life by running so far in the rain, and please to tell him how much obliged he was—if he would be so kind.

So the little toy watch came to our superintendent and so to me, and I, sitting at Cameron's bedside talking the wreck over with Ben, gave it to him. And the big fellow looked as pleased as if it had been a jeweled chronometer. Indeed that was the only medal Ben got.

The truth is we had no gold medals to distribute out on the West End in those days. We gave Ben the best we had, and that was a passenger run. But he is a great fellow among the railroad men. And on stormy nights switchmen in the Zanesville yards, smoking in their shanties, still tell of that night, that storm, and how Ben Buckley threw Second Seventy-seven at the foot of Beverly hill.

Vulgarity.

At a mountain hunting resort a richly dressed, florid looking woman, bedecked with jewels in the daytime, remarked to one of her family party in a loud, confident tone, "They're the same crowd; I seen them people at the station in New York." The tone, the atrocious mangling of the English language, the dress and manner, elicited the comment from an old gentleman, "How utterly coarse, common and vulgar!"

The guides and native hunters violate all the rules of grammar in their speech. They say, "Hank, I hain't got no terbacker in this coat," and the like, and yet their rude and uncouth speech does not strike any one used to the words as "vulgar." Rough and ungrammatical speech from the lips of rough and unlettered men seems rather natural, but there is a violent inharmony and inappropriateness in common and hideous language from the mouths of men and women who, from their wealth, opportunities, dress and way of life, may be expected to pay some attention to the refinements and elegancies of life.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Go to Cuba, Young Man!

Thirty years ago the advice to young men was to "Go West." Many did, and from a comparatively small investment became not only comfortable but wealthy. The OPPORTUNITY is now CUBA. What the West did in thirty years will be done in Cuba in five years. Cuba has everything in its favor. About as far from New York as is Chicago. WONDERFUL FERTILITY. PERFECT CLIMATE. The best proposition in Cuba is a Citrus Fruit Plantation. Investment absolutely safe. Returns sure and large. We have the land, plant the groves, and sell on easy terms or for cash. A small investment makes a family comfortable for all time. Returns EVERY year.

RIOT

MONDAY NIGHT

Fifteen were arrested but bailed out by Ann Arbor business men.

Because a student was ordered put out of the Star theatre in Ann Arbor last Saturday night for being smart and talkative while attending the performance, a mob was organized and the Star theatre was completely wrecked on Monday night. Several of the students were arrested but are now at liberty, fifteen of them being obliged to furnish $1,000 bail. The bail was promptly furnished in each case by business men.

At a mass meeting held by the students they decided to raise money by popular subscription to reimburse the owners whose property was damaged in the riot on condition that the criminal charges against the students be dismissed. The damage amounts to $2,500. The students appeared for examination this morning at 10 o'clock.

MAKE IT YOURSELF

A well known authority on rheumatism gives the readers of a large New York daily paper the following valuable yet simple and harmless prescription which anyone can easily prepare at home:

Fluid extract dandelion, ½ ounce; compound kargon, 1 ounce; compound syrup sarsaparilla, 3 ounces.

Mix by shaking well in a bottle and take a teaspoonful after each meal and at bedtime.

He states that the ingredients can be obtained from any good prescription pharmacy at small cost and being of vegetable extraction are harmless to take.

This pleasant mixture, if taken regularly a few days, is said to overcome almost any case of rheumatism. The pain and swelling, if any, diminishes with each dose until permanent results are obtained, without injuring the stomach. While there are many so-called rheumatism remedies, patent medicines, etc., some of which do give relief, few really give permanent results and the above will no doubt be greatly appreciated by many sufferers here at this time.

Inquiry at the drug stores of this neighborhood elicits the information that these drugs are harmless and can be bought separately or the druggists here will mix the prescription for our readers, if asked to.

WORK BEING DONE IN OUR CHURCHES.

What is accomplished through the Social Life.

FRIENDS CHURCH.

The regular monthly missionary meeting is postponed until next week.

Mrs. Brown of Raisin Center, preached last Sunday morning and evening.

The following clippings from the Pittsburgh Chronicle Telegraph tell something of the convention which the pastor has been attending:

Pittsburgh, Tuesday evening, Mar. 10.

When Dr. John Willis Baer, president of Occidental College of Los Angeles, Cal., called the first international convention of the young people's missionary movement of the United States and Canada to order at 11 o'clock this morning in Exposition Hall, more than 3,000 consecrated men and women, representing nearly all quarters of the globe, were in their seats. It was the largest religious gathering ever held under one roof in Pittsburgh. The hall is handsomely decorated in the nation's colors and flags beautifully festooned hang in profusion all about the hall. Covering the wall behind the stage is a huge map of the world. A cross lighted by electricity is suspended in the center of the may and the thought it represents is a beautiful one and makes a deep impression on every body. On either side of the hall are large banners bearing the inscription, "There remaineth yet very much land to be possessed" and "My Jesus, my King, my Life, my All, I again dedicate my Soul to Thee."

The purpose of the convention is to educate the young people to the necessity of sending the gospel to all ports of the world and the need of missions. The present movement had its origin in 1901 at Silver Bay, N. Y., under the leadership of L. W. Wishart. The idea at first was not looked upon with much favor but after the plans were revised it became exceedingly popular. It was decided to make up the board of the secretaries of the different denominational missionary societies.

The present movement has taken the place of the student volunteer movement generally. Everything possible is done to place the teachings of Christ before all peoples of the world. Hundreds of missionaries from various parts of the world are attending the convention. A visit to the dining hall at the exposition, where the missionary exhibit is being show, is convincing to any one that the gospel has made rapid progress.

One exhibit, a bed from India upon which the Hindoos do penance, attracts much attention. The bed rests about 4 or 5 inches above the floor and is about 3 or 4 feet long. There is but one cross plank and through this are driven nails, the sharp points of which protrude upwards. Pictures showing how a native has done penance for 12 years accompany the exhibit.

EPISCOPAL CHURCH.

The new lesson quarterlies for the Sunday school are now out.

Mrs. Henry Farnsworth of Napoleon, O., attended service Sunday.

Rev. Kemp held services at Christs church, in Adrian Wednesday.

Rev. and Mrs Kemp will take tea with Miss Alice Combs tonight.

Mr. Fred Field of Hastings, a former member of our parish, attended service Sunday morning.

The choir have been doing good work this winter and it is greatly appreciated by the members of the parish.

A general election of officers of the Sunday school will take place Sunday a. m. A good attendance is desired.

Friday's afternoon service was well attended, the choir rendering "The Radiant Morn," during the offertory with fine effect.

Bishop Williams of Detroit, known and beloved throughout the state, former Dean Trinity at Cleveland, preached there last Sunday. He also held two lenten mid-week services and the people who wished to attend were unable to find seats.

The missionary meeting for March was held at the home of Mrs. T. C. Harris Friday afternoon. Mrs. Prichard had an article on the work Bishop Knox is doing. Mr. Kemp read a letter from his nephew who is now in China, telling of the work the church is doing there. Bishop Hare and his work in the Dakotas was discussed. For many years Bishop Hare has driven over the wide-reaching South Dakota prairies, ministering to the scattered Indians by day and at night sleeping under his wagon. Both the affectionate loyalty of his Indian friends and the gratitude of the church follow him in his good works.

Bishop Williams, Episcopal bishop of Michigan, in addressing a Lenten meeting this week touched on Rockefeller's example. He declared him to be "morally color blind."

"As some people advocate a double monetary standard, many people practice a double religious standard. They rigorously observe the ritual on the Sabbath but during the week they worship more comfortable gods. The world's richest man is morally color blind. He cannot distinguish morals when they cross the line into his business life."

He declared Rockefeller kept his personal life clean while in business he builds up systems which cannot be justified.

"Laws and morals are not always convenient for business," said the bishop, "therefore they are disregarded. Many men hold them good for family life or to be taught in the kindergarten, but consider them to thin and fragile for use in business or politics. These men, respectable in their home life, smug citizens, deliberately hire the best talent to show them how to evade the law."

PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH.

The Bible school will practice its Easter music Sunday.

Rev. and Mrs. J. W. Dunning spent Thursday evening and Friday with his parents in Holloway.

It is expected that special prayer services will be held the four days preceding Easter. Further announcements next week.

The C. E. society held a business meeting and social at the home of H. D. Cutting Monday evening. Plans were made for two entertainments in the near future, one given by the boys and one by the girls.

A very interesting prayer service was held Wednesday evening when verbal reports were presented from the different departments of the church and some time devoted to prayer for the different departments. Elmer Slayton sang a solo "Star of the East." The attendance is climbing, 65 being present last evening.

The church has closed its year for benevolent work. During the year ending Mar. 31 the church has contributed in all $909 to benevolence. The offerings of the year are apportioned: Home mission $339, Foreign mission $299, education $36, Sunday school mission $46, church erection $36, ministerial relief $36, Freedmen $35, college aid $24. In addition about $90 has been contributed to the temperance cause. Of the total amount the church proper gave $508, the Mission society $161, the C. E. $20 and the Bible school $120.

At the evening service Sunday there will be given the first of a series of musical evenings. The musical program will be given by the men's choir, assisted by Miss Wilbur, Miss Kriedler, Mr. Keeney, soloists, and Dusine Service, violinist. The pastor will preach a short sermon, "Make your Life a Song." The program in part is as follows:

Anthem, "The Prodigal" — Men's choir.
Violin solo—Dusine Service.
Selection—Boys' quartette.
Solo, "How long wilt Thou forget Me"—Miss Kriedler.
Anthem—Men's choir.
Solo, "Oh Eyes that are Weary"—Miss Wilbur.
Solo, "The Lost Chord"—Mr. Keeney.

BAPTIST CHURCH.

Mrs. Dr. North is ill with grippe.

Little Jay Crane is quite ill with scarlet fever.

Mrs. Harry Moore is confined to the house with rheumatism.

Miss Effie Yawger visited over Sunday with her sister in Adrian.

Vernor Finch is home from Kalamazoo college for his spring vacation.

Albert Howard was leader of the prayer meeting Wednesday evening.

Mrs. Will Osborn and son, Kenneth, returned yesterday from a two weeks' visit in Toledo.

A number of the ladies spent the day yesterday at the parsonage, helping Mrs. Kamm with some sewing.

Miss Lyda Burton entertained her brother, Adison Burton, of Onaway, Mich., this week, who was on his way to Arkansas.

The girls of the Farther Light Society go to Adrian to-night to listen to a talk by Miss Elgie, a missionary from China whom the Farther Light Girls of Michigan are supporting in her work; she is in the U. S. on leave of abence because of sickness and over work.

Pres.—Mrs. Kamm.
Vice Pres.—Mrs. Fannie Bryan.
Sec.—Mrs. Carrie Bryan.
Treas.—Mrs. Ella Moore.
Collectors.—Mrs. Sheldon and Mrs. Finch.

UNIVERSALIST CHURCH.

Mr. and Mrs. F. A. McNeil visited in Clinton over Sunday.

Mrs. Ethel Mathias attended the funeral of Baby McConnell at Tipton Tuesday.

Henry Sweet is confined to the house with a serious lameness induced by an accident at the foundry.

The meeting of the Bible study class was postponed until tonight on account of Miss Young's absence.

Let all the helpers in the Ladies Union get in line to render assistance at the church supper Mar. 27.

Rev. Miss Young officiated at the funeral of the infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jay McConnell at Tipton Tuesday.

Rev. I. C. Deyo is conducting special services at our church in Manchester, and Miss Young has been in attendance a couple of days this week.

Universalist church, Rev. Blanche Young, minister. Morning service at 10 o'clock, Sunday school following. Y. P. C. U. at 6 o'clock. Bring your Bibles to all these services.

The regular services at the Friends church Sunday both morning and evening. Bible school immediately following the morning service. Junior C. E. at 3 p. m. C. E. at 6 o'clock. Everyone welcome.

Episcopal church, C. C. Kemp rector. Sunday school at 11:30. Afternoon service at 4 p. m. Subject "The Formation of the Pentatench." Service Tuesday and Friday nights at 7 o'clock followed by choir practice. Subject Tuesday "Temptation of the World."

Presbyterian church, John Wirt Dunning, minister. Morning worship at 10 a. m. The pastor will preach on "The Queen of Sheba—an inquisitive woman and a foolish wise man." Bible school at 11:15. Men's class at same hour. Young people's meeting at 6.

At the Baptist church. Divine worship with preaching at 10 a. m. and 7 p. m. Morning theme "A 20th Century Christian or going to the Primaries." Evening topic will be "The Victorious Life." Prayer circle in Dr. North's class room at 9:45 a. m. Bible school at 11:15. B. Y. P. U. prayer meeting at 6 p. m. Everyone welcome.

Good for Everybody.

Norman Coulter, a prominent architect in the Delbert building, San Francisco, says: "I fully endorse all that has been said of Electric Bitters as a tonic medicine. It is good for everybody. It corrects stomach, liver and kidney disorders in a prompt and efficient manner and builds up the system." Electric Bitters is the best spring medicine ever sold over a druggist's counter, as a blood purifier it is unequaled. 50c. at C. A. Wright & Son's drug store.

Oil Meal

We could write a book on the merits and value of Oil Meal. That is, if we had the space and the time. However, we want to make a point or two in a few words.

Oil Meal is to your stock what a good spring tonic is to you. Sticks them up, put red blood and renewed energy into them and produces a general condition of good health which helps to ward off disease and insures you against sickness and loss. Not a medicine, however, but a food. It is only of late that its feeding value has been appreciated by the farmer but it is now being used in rapidly growing quantities. As a milk producer it has three times the value of corn, twice the value of wheat bran and two and half times the value of clover hay or oats. No well ordered farm should go a day without a supply of our Oil Meal. Highly recommended by the experimental stations of the United States.

100 lb. SACKS at $1.55.
$31 PER TON.

Rules for Feeding Oil Meal.

It should be used with other food to increase its nutricious quality. For a COW 1 to 3 quarts of OIL MEAL DAILY. For a HORSE, 1 pint to 1 quart feed daily, together with other feed, such as bran, middlings, corn meal, oats or chopped feed, will bring valuable results. For SHEEP, HOGS & CALVES a small quantity scalded and made into slop should be fed as soon as weaned, and increased daily as they grow. For FOWLS, mix with corn meal, etc. Experience and good judgment will direct he feeding, not to use it too sparingly to obtain valuable results.

Your first order will mean others.

Primary Election Notice.

To the qualified electors of the township of Tecumseh:

You are hereby notified that the primary to select a candidate for Judge in the Thirty-ninth Judicial District, will be held on Tuesday, March 24th, from the hours 9 a. m. until 5 p. m.

You are further notified that a special election will be held Monday, April 6th, 1908, for the purpose of electing a judge of the circuit court for the county of Lenawee, constituting the thirty-ninth Judicial Circuit, pursuant to Act No. 75 of the Public Acts of 1907.

Also the joint resolution proposing an amendment to section ten of article fourteen of the constitution, relative to the taxation of property by a State Board of assessors, will be voted on.

Rebuilt Pianos of Well Known Makes.

Some of the most charming pianos and certainly some of the most wonderfully reasonable prices, are to be found in the big exchange department in Lyon & Healey's. Here you find celebrated pianos such as the Steinway, Weber, Lyon & Healey, Hazelton, Washburn, Sterling, Huntington, etc., that have been traded in for other instruments. In many cases these udrights have been exchanged for grand pianos. Ordinarily such pianos are sold in the condition received but in Lyon & Healey's the little things one does not like about a piano which stamp it as several years old, are changed in their own factories. So these pianos are brought right down to date in tone, action and general appearance. Every trace of use is removed from their cases and altogether they are made substantially, as perfect as the day they left their makers' hands. These rebuilt pianos give great satisfaction.

If you would like a good piano at about half price, write to Lyon & Healey for a list of instruments in this class. They will be glad to go into full particulars and you may depend on every statement they make. Tell them what kind of an instrument you had in view and the price you wished to pay. Address 10 Adams St., Chicago.

Lyon & Healey are the largest piano dealers in this country.

Attorneys in the Case of James Wightman vs the Village of Tecumseh argue Case before

JUDGE LOCKWOOD

Who cannot render Decision until later in the week.

In the circuit court last Tuesday morning in the case of Jas. Wightman vs the village of Tecumseh, Judge Lockwood of Monroe, after listening to the arguments of counsel upon both sides of the question as to the legality of the proceedings, took the matter under advisement and will render his decision later. Briefs are to be filed with the court within ten days by both sides. Jas. Wightman and Wallace Westerman represent the plaintiff while Attys. Wood of Tecumseh and John E. Bird of the firm of Bird & Sampson are counsel for the defendant.

It will be remembered that during the summer 1907 the village of Tecumseh undertook to provide for the construction of a sewer system and decided to raise the funds for the work by submitting to the voters of the village the question of raising $29,000 on the bonds of the village the first of which bonds were to become due ten years after the issue and then run on for a period of twenty years.

That the proceedings to authorize the bonds were illegal, is claimed by Jas. Wightman a non owner of property NOW and a non tax payer NOW in this village and he has filed a bill to stop the further proceedings. He stated to the court that there were three reasons why these proceedings were illegal.

First, that the ballot voted upon at the special election did not state for what purpose the loan was to be made.

Second, that the return made by the board of election inspectors showed that there were not two thirds of the votes of the electors cast at the election in favor of bonding as required by the statute under which the vote was taken.

Third, that the village under its charter did not have the legal right to raise the amount of $29,000 as determined by the council.

The defendants hold that the amount was within the power of the village to vote; that the ballots were sufficient to inform the voters of the purpose as the election was advertised and notices posted. They also claimed that only legal votes should be taken into consideration in determining whether or not two thirds of the votes were in favor of the proposition. The discussion of this case occupied both Monday and Tuesday mornings and Judge Lockwood will not be able to render his decision until some time after the briefs have been filed.

The entire village of Tecumseh are greatly worked up over the matter. If Mr. Wightman wins the suit it means a great disappointment to those who are in the least interested in the beauty of the village or the welfare of its citizens. Several from here beside the members of the council, attended the suit.

P. S. Last year Mr. Wightman paid $5 45 taxes on a piece of property which he has since disposed of.

C. S. Williamson receives I. O. O. F. Jewel.

Last Friday Grand Sec. Wilder of the I. O. O. F. lodge came to Tecumseh and presented C. E. Williamson with a handsome I. O. O. F. RUNAWAY

Three School Girls driving a young Horse thrown out.

MISS MILDRED BOYCE

is Badly Injured. Taken to the Home of Wm. Albert.

Mildred Boyce, Bessie Johnson and Ella Murphy, three school girls on their way to school yesterday morning, were thrown from their carriage near the Episcopal church. The horse became frightened just before they crossed the bridge at the old electric light plant and turned square around, throwing the girls out and rendering Miss Mildred unconscious. Bessie Johnson escaped with two cracked ribs and several severe gashes on her face and Miss Murphy with a few bruises, but badly frightened.

Miss Boyce was carried into the home of Wm. Albert where she did not regain consciousness until near noon. She is better this noon but still not able to be moved home. Dr. Conklin was called and found a slight fracture of the skull. Miss Boyce is a member of this year's graduating class. Her many friends anxiously await the outcome.

WORSE THAN ONIONS.

Bad breath from indigestion cannot be overcome with perfumes.

All of us suffer from bad breath—sometimes our own, but oftener that of our friends.

Nine-tenths of this bad breath comes from some stomach trouble and cannot be overcome by breath perfumes or any palliative measures.

If you occasionally have a bad breath, if there is heart-burn, flatulence and acid gulpings of undigested food, if the stomach burns or smarts, if there is sleeplessness, nervousness, headaches or any other of the many symptoms of indigestion, use Mi-o-na stomach tablets and get well.

Mi-o na is not a mere digestive nor a physic, but a tonic remedy that strengthens the muscles of the stomach and bowels so that the flow of gastric juices is increased and the food is digested naturally and does not stay in the stomach to ferment and poison the breath with nauseous odors.

A little 50 cent box of Mi-o-na stomach tablets lasts for a couple of weeks and will ward off a dozen mild attacks of indigestion. If you suffer with a chronic case of stomach trouble, the use of Mi-o-na for a reasonable length of time will give you an absolute and complete cure.

C. A. Wright and Son have seen so many cures made by Mi-o-na stomach tablets that they give a guarantee with every 50-cent box that the money will be refunded if the remedy fails to give satisfaction They take the whole risk and a box of Mi-o-na will not cost you a penny unless it cures you.

The Cause of Many Sudden Deaths.

There is a disease prevailing in this country most dangerous because so deceptive. Many sudden deaths are caused by it—heart disease, pneumonia, heart failure or apoplexy are often the result of kidney disease. If kidney trouble is allowed to advance the kidney-poisoned blood will attack the vital organs, causing catarrh of the bladder, or the kidneys themselves break down and waste away cell by cell.

Bladder troubles almost always result from a derangement of the kidneys and a cure is obtained quickest by a proper treatment of the kidneys. If you are feeling badly you can make no mistake by taking Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy.

It corrects inability to hold urine and scalding pain in passing it, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often through the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases.

Swamp-Root is pleasant to take and is sold by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle of this wonderful new discovery and a book that tells all about it, both sent free by mail. Address, Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root; and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

We are attracted by our opposites, which is why a woman likes a man who is a good listener

HIDDEN DANGERS.

Nature gives timely warnings that no Tecumseh citizen should ignore.

Danger signal No. 1 comes from the kidney secretions. They will warn you when the kidneys are sick by sending out a thin, pale or thick, red ill-smelling urine, full of sediment Well kidneys excrete a clear, amber fluid.

Danger signal No. 2 comes from the back. Pains dull, heavy, sharp or acute tell of sick kidneys and warn you of the approach of dropsy, diabetes or Bright's disease. Doan's Kidney Pills will cure sick kidneys permanently. Here's Tecumseh proof.

J. H. Welch living on Union street, Tecumseh, Mich, says: "I can heartily recommend Doan's Kidney Pills as they proved very beneficial to me. Years ago I strained myself and injured one of my kidneys began treatment at once but was not helped. At night my rest was disturbed by the frequent action of the kidney secretions, causing me to arise in the morning tired and unrefreshed. Finally I began using Doan's Kidney Pills procured at Wright & Son's drug store and now feel better than for several years. I have recommended Doan's Kidney Pills to my friends who have used them with the same satisfactory results."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents Foster-Milburn company, Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States Remember the name Doan's,—and take no other.

The greatness that is thrust upon a man is apt to grate on his neighbors.

Heavy, impure blood makes a muddy, pimply complexion, headaches, nausea, indigestion. This blood makes you pale and sickly. Burdock Blood Bitters makes the blood rich, red, pure—restores health.

The plainer a woman is the higher are her ideals. There are exceptions.

Dr. Thomas' Eclectric oil is the best remedy for that so often fatal disease—cronp. Has been used with success in our family for 8 years."—Mrs. Whiteacre, Buffalo, N. Y.

We won'd much rather have our enemies fill our bins than heap coals of fire on our heads.

Mr John Riha of Vining, Ia., says 'I have been selling DeWitt's kidney and bladder pills for about a year and they give better satisfaction than any pill I ever sold. There are a dozen people here who have used them and they give perfect satisfaction in every case. I have used them myself with fine results." Sold by all druggists.

TESTING DRUGS.

Ergotine Is Tried on Chickens, Digitalis on Frogs.

A lot of sorry looking chickens, dogs and cats loafed in the black, ill smelling yard of the great chemical plant.

"We use these animals to test our drugs on," said the chemist. "They come in very handy. They more than earn their board.

"Ergotine is a drug we test on chickens. It is a simple test. If a dose of ergotine fails to turn a chicken's comb black, we know that the drug is for some reason or other worthless.

"Hasheesh we test on dogs. Hashesh is made of female hemp buds. Male hemp buds have no medicinal value, yet some dishonest dealers put male buds on the market, and since they resemble the female buds precisely it is impossible to detect them save by an actual test. Dogs given hasheesh get drunk and happy if the stuff is good.

"Digitalis, the heart stimulant, is tested on frogs. We inject a drop of it into a frog's stomach, and in the kymograph, or heart recording machine, we study the changes that take place in the frog's heart action. Thus we get a very accurate knowledge of what our digitalis can do.

"Do we ever test drugs on ourselves? Oh, yes, indeed, often. Chemists have lost their lives, chemists have gone incurably insane, through too rash a bravery in testing drugs on their own persons."—Los Angeles Times.

SAVED BY THE MUD.

Exciting Elephant Adventure in the Heart of Africa.

During a hunting trip in Africa A. Henry Savage Landor had a narrow escape from two elephants which he was stalking. He had got to within ten yards of the male elephant and, taking careful aim, pulled the trigger. The story of what followed is told in Mr. Landor's book "Across Widest Africa."

The cartridge never went off, but unfortunately my kresh, who relied on the effectiveness of my weapon, fired at the same moment with his matchlock. We were such a short distance from the animal that he actually hit him in the head. I shall never forget my surprise when the elephant lifted his trunk skyward and in his fury roared like thunder.

A moment later the elephant, with his trunk extended, dashed after us, I, too, with my useless rifle in my hand, having by that time acquired a high rate of speed.

Had I been running a race for the world's record I am sure I should have won the prize. It was amazing to me how fast I could run, as I confess my blood turned perfectly cold when I could feel the hoarse blowing trunk of the elephant only a few rods behind me, and I expected every minute to be crushed into a jelly.

In that particular part of the country (these marshy plains are extraordinarily sticky and slushy, so the moment I dashed into the grass at the record breaking speed at which I was traveling my feet stuck in the soft and slushy mud, and I was precipitated with my face and hands in the slush, my rifle sinking deep.

This was the supreme moment of apprehension. I said goodby to the world and imagined myself dead. No one could have been more surprised than I was when, a reasonable time to be killed in having elapsed, I got up again and perceived the elephant a few yards off, cantering away in the opposite direction.

His back view was a great relief to me. He had come to within two or three yards of where I had fallen and, having himself sunk in the soft mud, had turned around and struggled away, leaving big circular footmarks, regular holes four or five feet deep in the mud.

GOLD MADNESS.

A Passion For Literally Reveling in the Yellow Metal.

A singular passion for literally reveling in gold is exhibited now and then by men who have suddenly become rich. Some years ago a London journalist who had speculated in railroad stocks netted £5,000 as the result of a lucky venture. Drawing it in gold, the fortunate man repaired to a hotel, emptied the bags of gold in the bed and went to sleep literally in the sands of Pactolus. The man was so crazed by his good fortune that he found indescribable pleasure in reveling in a golden bath.

Paganini, the violinist, when he received the proceeds of his concerts—he insisted upon being paid in gold—used to wash his hands in sovereigns.

A French novelist, Soulie, wrote a book entitled "The Memoirs of the Devil." It took. The publishers paid him for the first volume $10,000 in gold. The author carried the gold to his bedroom, poured it into a footbath and enjoyed for half an hour the excitement of moving his feet to and fro in a bath of gold coins, smoking meanwhile the biggest of Havanas.

A Boston merchant of great wealth, believing certain symptoms indicated that he would become insane, consulted a specialist and, under his advice, became an inmate of a private asylum. For twelve years there his recreation was piling up gold coins and then knocking them over. At times he washed his hands in gold eagles and half eagles. At the end of the long seclusion he returned to his counting room and in twelve months confirmed the thoroughness of his recovery by amassing $500,000.—St. Louis Republic.

An Effective Stage Speech.

Signor Grasso, the actor, who is looked upon as one of the glories of Italy, made an effective response to the enthusiasm of an Argentine audience after a performance. Advancing to the front of the stage, he drew from his pocket a letter.

"This letter," he said, "is from my mother in Catania. She is eighty years of age." Then as his eyes moistened he added, "I cannot thank you as I would, but I feel that I should like to embrace every one of you as I embrace the page on which my mother has signed her name." The enthusiasm of the audience was transformed to delirium.—Paris Cor. London Mail.

Different Stars.

An "Auld Kirk" man was being shown through the new United Presbyterian church in a town in the west of Scotland. Gazing at the stars painted on the ceiling, he inquired their meaning.

"Oh," was the reply, "you know what the book says—'He made the stars also?'"

"Weel," observed the man, "ye ken the differ between your kirk and oors? It's this—ye hae your stars on the ceilin', and we've oors in the poolpit!"

Her Sweet Friend.

Miss Elder—The idea of his pretending that my hair was gray! Miss Peppery—Ridiculous! Miss Elder—Wasn't it, though? Miss Peppery—Yes. Just as if you'd buy gray hair.—Exchange.

A Slap at Mother.

Dinner was done, and the family was assembled in the sitting room. Mother had taken up the evening paper and was reading an account of how a highwayman had been operating in the suburbs. Father was down on his hands and knees trying to act like a horse while little Willie drove him around the floor.

"Papa," finally remarked the good lady, glancing toward her husband, "here is a story about another man who was waylaid. Do these holdups always stop you with a pistol and then go through your clothes?"

"Oh, no," grinfully replied father, arising from the floor. "Sometimes they wait until you hang your clothes over the back of a chair and go to sleep."—Philadelphia Bulletin.

Nevertheless He Got Her.

"You say my daughter loves you?" questioned the old man.

"I'm sure of it," replied the young man.

"Well, well," returned the old man, looking the young man over critically. "There's no accounting for tastes, is there?"

And somehow, although the young man knew that he ought to be happy over the possession of the girl, he couldn't help scowling and speculating on that remark of the old man's.

Does Your Heart Beat

Yes, 100,000 times each day. Does it send out good blood or bad blood? You know, for good blood is good health; bad blood, bad health. And you know precisely what to take for bad blood—Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Doctors have endorsed it for 60 years.

One frequent cause of bad blood is a sluggish liver. This produces constipation. Poisonous substances are then absorbed into the blood. Keep the bowels open with Ayer's Pills.

An Ideal Laxative.

Physics and Cathartics which purge, unload the bowels, and give temporary relief, but irritate, and weaken the digestive and expulsive organs. Laxative Iron-ox Tablets are as different in effect as truth is from falsehood. They nourish the bowel muscles and nerves, giving them strength and vigor to do the work nature intended, thus effecting a permanent cure by perfectly safe and natural means. The best laxative for children. Chocolate coated tablets, easy to take, never gripe or nauseate. 10c, 25c and $1.00 at all drug stores.

The woman who marries a man to reform him shouldn't let him know it.

The Best Laxative for Children.

Parents should see to it that their children have one natural, easy movement of the bowels each day. Do not dose the child with salts or griping pills, as they are too powerful in effect, and literally tear their little insides to pieces, leaving the bowels weakened and less able to act naturally than before. Laxative Iron-ox Tablets tone and strengthen the bowels, and stimulate all the little organs to healthy activity. Chocolate coated tablets, easy to take, never gripe or nauseate. 10c, 25c and $1.00.

Best healer in the World.

Rev. Starbiad of East Raymond, Me., says: "I have used Bucklen's arnica salve for several years on my old army wound and other obstinate sores and find it the best healer in the world. I use it too with great success in my veterinary business." 25c at C. A. Wright & Son's drug store.

The hot-headed man is apt to hate the fellow who gets cold feet.

He Approved That Plan.

It was said in the Norton family that Uncle Hiram had no ear for music, as he failed to appreciate the vocal efforts of his niece Margaret. But if his ears were defective his pocketbook left nothing to be desired.

"We've been taking over Margaret's voice," said a dauntless and tactful relative who had been delegated to approach Uncle Hiram on the subject. "It really seems as if she ought to take lessons and practice regularly. Her mother talks of selling a little of her mining stock for Margaret's sake."

Uncle Hiram's keen old face wore a mutinous expression.

"Have to practice two, three hours a day, I suppose?" he said dully.

"Oh, yes," said the venturesome relative. Then she had a sudden inspiration.

"It would be best of all if she could go abroad for two or three years," she murmured thoughtfully, "but of course that is out of the question, the expense."

"Never you mind about the expense!" broke in Uncle Hiram joyfully. "If she can go abroad—a good long ways abroad—to take her lessons and do her practicing I'll foot the expense."—Youth's Companion.

French Schools.

The quality of the secular instruction in the French schools seemed to me extraordinarily high. It happened, for example, that I was taken into a classroom where a lesson in English was being given to some French boys of sixteen, mostly the sons of operatives. The exercise was conducted in excellent English, which the pupils seemed to speak almost as readily as the teacher, and the point under discussion when I visited the class was one which would have puzzled Harvard freshmen. It was the distinction in meaning between the words priest—a Catholic ecclesiastic; clergyman—an Anglican, and minister—a dissenter. In American schools, or, rather, in the results of the instruction there afforded, I have never come across the teaching of any foreign language which compared in efficiency with the teaching of English in secondary schools throughout France. And to all appearances this was only one example of the thoroughness and the vitality of French teaching in all its branches.—Barrett Wendell in "France of Today."

Chinese Sarcasm.

Once in awhile you meet a common Chinaman who has some of the native wit of his country. One such has a laundry in Lexington avenue, not far from Twenty-third street. The other day I heard him yell at a recalcitrant customer: "You no pay? Then you paper tiger!" I asked what he meant by a "paper tiger," and he replied, "Oh, in China a paper tiger is a blackguard who blows much, but is harmless!" He added: "When a man is very proud of himself, what Americans call 'stuck up,' we compare to a rat falling into scale and weighing itself. When a Chinaman overdoes a thing we say he is a hunchback making a bow. The rich son who quickly spends his father's money we call a rocket which goes off at once. We say of you rich Americans who send money to the heathens by missionaries and neglect their family at home, 'They hang their lantern on a pole, which is seen from afar, but gives no light below.'"—New York Press.

An Arab Honeymoon.

For seven days after the wedding the Arab bride and bridegroom are supposed not to leave their room. The bride may see none of her own family and only the women folk of her husband's, who wait on her. She remains in all her wedding finery and paint and does absolutely nothing. The bridegroom generally slips out at night after three days and sees a few friends privately, but he persistently hides from his wife's family, and should he by accident meet his father-in-law before the seven days are over he turns his back and draws his burnous, or haik, over his face. This is their view of a honeymoon, and they grow as weary of it as any European couple do of their enforced continental tour.—Wide World Magazine.

Power of Deceiving.

There is a Brooklyn woman who possesses a servant who is a model in all respects save one—in that she is none too truthful.

Lately the mistress has been using all her eloquence to make Nora see the error of deceitfulness. But at last she had to own herself beaten when Nora, with a beaming smile, turned and in a most cajoling tone said:

"Sure, now, mum, an' wot de ye suppose the power of desayin' was given us fer?"

Time She Began.

It was on a Sixth avenue surface car. A woman sat with her little daughter, who to all appearances was seven or eight years old. The conductor came for the fares, and the woman gave him a five cent piece.

"Is the little girl with you, madam?" asked the conductor.

"Yes," assented the woman.

"Her fare, please," said the man.

"But I never have paid for her," began the woman.

"And does that prove that you're never going to?" asked the conductor, taking the fare reluctantly tendered.—New York Press.

Unintentional Sabbath Breaking.

In the early days of New England it was the custom to keep the Sabbath from sundown Saturday night until the same hour on Sunday. That this practice was attended by pitfalls is shown by an incident told in "The Papers of the Connecticut Valley Historical Society."

There lived in Ryefield a thrifty dame, an enterprising, driving woman and a notable housewife. The good woman was not willing to lose Sunday evenings out of her catalogue of household work, but she was pious withal and strictly kept the day to the sunset limit. As soon as the sun was fairly below the horizon she would begin her washing and get her clothes ready for drying bright and early on Monday morning.

One cloudy Sunday she, supposing the day was ended, changed her Sunday gown, rolled up her sleeves and went to work. As she was scrubbing away in the kitchen, her face toward the west window, the clouds suddenly broke, and the great round sun shone in full on the poor Sabbath breaker at work. She gave one cry of amazement and horror and fled the kitchen.

After that sinful day she never began her work on Sunday evening.

Lincoln's Rules.

On one occasion President Lincoln on entering the telegraph office of the war department, writes Mr. Bates in "Lincoln in the Telegraph Office," was heard to remark to Secretary Seward, "By jings, governor, we are here at last!" Turning to him in a reproving manner, Mr. Seward said, "Mr. President, where did you learn that inelegant expression?" Without replying to the secretary, Lincoln addressed the telegraph operators, saying:

"Young gentlemen, excuse me for swearing before you. 'By jings' is swearing, for my good old mother taught me that anything that had a 'by' before it was swearing."

One day Secretary Seward, who was not renowned as a joker, said he had been told that a short time before on a street crossing Lincoln had been seen to turn out in the mud to give a colored woman a chance to pass.

"Yes," said Lincoln, "it has been a rule of my life that if people would not turn out for me I would turn out for them. Then you avoid collisions."

What He Meant.

"Keyside, keyside!" said the sailor. "'Ow will I'l reach the bloomin' keyside?"

"G'wan wid ye. D'ye think I'm a locksmith, that I know about yer old key and its side? There's one key and lock I'll be after givin' ye, and that's to a cell. More on now."

"Keyside! I'll said keyside as plain as I'l could, blime!"

Just then a high brow who had been to the postoffice buying stamps so that his rejected contributions would come back to him stepped up.

"The man wants the keyside, whatever that is, and I dunno," said the policeman. "I believe he's looney and I'll run him in."

"He wants the quayside—the docks," said the high brow as he directed the man to the water front, while the policeman said:

"Well, I'll be blowed!"—New York Press.

Apparent.

"Pardon me," began the new acquaintance, "but are you the Mr. Cadley Nuritch who wrote that magazine article last month for us?"

"Yes," interrupted Nuritch, "but of course you'll understand that I don't make a business of that sort of thing."

"Of course. I know that. I read the article."—Philadelphia Press.

"Chess, checkers and whist are marvelous inventions," says the philosopher of folly. "They enable a man to waste his time and still have the feeling that he is accomplishing something intellectual."—Cleveland Leader.

There is more catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together and until recently was supposed to be incurable. For many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, O., is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer $100 for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

Notice to our Customers.

We are pleased to announce that Foley's honey and tar for coughs, colds and lung troubles is not affected by the National Pure Food and drug law as it contains no opiates or other harmful drugs and we recommend it as a safe remedy for children and adults. Sold by all druggists in Tecumseh.

There are countless roads on all sides to the grave.

This is what Hon. Jake Moore, State Warden of Georgia, says of Kodol for dyspepsia: "E. C. DeWitt & Co., Chicago, Ill.—Dear Sirs—I have suffered more than twenty years from indigestion. About eighteen months ago I had grown so much worse that I could not digest a crust of corn bread and could not retain anything on my stomach. I lost 25 lbs.; in fact I made up my mind that I could not live but a short time, when a friend of mine recommended Kodol. I consented to try it to please him and I was better in one day. I now weigh more than I ever did in my life and am in better health than for many years. Kodol did it. I keep a bottle constantly and write this hoping that humanity will be benefitted. Yours very truly, Jake C. Moore, Atlanta, Aug. 10, 1904." Sold by all druggists.

Do not make unjust gains, they are equal to a loss.

Given up to die.

B. Spiegel, 1204 N. Virginia street, Evansville, Ind., writes: "For over five years I was troubled with kidney and bladder affections which caused me much pain and worry. I lost flesh and was all run down, and a year ago had to abandon work entirely. I had three of the best physicians who did me no good and I was given up to die. Foley's Kidney Cure was recommended and the first bottle gave me great relief, and after taking the second bottle was entirely cured." Why not let it help you? Sold by all druggists in Tecumseh.

The early riser is healthy, cheerful and industrious.

Be careful about that little cough. Get something right away; some good, reliable remedy that will move the bowels. Kennedy's laxative cough syrup acts gently yet promptly on the bowels and allays inflammation at the same time. It is pleasant to take and it is especially recommended for children, as it tastes nearly as good as maple sugar. Sold by all druggists.

The best swimmer is the first to drown himself.

No case on record.

There is no case on record of a cough or cold resulting in pneumonia or consumption after Foley's honey and tar has been taken as it will stop your cough and break up your cold quickly. The Nerve of Foley

Copyright, 1909, by Frank H. Spearman

By FRANK H. SPEARMAN

THERE had been rumors all winter that the engineers were going to strike. Certainly we of the operating department had warning enough. Yet in the railroad life there is always friction in some quarter. The railroad man sleeps like the soldier, with an ear alert, but just the same he sleeps, for with waking comes duty.

Our engineers were good fellows. If they had faults they were American faults—rashness, a liberality bordering on extravagance and a headstrong, violent way of reaching conclusions—traits born of ability and self confidence and developed by prosperity.

One of the best men we had on a locomotive was Andrew Cameron; at the same time he was one of the hardest to manage, because he was young and headstrong. Andy, a big, powerful fellow, ran opposite Felix Kennedy on the flier. The fast runs require young men. If you will notice, you will rarely see an old engineer on a fast passenger run. Even a young man can stand only a few years of that kind of work. High speed on a locomotive is a question of nerve and endurance—to put it bluntly, a question of flesh and blood.

"You don't think much of this strike, do you, Mr. Reed?" said Andy to me one night.

"Don't think there's going to be any, Andy."

He laughed knowingly.

"What actual grievance have the boys?" I asked.

"The trouble's on the East End," he replied evasively.

"Is that any reason for calling a thousand men out on this end?"

"If one goes out, they all go."

"Would you go out?"

"Would I? You bet!"

"A man with a home and a wife and a baby boy like yours ought to have more sense."

Getting up to leave, he laughed again confidently. "That's all right. We'll bring you fellows to terms."

"Maybe," I reported as he closed the door. But I hadn't the slightest idea they would begin the attempt that night. I was at home and sound asleep when the caller tapped on my window. I threw up the sash; it was pouring rain and dark as a pocket.

"What is it, Barney? A wreck?" I exclaimed.

"Worse than that. Everything's tied up."

"What do you mean?"

"The engineers have struck."

"Struck? What time is it?"

"Half past 3. They went out at 3 o'clock." Throwing on my clothes, I floundered behind Barney's lantern to the depot. The superintendent was already in his office talking to the master mechanic.

Bulletins came in every few minutes from various points announcing trains tied up. Before long we began to hear from the East End. Chicago reported all engineers out; Omaha wired no trains moving. When the sun rose that morning our entire system, extending through seven states and territories, was absolutely paralyzed.

It was an astounding situation, but one that must be met. It meant either an ignominious surrender to the engineers or a fight to the death. For our part, we had only to wait for orders. It was just 6 o'clock when the chief train dispatcher, who was tapping at a key, said:

"Here's something from headquarters."

We crowded close around him. His pen flew across the clip; the message was addressed to all division superintendents. It was short, but at the end of it he wrote a name we rarely saw in our office. It was that of the railroad magnate we knew as "the old man," the president of the system, and his words were few:

"Move the trains!"

"Move the trains!" repeated the superintendent. "Yes, but trains can't be moved by pinch bars nor by main force."

We spent the day arguing with the strikers. They were friendly, but firm. Persuasion, entreaties, threats, we exhausted and ended just where we began, except that we had lost our tempers. The sun set without the turn of a wheel. The victory of the first day was certainly with the strikers.

Next day it looked pretty blue around the depot. Not a car was moved. The engineers and firemen were a unit. But the wires sung hard all that day and all that night. Just before midnight Chicago wired that No. 1—our big passenger train, the Denver flier—had started out on time, with the superintendent of motive power as engineer and a wiper for fireman. The message came from the second vice president. He promised to deliver the train to our division on time the next evening, and he asked, "Can you get it through to Denver?"

We looked at each other. At last all eyes gravitated toward Neighbor, our master mechanic.

The train dispatcher was waiting. "What shall I say?" he asked.

The division chief of the motive power was a tremendously big Irishman, with a voice like a fog horn. Without an instant's hesitation the answer came clear:

"Say 'yes!'"

Every one of us started. It was throwing the gage of battle. Our word had gone out; the division was pledged; the fight was on.

Next evening the strikers through some mysterious channel got word that the flier was expected. About 9 o'clock a crowd of them began to gather round the depot.

It was after 1 o'clock when No. 1 pulled in, and the foreman of the Omaha roundhouse swung down from the locomotive cab. The strikers clustered around the engine like a swarm of angry bees, but that night, though there was plenty of jeering, there was no actual violence. When they saw Neighbor climb into the cab to take the run west there was a sullen silence.

Next day a committee of strikers, with Andy Cameron, very cavalier, at their head, called on me.

"Mr. Reed," said he officiously, "we've come to notify you not to run any more trains through here till this strike's settled. The boys won't stand it. That's all." With that he turned on his heel to leave with his following.

"Hold on, Cameron," I replied, raising my hand as I spoke; "that's not quite all. I suppose you men represent your grievance committee?"

"Yes, sir."

"I happen to represent, in the superintendent's absence, the management of this road. I simply want to say to you and to your committee that I take my orders from the president and the general manager—not from you nor anybody you represent. That's all."

Every hour the bitterness increased. We got a few trains through, but we were terribly crippled. As for freight, we made no pretense of moving it. Train loads of fruit and meat rotted in the yards. The strikers grew more turbulent daily. They beat our new men and crippled our locomotives. Then our troubles with the new men were almost as bad. They burned out our crown sheets; they got mixed up on orders all the time. They ran into open switches and into each other continually and had us very nearly crazy.

I kept tab on one of the new engineers for a week. He began by backing into a diner so hard that he smashed every dish in the car and ended by running into a siding a few days later and setting two tanks of oil on fire, that burned up a freight depot. I figured he cost us $40,000 the week he ran. Then he went back to selling windmills.

After this experience I was sitting in my office one evening, when a youngish fellow in a slouch hat opened the door and stuck his head in.

"What do you want?" I growled.

"Are you Mr. Reed?"

"What do you want?"

"I want to speak to Mr. Reed."

"Well, what is it?"

"Are you Mr. Reed?"

"Confound you, yes! What do you want?"

"Me? I don't want anything. I'm just asking; that's all."

His impudence staggered me so that I took my feet off the desk.

"Heard you were looking for men," he added.

"No," I snapped. "I don't want any men."

"Wouldn't be any show to get on an engine, would there?"

A week earlier I should have risen and fallen on his neck, but there had been others.

"There's a show to get your head broke," I suggested.

"I don't mind that if I get my time."

"What do you know about running an engine?"

"Run one three years."

"On a thrashing machine?"

"On the Philadelphia and Reading."

"Who sent you in here?"

"Just dropped in."

"Sit down."

I eyed him sharply as he dropped into a chair.

"When did you quit the Philadelphia and Reading?"

"About six months ago."

"Fired?"

"Strike."

I began to get interested. After a few more questions I took him into the superintendent's office, but at the door I thought it well to drop a hint.

"Look here, my friend, if you're a spy you'd better keep out of this. This man would wring your neck as quick as he'd suck an orange. See?"

"Let's tackle him anyhow," replied the fellow, eying me coolly.

I introduced him to Mr. Lancaster and left them together. Pretty soon the superintendent came into my office.

"What do you make of him, Reed?" said he.

"What do you make of him?"

Lancaster studied a minute.

"Take him over to the roundhouse and see what he knows."

I walked over with the new find, chatting warily. When we reached a live engine I told him to look it over. He threw off his coat, picked up a piece of waste and swung into the cab.

"Run her out to the switch," said I, stepping up myself.

He pinched the throttle, and we steamed slowly out of the house. A minute showed he was at home on an engine.

"Can you handle it?" I asked as he shut off after backing down to the roundhouse.

"You use soft coal," he replied, trying the injector. "I'm used to hard. This injector is new to me. Guess I can work it, though."

"What did you say your name was?"

"I didn't say."

"What is it?" I asked curtly.

"Foley."

"Well, Foley, if you have as much sense as you have gall you ought to get along. If you act straight, you'll never want a job again as long as you live. If you don't, you won't want to live very long."

"Got any tobacco?"

"Here, Baxter," said I, turning to the roundhouse foreman, "this is Foley. Give him a chew, and mark him up to go out on 77 tonight. If he monkeys with anything around the house, kill him."

Baxter looked at Foley, and Foley looked at Baxter, and, Baxter not getting the tobacco out quick enough, Foley reminded him he was waiting.

We didn't pretend to run freights, but I concluded to try the fellow on one, feeling sure that if he was crooked he would ditch it and skip.

So Foley ran a long string of empties and a car or two of rotten oranges down to Harvard Junction that night, with one of the dispatchers for pilot. Under my orders they had a train made up at the Junction for him to bring back to McCloud. They had picked up all the strays in the yards, including half a dozen cars of meat that the local board of health had condemned after it had laid out in the sun for two weeks and a car of butter we had been shifting around ever since the beginning of the strike.

When the strikers saw the stuff coming in next morning behind Foley they concluded I had gone crazy.

"What do you think of the track, Foley?" said I.

"Fair," he replied, sitting down on my desk. "Stiff hill down there by Zanesville."

"Any trouble to climb it?" I asked, for I had purposely given him a heavy train.

"Not with that car of butter. If you hold that butter another week, it will climb a hill without any engine."

"Can you handle a passenger train?"

"I guess so."

"I'm going to send you west on No. 1 tonight."

"Then you'll have to give me a fireman. That guy you sent out last night is a lightning rod peddler. The dispatcher threw most of the coal."

"I'll go with you myself, Foley. I can give you steam. Can you stand it to double back tonight?"

"I can stand it if you can."

When I walked into the roundhouse in the evening with a pair of overalls on Foley was in the cab getting ready for the run.

Neighbor brought the flier in from the east. As soon as he had uncoupled and got out of the way we backed down with the 448. It was the best engine we had left and, luckily for my back, an easy steamer. Just as we coupled to the mail car a crowd of strikers swarmed out of the dusk. They were in an ugly mood, and when Andy Cameron and Bat Nicholson sprang up into the cab I saw we were in for trouble.

"Look here, partner," exclaimed Cameron, laying a heavy hand on Foley's shoulder, "you don't want to take this train out, do you? You wouldn't beat honest workingmen out of a job?"

Nickolson sprang on him like a tiger.

"I'm not beating anybody out of a job. If you want to take out this train, take it out. If you don't, get out of this cab."

Cameron was nonplused. Nicholson, a surly brute, raised his fist menacingly.

"Get out of this cab."

"I'll promise you you'll never get out of it alive, my buck, if you ever get into it again!" cried Cameron, swinging down. Nicholson followed, muttering angrily. I hoped we were out of the scrape; but, to my consternation Foley, picking up his oil can, got right down behind them and began filling his cups without the least attention to anybody.

Nicholson sprang on him like a tiger. The onslaught was so sudden that they had him under their feet in a minute. I jumped down, and Ben Buckley, the conductor, came running up. Between us we gave the little fellow a life. He squirmed out like a cat and backed instantly up against the tender.

"One at a time, and come on!" he cried hotly. "If it's ten to one and on a man's back at that, we'll do it different." With a quick, peculiar movement of his arm he drew a pistol and, pointing it squarely at Cameron, cried, "Get back!"

I caught a flash of his eye through the blood that streamed down his face. I wouldn't have given a switch key for the life of the man who crowded him at that minute. But just then Lancaster came up, and before the crowd realized it we had Foley, protesting angrily, back in the cab again.

"For heaven's sake, pull out of this before there's bloodshed, Foley," I cried, and, nodding to Buckley, Foley opened the choker.

It was a night run and a new track to him. I tried to fire and pilot both, but after Foley suggested once or twice that if I would tend to the coal he would tend to the curves I let him find them, and he found them all, I thought, before we got to Athens. He took big chances in his running, but there was a superb confidence in his bursts of speed which marked the fast runner and the experienced one.

At Athens we had barely two hours to rest before doubling back. I was never tired in my life till I struck the pillow that night, but before I got it warm the caller routed me out again. The eastbound flier was on time, or nearly so, and when I got into the cab for the run back Foley was just coupling on.

"Did you get a nap?" I asked as we pulled out.

"No; we slipped an eccentric coming up, and I've been under the engine ever since. Say, she's a bird, isn't she? She's all right. I couldn't run her coming up, but I've touched up her valve motion a bit, and I'll get action on her as soon as it's daylight."

"Don't mind getting action on my account, Foley; I'm shy on life insurance."

He laughed.

"You're safe with me. I never killed man, woman or child in my life. When I do, I quit the cab. Give her plenty of diamonds, if you please," he added, letting her out full.

He gave me the ride of my life, but I hated to show scare, he was so coolly audacious himself. We had but one stop—for water—and after that all down grade. We bowled along as easy as ninepins, but the pace was a hair raiser. After we passed Arickaree we never touched a thing but the high joints. The long, heavy train behind us flew round the bluffs once in awhile like the tail of a very capricious kite, yet somehow, and that's an engineer's magic, she always lit on the steel.

Day broke ahead, and between breaths I caught the glory of a sunrise on the plains from a locomotive cab window. When the smoke of the McCloud shops stained the horizon, remembering the ugly threats of the strikers, I left my seat to speak to Foley.

"I think you'd better swing off when you slow up for the yards and cut across to the roundhouse!" I cried, getting close to his ear, for we were on terrific speed. He looked at me inquiringly. "In that way you won't run into Cameron and his crowd at the depot," I added. "I can stop her all right."

He didn't take his eyes off the track. "I'll take the train to the platform," said he.

"Isn't that a crossing cut ahead?" he added suddenly as we swung round a hill west of town.

"Yes, and a bad one."

CHURCH TIME.

Quaint Ways of the Early Dutch Settlers in the New World.

As early as 1659 the Dutch settlers at Kingston, N. Y., erected with their own hands a little church building and dedicated it the following year. When a regular minister arrived from Holland the same year, writes Mrs. Nellie Urner Wallington in "Historic Churches of America," he found himself a dominie with a membership of but sixteen souls and a salary paid in wheat, which was then legal tender among these humble tillers of the soil.

In 1694 a bell was imported and gave such pleasure to the members of the little parish that they used it to announce the hours for meals for the farmers of the neighborhood.

The observance of one quaint custom was reminiscent of their former life in Holland—the announcement by the gray haired sexton between the ringing of the first and last church bells that the hour for service had arrived.

From door to door he traveled, rapped loudly and cried, "Church time!"

Notices of all kinds, whether of funerals, christenings, weddings or merrymakings, were handed first to the sexton, who in turn gave them to the clerk, who stuck them on the end of the bamboo pole which he kept for that purpose and reached them up to the dominie.

At the termination of the service, as in other Dutch churches, the deacons took up the collection with long poles having little velvet bags hung on the ends and a tinkling bell to wake the sleepers to the responsibilities of a contribution.

THE DUCK SHOVER.

A Man Who Gets Things on the Bounce and the Nod.

An amusing dialogue occurred between Judge Willis, K. C., and a plaintiff who sued a man for the value of a quantity of grain supplied.

His honor said he had received a letter from the defendant, who said he could offer only half a crown a month. "That," continued his honor, "will take six years to get rid of the debt."

Plaintiff (emphatically)—I would willingly forgive a poor man, but when you find he is a "swanker" and doing every one in the neighborhood it puts your back up. [Laughter.] We have to cut things very fine in order to get a shilling or two, and then these gentry come "swanking" about the country as if they were toffs. I am told by others that he is nothing more than a "duck shover." [Laughter.]

His Honor—A what shover? [Loud laughter.]

Plaintiff—Duck shover, your honor, a man who gets things on the bounce and the nod. [Renewed laughter.]

His Honor—You mean a man who gets people to let him have things on credit by representations that are not correct? Is that what you mean to convey by your big phrases—duck shover and so forth? [Laughter.]

Plaintiff—That's it—duck shover and swanker. [Renewed laughter.]

An order to pay 5 shillings monthly was made.—London News.

For Husbands.

A clergyman took down a small volume.

"This is called," he said, "the 'Instructions of Ptah-ho-Tep.' It is one of the very oldest papyrus writings known. It gives among other things advice to husbands, and that advice is as good today is it ever was. Listen."

And he read:

"'If thou be wise, furnish thy house well.

"'Woo thy wife ever, and never quarrel with her.

"'Nourish her daintily.

"'Deck her out, for fine dress is her greatest delight.

"'Feed her upon sweets.

"'Perfume her.

"'Make her glad with praise.

"'Adorn her with jewels, feathers and the skins of beasts as sumptuously as thy purse will suffer.'"

How Much He Thought About Her.

They were on their way to the theater, and she was tremulously happy. She felt that the words she longed to hear would be spoken that night, and the idea made her almost dizzy with delight.

"Mr. Sampson," she said softly, "why do you wear that bit of string upon your finger?"

"Oh," replied Mr. Sampson, taking it off, "that was to remind me of my engagement with you tonight."

It wasn't much, but it was enough to take away the delightful dizziness.—London Chronicle.

Home-Made Gas Light for Country Houses.

Acetylene Gas is ten times purer than City Gas. That is why only one-tenth as much of its flame is needed as would be required for the same candle-power of light from City Gas, Kerosene, or Gasolene.

This means that only a very small fraction of the heat, and none of the soot nor smell of Kerosene or Gasolene is present with Acetylene.

It also accounts for the fact that an Acetylene Light of 24 candle-power costs only 3¾ cents for 10 hours lighting (in most of the States), while that same 24 candle-power in 10 hours lighting would cost about 6 cents from ordinary Lamps for Kerosene, Wicks and Chimneys.

And 40 Acetylene Lights need only 30 minutes per month of labor, while 8 Kerosene Lamps [illegible] that same 39 minutes labor e[illegible] for 365 days in the year.

Compare 6 hours work per year for 40 Acetylene Lights, with 183 hours per year for 8 Kerosene Lamps, and consider the unpleasant kind of work "Lamp Slavery" is.

Meantime, Acetylene is the most beautiful Light ever used in home, hotel or store as well as the most convenient and the safest.

Brilliant, steady, soft, cool, safe, and colorless as Sunlight itself. Two million Americans use it regularly and over 348 towns are publicly lighted by it. Shall I tell you how little it need cost to make this time-saving, money-saving and beautifying Light at your own home?

Write me to-day how many rooms you've got, or how large a store, and receive definite information.

Address me thus—Acetylene Jones 9 Adams St., Chicago, Ill.

The Order of St. Patrick.

The "most illustrious Order of St. Patrick" dates only from 1783, says a London writer, when it was founded by George III., and is not to be compared in age with "the most ancient and most noble Order of the Thistle," which, dating from a remote antiquity, was revived by James II. in 1687. The curious thing about the bands, or ribbons, of these two orders is that St. Patrick's is blue of the hue that may be seen in the "hackles," or plumes, in the bearskins of the Irish guards, though it suggests the blue bells of Scotland, while the sash of the thistle is a dark green, suggestive of Erin's verdant isle. On state ceremonies these two orders are frequently confounded.

What She Was Trying to Accomplish.

The other morning at the breakfast table three-year-old Jeannette was poking vigorously with her knife at a biscuit.

"What are you trying to do, Jeannette?" demanded mother. "Be careful; you will cut your hand."

Said Jeannette, "I'm trying to unloosen this biscuit; it's so tight!"—New York Times.

The First Advertiser.

"I wonder," he murmured, "who could have been the first manufacturer to advertise. It is an item that would fit in well here."

"There is no extant data on the subject," said the farmer, "but I have every reason to believe that the hen is the person you are looking for."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

The World Goes On.

We all imagine that our work is important and that no one can do it as well as we do, but the world has been constantly improving in spite of the fact that every man dies at the end of a short time.—Atchison Globe.

Ready Remedy.

Author—I am troubled with insomnia. I lie awake at night hour after hour thinking about my literary work. His Friend—How very foolish of you! Why don't you get up and read portions of it?

Village Local

Notice to Farmers.

All growers in the Central States are advised to read the following circular, issued by Brown & Adams of this city and to conform with its recommendations:

"There has been such an increase in the use of binder twine by the farmers in tying their wool that something must be done to stop it. The loose fiber from the twine clings to the wool through all processes of manufacture and causes imperfect goods with loss in consequence and wool should not be received that has been tied in this way. Our agents have been instructed to refuse it."

"Another abuse is the excessive use of twine. Two strings each way are sufficient for any fleece. Some farmers have been buying a very coarse, heavy twine like rope and making money by the amount they put on the fleece. Wool from Australia and South America is bound with one strand each way. Our domestic fleeces, therefore, suffer in competition. So serious is the matter that all manufacturers complain and several refuse to use domestic fleeces.

"To insist on reform in these matters is no hardship to the grower. The use of binder twine is simply carelessness on his part. The loading on of string is a crime that the trade is practically responsible for. If these matters are brought to the attention of the farmer we feel sure he will help correct the abuses that have crept into the business during the recent years of prosperity.

"It is our belief that manufacturers will insist on rejecting wool tied with binder twine or which is dishonestly bound with an abnormal amount of regular string and that these rejections will result in heavy losses to the handlers of fleeces. You can save much of this loss by giving this matter strict attention.—Boston Bulletin.

Supervisor Wm. Atkin of Deerfield, is nothing if not original. He has had a lot of fun during the meeting of the board of supervisors this week in telling the members about his little experience with German carp. He said that during the recent flood his cellar was filled with water and German carp made for his sauerkraut. Being German, he said, the fish were very fond of it and had some of the members believing it until he told them that his kraut barrel got so full of fish that he had to knock the hoops off the barrel in order to get the carp out.—Adrian Telegram.

Go to Cuba, Old Man!

When the advice was given to young men 30 years ago to "Go West," it was excellent advice for YOUNG MEN. But not for old men. The West was sure, but too slow for the old men, and the trials were too great. Cuba is different. Cuba will do in 5 years what the West did in 30. The West WAS O. K., but TODAY look to Cuba.

Cuba will come quick enough for the OLD man, and the climate is so soft and agreeable that it will add 10 or 20 years to your life.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our regular correspondent.)

Washington, D. C., Mar. 21, 1908.

Official announcement has been made from the navy department that Japan has invited the battleship squadron to visit some Japanese port on its voyage around the world and that the invitation will be accepted. The invitation was brought to the state department by Ambassador Takahira and was almost the sole topic of discussion at one of the cabinet meetings this week. After considerable debate it was decided to accept and the announcement was then made. It was rather an embarrassing situation, an invitation that this government had not sought, that it did not want to accept and could not decline without an appearance of churlishness since there was to be hospitality extended and received during the forthcoming visit of the squadron to Australia.

It had been announced pointedly that there would be no festivities, nothing but a business trip, after the fleet left Manilla till it reached home. This was calculated to take the edge off the failure to make any call at a Japanese port. But the Japanese government apparently did not want to leave this easy way out and now the visit will have to be made. Yokahama probably will be the port of call. The distance from Manila there is 1,600 miles and the voyage will necessitate recoaling. This will take several days and the hospitalities on both sides probably will occupy ten or twelve days. This with the lengthened voyage will make the fleet almost a month later than it otherwise would be in reaching the Atlantic coast.

ROUND ABOUT US.

The big diamond firm that failed the other day blames its trouble on the public's craze for automobiles. The old saying may, therefore, be changed to this "Stick to me and you will ride in an automobile."

While breaking ice in protection of the mill dam at Sharon late Saturday afternoon Will Winton fell into the rushing waters and was drowned. Mr. Winton with others was stationed on the dam at the roadway and with a pole was endeavoring to keep the channel clear of the ice which continually banked against the piers. Losing his balance he was plunged into the water and was whirled over the dam. Great efforts were made to save his life but the huge cakes of ice and rush of water made futile the attempts and he was drowned. Mr. Winton has for the past year been in the employ of Geo. Kirkwood, owner of the mill. The body was recovered Wednesday.—Brooklyn Exponent.

Excitement at Dundee.

A dog, supposedly mad, entered the Union school building by the basement on Friday at Dundee, Mich., and made his way to one of the school rooms. While trying to protect her pupils from the animal, Miss Davis, one of the teachers, was bitten on the arm. Her cries attracted the janitor. Seeing the dog making an attack on the children, the janitor ran to the basement, got a gun and then returned to the scene.

Thrusting the muzzle of the gun through a crack in the door, he opened fire. The shot struck the animal, but it only inflicted a flesh wound and caused it to run from the building. The janitor followed in hot pursuit, crying "Mad dog!" In a few minutes a good sized posse was after the brute. The canine made for the outskirts of the village. It led the crowd a merry chase, but was killed two and a half miles from town.

Good for Everybody.

Norman Coulter, a prominent architect in the Delbert building, San Francisco, says: "I fully endorse all that has been said of Electric Bitters as a tonic medicine. It is good for everybody. It corrects stomach, liver and kidney disorders in a prompt and efficient manner and builds up the system." Electric Bitters is the best spring medicine ever sold over a druggist's counter; as a blood purifier it is unequaled. 50c. at C. A. Wright & Son's drug store.

NOTICE.

Notice is hereby given that the democrats of Tecumseh, Lenawee county, Michigan, will meet in caucus on Saturday, March 28, 1908, at 7:30 o'clock p. m. for the purpose of placing in nomination a democratic township ticket for said township, to be voted for on April 6th next, and for such other business as may come before the meeting.

Dated, March 23, 1908.

By order of the committee.

A Nebraska man tried to beg off the jury by telling the judge that he was about to be married. The judge ruled strongly against him, and commented grimly, "You might as well stay on the jury and enjoy yourself a little while longer."

BASE BALL

The Indians have signed a number who will report for trials

SECRETARY POCKLINGTON

Says he is signing more every day, who will be given a try out.

At present Secretary Pocklington has accepted terms with eighteen ball players who will report for the spring work. These new men come well recommended and Tecumseh is assured of a winning base ball team. The line up is as follows:

Catchers — Mitchell, Crittenden of Portland, Mich.

Pitchers—Strader and Casey of Fort Wayne, Ind.; Wilson, Grand Rapids, and J. E. Williamson, Garrett, Ind.

Outfielders—Streeter, Toledo; Bissell of Bedford, O.; Cross, of Terre Haute, Ind.: Hodgeman, of Grand Rapids; Bofferneyer, Altoona, Pa.; and Ketter, of Garrett, Ind.

This morning Glancy of Cincinnati, was signed as catcher and outfielder. The management expect to have two more pitchers added to the list in another week.

More men are being signed all of the time and will be announced in the Herald later.

Will Play at Tecumseh.

Mark Hodgeman, one of the most promising ball players ever turned out of Grand Rapids, has signed a contract to play with the Tecumseh team of the Southern Michigan league and mailed it to the team owner Saturday. This is his first professional offer and he is uncertain whether he will like the work as a calling or not. He is at present employed in the offices of the R. G. Dun company and will give up his position and give base ball a trial.

Hodgeman usually plays in the infield but will be given a chance in the outfield at Tecumseh. He is a fast player and a hard hitter, batting left-handed and last season, when with the Hamburgs, was noted for his long hits and home runs. Tecumseh won the pennant in the Southern Michigan league last year and it seems the management are going out to get another one.—Grand Rapids Daily News.

Geo. Pierce Victim of Good Joke.

Like all other class D leagues which draw their playing material to no small extent from the coner-lot teams of the cities and the four-corners nine of the country in their vicinity, the Southern Michigan last year boosted a number of young men who were enjoying their first view of league ball last season, and many were the practical jokes which resulted at the expense of the noviates. One youngster of the grass green order was a pitcher named Pierce, dug up by John Morrissey at Lansing, who developed into a real star before the season was more than a few weeks old. In addition to his lack of knowledge of the world, Pierce was an unsuspecting party by nature, and to top it all off, he was a left-hander, which is always an aggravation of any peculiarity.

Maurice Myers, the Kalamazoo manager, dropped round at the hotel where the Lansing bunch was packing up for the next jump. Myers sought out Morrissey and Pierce and held speech with the pair.

"Tecumseh is coming here tomorrow," said Maurice, "and I'll give Pierce $50 if he'll stay over and pitch the three games for us. Will you let him Johnny?" And then he winked at the Lansing magnate.

"Well, I don't know what Joe Jackson would say to that," replied Morrissey, who had tumbled to the situation, "but I'll send you word from Battle Creek."

During the first day at the Creek, Pierce was plainly nervous, but Morrissey gave no sign. News came over the wires that Tecumseh had won, and Pierce begged to go.

"Wait another day," said Morrissey, and again Tecumseh trimmed the Myerites. Surely Morrissey would relent for the last day, reasoned Pierce, and begged for a chance to go, but Johnny refused, and the chance of added money vanished.

Kalamazoo later appeared at Lansing and Pierce informed Myers of Morrissey's refusal to let him go. Myers waxed righteously indignant.

"I'll tell you what I think" said he in a stage whisper. "Bo Slear of Tecumseh, heard about it and gave Morrissey the $50 to keep you away."

Large doings took place that night when Pierce and Morrissey got together to talk it over and the player firmly believes to this day that he was the victim of a sad double cross.—Detroit Times.

No use to die.

"I have found out that there is no use to die of lung trouble as long as you can get Dr. King's New Discovery" says Mrs. T. P. White of Rushboro, Pa. "I would not be alive today only for that wonderful medicine. It loosens up a cough quicker than anything else and cures lung disease even after the case is pronounced hopeless." This most reliable remedy for coughs, colds, lagrippe, asthma, bronchitis and hoarseness is sold under guarantee at C A. Wright & Son's. 50c and $1. Trial bottle free.

WHAT IS WRONG?

Many people in Tecumseh are asking that question of late.

Within the last few weeks, more people than usual have complained of frequent sneezing fits, tickling in the throat, stoppage in the nose, spasms of coughing, raising of mucous, droppings in the throat and offensive breath and have asked themselves what is the matter.

The trouble is that they are affected with catarrh and unless immediate steps are taken to remedy their condition, the disease will increase and spread through the delicate mucous membrane that lines the air passages and a chronic and serious stage of the disease will result.

At the first symptoms of catarrh Hyomei should be used. There is no other treatment like it or just as good; none that can take its place and cure so surely, so quickly and at so little cost. It is a scientific medicated air treatment that does not drug and derange the stomach, but is breathed in, directly destroying all disease germs that may lurk in the nose, throat and lungs and soothing and healing the irritated mucous membrane.

C. A. Wright & Son, the local agents for Hyomei, have so much confidence in the merits of the remedy that they offer it on trial to any catarrhal sufferer with the agreement to refund the purchase price of $1.00 for the complete outfit to anyone who is not satisfied with the results. You certainly can afford to test Hyomei with an offer like this. Get it now and be cured of catarrh.

DO YOU GET UP WITH A LAME BACK?

Kidney Trouble Makes You Miserable.

Almost everybody who reads the newspapers is sure to know of the wonderful cures made by Dr Kilmer's Swamp Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy.

It is the great medical triumph of the nineteenth century; discovered after years of scientific research by Dr. Kilmer, the eminent kidney and bladder specialist, and is wonderfully successful in promptly curing lame back, uric acid, catarrh of the bladder and Bright's Disease, which is the worst form of kidney trouble.

Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is not recommended for everything but if you have kidney, liver or bladder trouble it will be found just the remedy you need. It has been tested in so many ways, in hospital work and in private practice, and has proved so successful in every case that a special arrangement has been made by which all readers of this paper, who have not already tried it, may have a sample bottle sent free by mail, also a book telling more about Swamp-Root, and how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper and send you address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. The regular fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles are sold by all good druggists. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

ANSWERS EVERY CALL.

Tecumseh people have found that this is true.

A cold, a strain, a sudden wrench
A little cause may hurt the kidneys.
Spells of backache often follow,
Or some irregularity of the urine.
A certain remedy for such attacks,
A medicine that answers every call,
Is Doan's Kidney Pills, a true specific
Many Tecumseh people rely on it.
Here is proof

E. H. Hyde, living on west Chicago street, Tecumseh, Mich, says: "I suffered from kidney trouble for about 2 years caused by a cold which settled in my kidneys. The pain in my back was often so severe that I could not stoop or lift. I used a number of highly recommended remedies but failed to receive more than temporary relief and finally began taking Doan's Kidney Pills procured at Wright & Son's drug store. On using the contents of the first box I received much benefit, continued and was cured. I have recommended Doan's Kidney Pills to others and will continue to do so."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn company, Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States. Remember the name Doan's,—and take no other.

The Mayor of Berlin.

One of the principal requirements of a mayor in Germany is unqualified honesty, for in the municipal administration of Germany graft in any form would not be tolerated. To become the mayor of a city like Berlin the aspirant must have established his reputation for efficiency in governing other German cities. His career is carefully scrutinized by the members of the town council who select him, for not only must he be competent and successfully perform the duties of his high position, but still so young as likely to remain competent for many years, for a mayor in Prussia is elected for a term of twelve years and if not reelected after that period is entitled to a life pension of half the amount of his salary. After a service of six years his pension is one-fourth of his salary and after serving twenty years two-thirds. He need not necessarily be a resident of Berlin at the time of his appointment—in fact, the mayor is usually chosen from the residents of other cities.

Dough.

Dough is made out of wheat, real estate, oil, literature and magazine articles. But dough made of wheat is no stickier than any other. Dough is the prior fact to bread, motor cars, steam yachts and collections of old books. It is the staff of high life. It imbitters matrimony and purveys the lovely scandals we read about. It gets girls sent off to college and fitted to be something more spectacular than mere wives and mothers. It curseth them that go in for it, but not unto the third and fourth generations. We are too good spenders for that. It is from dough that the dowdy, the dull and the dotty derive distinction otherwise denied.—Puck.

THE HORSE WON.

Beat the First Locomotive on the B and O. Road.

The first locomotive on the Baltimore and Ohio had sails attached. So did the cars. These sails were hoisted when the wind was in the right direction so as to help the locomotive.

The rivalry between the railroads using locomotives and those using horses was very bitter. In August, 1830, an actual trial of speed was held between a horse and one of the pioneer locomotives, which did not result in favor of the locomotive. The race was on the Baltimore and Ohio, the locomotive being one built by Peter Cooper, who also acted as engineer.

The horse, a gallant gray, was in the habit of pulling a car on a track parallel to that used by the locomotive. At first the gray had the better of the race, but when he was a quarter of a mile ahead Mr. Cooper succeeded in getting up enough steam to pass the horse amid terrific applause.

At that moment a band slipped from a pulley, and, "though Mr. Cooper lacerated his hands trying to replace it, the engine stopped and the horse passed it and came in the winner."—Van Norden Magazine.

They Don't Like Funerals.

"If you want to know just how sensitive some Washington folks are, listen to the reasons some of our tenants give for canceling their leases," said a renting agent. "Here are the complaints from five families who want to move because they live on 'funeral streets.' A lot of people, it seems, are sensitive about that. There are certain streets in town—those near churches where many funerals are held and those leading to the various cemeteries—which are usually traveled by funeral parties. Houses in those streets are becoming a poor investment. There is more moving from those houses than from any others we have anything to do with, and generally the movers give as the reason for their dissatisfaction the fact that the sight of so many hearses gets on their nerves" —Washington Star.

LITERARY BULLS.

For Instance, the "Groan That Gurgles From the Slain."

Macaulay once reviewed a poem in which a climax of absurdity was reached with this line:

And hear at each groan that gurgles from the slain.

The poetic license which lets a groan gurgle from a slain man is capable of letting him walk into town from the field of battle, collect the amount of his life insurance policy and hand it to his widow. It brings to mind the heroic warrior of whom it is said that "thrice he slew the slain" and the Irish member of parliament who convulsed the house of commons by exclaiming that he wouldn't die as a soldier first and a man afterward.

But, strange to say, Macaulay himself has made a similar blunder. In his "Battle of Lake Regillus" the following lines occur:

The shouting of the slayers
And screeching of the slain.

Did these writers make these slips in the heat of battle or were they testing the intellectual acuteness of their readers? There is a story of a German schoolmaster who used to call out his class in history and begin to tell them of the Thirty Years' war. "Yes, children," he would say, "this is a subject in which I am especially interested, as my grandfather often told me about it. He was a well to do innkeeper, and one day as he was standing in his doorway a mounted soldier came galloping up at a furious rate. 'What's the matter?' asked my grandfather. 'Matter enough,' answered the dragoon. 'Don't you know that the Thirty Years' war has begun today?'" At this point the ancient pedagogue would pause and survey his class. Then a smile would overspread his rubicund countenance if a hand was raised and a boyish treble asked how the dragoon knew the war would last thirty years. Perhaps our poets, too, would play the schoolmaster and smile if we should ask them how it is possible for the slain to groan or screech.—George Seibel in Pittsburg Gazette-Times.

THE STUPID SWAN.

Graceful and Beautiful, the Bird Is a Nincompoop.

To the mind of the average farmer nothing which walks on two legs is quite so stupid as a hen. He is mistaken, though, for there still remains that beautiful, graceful nincompoop, the common swan. The swan is so stupid that it will stand in the shallow part of a pond and allow the water to freeze round its legs till the ice is so thick that it cannot lift its feet and it is stuck fast. Not infrequently owners of these handsome but witless birds are compelled to chop away sufficient ice to make it possible for them to withdraw their imprisoned feet.

The stupidity of the swan in this respect is emphasized by the intelligence exhibited by ornamental ducks when the weather turns cold. As night comes on and the water begins to freeze the ducks begin swimming in a wide, well defined circle. Round and round they go during the entire night, keeping all the water within that circle free from ice, so that when the day dawns they can float about and doze in the sun. Ducks are always most active during the night and choose the day for sleeping.

But to return to the swan. If you find one of these birds some distance from the water and startle it, the swan will rush a few feet toward the pond and then drop down on the ground and try to go through the motions of swimming, apparently unable in its fright to realize that it has not yet reached the water.

Neither is the common swan a good fighter. The black swan, although one-half its size, is invariably the victor in the combats which are sometimes engaged in and generally kills its antagonist. The black swan usually provokes the fight, too, for it is rather a quarrelsome bird.—Washington Star.

Do Fish Feel Pain?

How sensitive to pain are fish? A correspondent writes: "I have a small pond which is stocked with trout. I keep an accurate account of those I catch and note when I lose any. One morning a big rainbow trout broke the worm hook with which I had hooked him. That evening I hooked and landed a good trout, also with worm tackle, which proved to be my friend of the morning, as right down in his stomach was the broken gut and hook, and, beside this, in his lip was a March brown fly hook which, according to my fishing book, must have been there many weeks. A fish with a fly hook in his mouth, a worm hook in his stomach and ready to gulp down bait must be quite impervious to what we mortals call pain."
